Bonar Law Does Not Intend to Resign

British Prime Minister Has Three Months Before Him in Which to Reconstruct Ministry.

London, April 15 (By the A. P.)—"The prime minister has no intentions whatever of resigning," said a statement issued tonight from No. 10 Downing street, the official residence of Andrew Bonar Law.

This, constituted the government's reply to statements in several of the Sunday morning newspapers, which the government could not allow to pass unchallenged. This official denial, however, it is generally agreed in political circles, does not affect the situation as indicated in these despatches last week—that Mr. Bonar Law's retention of office depends on his health.

Undoubtedly the premier has no intention of relinquishing hold, if his health will stand up under the continuous heavy strain of office. When he assumed the premiership Mr. Bonar Law frankly said his retention of the post would depend entirely on his health and official pronials such as that issued today, it is believed, will not influence public opinion, which has been almost universal since last week's happenings in parliament, that if the government is to survive it must be greatly strengthened.

The premier still has three months before him if which he may reconstruct his ministry without the necessity of new ministers having to run the gauntlet of bye elections; and this is an important factor, considering the general dissatisfaction caused by the government's complete inertia in connection with the Ruhr trouble, and home problems, like unemployment, housing and the labor disputes.

The fate of the ministry probably largely depends on the nature of the budget statement Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, will be able to present. A popular budget would be a great asset to the government.

Lord Curzon's aloofness and imperious manner are considered as not being calculated to add to his chances of success as a prime minister ,and therefore the chances are supposed to favor Mr. Baldwin. Moreover, although there is nothing to prevent a member of the upper house becoming premier, the general preference is for a premier who belongs to the commons. The essence of the situation is that the administration, notably weak in debating strength, already is suffering from the inheritance of troubles at home and abroad predicted for it by Mr. Lloyd George when he left office, and that it must find some means to reinforce its personnel.

INCREASE IN CIGAR AND CIGARETTE INDUSTRY

New York and North Carolina in 1921 were the leading states in the value of production.

ABANDONED SHIP BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN RUM RUNNER

Found by Coast Guard Cutter Manhattan at Entrance to Great South Bay—Schooner, with All Sails Set, Was Dragging Anchor—Deck Was Strewn With Empty Cartridge Shells and There Were Signs of a Struggle—20 Foot Motor Boat Was Lashed to the Deck.

New York, April 16.—A mystery of the sea developed today when the abandoned two-masted schooner "Patricia M. Behan," believed to have been engaged in rum running between Bridgeport, Conn., and Keyport, N. J., was found by the coast guard cutter Manhattan with sails set and anchor dragging at the entrance to Great South bay. The deck was strewn with empty cartridge shells and there were signs of a struggle, according to Capt. M. J. Ryan of the Manhattan.

The schooner probably carried a crew of ten men, and sufficient food for ten days was in the hold. While no liquor was found, entries on the log and on a leaf torn from a notebook evidently owned by the unknown captain, indicated that the craft had been engaged in the rum trade. The first entry on the log was made on Jan. 12 and the last at 5 p. m. on April 10.

Lashed to the deck of the schooner, which is finely built and of the Nova Scotia trading type, was a staunch 25-foot motor boat with the name "Maid of Canada, La Havre, N. S.," painted on the stern.

Considerably mystified, the coast guards towed the schooner into port and started a thorough investigation. Examination of the torn leaf from the notebook disclosed that on March 27 3,918 packages of liquor had been sold at from $48 to $50 (presumably a case). One entry showed that five cases of champagne had been sold for $60.

On Jan. 27 someone designated as "Ralph" took "645 cases" and "540 cases" at other times. Another person noted as "Slip" took "400 cases," and there were sundry sales to fishermen.

The schooner was once known as "Edith Helen Bush," but the name had been painted out and covered with canvas upon which appeared the name of Patricia M. Behan.

The maritime register in its last issue notes that the schooner Patrician M. Beman, a schooner of 83 tons, left Halifax for Nassau, Bahamas, on Nov. 17, 1922, and nothing concerning her has since been printed. Customs officials said they believed further investigation would show that both boats were identical.

Captain Ryan said that if the schooner's captain was British he would never have left his vessel, for it is a tradition of the sea to remain, even if all hands desert. He could not explain why the motorboat was left behind. The coast guards freely expressed their opinion that there had been some kind of a battle with rum pirates.

ALLIES ARE REVISING GERMAN REPARATION PLAN

Paris, April 15.—(By the A. P.)—The Franco-Belgian revised reparation plan, it is officially confirmed, will soon be put into tentative form in preparation for the German demand for the allied terms. Premier Poincare and his ministers and expert for France and Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar of Belgium, discussed their views at the end of the two days' conference concluded yesterday, and agreed to have the preliminary plan drafted.

M. Barthou, president and French member of the reparation commission, and M. Delacroix, Belgian member, it is understood, will undertake this work, probably with Jacques Seydoux, one of the leading French experts, sitting in. The principal work will be to adapt the Versailles treaty terms, with nominal reparations of 132,000,000,000 gold marks, to present conditions. Great Britain and Italy will be handed this tentative plan if they ask for it, it said.

GERMANS ARE DODGING PAYMENT OF POSTAGE

Berlin, April 15.—Dodging the payment of postage is becoming one of the great pastimes in Germany, and the federal postal authorities are hot on the trails of business firms and others who have inaugurated their own special mail delivery services. The first victim pounced upon by the post office department sleuths was none other than Lord Mayor Boese of Berlin. It was found that Berlin's municipal administration had organized its own corps of letter carriers in order to do away with the buying of postage stamps. Informal complaints that this violated the postal regulations failed to move the city officials, and the case was taken to court.

USING "PADLOCK" LAW TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION

Washington, April 15.—The "padlock" provision of the Volstead law is being used increasingly in prohibition enforcemgat, according to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, who said today that about 50 hotels, cafes and cabarets, including many of national prominence, had been closed by such exercise of law during the last few months. A number of drug stores, he added, also have been closed.

Under the padlock provision, any room, house, building, vehicle or boat where illegal liquor transactions are discovered may be closed for one year as a public nuisance, or sold to pay fines and costs. Originally the provision was enforced somewhat laxly and only rooms of a structure were closed, but Commissioner Haynes said the policy now was for strict interpretation, allowing complete closing of entire buildings declared under the ban.

"When real estate owners find that their property is subject to a permanent injunction and violators find they are subject to contempt proceedings," said Mr. Haynes, "the effect is a better spirit of cooperation with enforcement officials, nor we property owner can afford to have his holdings closed for a year.

Through some strange act of fate the rear lawn of the Raymond A. Parker residence on Church street has become the favorite wrecking grounds of a certain automobile. A few weeks ago a Dort sedan said to be owned by Willimantic Motors company came out out of Maple avenue and shot across Church street, over the sidewalk and a hedge fence onto the lawn of Mr. Parker's home.

Saturday night about 9.45 o'clock the same machine driven by William Horton of the company, came around the same corner and featured in another accident. Mr. Horton attempted to turn down Church street and when he applied his brakes the rear wheels became locked with the result the sedan started in a semi-circle, struck the opposite curbing and fell over on its side on the sidewalk with the radiator jammed into a tree. The front of the car caught fire and the fire department was summoned. Slight damage by fire was done before it was extinguished with chemicals. The damage to the machine consisted of a badly smashed right side, demolished radiator, broken right front wheel and the front axle was ripped from under the car. The driver and a companion were uninjured. The matter was reported to the police department but no evidence of reckless driving could be found against Mr. Horton, who is unfamiliar with the streets of this city. The machine was allowed to remain in its wrecked position during the night and Sunday it was removed to a Temple Street garage.

At the 10.45 o'clock services Sunday morning, Rev. John Pearce, pastor for the past two years, preached his farewell sermon in the local Methodist Episcopal church. His sermon was from Samuel VI; 14, the subject being The Blessing of Sheep and the Loosing of Oxen. Rev. Pearce also officiated at the evening services.

As the pastor of the local Methodist church, Rev. John Pearce gathered around him a large number of friends including people of all denominations. He was actively interested in the civic betterment of the community and was connected with the work of the Welfare Bureau and the Community Forum. He was also president of the Willimantic Ministers' Union.

An era of prosperity was enjoyed by the Local Methodist church during the pastorate of Rev. Pearce, including the gain of new members and healthy financial conditions. The various parish organizations were also much improved as was the church property.

Rev. and Mrs. Pearce have received a large number of callers during the past few days who came to wish them success in their new field. They will leave Wednesday morning of this week for Newport, R. I., where Rev. Mr. Pearce is to take up his duties as pastor of the Middletown church, located near the boundary line of the city and having a large membership.

Arthur J. Dubreuil who recently sold the Wood Cafeteria and Smoke Shop has purchased a large tract of land on Jackson street from Mrs. E. L. Johnson of St. Paul, Minnesota and Mrs. Carl G. Terry also of that place and a resident of this city for a number of years. John F. Collins, who is in charge of the property assisted in closing the deal.

The purchase included a very desirable tract of ten acres of level land with good barns, and is bounded on the west by Jackson street, on the east by the New Haven railroad, on the south by land of the Capen estate and on the north by the Fry property. The property is known as the J. A. Hunt place and has been called the Hillcrest Dairy and City Market Garden. The purchase has a frontage on the east of Jackson street and a depth of from 650 to 866 feet. It is the intention of Mr. Dubreuil to divide the land up into lots for building purposes and he proposes to extend Hope street through his land.

It is reported that he plans to purchase a part of the Fry farm and have Hope street run into Ash street. There will be a street from Jackson street to Hope street extension and they will probably be known as Terry and Wood streets.

The property in question has been in the hands of the Lewis family for upwards of years. Years before the outbreak of the Civil war both the Lewis estate and the Fry property were owned by Martin Hardy and in 1857 he disposed of his holdings to Joseph B. Fry who later sold the property purchased by Mr. Dubreuil to Joseph A. Lewis.

On April 30 the operatives of the American Thread company, the Holland Silk Manufacturing company and the Windham Silk company will be affected by an increase in wages. The above plants are textile mills and it is believed that the increase will be equivalent to that which has prevailed through New England textile plants, namely 12 1-2 per cent. The recent announcement of an increase leaves but two plants in this city which have not granted increases. The Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company posted notices stating that an adjustment of wages from two and one-half to ten per cent. increase took effect on March 28.

About 3,500 operatives are benefited by the increases and they are divided as follows: American Thread Co., 2,650; Roanie Velvet company, 265; Quidnick Windham Manufacturing company, 375; Holland Silk Manufacturing company and Windham Silk company, 50; The plants are all operating on full time but only ten per cent less operatives are employed at present as compared with a few years ago. Dating from January 24, 1916, the increase is the eleventh in local textile plants. From January 24, 1916, to June 14, 1920, there were ten continuous increases in wages, amounting to a compound increase of 167 per cent. Deducting decreases and later increases the present increase makes th compound amount about 140 per cent.

Ten years is a long time for an attorney to hold such a position in so small a town as Stonington.

It is understood that the American Velvet company weavers here are to receive a raise in pay. The silk weavers are to receive an increase of four cents a yard and those who are working on chiffon three cents a yard, and a general raise is anticipated throughout the mill which will amount to about 10 per cent.

The Atwood Machine company as yet have not raised their employees throughout their plants as was first rumored here, but many of the steady workers and men who have been in their employ for some time have been remembered.

A band of gypsies came to town during the week end and started to camp on the lots directly across from Grand View park. They called on everyone in the vicinity and asked for donations of clothing, paying their way by telling fortunes. There were about 14 in all and they traveled in high powered automobiles. They were ordered to move on when they came into the borough and when last seen were pulling out toward Mystic.

Saturday two large hydroplanes were noticed going high one going over the town at 3 p. m., headed toward Providence, going in a northeasterly direction. The other machine was moving at a fast rate of speed toward New York, going through Stonington about 12.40 in the afternoon. They brought out many sightseers to look for the sound of the buzzing. The sight of seeing flying machines go over during the past few years has been no uncommon sight, for every day the mail fiyer passed between Boston and New York en route and was seen in Stonington. The new air service which is soon to be started between Newport and New York will bring the flying machines over the town daily.

The town was hard hit Friday night with what the fishermen term a "dry" southeaster. Saturday morning a cold breeze drove the thermometer down to 35 degrees again, a cold time for the middle of April. The farmers in this vicinity have not attempted to do any plowing yet, and garden stuff it is predicted will be high in price and late in the season.

Mrs. K. M. Peshallow and Miss Susan Peshallow of New London, Mrs. Florence B. Berthelf and Miss Margaret Berthelf of Newark, N. J., spent the week end with Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Weeks.

Mrs. Henry Barnes has arrived from New York and opened her summer home here.

Mrs. Frank F. Dodge will address the members of the Travel club Tuesday afternoon at their meeting which will be held at 4 o'clock at the library building. She will speak on The Magic of Words.

Capt. Antone Souza is getting his power boat into commission and soon the Mary will put out for fishing cruises.

A. S. Kenyon has put in power at the Chesebro boathouse, which will assist him in his boat repairing this season.

Albert J. Dyer, who passed away in Pawcatuck with heart disease Friday morning, was boss farmer at Stonington Manor inn, near Stonington, many years. As was also his son George.

C. W. Camp of Boston spent the week end with school friends here.

Why People Become Nervous and Run-down

Prominent Health Official Explains

By C. E. Turner, M. D.
Former Director of Philadelphia Health Department

The reason why persons who are much annoyed, nervous and sleepless know perfectly well that their condition is because there are no compartments that they can lay their cares and worries down in when they go to bed, so that they can rest.

Their systems fail to exhaust from their bodies the poisons that are generated during these mental disturbances without which the body is absolutely unable to create the energy and nerve force. And as they go on expending, day after day, their energy without replacing it, their systems become more and more depleted, and they find themselves in the condition commonly known as nervous prostration, or nervous breakdown. That is why in the treatment of these cases, the first thing to be done is to supply the body with the elements which it is lacking in, and which it must have in order to create energy and nerve force.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Fury at the Strand.

A classic of the sea. That briefly sums up Richard Barthelmess' magnificent production, Fury, the moving masterpiece on the screen this week at the Strand theatre, where it opens an engagement of four days commencing today.

Tol'able David has been deservedly called a classic of the Virginia hills, but even that drama has been eclipsed by the young star's latest effort.

Fury is a gem of the roaming main by Edmund Goulding and none of its gleam is lost on the screen. Barthelmess is seen as "Boy" Leyton, second mate of the "Lady Spray," a picturesque four-masted schooner captained by his father, who is known among the men as "Dog" Leyton. The boy is submissive to the bullying by his father, who thinks the lad has too much "woman" in him. He cringes before him, yet loves him.

The worm turns, however, when his father learns of "Boy's" plans to elope with Minnie, a little Limehouse slavey, and assails the girl's character. "Boy," forgetting filial regard, jumps to the attack and his father, happy in the belief that his son has no yellow streak, welcomes the assault. The emotion brings on a heart attack and the father tells the story of his wife and "Boy's" mother, who had deserted them both for another man.

"Boy" grants his father's dying request and swears before he marries to avenge his mother who has been cruelly wronged by the other man.

And this vow takes the now thoroughly changed "Boy" to Glasgow, where he finds his forlorn little mother then back to sea, where a terrific denouement is staged. Of course the story ends happily and of course the plans for the little wedding which were so cruelly interrupted are carried out. But, of course, not in the usual way.

Barthelmess is splendid supported by Dorothy Gish, who makes a bewitching Minnie; Tyrone Power as Captain Leyton; Pat Hartigan, Barry Macollum and Jessie Arnold. The photographic effects are a revelation, the sea "shots" far surpassing anything of the kind ever attempted before. Henry King directed. Which is just another reason why "Fury" is a classic.

In addition to this nine-act classic there will be the usual comedy and news.

It is advisable to come early for a seat.

At the Broadway Theatre.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville attractions scheduled for the Broadway theatre the first half of this week is as follows:

Amy Dean & Co. offer a novelty act.

James & Johnson are two colored comedians who know how to produce fun and dance.

Carol & Louise Dore, a brilliant violinist and pianist, appear in a delightful repertoire of "Music That Charms."

George Mack is an American humorist who offers songs and stories of the kind that bring bursts of laughter.

Pape & Dutton are clever versatile entertainers which bring them in the class of comedians.

Lovers of beauty have a treat in store for them in the Preferred Picture, Thorns and Orange Blossoms, now playing at the Broadway theatre.

From a pictorial point of view a production has rarely if ever been equalled. The story possesses double background of sunny Spain and quaint New Orleans and the settings are reminiscent of old Madrid and flowery southern gardens.

There is a fortune represented in the costumes worn by Rosita, the Spanish prima donna. Rare old shawls rich embroidered, exquisite fans and lace mantillas as well as a collection of American gowns of twelve different styles make up her wardrobe. The little American bride rivals her in her gorgeous wedding attire, her satin gown and gorgeous veil.

The sumptuous jewels worn by the principal actresses, their furs and hats make up a fashion display seldom seen before.

The exterior scenes of dimly lighted patios, luxuriant blossoming gardens and magnificent Louisiana homes make the production one of rich mounting.

Not the least of the beauty however centers in Estelle Taylor and Edith Roberts, two contrasting types of feminine loveliness. Both of these charming artists have found parts admirably adapted to particular talents.

Sale of West Main Street House.

Through the agency of William E. Hill, James Mahoney has sold his two tenement house, located at 234 West Main street, to Leo and Viola Mehasky of this city. The new owners intend to renovate these tenements and shortly to occupy one as their future home.

INDICATIONS OF THRILLING RACE FOR PENNANTS IN BOTH LEAGUES

New York, April 15.—National league baseball teams never were in better condition to start the diamond race than this year, John A. Heydler, president of the senior circuit declared today to the Associated Press in commenting upon the start of the season on Tuesday. All indications point to one of the leagues most successful seasons, he added.

"The league on Tuesday next begins its 48th season of continuous existence," he said. "Through the two-time world's series victories of the Giants, our organization has regained much in playing prestige and keen interest will center in the fight the seven other clubs will take to dislodge the champions.

"Changes have been made in the control of clubs in the National league circuit which brought cries of a pleasant character to baseball in general. I am sure no welcome news was heard during the winter than that 'Matty' was back in the game at the head of the Boston club and the appointment of Arthur Fletcher, as manager of the Philadelphia club, was a recognition of a sincere and straight forward player who always stood high in the favor of the fans. This year, too, Ill inaugurates the control of McKechnie, manager of Pittsburgh, from the start of the struggle, as he did not take up the position of manager in 1922 until the season was well on.

"Everywhere I have been this spring, I have found great interest in baseball and in sports in general, and all indication point to one of our most interesting and successful championship seasons.

FIVE AMERICAN CLUBS ARE PENNANT POSSIBILITIES

Chicago, April 15.—(By the A. P.)—Five clubs in the American league have pennant possibilities, in the opinion of President Ban Johnson, who, in a pre-season statement tonight said that evidence throughout the circuit of interest in the 1923 race assures the league one of the best years in its history.

President Johnson said Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago will enter the race far better equipped than a year ago, while New York, because of its pitching staff, must be regarded as a dangerous contender. The illness of George Sisler, may keep the Browns out of the rate at the start, President John figures.

"This spring I have studied with unusual care, reports from training camps of the American league clubs," President Johnson said. "The weather in all sections, save Florida, has been exceedingly unfavorable for the early preparatory work. This will prove something of a handicap to the teams that trained in the more northern states.

"There has been sufficient development, however, to warrant assurance to the public that the American league championship race will furnish a contest of unusual merit and interest. It is my firm conviction there are, at least, five clubs with actual pennant possibilities. In accepting the verdicts of expert sharp shooters in southern training camps the Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago clubs will enter the campaign far better equipped than they were a year ago.

"I do not regard with serious concern the rumors of Sisler's eye affliction. The ailment was of sudden development, but a gradual return to normal conditions is reasonably assured. Without the aid of this remarkable and aggressive player, the 'Browns' would be greatly taxed in maintaining a place in the first flight.

"New York always must be regarded as a leading factor, because of its unexcelled pitching staff. It is well to disclose the fact that Connie Mack, with his Athletics, will enter the struggle buoyed by a greater confidence than he has manifested in years. Washington's hope hinges on the development of a young corps of pitchers.

"There is evidence throughout the circuit of unbounded interest in the approaching race, which insures to the American league one of the best years in the history of the national game."

BOSTON'S BASEBALL CHANCE SEEMS TO BE IMPROVED

Boston, April 15.—On the eve of the opening of the 1923 baseball season Boston appeared to have as representatives in the National and American leagues two teams which would at least finish better than the cellar position achieved by each last year. The Braves give promise of greater strength in both pitching and hitting, while the Red Sox under the management of Frank Chance, the "Peerless Leader," were admitted a rather uncertain quantity.

The Braves, sold during the off season by George Washington Grant to a syndicate headed by Christy Mathewson, famous pitcher of other days, were regarded as having possibilities as a first division club. Last year the team was handicapped by a series of accidents to players. Three rookie pitchers, Tim McNamara, Joe Genewich and Larry Benton, had, it was hoped, improved the team's chances of success considerably, although the veterans were looked upon as more uncertain. The addition of John "Stuffy" McInnis, of Gloucester, to the squad has added strength and popularity to the team.

The greatest asset of the Red Sox apparently is their new leader, Chance. More fortunate managers have all their regular positions settled before April 1, but in the Red Sox lineup doubt still remains as to who would fill in at third base and at center field.

Of the rookie pitching staff little was expected and the veteran Jack Quinn had a bone in his hand broko which will keep him out of the game for a few weeks at least. As a result of trades the Red Sox now have but two survivors of their 1920 squad—Mike Menosky and Al Walters, and neither of these is likely to start the season in the regular lineup.

GREATER NEW YORK TEAMS ARE STRONG

New York, April 15.—Confidence that the 1923 baseball season would be the most successful in the history of three major league teams in New York was expressed today.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, said he thought good pitching would carry his team to another pennant, while John J. McGraw, director of the Giants 'destiny, said his aggregation was stronger than it has been in several years, and ready for the fray. Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Dodgers, said the Brooklyn team has a good chance to finish in the first division.

The Yankees start the season with last year's lineup but with the pitching staff strengthened by the addition of Herbert Pennock, a left-hander, Huggins pointed out.

"We are in better condition and the hitting will be stronger," he said. "Ruth ought to have a better year and I look to Meusel for good work. Give the Yanks another utility outfielder—and I'm going to get one before long—and we will be all fixed."

Jack Bentley of Baltimore and Jimmy O'Connell, the center fielder from California, whose price tags have made them the fans' centers of interest, are the Giants' prize recruits. McGraw looks to them for good work, and also to Bill Cunningham, Webb, Lucas, Blume and Jackson, all new men.

The pitching staff of the Dodgers, conceded to be the team's strongest department, has been rounded out by the addition of Paul Schreiber, Harry Shriver and Leo Dickerman, while Stuffy Stewart, the second baseman, Mullen and Schlueter are said to be promising youngsters.

SPEAKER SAYS INDIANS WILL LAND AMONG LEADERS

Cleveland, Ohio, April 15.—President E. S. Barnard and Manager Tris Speaker of the Cleveland Americans believe the Indians will finish in the first division in the American league pennant race this season and will be a factor in the [illegible] start due [illegible] weather at the [illegible] and the [illegible] several weeks.

The St. Louis Nationals present a vastly improved aggregation as compared with last year, according to Manager Branch Rickey, who expressed the belief that his club would be strong in the competition from the start to the finish.

LANDIS HAS NO CHOICE OF PENNANT WINNERS

Chicago, April 15.—(By the A. P.) Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, apparently has no favorites of the 1923 major league race, but he looks for a great year for baseball.

"For 1923 there is every indication for a most excellent season," Commissioner Landis said tonight. "Apparently, in most leagues, there will be a broadening of the field of clubs that are up in the running. Very likely the results of [illegible] will be highly satisfactory [illegible] great year for the game."

TIGERS WILL BE A STRONG AGGREGATION

Detroit, April 15.—Despite the good showing of his men during the training season, Manager Ty Cobb of the Detroit Tigers thinks the field for the American league pennant this year will be between Detroit and New York, with the Chicago White Sox as a third dangerous contender. Absence from the St. Louis lineup of George Sisler, the Tiger leader for [illegible] years, will greatly decrease the chances of the Browns,

NEW ENGLAND'S NATIVE PLANTS.

There is a society for the preservation of New England plants and it is engaged in giving publicity to its object and the protection which it hopes to bring about.

It is realized of course that legislative steps have been taken in some instances for this very purpose. It is against the law to pull up laurel and trailing arbutus and the removal of certain evergreens without the permission of the owners is punishable by a fine. Concerning the trees this may not be so much for the purpose of preservation as for the protection of property, but because of the disregard for the harm that may be done in one way or another restrictive measures have become necessary.

The same is true in regard to birds. Certain wild fowl have become extinct because of the inconsiderate manner in which they have been slaughtered. The decrease did not awaken attention in time to prevent their elimination, and now it is too late to restore those particular breeds.

Before it is too late it is the purpose of those long interested in the native New England plants to see that they are not destroyed. Many are those who admire them, and many are there who thoughtlessly proceed to pull up all that they can find, thus failing to give consideration to the fact that such a practice if persistently carried out by all other admirers will in a surprisingly short time mean their extinction.

There has been no inclination to make such raids upon the wild carrot but those for which preservation is sought are not as prolific as that pest. Moderation is what the society aims at. It doesn't undertake to say that none of the native plants should be cut, but it does hope, especially when it comes to uprooting, that moderation will be used.

Drawing attention to such a matter before the point of extinction is reached should do much to encourage the discrimination that is so much needed.

CARE AND WARNINGS.

For four months last summer the Pennsylvania railroad made a careful survey of crossing accidents and it came to the conclusion that 97 per cent of the auto drivers are reasonably careful. That means that those who figure in the fatalities and accidents and those who for the most part are at the mercy of the three per cent.

There are instances where railroad crossing accidents are not attributed to gross carelessness on the part of the auto driver. The number is not large, however, where the accident could not have been prevented had there been shown the proper respect for the "stop, look and listen" signs.

That there is need for the establishment of adequate signals, that will serve by night as well as day on many of the crossings, is beyond question. Care will do its share of the protective work, but it is only proper that there should be something in the nature of warnings for the particularly bad crossings as well as for those which are much used.

That darkness is not the reason for most of the accidents is shown by the Pennsylvania survey where out of a total of 682 cases, there were 487 in broad daylight and only 195 at night.

But how little attention is paid to the real danger at a railroad crossing by the three per cent of reckless drivers is indicated by the fact that there were 79 instances where the autos crashed into the side of trains. This was because the oncoming train was discovered too late, because a chance of getting by was taken, because of not knowing what to do at the approach of recognized danger or because the brakes failed to work as effectively as expected. But it also displays too plainly the failing to have the autos in proper control at the approach of such crossings, whether or not there were warnings.

If there was a greater respect for danger at such points, and improvement in the warnings at obviously dangerous places, crossing fatalities would be greatly reduced.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING.

Even though there has been a persistent unwillingness to recognize the existence of the large business that is being done in smuggled liquor along the Atlantic coast, there has been much commendation in behalf of the suggestion that the government eagle boats be turned over to the coast guard for the purpose of dealing with these violators of the federal law. This means dealing with those who are actually engaged in the smuggling activities, rather than those who carry the liquor to points on the high sea where they can dispose of it.

Time and again the claim has been made that increased activities in behalf of prohibition enforcement could not be made because of the lack of funds. That is now being raised in connection with the use of the eagle boats. It is also being insisted that the navy has no more funds than it requires for its own uses and there is nothing that can be devoted to the operation of such boats even though they should be turned over to the coast guard.

Just what would happen in case there was a persistent and determined violation along the Atlantic coast of other than the prohibition law might serve as an example of what might be expected to certainly from the present situation. Prevalent are the claims that the country is most certainly back of the prohibition law and yet open, glaring and intentional violations are constantly going on.

Hope prevails that the time will come when other countries will put a stop to the exportation of liquor that is destined for smuggling. Till that time comes is this country going to remain helpless in its efforts to check this flood? Is it going to admit that it is helpless against the designs of the liquor sellers of other countries, or those of this country working through the owners of foreign ships?

TROLLEY FARES.

In the recent past there have been a few who have urged a five-cent trolley fare in this state. It was without reason under prevailing conditions but it was nevertheless voiced.

Out in Seattle there was a reduction to the five-cent fare, and Seattle has been watched since that time for the result of such a radical change. Seattle is now running a municipal street railway and it is interesting to note that its superintendent of public utilities has recommended that there be a return to the ten-cent fare or the 6 1-2 cent tokens. The five-cent rate has been in effect only since the first of March and for the month of March the receipts of the line showed a reduction of 28.8 per cent from that of March last year in spite of the 3.6 per cent increase in patronage which the lower rate brought.

Seattle has found that its lower rate fails to produce the revenue that is needed. Whether it will go back to the higher rate or pay the difference out of the pockets of the taxpayers remains to be seen, but it seems clear that the reduction was greater than was warranted by conditions at the time it was made.

Connecticut trolley lines have maintained that it was preferable that there should be a gradual reduction in trolley fares as conditions warranted and have proceeded in accord therewith. It is the sound business policy and preferable to the return to the higher rates which has been the case in other communities and which is now being urged in Seattle. The policy of the hand of steady habits shines besides the other.

THE MERCHANT MARINE.

Since it was established that the ship subsidy plan would not go through there has been uncertainty as to what policy would be pursued relative to the American shipping. Throughout all the discussion the importance of maintaining the American merchant marine has been kept uppermost. That is not to be discarded in the plan which has now been decided upon for disposing of the government vessels. We have made too much of a sacrifice in behalf of a merchant marine to permit it to become a total waste, or to throw up the hands and increase the cost of the experiment by throwing away the ships.

Just how much success will attend the arrangement that is to be followed remains to be seen. The conference between the President and the members of the shipping board has developed that some handicaps are to be removed in connection with the operation of American ships, but that if the offer to sell the vessels to American shippers to be maintained on certain routes does not bring results, or if enough interest is not manifested in the opportunity to get better than a junk price for them, the government will continue to operate themselves.

The purpose is now, as it has been in the past two years, to protect ourselves through the merchant marine. That is not going to be thrown overboard. It would have been possible to maintain such at a lower cost under the plan advocated by the president. But inasmuch as that has not received congressional approval there will be adherence to the next best arrangement. It will cost the country more than the other plan but the welfare of the nation as measured by a merchant marine will be carefully respected.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Blacking stoves is not a pleasant task for the housewife. Try slipping a paper bag over the hand holding the brush thus preventing the hand and nails from getting black.

As paraffin is removed from the jellies, wash it well and drop in a discarded clean coffee pot, where it is kept from dust. When wanted, put the pot on the stove, melt paraffin and pour from pot on jellies, etc.

A tin pie-plate used on your oil stove under saucepans will save the time and cost of cleaning the chimneys of your stove when the contents boil over.

In order to keep all hints and helps in a convenient form, buy a small wooden file box with a card-index. Paste the suggestions on the cards under their proper headings as, sewing helps, cleaning, etc.

When the bristles of the carpet-sweeper become soft from use, put a little common baking soda in some hot water, take the brush from the sweeper, dip it up and down in this solution and let dry in the sun. It will resemble a new brush.

Salt sprinkled on any substance burning on the stove or in the oven, will stop the smoke and smell.

In the absence of scouring-powder, wipe the sink dry and then dampen a cloth with kerosene and scrub.

Deviled cheese is savory on crackers. Mix to a paste 2 cups of grated cheese, 1 beaten egg, a pinch of salt, paprika, pepper sauce and onion juice.

Your preserve closet will look better if your labels are the same height. Cut a notch in a right angle of light cardboard and measure them as you put them on.

Dress up your chicken sandwiches with a little shredded lettuce, mayonnaise and thinly sliced radishes inside, and stuffed olives and sliced tomatoes as garnishings.

CARE OF THE ICEBOX.

Friday is a good day to always clean the refrigerator. Then it will be clean for the food that comes in on Saturday for the week end. It will also give you a chance to take an inventory of the foods needed, and the Saturday list is more apt to be complete.

If you wish to place a dish or bowl directly on the ice and are afraid it will slide off put a jar rubber on the ice and then place the article on the rubber. It will be a safe seat.

TAKES OUT GREASE.

When grease is spilled on the rug you can remove it by covering the spot with a piece of blotting paper and going over it with a hot iron. The blotting paper will absorb the grease.

UNUSUAL LAMPSHADE.

Somewhat more unusual than the average lamp shade is a charming one of blue chiffon over rose, the shape of which resembles a fan. Gold galloon and flowers of satin ribbon add to its attractiveness.

PRETTY LINGERIE.

Lingerie trimmings have never been lovelier, and particularly pretty are bandlings or colored organdie, with the edge formed of tiny overlapping petals of organdie.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Artificial waving of the hair is never actually good for it and often harmful. But, if you are careful, you can keep a loose, natural looking curl most of the time without doing any appreciable damage.

A housewife should never put her hands into dish water without first pulling on long rubber gloves. And whenever possible she should use a wooden handled mop and a wire drainer so dishes can be scalded instead of wiped. Rubber gloves and long handled mops can also be used for scrubbing.

Many get excited over the fact that white spots appear on the nails. All the explanations ever heard from reliable people is too much lime in the blood, another is poor circulation, and a third is bruising.

Some people are cursed with what is known as whispy hair, short fine hairs that will not lie neatly the way the comb places them. No amount of recombing will make them stay in place; they will detract themselves from the general mass to flop dejectedly around their owner's ears or to slide down her back. Yet even a moist wispy head of hair can be made, and certainly should be made, neat looking.

How? By wearing hair nets.

FOR FOOT HEALTH.

Hardly any one will believe that well-fitting and sensible shoes play an important part in being well and looking one's best.

This last does not apply only to the appearance of the feet when they are well shod, but to the fact that ill-fitting shoes sometimes wreck one's health completely. All sorts of ills follow on the discomfort of shoes that do not fit. They bring the weight of the body on the wrong muscles, and oftentimes cases of eye trouble and digestive disorders can be traced directly back to improper care of the feet.

It is strange how few persons give the same sore of intelligent care to the choice of good shoes as they would to hats and gowns, and yet the foot is one of the most tender and sensitive parts of the body.

The business girl should have at least three pairs of shoes. One stout pair for stormy and rainy weather, one for ordinary wear, and shoes for the evening. With this number, they will all last longer, the feet will be improved in health, and the general comfort of the body improved.

BOX CUSHION.

In the way of a novelty is the cigarette box cushion. This pillow is made around a stuffing that is shaped like a doughnut. The stuffing is covered with silk or ribbon which is shirred to the fullness that pleases the maker. A round tin candy box or a wooden cigarette box that is round with flat cover and bottom is secured in the hole by covering the top and bottom of the box with ribbon or silk and sewing the edges of the bottom hole to the silk covered box. The cover is decorated with flowers of ribbon and held closed by ribbon ties that are attached to the cover and to the pillow proper.

STYLE IN UMBRELLAS.

It is hard to keep up with the style in umbrellas. But at the moment they are short and stocky, with the stubbiest sort of ferrules and handles. The handles are likely to be enameled or carved, although the clear amber handle is still in favor.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Gray pleated silk skirts with gray sweater blouses are seen.

Colored spun glass bracelets and sandals in colored kid, are the latest fad.

Plaid top coats in large black and white combinations are making their appearance.

Crystal jewelry, including hatpins, becomes more popular every day.

Evening wraps as worn by New Yorkers combine bright colored velvet and rich brocades, and are without the usual fur trimming.

Knitted silk sweaters in grays, especially the cinder tone, are favorites.

Rhinestone and steel buckles, the same styles as are used in shoes, are being widely utilized as millinery decorations.

Brown is the leading shade for sports wear, the range running from the cork to tete de negre.

Sheer black lace dresses worn over metal slips are popular among restaurant dancers.

Narrow brimmed Victorian hats have high ribbon loops in wheel effect placed at the back.

Huge bows of wide ribbon tied at the left hip are a feature of some of the smartest dance frocks.

The knee length flounce is appearing rather frequently.

Any number of moire hats with huge bows at the left side are being worn.

A smart spring coat has bell sleeves with a deep cuff, also collar, made of rows of box pleatings of the cloth, picoted at the edge.

Funnel shaped embroidered organdie cuffs are added to long sleeve dresses.

LENGTH OF SKIRTS

The controversy over the long skirt, which tore the fashion world asunder a few months ago and left the newspapers full of letters for and against, has been settled. It was settled both ways. Afternoon and evening frocks today reach the instep or the ankle, but sports skirts are once more only a very few inches below the knees.

DRESS ACCESSORIES

One large pear-shaped pendant of crystal is almost the whole makeup of a smart new earring. In order to carry out the glittering white idea of the rest of the ornament is likely to be silver or cut steel. Against a clear skin the effect is striking.

For the first time in the history of the Texas legislature a woman presided over the lower house the other afternoon, when Representative Edith Wilmans of Dallas, was called to the chair.

BEADS AND RIBBON

China beads, glass beads, beads of every description, are appearing in the cabochons, cockades, fans and other trimmings made of ribbon.

KID FLOWERS

Flowers of cloth painted in various colors are seen on unusual hats and gowns today. Kid flowers at the moment are having rather a vogue.

RECIPES

Pineapple Pie—Heat one can of pineapple in a double boiler. When very hot sift in six tablespoons of cornstarch sifted with one-half teaspoon of salt and one cup of granulated sugar; stir and cook until the mixture thickens; then cover and let cook twenty minutes; add two tablespoons of butter and the juice and grated rind of half a lemon. Stir until well blended. Turn into a pie plate lined with pastry. Roll some of the pastry into a long thin strip cut in one half inch strips with a pastry jagger and arrange them lattice fashion across the top of pie. Sprinkle with granulated sugar and bake in a hot over to golden brown. Serve cold.

Cream Rhubarb Pie—Sift together two tablespoons of cornstarch, one cup of sugar and one-half teaspoon salt. Pour on one cup of boiling water and cook over a low fire until the boiling point is reached; stirring constantly. Add the grated rind of one orange, one cup of finely sliced rhubarb, one tablespoon of butter and the yolks of three eggs beaten until thick and lemon-tinted; mix well and turn into a pie plate lined with pastry and bake twenty-five minutes in a moderately hot oven. Cool a little and spread with a meringue made of the whites of three eggs beaten until stiff, then gradually add one-half cup of granulated sugar and one teaspoon of lemon juice. Spread over filling, sprinkle lightly with granulated sugar and bake twenty minutes in a slow oven to cook and brown meringue. This recipe is repeated by request.

NOVEL SEWING KIT

Now the sewing doll. It looks like a lady's bag. A doll is dressed in ribbons, with blouse and overskirt hanging loose. The under slip, made of narrow ribbon ruffles is padded out with hair or cotton, forming a cushion for pins and needles. A ribbon in the bottom of the slip hem draws the stuffed undershp in and holds it tight about the doll's knees. The feet and lower legs of the doll hang below with pantalettes showing. From the ribbon girdle of the dress hang a pair of embroidery scissors, a lady's small bag that is a needle book, a bodkin, and such other articles as the sewer might desire to use. The doll bag hangs from the wrist by ribbons which are caught under the doll's arms.

HOW TO HANDLE DRESS MATERIAL WITH A NAP

Some materials like velvet, plush, broadcloth, etc, are made with a pile or nap which gives them an up and down. Materials like serge, twill, repp, etc, have no pile and therefore no up and down. With a pile fabric you can tell which is up and which is down by running your hand back and forth on the material. The nap will flatten under your hand and feel smooth when your hand runs down the material. When it runs up it will be against the nap which will feel rough.

It usually takes more material if there is a nap because it must run the same way in each piece, otherwise the color will not be the same in the different pieces, for it looks lighter when the nap runs down than when it runs up.

In velvet, plush and similar fabrics the pile should run up in each piece so that it will fall out and give the full depth and richness of color to the material. In panne velvet, broadcloth, etc., the nap should run down in each piece. If it runs up it will roughen up and wear badly.

In cutting a kimono-sleeve garment the nap will run different ways at the front and back. Use the best effect for the front for it is more conspicuous than the back and receives closer scrutiny.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Anna Katharine Green famous as the author of mystery stories, is guilty of only literary affectation. It is said, and that is the jealous preservation of the old stumps of the pencils with which she has written her tales.

Stories That Recall Others

Couldn't Understand.

Recently one of the employes of a certain office was sued for divorce. A man was sent to serve the papers. He was directed to the man's desk, where another clerk happened to be sitting for a few minutes while the person wanted was in another part of the building.

The person with the papers started to read them without mentioning the defendant's name, or inquiring who the person addressed was. The fellow listened patiently. Gradually his mouth drooped, a sorrowful expression came into his eyes and he appeared dejected.

"I can't understand it," he said. "I was married only last December. I just rented a new house and bought some new furniture and two tons of coal. Gosh, she appeared cheerful and happy when I left this morning. I don't see what's the matter."

A few minutes later the man who belonged at the desk appeared and the fellow whose dejection had gone far below zero was manifestly relieved.

Mr. Editor: I see by this morning's Bulletin in your report of the so-called Hubbard bill an error which I write to correct. SMOKE GAVE ALARM AT PROSPECT ST. HOUSE

At 11.15 Sunday night a telephone call from John W. McKinley, occupying the upper apartment in the new house of Simon Solomon at 136 Prospect street called the fire department there and the firemen found that faulty construction of a fireplace in the McKinley apartment had allowed the flames to heat through the bricks and set fire to the wooden forms that had been left after the fireplace was built.

The Solomon family arrived home and found the apparatus standing in front of their house to their great surprise. When they went inside they pointed out a yellow stain on the ceiling, which showed the firemen where the blaze was at work and a portion of the ceiling was torn out so that chemical could be used on the flames. Nine gallons of chemical were used and the bricks were cooled off by water from a garden hose.

The first that the McKinley family knew anything was wrong was when they smelled smoke and found the attic filled with it.

CITY BIBLE CLASS APPLAUDS GOVERNOR'S VIGOROUS WORDS

Gov. C. A. Temepleton of Waterbury was enthusiastically applauded by the 300 men attending the session of the City Bible class for men at the Central Baptist church on Sunday when he told them that he proposed to handle the state's business as he would his own business and that he proposed to run the executive department as a Christian man.

The governor was introduced to the class by Superior Court Judge Allyn L. Brown, whose guest he was in this city over the week end. Judge Brown said that he could say without fear of contradiction that the governor was the best presiding officer over a judicial body that he had ever known.

The governor had attended the church service and he told the men of the class that he had enjoyed the sermon by Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt and wished he had him up on Capitol Hill. In addressing the class, Governor Templeton said he was not talking politics for he should never run for office again, but he proposed to do his duty as he saw it even if the whole state of Connecticut were against him.

The governor spoke to the Sunday school before addressing the Men's class.

OFFERS $100 REWARD FOR DISCOVERY OF WILLIAM TIBBITTS, DEAD OR ALIVE

Will a reward offered for the finding of William Tibbitts, the farmer missing from his home near Fitchville since April 10th, and believed to have been murdered, bring forth information that up to today has been withheld from the officers at work on the case? That is the belief of relatives of Tibbitts advanced Sunday, and for this reason his brother, Benjamin Tibbitts, who lives in Rhode Island, has put up a reward of $100 for the finding of his brother, "dead or alive."

State Policeman M. E. Sterling, County Investigator W. A. Jackson and Constable Jeremiah Sweeney, who have been at work on the mystery, have run down every clue they have succeeded in finding since Tuesday of last week, when it was first known that Tibbitts had disappeared from his farm where he lived alone, but owing to conflicting evidence many of the clues at first believed to have been good ones have proved to be of doubtful nature.

Little Blood at Tibbitts' Home.

Because of the fact that so many conflicting clues have been advanced, the officers have been sent on many a wild goose chase, ending up exactly where they started in when the clue was found or given them by informants. These series of disappointments with the presence of so little blood in and near the house, have caused some of the officers to advance the theory that Tibbitts may be alive at this time and has disappeared from his farm for reasons unknown. One of the officers who has worked on the case stated Sunday that all the blood at the Tibbitts house would be little more than a teaspoonful.

One Borrah resident who doesn't believe in the murder theory expressed his opinion Sunday when he said: "Tibbitts has been crazy for 20 years and has only just found it out and disappeared."

Tibbitts Lately Appeared Worried.

Tibbitts of late has appeared to have something on his mind that caused him no little concern, and, according to officers, information has been given them by a man who knew the missing man well. This man, it is alleged, has stated that Tibbitts told him that things were reaching a point where "He could not stand it much longer." Tibbitts seemed to have been downhearted because of a series of things that had happened to him.

Early this year his stock had been condemned by the state dairy commission for being tubercular, and all he received for the condemned cows was $400. He then went out and borrowed $600 from a friend and bought another herd for $900, and only recently paid for them and squared his account with his creditor.

Lately the milk and the conditions about his dairy barn were condemned by the state dairy commissioners and it is also rumored that he owed not a few small bills and had no ready money with which to pay them, as he had sunk all his funds in buying farm machinery. He had been notified to appear at Hartford last Saturday for a hearing before the dairy commission and it is said that this also worked on his mind.

Friends of Tibbitts state that he had been summoned about 12 years ago by the state inspectors for watering his milk and had been heavily fined. He had also been warned a second time and told that a third offense would bring more severe penalties.

All these happenings, this man states, had caused Tibbitts to be depressed and evidently cause him to remark that he could not stand things much longer.

Used Fastest Horse.

Another thing discovered by officers at work on the case which tends to make some of them think Tibbitts is still alive is that the horse used to haul the buggy to Norwich Monday night last was the fastest of the four on the farm. Of all the harnesses in the barn, a particular set was used when the sorrel mare was taken out. This particular harness has a peculiar girth to it, one that has to be tightened in a certain manner. This was tightened in the proper way and leads to the belief that Tibbitts himself might have harnessed the animal to the buggy.

Other officers on the case, however, still stick to the belief that Tibbitts has been murdered. Explaining the story of his evidently being depressed, they scout the idea that he would run away when he faced only a fine, leaving his valuable farm and abandoning all his stock. Concerning the horse and manner of harnessing the animal, information discloses the fact that the buggy taken was not the good one Tibbitts himself usually took, and friends believe that someone familiar with the farm could have harnessed the animal just as well as Tibbitts, knowing the harness used when the horse was worked.

Another theory advanced to show that Tibbitts himself did not leave the house alive is that $5.75 in money was found Sunday by officers searching the house, in a box tucked away behind other articles. They believe that if Tibbitts had run away he would have taken all his money with him, not leaving this sum behind, when all evidence shows that he could not have had a large amount of money on his person. They have found that the only substantial sum of money he had received recently came from the people to whom he delivered his milk, this being a check for about $125. This was given him over three weeks ago, and only one-half of it could have been profit.

Coat Found in Wagon Explained.

Information came to the officers at work on the case Sunday that Tibbitts had worn the coat that was found in the buggy on Commerce street, and that he had worn it on the day of the supposed murder. Officer Sterling ran this story to the ground and, like several others advanced, it proved to be without substance, for Albert Avery of Bozrah and W. E. Manning of Yantic, both of whom saw Tibbitts Monday while weighing hay at the Manning scales, state that he had on his sheepskin coat, the one he usually wore.

At first it was believed that the owner of the coat found in the wagon would be implicated in some way in the mystery but it has been established for a certainty that the owner of the coat was far from Fitchville Monday night, in fact was at that time sleeping peacefully in the Jewett City jail, without knowledge of the fact that his castoff overcoat was to figure in one of the greatest mysteries New London county has ever seen. This man Edward Monahan of Norwich and, according to his story he went to Tibbitts' farm on the 24th of March —a Saturday—while very much under the influence of liquor. He helped a man named Abner Bennett haul some horses out of the mud while there and that night after Bennett returned home he slept on the lounge on the kitchen of Tibbitts' home.

On the night he slept at Tibbitts' farm there was another man asleep on the floor in the kitchen, a man

SAYS EVOLUTION SHOWS THE DIVINE IMMANENCE

To accept the theory of evolution is not to lose anything vital in our religious life, declared Rev. A. N. Foster in his sermon Sunday morning at the Church of the Good Shepherd upon The Sanctions of Religion and the Teachings of Evolution. He spoke from the text Acts 17:28, For in Him we live and move and have our being.

In part he spoke as follows:

Forward looking men are not satisfied with the conventional sanctions of religion. They believe in a continuing rather than a closed revelation of the Divine word.

The "Fundamentalist" shows an urgent interest in a reaction to the medieval creeds of Christendom. He berates the teachings of science, and scoffs at the doctrine of evolution.

Darwinism, after painstaking study of Nature, postulates the general rule of progressive development through variation. It is a misconception to think that in accepting evolution, we thereby surrender or lose anything vital in our religious life. Evolution simply shows the methods of Nature's work. If we are theistic and profix to such, "God in the beginning" we have a conception of Divine purpose and government which is grand and universal, is noble and inspiring. Nothing can be left out and no fragment can be lost from the all inclusive work and purpose of the Divine as there understood. Through evolution we see the light of the Divine Immanence rather than a transcendent or absentee God.

GROTON WOMAN DIES FROM AUTOMOBILE INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 15.—Mrs. Leo Brogan of No. 8 Park avenue, Groton, was struck by an automobile on Thames street, Groton, tonight about 9 o'clock and fatally injured, dying at Lawrence-Associated hospital of a fractured skull an hour after the accident. The automobile was owned and driven by Newton Card of Groton. Card was not arrested as he collapsed following the accident and since has been attended by a physician.

The accident occurred when Mrs. Brogan, accompanied by her husband, alighted from a trolley car at the corner of Poquonoc road and Thames street. Mrs. Brogan got off the car first and as she stepped to the highway the automobile, headed in a southerly direction, struck her with great force, hurling her to the pavement and producing the fracture. She was given emergency treatment by Dr. Charles Barnum and then removed to the hospital, where she died without regaining consciousness.

When the accident occurred she was on her way to a committee meeting at the home of Rev. William Fox. Mrs. Brogan was about 35 years of age and for several years was employed by the J. Warren Gay company of New London as bookkeeper. She is survived by two sisters and one brother, all of New London.

Ladies Keep Your Skin Clear, Sweet, Healthy With Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Talcum

Do Your Children Grow Fast Enough?

Are They Sturdy, Healthy, and Strong, or Pale, Weak and Run Down?

Growing children need a great deal of food, and sometimes they will not eat the kind of food that they need for strength—then they become thin, pale, and run down.

This condition of under-nourishment can be corrected by taking Father John's Medicine, which does contain just the food elements so much needed, and that is why so many children gain weight regularly while they are taking this old-fashioned family medicine.

Father John's Medicine is an expertly blended preparation of cod liver oil with other ingredients in such a way that its food elements can be easily taken up by those who are weakened and run down. Your friends and neighbors know its value. Thousands of mothers depend upon it to keep their children well and strong.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

State police from the Danielson barracks raided the taxi stand of Edgar Dupre at Moosup Saturday evening and seized a small quantity of alcohol and a small quantity of what is alleged to be whiskey from a young man who was in the place. Dupre was released under bonds of $200, which was produced in cash. This was the only raid carried out by the state police this week-end. Dupre will be presented in a justice's court in the town of Plainfield today (Monday).

Saturday morning the funeral of Xavier Trahan was held from his home on Wheatley street with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. John Roux, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem, attended by relatives and friends.

Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. Trahan died Thursday afternoon of burns received while he was engaged during the morning of that day in using kerosene to light a fire in the kitchen range at his home. At the masses on Sunday Rev. Fr. Roux, who administered the last rites of the church to Mr. Trahan as he lay facing death after his terrible ordeal of fire, called the attention of the congregations to Mr. Trahan's faith and of his calling his twelve children about him and asking them to pray for him after he was dead and of pledging them to be loyal to the faith. This tragic incident was cited by Fr. Roux as illustrative of the power of faith and devotion to religion even in the face of death.

Saturday afternoon at the Chase home in Elmville funeral services for Mrs. Anna M. Chase, wife of Canova Chase, were conducted by Rev. Walter B. Williams, pastor of the Congregational church in Danielson. The funeral was private. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements. Relatives acted as bearers.

At Moosup Saturday morning the funeral of Mrs. Parmelia Colleo was held from her home, with services at All Hallows' church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Normand being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in All Harrows' cemetery. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director in charge of the arrangements.

With the wind in the east and the temperature flirting with the freezing mark a shower of hail came on Sunday afternoon shortly before 3 o'clock, probably just to prove that the weather man did not entirely run out of refrigerated stuff during the abominable winter that supposedly and officially came to a close nearly a month ago. For the third consecutive Sunday the spring clothes parade got a frost—not that one could not see numbers of pretty new suits and King Tut capes and new hats, but the real spirit of spring was lacking and the advanced styles seemed in danger of being frostbitten. It was a spring Sunday in name only, not in effect.

Montgomery council, R. and S. M., have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: T. I. M., Harry Brearley; D. I. M., F. E. Bitgood; I. P. C. W., Ernest R. Warren; C. J., Alvah J. Hall; C. C., A. M. Thompson; treasurer, Frank T. Preston; recorder, D. Fred Kenworthy; sentinel, Edward S. Carpenter; steward, Frank E. Kennedy.

Country roads are in vastly improved condition the beginning of this week over what they were at the opening of the month. Much of the mud has dried out. It is not wet late enough in the season for motorists who like country roads to venture out upon them unless they are fully informed as to their condition, but the highways are now passable and most points can be reached without more than ordinary difficulty.

Daylight saving is one subject that is not getting much attention in Danielson and vicinity these early spring days. It may be stated frankly that the average person regards it as a nuisance, especially when it is adopted in one section of a county and ignored in others. The fact remains, however, that the New Haven road has a new time schedule effective April 29. It isn't called a daylight saving schedule, but it amounts to that, and that's where the rub comes in for many who have to catch trains or meet them or whose affairs are in any way effected by railroad schedules.

Last year Danielson went on a daylight saving schedule, in a measure. Some of the big manufacturing concerns continued to operate on a standard time schedule, however. What Danielson will do this year hasn't even been discussed. The tendency seems to be let sleeping dogs lie until it is time to kick them in the ribs, if that becomes necessary, and there are those who hope it will not be necessary this year.

PUTNAM

It happened on Main street Friday afternoon. When Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Dayville attached a horse and wagon belonging to Peter Blash of Fabian and drove off with it, little Mary Blash ran after the disappearing outfit. Mary was in tears for she did not want to see the family pet taken by the hands of the law. Mary set out in pursuit of the family carryall and Officer Durand set out in pursuit of Mary. The race up Putnam's busy thoroughfare attracted much attention and for the moment business was at a standstill.

Some time ago Dr. E. R. Pike of East Woodstock obtained a judgment against Blash, a Pole, who understands English in very narrow limits. When the deputy sheriff went to the Blash home to collect the judgment Blash refused to pay and it seemed to be impossible to make the man understand. It was agreed that he would come to Putnam to a lawyer's office and try to straighten the matter out. Blash kept his promise and brought Mrs. Blash and his daughter along. After an argument in which voices were high pitched, a state of active belligerancy was narrowly averted, the Blash family departed vowing that they would not pay.

The deputy followed them out and when he located their horse and wagon attached it. Trouble was averted by the police and the officer finally drove away and put the horse in a South Main street stable.

Over a year ago the Blash girl was accidentally shot by a neighbor's child. Several of the little girl's teeth were shot away. Dr. Pike was called in and attended the child through her trouble. Blash refused to pay the bill saying that the father of the little boy who did the shooting was to pay. To date it has been impossible to make him understand that judgment has been rendered against him by the court and that unless the bill is paid his property will be sold to satisfy the execution.

At a late hour in the evening when it became time for the Blash family to return home the money was forthcoming, the debt settled and they drove away.

Principal Edward H. Snow of the Putnam High school has accepted a position of Junior High School principal at Ardmore, Lower Merion Township, Pa., and will soon tender his resignation as principal of the Putnam High school, where he has been since 1918, to take effect at the end of the school year. Mr. Snow's new school has an enrollment of 450 pupils in a new modern school house. During the summer months Mr. Snow plans to take a course in education and history at Columbia university.

Mr. Snow came to Putnam from Avon, Mass. During his principalship here the enrollment has increased from 180 pupils to 230 pupils. He has taken an interest in school athletics and dramatics and has coached three championship baseball and one championship basketball team. He also has taken a prominent position in the social and civic life of the city.

Putnam Rotarians and wives, numbering fifteen couples, enjoyed a chicken supper at the Twin Elms inn, Providence pike, Friday evening. In the absence of the president, John F. Reardon of North Grosvenordale, Howard C. Bradford spresided at the meeting followed. General topics were under discussion for some time. April 23rd was decided upon as the date for Charter Night when Rotarians will be present from Danielson, Norwich, New London, Willimantic, Hartford and New Haven. After the business session there was dancing.

If all plans materialize Putnam will have baseball Saturday and Sunday afternoons this season. The Nightingale-Morse team has been reorganized for the season with Cooler Nelson as manager and will play Sunday games as heretofore. The Nightingale dinners is being organized by Ernest Lorgis and will play Saturday games. The baseball field on Main street will soon be put in readiness for the season and practice will begin.

C. R. Cotton and Henry Hurdman have been appointed as representatives of Wappaquasset Tribe of Red Men, to attend the state convention at Waterbury May 2.

Miss Eleanor Carpenter and Miss Marie Thurber left on Friday for Washington, D. C., to attend the national congress of the D. A. R. Miss Thurber goes as an alternate to the regent of the local chapter while Miss Carpenter goes to act as a page.

Mrs. Minnie Macdonald finished her duties as teacher in the commercial department of the Putnam High School, Friday afternoon. Since she has been in charge the department of the school has greatly broadened and many pupils have been awarded medals for speed and accuracy in typewriting.

That St. Philip's Episcopal parish has men cooks as well as does the Congregational church parish, where the men served a pot roast supper a week ago, was evidenced Friday evening when the male members of the St. Philip's parish served a supper at which the women were not called upon to do anything but eat, not even in an advisory capacity. Not only did the male members serve the meal but they furnished entertainment as well with instrumental and vocal selections which in no way impared the appetites of their guests. The affair was most successful and was followed by a meeting at which the future of the parish was talked over. Sydney W. Bard of Danielson was a guest of the evening and gave a helpful talk on his experiences as a lay reader and Sunday school superintendent. Later in the evening there was dancing.

Omer Bernier and Edward Williams, both of Putnam, were arraigned before Justice Bryden of Pomfret at the Pomfret town court house, Saturday morning at nine o'clock, both being charged with having liquor with intent to sell. Attorney Archibald Macdonald, Jr., and Williams by Attorney Arthur S. Macdonald. Both made pleas for their clients who they said were not hardened bootleggers and were in repentant moods.

Grand Juror John Ash, who prosecuted the cases, assisted by Attorney John F. Carpenter, of Putnam, stated that the fine new dance hall at Abington was opened last Saturday evening with a large crowd of young people present. He said that these men took advantage of this gathering to appear there to try to dispose of liquor. Mr. Ash said that if it were possible such traffic was going to be stamped out and thought that the maximum sentence should be imposed as an example to any others who might have in mind trying to dispost of illicit wares.

Justice Bryden spoke at length of the liquor traffic and said that the men knew when they started they were doing wrong and that all such cases would be severely dealth with in his court. He thought the maximum fine of $200 was none too much. Attorney Carpenter suggested to the court that there was a difference of guilt in the two men as Williams owned the liquor and Bernier had just happened to get into the trouble. He thought that a fine of $100 would meet the ends of justice in Bernier's case. The court followed this suggestion and in the case of Williams imposed the maximum fine of $200. Both men paid their fines together with costs of approximately $20 each.

George E. Shaw, one of Putnam's and eastern Connecticut's best known business men, died here Sunday morning at 1 o'clock and with his passing this city loses a citizen long prominently identified with its affairs, active in many fields and a real promoter of the community's interests. Mr. Shaw had been in a critical state of health of late and during the past week it was evident that the end was near at hand. Since the amputation of one of his legs became necessary more than a year ago, his relatives and business friends realized that the chances of his restoration to health and activity at his age was a matter of grave doubt, but through all of this period Mr. Shaw has been optimistic, of cheerful viewpoint and gifted with a sunny outlook that allowed him to contemplate with every confidence that the time was not distant when he might again get out on the links of the Putnam Country club and indulge himself in his favorite pastime of golfing. His death, stealing upon him even in the cheerfulness of his mental state, came as a shock to his relatives and all of the great number who had been associated with him in one way or another through all the long period of his activities in this city.

Mr. Shaw was born in Thompson Jan. 20, 1853, a son of George W. and Abbie (Carpenter) Shaw. He attended the schools in his native town and came to what is now Putnam as a student when Putnam High school first was established. Lathan Fitch being the principal at the time of Mr. Shaw's entering the high school here.

It was during the period of his high school studies that he gained his first knowledge of watch making and began to familiarize himself with the jewelry business, in which he was destined to be engaged for so many years and in such a successful manner. While pursuing his studies his spare time was devoted to learning the watch making and repairing business in a store conducted by his uncle, Edward Shaw, who at the time owned the only jewelry store in what is now Putnam.

While attending the centennial exposition in Philadelphia in 1876, Edward Shaw died suddenly and George E. Shaw succeeded to the proprietorship of the business with which he became familiar. When Mr. Shaw took the business over the store was located in what was then known as the Bugbee block, which was destroyed by fire and the Shaw store wiped out. The business was promptly re-established, but was again destroyed by fire in 1881 and again re-established. Since then Mr. Shaw has continued to be engaged as a jeweler and watch-repairman and was one of the best known men in his line in southern New England.

May 4, 1875, Mr. Shaw was united in marriage with Ellen S. Sharpe of Abington, Rev. T. M. Boss performing the ceremony. Mrs. Shaw has been dead a number of years. Mr. Shaw is survived by one daughter, Ruth Elizabeth, wife of Silas M. Wheelock, of this city.

Aside from his jewelry business Mr. Shaw found time to interest himself, profitably to the community, in many enterprises. He was one of the original promoters of Putnam's first Business Men's association, lent his aid to the development of the Putnam Water company, now owned by the city, and the Putnam Foundry and Machine company, one of the city's important industries. He also helped establish the Putnam Light and Power company and for a year was manager of the concern. He also was an incorporator of the Putnam Box corporation. He was associate superintendent of the Congregational Sunday school for a number of years, a director for a long period of the public library, a well known member of the Putnam Country club and in many other ways interested in the city's activities. He was a member of Quinebeug lodge of Masons of this city, an Odd Fellow and a member of the Arcanum club. The city as a whole will mark Mr. Shaw's passing.

Guards of honor representing various cities in New England gathered here Saturday evening to participate in a street parade, escorted by the Manhasset band, and in a prize drill held later in the evening at Union hall. The marching guards presented a splendid appearance and attracted a jam of people who enjoyed the spectacle.

Guard organizations were in line from Putnam, Taunton, Southbridge, Webster, Fall River, North Grosvendale, New Bedford, Woonsocket, Central Falls and Willimantic. The awards in the drill contest were given to the Sacre Coeur guard of Willimantic.

POETRY

A NEW ENGLAND CHURCH.

High on a hill it stands, its clean white spire
Pointing the sky, and redly tipped with fire
At each new birth of sunshine. Years have gone
Since first that spire rose up to meet the dawn.
These wide white doors have swung for men who came
In far-off days, to worship in the name
Of freedom won through hardships, and to hear
The word of God in reverence and fear.
Within these walls sat down an honest folk
Whose toil-worn hands their industry bespoke,
Whose faces showed their deep religious trust.
Whose eyes were keen, yet merciful and just.
From here tall youths went forth to fight and preach,
And girls to rule fair households, and to teach
Their children love of learning and of right.
A holy thing and precious in the sight
Of patriot and pilgrim is this place,
The shrine and cradle of a chosen race.
—Margaret Ashmun, in Boston Transcript.

HOUSES.

All the little houses along the village street,
All the windows squares of yellow light,
To each door a path, worn by friendly eager feet
Hurrying home before the winter night.

Houses gay with noise and fun, houses dim with pain,
Houses where the children run and shout,
A new house where a bride and groom have built beside a lane,
An old house with a thorny hedge about.

Daytimes men may go abroad, children go to school,
The wife fare forth with basket on her arm,
But dusk means time to lay aside each game or book or tool
And gather 'neath the home roof, safe from harm.

All the little houses along the village street,
All the windows squares of yellow light,
And I, a stranger, pass each door with unfamiliar feet
As falls the chill and lonely winter night.

And is there, then, no house for me?
No matter, Lord, how small it be?

A burglar-proof window, shown in Popular Mechanics Magazine, permits the sash to be opened to any desired height. Protection is insured by a set of iron bars, five inches apart, that are raised or lowered with the window. When the window is down, the bars are telescoped between the wall and the woodwork. Mortised and locked, at all times, to a heavy strip of metal fastened at the bottom of the sash, the window can scarcely be forced.

The sentence "In God We Trust" was first used on the copper 2-cent piece issued in 1864, being introduced by James Pollack, the director of the mint, with the approval of Secretary of the Treasury Salmon P. In the trade-dollar issue of 1873 both mottoes were retained. "In God We Trust" appearing on the obverse. The Lincoln cent and silver half-dollars, at present in circulation, bear both mottoes.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

LITTLE DAME CRUMP.

Little Dame Crump, with her little hair broom,
One morning was sweeping her little bedroom,
When casting her little gray eyes on the ground,
In a little shy corner a penny she found.

'Odds bobs!" cried the Dame, while she stared with surprise,
'How lucky I am, bless my heart, what a prize;
To market I'll go, and a pig I will buy,
And little John Gubbins shall make him a sty."

So she washed her face clean and put on her gown,
Then locked up her house and set off for the town,
Where to market she went and a bargain she made,
For a little white pig the penny she paid.

When she purchased the pig, she was puzzled you know
How they both she and the pig would get home if the pig would not go.
So fearing that piggy might play her a trick,
She drove him along with a little crab stick.

Piggy ran till he came to the top of a hill,
Where a little brook stood near the stream of water,
When he grunted and squeaked and no further would go,
Oh he, little pig, the poor Little Dame saw.

Now she went to [illegible] and soon she borrowed a sack,
When she popped the pig in it, and took on her back
Piggy cried to [illegible] the little Dame said
'If you won't go [illegible] then must I [illegible]

She soon to the market [illegible] was come
And was mighty pleased when [illegible] piggy home
So she carried the pig to his little sty,
And made him a bed of straw snug and dry.

With a handful of [illegible] the pig she then fed,
Then put on her nightcap and went to bed,
Having first said her prayers then she put out the light,
And being quite tired [illegible] good night.

The willow is [illegible] low

As green as He is good

When spring [illegible] wood.

The chestnut's [illegible] pretty,
The poplar's gentle and [illegible]

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Self confidence is one of the greatest of assets in life. Without self-confidence a boy or girl cannot get very far up the ladder of success. Unless boys and girls have confidence in their ability to [illegible] unusual situations and hard problems that are bound to confront them they will remain at a standstill while others pass them by with flying colors.

Take school life for instance. Some studies come easier to some children than others. Some times boys and girls find it easy sledding in all their studies but one or two. Low marks in the studies which they find it difficult to master keep their average down and often prevent them from securing the much coveted diploma.

They know that in all studies with the exception of one [illegible] for instance, that they will get high marks. But they are afraid of that one study. It looms large to them. they think they can never solve the perplexing problems and very often without trying they [illegible] with 'I can't do it; I just [illegible] it, so there is no use trying.'

Now that is where they are wrong. They should never say they can't, for then the chances are they never will. They should have confidence in themselves and tackle the knotty problems with the feeling that they not only can solve them but are going to solve them. If they do that and persist, the problems will be solved.

It is the same way in life. Often unusual situations confront us. We are called upon to perform some duty that we have never had to do before, something new and difficult. It is put up to us and it must be done. It may mean success or failure for us.

When you are confronted by such a situation, don't let it scare you. Don't feel that you never can overcome it because you have never been required to face it before. Have confidence in yourself. Go at it with the feeling that there is a way out of the difficulty and that you are going to find that way. Don't let it down you

LETTERS WRITTEN TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

A Visit to Hartford.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide-Awakes about the State Capitol in Hartford. My mother and I visited it one day about three years ago when my father was chosen senator from Lebanon to go to Hartford.

The capitol is a large building containing ninety rooms. I learned that the entire cost, including ventilating apparatus was $2,532,524.43, and the furniture cost $100,000 more.

It is five stories in height. The first floors are used for official purposes and the fifth floor is a restaurant where the commissioners, representatives and senators get their lunches. There are many articles of interest in the capitol such as statues, old flags, etc.

I hope to go in the state library the next time I go to Hartford. I wish all the Wide-Awakes would have a chance to visit the state capitol. I am sure they would find it interesting.

Coffee Blossoms.

Dear Uncle Jed: When young coffee plants are eighteen inches high, they are transplanted from the nurseries to the plantation.

From the second to the fourth year they begin to bear fruit. Well irrigated soil and a tropical climate are essential to the best growth.

The under cultivation is kept in order and close growth from four to six feet high. The white, fragrant flowers grow in clusters, which are followed by fruit. The fruit at first is a dark green berry, then it changes in color to yellow then to red, then to purple. It must be picked at the right time because if they pick it before it is ripe the best flavor is lost. The berries are picked by hand. When they reach headquarters they are put through a device in which the ripe berries float on top and the green berries sink. Every berry contains two seeds.

The coffee goes through a pulping machine. Then it is ready to go to the mills and then to market to be sold.

Wanted to Take Airplane Home.

Dear Uncle Jed: During the great World war we lived on Long Island in a village a few miles from Mineola and the Mineola camps. My father worked in the camps building barracks. Barracks are lodgings for the soldiers and sailors.

One day two women who lived next to us asked my mother if she would let them take me to the camps. Of course my mother let us go. The next day we got ready and the women came for us. They had another girl with them who was a playmate of mine. It took about 10 or 15 minutes to ride to the camps on the trolley. We got off on the outside of the camps. We saw very many tents and soldiers in the distance.

We were sitting on a bank when I saw an aeroplane (that was not the first one, for every day we saw at least two or three at home). When I saw it I told the others. It was very high up and I don't know how small one looks high up. I was only 5 or 6 years of age and did not know that they were very large so I told the women that I wished I could take it home. But they only laughed at me and told me how large aeroplanes are and that I could never take it into a trolley. Ever since that I never wished to get an aeroplane again.

Lost in the Woods.

Dear Uncle Jed: One summer day I went berrying with my companion, Gyp a puppy. It was about 2 o'clock when we started with my pail.

After arriving there I began picking and after picking a while the berries seemed to be exhausted, so I thought I would look for a new patch. In the distance a patch could be seen, and going to it I found it had no berries.

On I wandered, in all directions, without finding a berry. So I decided to return to the path and my pail. I went where the path and pail seemed to be, but when I got there the path and pail could not be seen. I hunted for the path, north and south, east and west, till I realized I was lost. Then I cried and cried and at the same time looking all over for the mysterious path, Gyp was having a wonderful time chasing butterflies.

When we first came I chanced to look up at the sun, that was at the berrying place; it then was directly above my head. In a minute or two tears were dried and hope was given. Looking up, I saw we were far west of the sun, so following and running toward the sun till I was directly under it, soon the path and pail were found all safe and sound. O how thankful was I for such a narrow escape.

How We Made a Sled

Dear Uncle Jed: My brother and I made a sled. Sometimes my brother would steer the sled and I would, too. We made it out of two little sleds. We got a long board and nailed it on the little sleds. I got the board and made a hole in the end. Then I went to the barn and got a big nail and put it through the hole in the board. Then the sled was made.

The Fish Helen Caught

Dear Uncle Jed: Little Helen's father was a great fisherman. Sometimes he took Helen with him when he fished, and she sat in the end of the boat. Oh very still in deed. It was such fun to watch until the line gave a sudden jerk, and to know that at the end there was a shining speckly fish which they would later cook over a camp fire.

One day father came home from the city with a long mysterious looking package under his arm. There, honey child, is a present for you, he said. Helen's eyes began to sparkle, but when she had opened the package they fairly danced, for there lay a tiny jointed fishing rod. I want to try it right straight now, father, dear! she cried, as she gave him a great hug.

So down to the river they went. Father baited the hook, showed Helen how to hold it, and they sat beside the stream to wait for a nibble. It's a pretty long time, I think said Helen, after a while. Then she jumped up. It's a fish. Feel it pull, she cried. You have caught something, sure enough, said father, but it doesn't act like a fish. Helen gave another pull. The fish had come, but what a queer one! Betsy, you dear old Betsy! cried Helen, hugging it tightly. Then Helen and father sat on the bank and laughed and laughed. Betsy was Helen's cherished rag dog that had disappeared a few weeks before.

Visited Myles Standish's Grave

Dear Uncle Jed: While I was staying in Massachusetts some of my relatives and I went to see Myles Standish's monument. When we first started off we were about five miles or more from it. After going a few miles we could see the monument and a water tank on the eastern side of it. We saw his grave and two others right beside his grave, perhaps his wife and some other relation. We did not stop to go and look at them very close because it was getting late.

When we were about a half mile away from the monument we saw that it stood on the top of a large hill that is called Captain's Hill. On reaching the top we saw that the water tank stood right in back of the monument. Barberry bushes grew around it. No one was allowed to touch them because they were to remind the people of how the Pilgrims used to make candles.

We did not go inside of the monument because it wasn't open. People are allowed to go in only at certain hours. We climbed up on one of the sides and looked way off and saw water most all the way around it down in the valley.

We were going to see Plymouth Rock, but it was getting too late so we had to return home.

The Life of George Washington

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story about George Washington. George Washington was born February 22, 1732 on a plantation. His father was a southern planter. His father died when he was a small boy. Washington was a leader in all games when he went to school. One day he rode his mother's horse and killed it. He went right into the house and told his mother. When Washington became older his brother died and left his land to George.

Soon after he left school he became a public surveyor. When he was 18 years old he went with Braddock to drive the French out of our country. When he came back he was made colonel in the army. Soon after he was made colonel he married Martha Custis.

Washington was made commander-in-chief of the American army when the Revolutionary war broke out. During the Revolutionary war he met the governor of Connecticut, whose name was Jonathan Trumbull. Washington would always ask "Brother Jonathan's" advice before he started a battle.

After the Revolutionary war he was made the first president of the United States at New York. He was elected twice and died at Mount Vernon with pneumonia.

Went to Forest Park

Dear Uncle Jed: When I lived at Warehouse Point, I used to go to Forest Park in Springfield. There were many kinds of animals. I saw monkeys, bears and squirrels. When we had peanuts I gave the squirrels some. There were peacocks and sometimes we saw them spread their tail feathers and it looked like a beautiful fan.

Having Week's Vacation

Dear Uncle Jed: This week we are having a week's vacation and I thought I would like to write to you about what I am doing. One day my brothers and sisters cleaned the hens' nests. The next day we all went up in the lot to rake up the corn fodder. It took us two days to do that. I think this is a long letter for this time. I hope to write again some time.

My School

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awakes. I hope they will all enjoy my story.

I go to the St. Mary's school. I am in the third grade. I like the school very much. The sisters are very good to the children. During Lent we go to the stations of the cross ever Friday after school. We have a little party at the end of the year.

Pussy Willow

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a pussy willow. I grow by the roadside. One day a bluebird came and sat on the branch nearby. It began to sing. I like to see the little children. Pussy willows have brown caps. They have fuzzy white coats too.

I am the first flower of the spring. One day I saw a robin. It stopped on a branch of a tree near me. It began to sing.

MINNIE JOHN, Age 8.

Dog Chased Deer

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as my sister Mary and I were doing the chores in the barn my sister happened to look out of the barn window and she saw two deer running. She called me, so I went to the other side of the bar.

There we saw one deer had stopped and was waiting for the other. Then they began running for a dog was chasing them. I felt sorry but I could not help them. We tried to call the dog, but he would not come. We did not see the deer any more.

Is Nine Years Old

Dear Uncle Jed: My name is Henry, but they call be (Buster). I am nine years old. I spent my vacation with my grandmother. My uncles both work on auto trucks. They take me to ride with them. I have a little sister. She never goes away to stay as she doesn't like to leave mother alone. This is my first letter to you and I will write again some time.

Easter Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: I spent Easter day very happily. In the morning I went to church and when I came home my dinner was awaiting me. After I was through I washed the dishes and then I went to my sister's house. I spent the whole afternoon with her and spent it very merrily also.

I will not have an Easter vacation but do not mind that, because I like to go to school very much. I hope that I can spend another Easter day as joyfully as this one.

GLADYS ANDERSON, Age 11.

Another New Writer.

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to join the Wide-Awakes. I would like to tell you about my pet pigeons. I have two pigeons, but I had three. I think the cat caught one. Today the mother pigeon was teaching the little one to fly.

I am 9 years old, in the third grade, and my teacher's name is Miss McNamara. The name of our school is West Town street.

This is my first letter to you, Uncle Jed, and I hope you will think it interesting enough to print. I read the boys' and girls' letters in The Bulletin and they are great. I will be pleased to write again if I may.

ARTHUR BELDEN BENNETT.

How I Have Attended School.

Dear Uncle Jed: I wonder how many of the Wide-Awakes have been to school every day this year. I have for nearly one year. Some mornings last winter I had rather hard work getting through the deep snow, but I always managed somehow. Once in a while I was fortunate enough to get a ride. I hope to attend every day until school ends, so as to get my three perfect attendance certificates.

EDYTHE MAY BENNETT, Age 12.

Great Salt Lake.

Dear Uncle Jed: In school in the fourth grade we are studying about Great Salt Lake. This lake is 100 miles long and between 25 and 30 miles wide. It is very nice for bathing because you could not possibly sink. Great Salt Lake is six times as salty as the ocean. There are thousands of tons of salt along the shores of the lake.

A Story I Wrote in School.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the story I wrote in school: One day four little children were out doors. They saw a little bird on a tree. The ground was covered with snow, and this little bird had only one foot. The boy went up the tree and got the little bird. They took him in the house and gave him something to eat. The bird was glad to get the bread because he could not get anything to eat outside. The children kept the bird.

Likes Prize Book.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have already finished reading the prize book which you sent me named The Camp Fire Girls on the Open Road, and after my mother and sister had read it I loaned it to a friend of mine. After she finishes, another of my school friends is going to take it.

I liked it very much. It was very interesting and also very exciting. I hope my school friends will enjoy reading it as much as I did. Thank you for it.

In a small house about a mile from the village a little boy whose name was John lived with his mother.

One day as John was out walking he came upon a little baby robin who had just learned to fly and had broken its leg. At first he was going to pass on, but he thought, "If I were hurt I would not like to be passed by without an offer of help." John turned back and took the bird home.

When he reached the house he asked his mother what he should do to help it, and she said: "Get me a small piece of board and some cloth and I will try to fix its poor leg."

About a month afterward John took the robin outside. At first it didn't know what to do, but after several attempts it flew away.

That night as John was going to bed he heard a noise outside his window. He opened it and found it was the robin. After that it came back every day and John called it his pet. He always treated it kindly and fed it. For many years afterward it came back to him to be petted and fed.

Feeding the Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awakes. One day I went into the woods with my father. I saw some bluejays, wrens and snowbirds jumping and flying around me. I went home and took some scratch feed, oats and crumbs of bread in a can when I went back into the woods. The birds were still there, so I went slowly to them and tipped the can over so that all of them could eat the foods.

The next day I went into the woods. There was no food left but the birds were there, so I went home and got some more. One morning when I woke up I saw more snow on the ground. I knew that the birds were hungry, so I got some crumbs from the house and then I went for scratch feed and oats in the barn. Then I got a one foot square board and then I went into the woods. I put the crumbs and scratch feed on the board and went home again.

I wish the Wide-Awakes would feed the birds.

THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

"One, two, three, Turkey Lane,
Is this Mr. Photographer Crane?
Please come up the Forest Trail
And take my picture sitting on a rail."

Thus telephoned Little Jack Rabbit one morning, oh, so early, as Mr. Merry Sun was climbing the blue sky in his golden chariot.

"All right, I'll come in a second or maybe three minutes," replied the kind photographer bird.

Pretty soon, he had his camera packed and off he started toward the Shady Forest. He had quite a long walk for his picture parlor was in Bunnybridge, you know, just over the River Sipsi, but by and by, not so very far, for his long legs travelled pretty fast over the ground, he reached the Tall Pine Tree in which Professor Jim Crow had his home.

"Hello, Photographer Crane," cawked the black bird professor, "where are you going?"

"To take Little Jack Rabbit's picture," answered Photographer Crane, setting down his camera and wiping his beak with a red silk pocket handkerchief.

"Wait a minute, my little crow boy wants his taken."

"Have no time to take pictures," answered the picture bird man.

"Oh, please take my little crow boy," begged Professor Jim Crow. "It won't take you a minute—here he is now."

"Oh, all right," answered Photographer Crane, and he set up his camera.

Little Blackie Crow stood very stiff and very still on a big limb of the Tall Pine Tree while Photographer Crane pulled the big black cloth over his head.

"Now, be quiet, don't you sneeze,
Smile a little, if you please!
Smooth you feathers, nice and trim,
You'll look like your father Jim—" said Photographer Crane in a singsong voice. Then he squeezed the little rubber bulb and the picture was taken. "How many do you want?" he asked, folding up the camera and starting off for the Old Bramble Patch.

"Maybe a dozen," replied Professor Crow. "Send your bill with them."

"I won't forget that," chuckled the Picture Bird as he hurried along. Pretty soon, he came to the Big Brown Bear's Cozy Cave.

"Stop! Wait! Hey there!" shouted the Big Brown Bear, I want my picture taken."

"Can't wait," answered the nervous crane, "I'm on my way to the Old Bramble Patch."

"It won't take you a minute," answered the Big Brown Bear, "open up your picture box and take my photo."

So there was nothing left for Photographer Crane to do but obey the Big Brown Bear and he set up his camera while the Big Brown Bear brushed his hair and combed his trousers. I beg your pardon, I mean combed his hair and brushed his trousers. Then, sitting down on a wooden bench and lighting his pipe he waited to be photographed, but dear me! Photographer Crane was dreadfully nervous and his legs trembled so that the camera wiggled and jiggled and I guess the picture will look like seven or eight bears dancing in front of the Cozy Cave.

"Dear me!" sighed the Crane as he hurried away, "I'll never reach the Old Bramble Patch if I'm delayed like this and I must not disappoint Little Jack Rabbit. But no sooner had he finished speaking than out jumped Mr. Wicked Weasel. I wonder if he wants his photo taken. Maybe he just feels hungry and will eat poor Photographer Crane. I hope somebody will come along before next Monday and save good, kind Photographer Crane.

morning at St. Joseph's church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. William Fitzsimons. Members of New London lodge of Elks, of which organization Mr. Strickland was a member, acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The Ziegler lodging house at Ocean Beach, located on Bentley avenue, the landscape [illegible] at the resort and erected but two years ago, was threatened with serious damage by fire Friday night when a fire was discovered on an upper veranda. The damage was slight, but that was due to the prompt discovery of the blaze.

Mr. Ziegler had employed painters to place the house in condition for occupancy next month and during the afternoon the workmen deposited a quantity of oily rags on the veranda. They left the rags there when they departed and during the night they became ablaze through spontaneous combustion. A brisk wind prevailed and the rags, which were on a canvas, which covered the floor soon produced a lively fire. Mr. Ziegler went to the beach for the purpose of ascertaining if everything was airtight at the house and as he approached the place, he observed the fire on the veranda. Hastening to the scene of the blaze he seized the burning rags and canvas, which had also became afire, and hurled them to the yard. The only damage occasioned was the scorching of the door of the veranda.

The Groton fire department had a serious grass fire to combat early Saturday evening when a large tract belonging to the Groton Park Real Estate company, located in the southern section of the borough became ablaze and was the work of youths. The burning grass threatened to ignite some of the buildings, but with arrival of the Pioneer Hose company a quantity of chemicals subdued the fire, but not until the firemen had worked a half hour in applying chemicals.

The fire became menacing about 6.30 o'clock and residents in that section, fearing that some of the buildings would be burned caused an alarm to be sent in from Box 11. The firemen made a quick run to the park and with their usual [illegible] a large area of grass was ablaze. The blaze could be observed from New London and it appeared as if some of the cottages at the park were afire.

The weekly session of the city council will take place tomorrow evening and so far as is known there will be no business of importance to claim the attention of the councilors. The matters that have come before that body [illegible] have been on [illegible] and this is be[illegible] for tomorrow's meeting.

Charles Hammond, Costa, who is alleged to have deserted from the 173rd Co., C. A. C., at Fort McDowell, California, will be delivered at Fort Wright tomorrow and held a prisoner pending a court marshal.

The police were called to a Maple avenue residence this evening on complaint of a woman, that her husband, from whom she had been estranged some time, had appeared at the house and attempted to carry away one of their children. The woman was fearful that the husband would make another attempt to gain custody of the child later in the evening. Sergeant Samuel Hick was assigned to the case and finding the husband, warned him against interfering with his wife and more especially against endeavoring to take the child away.

A large number of the street lights went out of commission early this evening because of a short circuit. On the streets affected, the lights failed to illumine until about 8.30 o'clock.

GRASS FIRE SPREAD TO STORM HOUSE AND FENCE

A portable storm house and part of the fence at the home of Richard Lewis at 3 Washington place were considerably damaged by fire Sunday morning at 11.51 o'clock when sparks flew into some dry grass in the rear of the home. Mr. Lewis had been burning rubbish in the yard and left the fire, supposing it to be entirely extinguished.

The firemen were called when the fire spread to the fence and storm house and chemicals were used to stop the flames, which were rapidly making their way towards a barn in the rear of the property. The house is owned by the Misses Alice and Amy Coggswell.

Oxford.—First Selectman W. H. Hubbell has commenced working on the roads and a few others on different sections.

GREENEVILLE

The supper given by the Ladies of the Greeneville Congregational church Wednesday evening was a decided success, about $70 being realized. The tables were decorated with flowers and potted plants. The music by the orchestra consisting of violin, Miss Ida Barrett; piano, Miss Viola Levitsky; drums, Arthur Fitch, was greatly enjoyed. A fine New England supper consisting of baked beans, cold boiled ham, potato salad, pickles, rolls and brown bread, cake and coffee, was served. Mrs. C. F. Sears was the chairman of the committee assisted by members of the society.

The Men's club of the Greeneville Congregational church will hold a banquet and entertainment this (Monday) evening in the church parlors. The Euphremian circle of King's Daughters will serve the supper.

A most successful Mother and Daughter Banquet was held at St. Andrew's Guild Room last Friday evening. Mrs. Berkoff served the dinner, which consisted of grapefruit cocktail, roast-beef, mashed potatoes, turnips, celery, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake. During the meal, songs especially composed for the occasion by Miss Ina M. Ufford were sung by all and an ochestra composed of young people under the direction of Miss Alice Williams played a number of selections.

Y. M. C. A. REPORTS AT ANNIVERSARY SHOW YEAR OF SUCCESSFUL WORK

GOVERNOR C. A. TEMPLETON

The first anniversary service of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. since the association entered its new building on Main street opposite the post office was rendered notable Sunday night by having Governor C. A. Templeton of Waterbury as a guest of speaker, while the anniversary address was by Rev. Dr. Thomas Chalmers of Boston who spoke impressively of the Y as one of the forces that can be counted upon to preserve the Christian civilization that is the distinction of America.

This was the 38th annual anniversary service of the Association and an audience of close to 800 was present in the gymnasium where the meeting was held. Selections by Swahn's orchestra opened the programme and the audience arose in greeting to the Governor as he was escorted to the platform by President James C. Macpherson and Judge Allyn L. Brown, whose guest the governor was over Sunday.

After prayer by Rev. C. H. Ricketts, scripture reading by Rev. F. C. Williams and prayer by Rev. W. H. Bath, President Macpherson presented General Secretary Edwin Hill to make an announcement, which the general secretary did by stating that for the 18th time the association was able to report closing the year will all bills paid and a balance in the treasury. This, he said, had been made possible by the fine spirit of several contributors who had recently made generous contributions in addition to what they had already given.

President Macpherson spoke briefly referring to the pride which the Association could have in its past history, and the outlook for larger field of service in its new building and enlarged equipment. It is engaged in its new building and enlarged equipment. It is engaged in building Christian citizenship and a better manhood and stands ready to render abundant service to the youth of the community.

General Secretary's Report

General Secretary Hill gave his annual report as follows:

As we stood at the opening of the year just closed, we realized that it would be an eventful year in the history of the Association work of Norwich. As we anticipated moving into a new home, made possible by the many friends of the institution, we felt, not only a thrill of joy, but also an impressive responsibility; joy that we were at last to have an equipment far more adequate to meet the needs of our men and boys; a sense of responsibility as we thought of the larger results that must be achieved if we were to prove worthy of the increased confidence placed in us by the good people of Norwich and vicinity. May I state frankly and humbly, that we have been much in prayer, seeking the Heavenly Father's help that we might not disappoint those who look to the Association to perform the unique task assigned to it, and for which it was brought into being, and the only warrant for its continuance, namely, the development of the all round manhood, with special emphasis on the building of character as exemplified in the matchless Son of God. Whether we have succeeded or failed must be determined by those who have been interested to watch the work in all of its phases. The management is gratified that so much has been accomplished, but by no means satisfied when we catch a vision of the ever increasing possibilities that always lie before the association.

I desire to express the gratitude of my whole being, that God has seen fit to favor us with a host of warm hearted, practical friends who have during the past year, as they have for many years, co-operated so splendidly to make the work possible; these friends are worthy of our deep appreciation. Without any desire to flatter, I feel that I just say a word about the officers and directors of this very important work; I question if any Young Men's Christian Association can boast of a group of men, of finer Christian character and unselfish spirit, than the group that constitutes the management of the local Association. These men are giving of their time and money unintendedly, with no desire or expectation of reward, save only as they see Christian character developed in the young manhood of the city.

I want to express also, my real appreciation of my co-workers of the employed staff, who have been royally faithful to their duties, and have shown a genuine desire to give their all to the work.

The Woman's Auxiliary, as usual, have been a useful factor in the life of the association, especially in the social work, where a woman's touch counts for so much; they have also made substantial payments on their liberal pledge of $5,000 for the new building; the hope is that the final payment will be made during the coming year.

Referring to the work for the year just closed, it is utterly impossible to tabulate what has been accomplished in the various lines of effort, though no one who has been in any degree in touch with the activities of the year will question the statement, that many men and boys have received practical benefits to which they freely testify. Some have spent many hours in the fine gymnasium under the right leadership, and they have found what they sought, increased physical endurance for their tasks. Others have used their spare moments enjoying the social privileges offered, and in so doing, have developed friendships which are proving helpful in many ways, for the more friends a man has, of the right kind, the more proper enjoyment he has in living. There are men and boys, not a few, who have sought that highest of all privileges, contact with Spiritual realities, and they have enjoyed feasting on the things that satisfy the hunger of the soul; we have reason to believe that many have found what they sought in this, the supreme realm of life.

Every workman can perform his tasks more efficiently and with much greater satisfaction when he has proper tools with which to work, and this holds true in the work of the Young Men's Christian Association. Through the kindness, and in many cases, through the sacrifice of our friends, we now possess tools, far superior to any we have ever possessed before. The large, up to date, well lighted and ventilated gymnasium, with its variety of apparatus, constitutes the tools with which to develop the physical man, and it has been a real pleasure to use these tools during the past six months in our new home. Many of our business men, and others who have seldom, if ever been seen in the physical department before, have been regular and enthusiastic in their patronage of this very important phase of association activity, and many have been the expressions of satisfaction on the part of those who have learned the secret of becoming fit and keeping fit. Our first class physical department, with the fine gymnasium, the well night perfect shower bath facilities, and the wonderful swimming pool tempts many men and boys to spend their spare time in a most profitable manner. Exercise followed by a shower, a swim and a rub down puts new life into a man or boy, and gives to them what is greatly needed in this day, and which is described in that all inclusive word of three letters, "Pep." There never has been a period in the history of the world when physical fitness was so much needed as now.

EDWIN HILL,

Social Contact.

The Young Men's Christian Association is really a great brotherhood, and brotherhood must ever have as one of its essential elements, the social contact. In the association, there is no high, no low, we all are on a level; the poor boy and man receives as much attention as does the rich, and it is ever the aim of the management to weld together the membership into one big social family, thus developing a friendly interest one for the other. The attractive lobby, with its various games, etc., attracts an increasing number of men and boys. The concert course and large receptions during the year were greatly enjoyed.

The Boys' Division.

Never, before we entered the new building, have we had tools at all adequate for the work among boys, and the results show clearly what can be accomplished when conditions are in keeping with the needs. The fact that we now have a separate entrance and lobby for the boys, has proven a God send for both the men and boys, as the two elements cannot be combined regularly and the best work done for either. No more important work can be performed than that which is done for the growing boy; he needs to be guided right in his pliable years, and the habits he forms in boyhood generally cling to him through life. The association has had the high privilege of making contacts with a large number of boys from eleven to eighteen years of age, and evidences are not lacking to show healthful development in character in the lives of many of the younger element in our membership; as in the past, so in the future some of the very boys who are today being trained and developed in the association will become a credit to the city in positions of prominence and responsibility when those of us who are older have finished our earthly career. Parents may safely send their boys to the association knowing that here the service rendered will be only such as will tend to co-operate with the training at home.

The Greatest Need of Every Life.

While we would not in the least degree, minimize the needs of the body, the importance of the right social contacts, nor the wise cultivation of the mental powers, to be true to our best selves we simply must attend to these important departments of our lives, but while we are attending to these, we must personally and as an institution ever remember that the one thing of paramount importance is the constant cultivation of the life of the soul. In these unusual and somewhat terrible days following the world catastrophy, nations and individuals have been groping about, for the solution of countless problems, some of which still baffle the brightest minds of the world; relationships are strained, and whole nations seem to be thwarting the solution of the problems. Some leading minds in all the countries seem to think that the way out of the difficulties is by the way of an economic readjustment. Are we not justified in saying that the clouds that hover so closely will never be dissipated until men everywhere live out in genuine fashion, the formula enunciated by Jesus Christ, which we have chosen to call "The Golden Rule;" when this rule is a living fact among men, will we not then have "The Golden Age" in the sense that it will be a golden privilege to live then.

Realizing that no life is a normal life unless it is dominated by the spirit of "The Lord of Life" the Young Men's Christian Association endeavors to place before the men and boys this highest of all ideals that they may find themselves by finding Him, who is the "chiefest among ten thousand, and altogether lovely."

The men who constitute the management of the Norwich association now, or at a later period, will always have reason to thank God for the friendship of Miss M. Louise Sturtevant, and her devoted interest in the most vital work of our institution. In her life she gave freely, and when she was gone she left her heart interest in the association in the shape of a magnificent endowment, the earnings from which are to be used strictly for the Religious work of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. No gift could have been more timely, and the management has sought to use this money for the purposes for which it was intended, and we are willing to trust the judgment of our friends so far as our faithful stewardship is concerned.

This fund has enabled us to carry out a strong and consistent programme of Religious work, the results of which no one, save God can really measure. The Sunday afternoon meetings have been a source of inspiration to many; the Bible study groups during the winter months manifested an interest in the discussions of Bible ideals, and we feel that these have been a help in the daily life of the men and boys. The series of noon meetings have never been surpassed in interest and impressiveness and the men of toil who have listened with unusual attention would tell you that the messages touched them deeply. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts was the speaker and he has certainly won a place in the hearts of those men.

The most signal service along religious lines during the past year was the securing by the Association of Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, of New York city for six wonderful addresses. The ministers of the city kindly co-operated most heartily and the church people generally entered cordially into the meetings. There has probably never been seen a greater unity than that which prevailed during this series of meetings; we thank the ministers for permiting the association thus to serve the churches of the city. We would not attempt to estimate the value of these meetings to the religious interests of the city and surrounding territory.

The series of noon luncheon addresses by Dr. Danforth on the Fridays of March, were memorable gatherings on account of the spiritual impressions resulting from the heart to heart talks by this Godly man.

Plans are already under way to arrange a strong programme for the coming year in all the departments of our work. We expect to reach a larger number through the physical work; we are confident that the work for boys will surpass even the good work of the past year, and it will be our aim to make the association building more and more a social center As to the religious endeavor for the coming year, our vision reaches out to greater accomplishments, and already some notable speakers with burning messages are engaged for the coming fall.

The Association is greatly indebted to the local newspapers for their cordial and constant co-operation; to the ministers of the city for their favorable answers to every call, and to those who have constituted our committee force we extend hearty thanks. We must again express our feelings of gratitude to the donor of the beautiful "Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial Swimming Pool" which has been and will continue to be a very great attraction.

Let us take a backward glance long enough to enthuse again over the rich blessings that have been ours, and for the leadership of the Almighty all through the year. Let us enter the new year in company with this same Almighty One, remembering, though the tasks be great, they are not impossible; though the problems are bound to come, none of them are quite as big as God, who will certainly enable us to solve them if we but swing into line with His will. We have a very fruitful field in which to work during the days of the coming year; there are countless boys, whom we have not yet reached; all of them are entitled to our best service. There are many men to whom we can be friendly and helpful. The one condition of success the coming twelve months, is that we abandon ourselves to service for others, and thereby exemplify the matchless example of the Great Son of God who "came not to ministered unto, but to minister."

Shall we measure up to the requirements of the Almighty. "We can if we will, and we will because we can."

Governor Templeton Speaks

Governor Templeton was introduced by Judge Brown, first vice president of the association, and was again given a rising greeting.

In a pleasant way the governor said he was glad to testify to the great benefits that come through the Y. M. C. A. of which he had been a member for 35 years and through which he had found the best woman in the world, his wife, while he referred to his participation in all athletic events that the association afforded and had hung up the state record for the 100 yard dash, which still stands.

Young men are under the right influence religiously and physically in the Y. M. C. A. Strong bodies, clean bodies mean strong minds and clean minds. The successful men of the world's history have been Christian men.

Governor Templeton congratulated the Norwich association on the reports that he had heard and said that it deserved the support of the community and puts a responsibility upon the Christian people to support that which stood for the good and true and honest in men and measures.

President Macpherson expressed his approbation of the words of the governor and said the state is to be congratulated upon having a chief executive who expresses such sentiments.

Boston Pastor Speaks

Rev. Dr. Chalmers was introduced by General Secretary Hill, who had been in Y. M. C. A. work at Manchester, N. H., while Dr. Chalmers was a pastor there.

Dr. Chalmers held the close attention of his audience as he spoke of the valuable contribution to American Christianity and American civilization that is made by the work of the Y. M. C. A. which is all represented in the word "Service." The fate of civilization in America, he said, hangs upon whether it is to be Christian or non-Christian. He referred to the party of Massachusetts men who set out to locate in Connecticut, establishing the settlement on the Connecticut river in 1636 and in their party found some who seemed out of tune with the serious purpose of the settlers. These malcontents were given the stern admonition that they were to live under God with a hand to help rather than to hinder and they were advised that unless they could live in that spirit they could take to the open forest. Dr. Chalmers enlarged upon the thought that this spirit to help rather than to hinder American civilization was the spirit of the Young Men's Christian Association, and that in carrying out this principle the association was rendering a service against the forces of syndicalism and sabotage that were striving to destroy out American civilization.

The meeting closed with the singing of America and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Ricketts.

JUDGE WALLER HEARS COMMON PLEAS CASE

In the common pleas court here Saturday, Judge C. B. Waller gave judgment for $185 in the suit of Angelo Delgrosse of Stonington vs John Christine of the same place. Suit was brought for $450 damages over a contract for carpenter work. The defendant made no appearance by council but V. P. A. Quinn represented the plaintiff.

Judge Waller reserved decision after hearing the evidence in the suit of George Boucher of Norwich vs Erastus W. Carter, also of this city The plaintiff's claim is on a note for $100 on a contract for work in two rooms in a house. The defendant has counter claim for $500 and claims that the work was not up to contract.

tell you about our farm. We have one horse. We also have five cows which all have names. We have two rabbits, one is brown and one is black. We have a dog whose name is Teddy. He is nice. You would like him. He is white with brown ears and has a short tail. My father owns about 100 chickens, but all do not lay. We get from 50 to 60 eggs a day. Our farm is quite large as it has 60 acres. How would you like to live on our farm? I should like to have you live with us.

Snowball Broke Window.

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time, so I thought I would write and tell you about an [illegible] snowball. When I reached the corner a large crowd of boys and girls had gathered. They were trying to throw a snowball over an old barn. Some of them had tried but had failed. One boy picked up a snowball and threw it straight at the barn. We all thought it would go over. Not very far from the barn was a small house. A cross old man lived there. The snowball did not go over but went through the window of the house. We all started to run. I reached home in safety. Not long afterwards our parents received a bill for the broken window. They were astonished when we told them but they paid the bill. After that we were careful how we threw our snowballs.

Spring.

Dear Uncle Jed: Spring is the awakening of a long, dreary, wintry dream. Spring seems like a being, full of joy, and pity, who comes at a certain time of the year to bid all creatures, great and small, to rise and go forth once more to enjoy the brilliant life, and joy in this world. To enjoy it while it lasts and then once more to rest in a long dream till she comes to waken them in the spring.

The woods, the roads and gardens and all places seem to be alive. The birds sing, and the surging brooks eagerly break forth and down the valley to comfort the little buds under the ground.

The beautiful landscapes and the pleasant weather at certain times all seem to add to the beauty of the earth.

My Pet Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to the Wide-Awake Circle. I have not written for a long time, so I thought I would tell you about my pet dog.

He is a grayish color with black spots. His name is Birdie. He is a bird dog. Birdie came home every day with a bird in his mouth. One day he came home with a hawk in his mouth. The hawk was alive, so we took it out of his mouth and we let it go. He could not fly because his wing was broken. When he tried to fly he fell to the ground and was hurt very badly. He could not fly, so after a while he died.

Birdie got the dog distemper from which he suffered very badly and he finally died. I was very sorry for him, and I will never forget him. I hope the Wide-Awakes will like this story.

A Trip to New York.

Dear Uncle Jed: Nearly a year ago one of our neighbors started for New York and I went with him. We left home on the boat train for New London. When we arrived in New London we went on a large boat, the first one I was ever on. We rode all night on that.

In New York I saw a great many tall buildings and crowds of people. In the evening we went to a theatre. It was the first big play I had ever seen.

We went to the Grand Central station and got on a long express train for Putnam. When we got there we took an electric car and came back home.

The Snake's Feast.

Dear Uncle Jed: One fine August day last summer, we decided to go swimming. We had a lovely place for swimming. As we were swimming not far from the bank I heard a queer squeaking noise. I went to see what it was. To my surprise I saw a black snake about three feet long. He was near a little hole which was under a bunch of small birch trees. There in a hole were little blind rabbits, which he was eating heartily. My father came over and killed the snake and took the remainder of the rabbits. We fed them on milk but they couldn't live without their mother so they died.

Pussy Willow.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a pussy willow. I grow by the roadside. One day a little girl was going home to her mother. She put me in a nice glass on the table. Sometime she gives me some new water so I won't die. People look at me and they say that I am very beautiful.

The Toad.

Dear Uncle Jed: The toad buries itself in a moist but not wet place in the ground. In burying itself the toad digs with its hind legs and body and pushes itself backward into the hole with its front legs. The earth caves in as the toad backs into the ground, so that no sign is left on the earth. Then the toad moves until there is a little chamber, slightly larger than itself. Then it sleeps for five months.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Getting the Circus Ready.

Well, the big friendly circus elephant with Little Jack Rabbit on his back went down the road to Rabbitville, kicking up his heels and trumpeting with all his might. Every now and then he'd call out to all the little people of the Shady Forest: "I'll let you know when the circus comes to town. Don't forget it's Uncle Lucky's circus, the best on earth."

"Hello, Elly! I suppose You're after money?"

After a while when they came in sight of the Welsh Rabbit Club, the friendly elephant said: "I must see Uncle Lucky. I wonder if President Lucky Lefthindfoot is in?"

"You wait outside and I'll see," answered Little Jack Rabbit and he hopped into the big building and around the hall till he came to a door marked "Private," on which he knocked three times and a half.

"Come in," said a voice and there sat dear Uncle Lucky with his old wedding stovepipe hat tilted back on his head and a big cabbage leaf cigar in his mouth.

"Ha, ha!" he laughed, "what does my little nephew want of me?" and the kind old gentleman rabbit winked at the clark, a long-legged crane, the son of Photographer Crane, whom I told you about, oh so, many stories ago.

"The circus elephant is outside," answered the little rabbit.

"Goodness me!" said Uncle Lucky "I'd forgotten all about my circus. I guess they need some money to move into town," and the old gentleman rabbit hopped over to the safe and taking out a bag full of carrot gold hurried out to the elephant.

"Hello, Elly! I suppose you're after money?"

"Yes, we're almost ready to move from winter quarters, but there's only a carrot cent left in the tin box."

"Here's enough money to bring you all down," answered Uncle Lucky, handing the bag to the big elephant, who at once started off for the place where all the animals were.

By and by, after a while, he came to the big board fence that shut in the circus stables in which the animals had lived all winter long, and oh dear me, weren't they glad when they saw him!

"It won't be long before we go,
To Turnip Town to give a show.
So, get the peanuts roasted brown
And make a new suit for the clown.
The skinny man, the lady fat,
The dancing dog and singing cat,
Are waiting anxiously to meet
And give the boys and girls a treat."

Then, the circus man got out the big wagons and the long-tailed horses and pretty soon a long procession moved out of the little circus town where they had lived all the long winter, and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

MRS. G. M. MINOR DENOUNCES PACIFISTS AND RADICALS

President-General of the Daughters of the American Revolution Declares That Americans Must Awaken to the Danger Confronting Them—More Than 2,000 Delegates in Attendance at 32nd Annual Congress in Washington—Addresses Delivered by President Harding and Secretary Hughes.

Washington, April 16.—With more than 2,000 delegates in attendance, the thirty-second annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution convened here today.

During the day addresses were delivered by President Harding, who praised the organization for its wholesome influence on American life, and by Mrs. George Maynard Minor of Connecticut, president-general. Secretary Hughes was one of the speakers at tonight's session.

Mrs. Minor declared that pacifists were attempting to "disarm America and kill patriotism in the heart of her defenders." Women of the nation, she asserted, should join in a concerted effort to frustrate attempts of disloyal individuals and organizations to destroy American institutions.

Declaring that Americans must awaken to the danger confronting them, Mrs. Minor said it was time "to tell all radical agitators that there is no room in this country for the Reds." The crusade against disloyal doctrines could properly be launched in the schools, she contended, adding that more than 8,000 teachers are disloyally discrediting the ideals of the American nation.

During the course of her address Mrs. Minor reported that during the past year more than 12,000 women became Daughters of the American Revolution, bringing the total membership up to 135,174.

President Harding was accompanied to the convention hall by Mrs. Harding, who was given an ovation by the delegates as she entered a box. Reviewing the history of the United States, the president declared the republic never had been remiss except in one particular.

"I speak of it now," he continued, "because I rejoice in your efforts to correct that remissness. We offered too much and we asked too little. It is not right for anybody on earth to have the fortunes, the privileges, the favors and the opportunities of American citizenship without assuming every duty and every obligation thereof."

President Harding urged that problems confronting the nation be approached with an open mind, and that pending their solution the American people "hold secure" to the principles which guided the fathers of the republic.

"Our country will have done well," said Mr. Harding, "when it is assured of the full enlistment of all the unselfish devotion of its womanhood in the supreme duty of implanting sentiments of real Americanism in the hearts of all our citizens.

"The Daughters of the Revolution have preserved for us all a lesson in the desirability of forbearance, patience and toleration. In the beginnings of the nation there were wide divergences of judgment about institutions, methods, directions, means and measures. Fortunately for our country's great experiment, there was a sufficient endowment of wisdom, moderation and selflessness to make possible the adjustment of all the differences. The great project of a government of the people, for the people, by the people, was set forth in the world, because no group or faction or narrow interest assumed to be or to represent all the people. No group arrogated of itself all the political righteousness of the young republic.

"It is good to recall the beginning. The war-torn world of today easily might find a helpful lesson and cheering encouragement therein. In chaos of victory, prostrate in material fortunes, wrecked financially, with interests conflicting and ideas opposing, the founding fathers found a way to union and concerted effort to restoration and attainment. World wonder, sometimes world envy, has attended the astounding development. But there has come to us a glorious country, a cherished nationality, an inheritance which it is an inspiration to preserve, and we have the prospect of future advancement for ourselves and helpfulness to the world, ever to impel America onward."

Secretary Hughes, discussing the function of patriotic organizations, asserted that "against insidious propaganda, as well as open assault, against all revolutionary efforts," the American public stood united, "not to serve any selfish interest but to protect the fundamental interests of all citizens alike; in defense of liberty and order, which are inseparable in defense of free labor, which is the foundation of prosperity.

"Patriotism demands," he added, "not simply loyalty to the conception of law but loyalty to the actual laws of the land so long as they remain laws. We are ruled by a preponderating opinion expressed in the constitutional method. You cannot afford to breed disrespect for law because you dislike the will of the majority which has been duly ascertained.

"The reign of law is not an abstraction: it cannot be had save as there is obedience to the rules of action established by the community. You cannot maintain order by inciting disorder; you cannot protect the rights you cherish if you imperil the supremacy of law by which alone they are safeguarded."

BROCK GETS SIX YEARS SOLITARY CONFINEMENT

Philadelphia, April 16.—Solitary confinement in the eastern state penitentiary for a term of not less than six years nor more than ten years, was the sentence given today to Henry G. Brock, wealthy Philadelphia clubman, for killing three persons with his automobile while he was intoxicated and speeding away.

"The very worst punishment this man can suffer is the constant thought he has snuffed out three lives," said Judge Charles Y. Audenried before sentencing the prisoner, who is prominent in exclusive social circles of Philadelphia.

Brock's automobile killed Mrs. Ellen D'Donnell, her son Leo, and Miss Mary Murphy, a friend of the O'Donnell's late on the night of March 2, as they alighted from a trolley car. Testimony was presented to show that Brock was intoxicated, that his machine was running at a high rate of speed and that he never slackened after the crash. His machine was found disabled four blocks from the scene of the accident.

The wealthy Philadelphian did not publicly admit his responsibility until he appeared in court today and pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. Judge Audenried refused to accept this plea, stating that it was for the court to determine the degree of the crime, and directed that testimony be presented.

Bernard T. Law, at whose home Brock spent the evening at St. David's, a suburb, testified that Brock drank six bottles of ale and was drunk when he left for Philadelphia.

Brock declared that he did not remember anything after leaving Law's home until the accident occurred. Even then, he said, his memory was hazy as to subsequent events.

MAROONED IN ICE FIELD OFF NEWFOUNLAND COAST

St. John's, N. F., April 16.—Marooned in a field of ice off the Newfoundland coast where their steamer Kyle is frozen fast, four political candidates for the spring election are planning for a rescue by airplane so they can file their candidacy by next Monday, the last day for this legal formality. Candidates for both the government party and the opposition from the districts of Burgeo and Fortune boarded the Kyle more than a week ago intending to file in their own district. The steamer, which carried supplies for the starving settlements along the south coast, became stuck in the ice field at Lamaline harbor. She has not been able to move since.

FLIGHT OF 931.75 MILES IN 12 HOURS 39 MINUTES

Dayton, Ohio, April 16.—At ten thirty o'clock tonight, Lieutenants John A. MacReady, and Oakley Kelly finished 1,500 kilometers (931.75 miles) in their endurance record, setting a new speed record for this distance. The distance was covered in 12 hours and 39 minutes, at an average speed of 73 miles per hour.

The former speed record for this distance was held by a French aviator, who flew at an average speed of 62 miles an hour.

Budget Presented To House of Common

Total Expenditures for the Year Are Estimated at £816,616,000 and Revenue at £852,650,000.

London, April 16.—(By the A. P.)—The budget estimates for the fiscal year 1923-24 were presented to the house of commons by the chancellor of the exchequer, Stanley Baldwin. While not likely to be called popular, the budget will probably be welcomed by the country as promising a progressive decrease in the high taxation.

Six pence comes off the income tax, which is reduced to 4 shillings 6 pence on the pound sterling; the corporation tax is cut in half, and the beer duty lowered so as to provide a reduction of a penny a pint in the retain price.

The surplus as shown in the chancellor's statement is slightly more than 36,000,000 pounds sterling, as compared with an expected estimate of 50,000,000 pounds sterling. Total expenditures for the year are estimated at 816,616,000 pounds sterling, and revenues at 852,650,000 pounds sterling.

The last year's surplus of 101,000,000 pounds sterling went toward reduction of the debt, and the chancellor announced that, when the fiscal year came to an end on March 31, trade both at home and abroad had improved and there was considerably less unemployment.

There will be some disappointment that no greater reduction is promised in direct taxation, including the levies on tea, sugar and similar commodities, the liberal and labor parties being very keen for the "free breakfast table." The chancellor held out the hope of some reduction in the sugar duty in the near future.

APPROPRIATION BILLS TO BE FAVORABLY REPORTED

Hartford, April 16—Eleven bills appropriating nearly a million dollars for additions to state institutions and special projects will be favorably reported in the general assembly tomorrow by the legislative appropriations committee.

More than half the total is accounted for by a bill providing $536,000 for extensions and improvements at the Mansfield state training school and hospital, which is now crowded to capacity with applications pending for the admittance of over 200 more defective children. The bill would appropriate $110,000 for the erection of a dromitory for 100 boys, $150,000 for a hospital building to accommodate sixty cases, and $200,000 for a nurses' home for 100 employes, releasing space for the accommodation of an equal number of inmates. The remainder of the amount recommended is largely for incidental improvements.

The Mansfield institution is one of three named by Governor Templeton as urgently in need of expansion.

A bill appropriating $310,000 for additions at the Connecticut State hospital for the insane at Middletown is second on the list. If adopted, it will make a total of $954,500 provided by the present session of the legislature for increased accommodations for the insane exclusive of $2,960,000 recommended for the maintenance of the custodial insane in the budget bill. For a nurses' home at Middletown, and incidentals $220,000 is provided in the bill to be reported today, and for replacements and repairs about the old institution buildings, in general, $90,000 is provided. Appropriations of $644,000 have already been recommended for extensions of the Norwich State hospital for the insane.

Adoption of the recommendations of the committee for the two institutions for the insane will make possible the provision of accommodations adequate to handle the state's mental cases for two years. As the Middletown institution has already reached the limit of expansion and the Norwich hospital will have reached the limit when the buildings now planned are completed, it will then be necessary to consider the recommendation of the state psychostic commission that a new state institution for the insane be located in the southwestern section of Connecticut.

ARRESTS TO BE MADE FOR MER ROUGE KIDNAPPINGS

Monroe, La., April 16.—Approximately a score of persons will be placed under arrest not later than Wednesday night in connection with the efforts of attorney General A. V. Coco to bring to trial persons charged with the kidnapping of five Mer Rouge citizens last summer and the slaying of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard, according to information obtained from district court officials here today.

District Attorney David I. Garrett, back from a conference in New Orleans with Attorney General Coco, will file the 31 bills of information drawn by the attorney general, in the sixth district at Baton Rouge, next Wednesday, he stated late today.

Within 24 hours after the filing of the bills the warrants for the arrests of the persons named in the bills will be made out. Sheriff Fred Carpenter asserted that he would proceed to make arrests as soon as the warrants are placed in his hands and expected to have all of the men named in custody by Thursday night with the possible exception of several who he declared were beyond his jurisdiction.

PROPOSE TO TRAIN AND EMPLOY FORMER SOLDIERS

New York, April 16.—A drive to induce manufacturers and business organizations in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut to train and subsequently employ former soldiers who have been disabled because of war service, was launched today at a meeting of the citizens' advisory committee of the United States veterans' bureau.

The program, as planned by Major W. F. Lent, manager for the second district of the bureau, is to get business houses to absorb 8,000 men now in training here under the auspices of the bureau.

IMPORTANT CAPTURES OF IRISH IRREGULARS

LIFE SENTENCE FOR REV. CHARLES DILLON

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 16.—Rev. Father Charles Dillon, confessed slayer of his superior, Father Henry O'Neill, pastor of St. Augustine's Catholic church, was on his way to the branch of the state prison at Marquette tonight. There he will lay aside the habiliments of a priest, which he has worn for years, and don for the remainder of his life the drab, rough uniform of the penal institution.

Father Dillon, refusing to plead for mercy on the ground of insanity, and declaring he was "ready to pay," received the life sentence today from Circuit Judge George V. Welmer.

Father Dillon shot Father O'Neill at the dinner table in the priests' home late Thursday night. The slaying was the culmination of a grievance nursed for weeks by Dillon, who was assistant to the slain priest. His superior, Father Dillon said, treated him "like a child."

PROBING DISAPPEARANCE OF A VALUABLE WATCH

New York, April 16.—An investigation of the mysterious disappearance of a valuable watch worn by Tom Smith, Tammany secretary, killed last week by an automobile, was begun today by police. The watch, which Mrs. Smith said had been highly prized by her husband, was presented Mr. Smith by the City Hall Reporters Association.

William Nelligan, chauffeur of the taxicab which struck Mr. Smith, said he saw the watch, which had slipped from his pocket, dangling from a chain as Mr. Smith's body lay on a stretcher, before it was taken into the hospital. The Smith family, however, did not find it when Mr. Smith's effects were turned over to them by police.

Policeman Carey, who arrested Nelligan after the accident, today identified a picture in the Rogue's Gallery as that of Nelligan. Nelligan, police say, has been arrested four times and convicted once, on a charge of grand larceny.

MEXICANS ALARMED BY STRONG EARTH SHOCKS

Mexico City, April 16.—(By the A. P.)—The lowlands along the Vera Cruz-San Luis Potasi boundary line are being shaken by strong earth shocks and the alarmed inhabitants are abandoning their homes, according to stories refugees arriving at the town of Valles, state of San Luis Potasi. The reports do not mention any casualities, and the damage had not been estimated.

WILL OF T. C. DE ROSSET CONTAINED FOUR WORDS

Baltimore, April 16.—One of the shortest wills ever filed in the Orphans' court here, that of Thomas C. De Rosset, probate today contined these four words:

"Everything to my wife."

At the bottom of the document he wrote:

"A wonderful little girl is my wife."

Mr. De Rosset dropped dead recently while playing golf.

Exonerates Police Who Conducted Raid

Restaurateur Cardi of New York Denies That He Accused Policemen of Drinking 75 Bottles of Liquor.

New York, April 16.—Conflicting statements by Luigi Caridi, Greenwich Village restaurateur, and his attorney, Leslie S. Lockhart, at today's session of the investigation being conducted by Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield into charges of police bootlegging, led to announcement by Mr. Hirshfield that a transcript of the testimony would be sent to District Attorney Banton. Caridi, he added, would be recalled tomorrow.

Caridi, defending the police who had conducted a liquor raid on his premises, denied statements attributed to him Friday by City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, who has declared that the police are either corrupt or hopelessly inefficient in enforcing the dry laws.

Caridi denied emphatically that he had accused the 23 police raiders of drinking 75 bottles of liquor in seizing $20,000 worth without a search warrant, for that he had charged that his stock was being peddled in the neighborhood soon after the raid.

Lockhart, however, testified that he had been present at a conversation between Corrigan and Caridi, and that the restaurateur had made virtually the statements attributed to him, although it later developed that Caridi had no personal knowledge of the incidents he described.

Lockhart said Caridi had seen him "since this came out in the newspapers," and stated that "while he told Magistrate Corrigan what he believed to be true, as a matter of fact it was not true of his knowledge; that he had been told this by ones people on the premises." Lockhart added that Caridi told the story to Corrigan as actual knowledge instead of upon information.

Asked his opinion of the police department, as a lawyer who had handled many liquor cases, Mr. Lockhart said:

"You cannot prevent individual grafting. I don't believe there is one bit more grafting going on in the police department than there has been in the last twenty years. On the contrary, it is a great deal lessened. As far as any systematized collection of graft, I think we in the court would hear of it sooner than anybody else. There has never been a suspicion of that during this administration."

Referring to allegations of Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Mr. Hirshfield asked:

"How do you account for this charge, that he is a bootlegger?"

"You don't want me to get in trouble with Louis Cuvillier, whom I know. I am surprised that anyone took Louis Cuvillier seriously enough to get this far."

"From your experience," asked Mr. Hirshfield, "do you endorse Magistrate Corrigan's assertion that half of the policemen are bootleggers?"

"As I said before, there are individual cases, but there is no systematized bootlegging or collection from liquor dealers or liquor sellers, I think."

"If half of the policemen were in the bootlegging business, don't you think that pretty nearly everybody would know that?"

"I think they would."

Referring to Corrigan's assertion that there were only .032 per cent of convictions out of 13,000 arrests in Manhattan, Mr. Hirshfield asked if those figures meant or implied that the police department was inefficient or corrupt.

"On the contrary," replied Lockhart, "I think what it implies is that the grand juries are a very sensible body of men. The grand jury knows if they indicted all those people, general sessions would have to quit."

MARATHON DANCERS ARE INVADING CONNECTICUT

New York, April 16.—New York's eight one-stepping non-stoppers who have danced their way from this state to New Jersey and back again in their attempts to set a new dancing endurance record, despite the rulings of the law and ball room properties, started a jazz journey to Connecticut tonight.

Threatened by the police here last night they fox-trotted into a moving van, where a phonograph furnished music while they crossed the Hudson to a Fort Lee, N. J., hall. They shuffled peacefully there until this afternoon. Then the police invited them to leave and they toddled back onto their portable dance floor, crossed the river again and went to a Harlem ball room. The manager there allowed them to stay but a few minutes and they waltzed into their van once more and headed for "somewhere in Connecticut." The managers of none of the dance halls knew what town they might land in.

FEARS LABOR DEATH FROM RESTRICTIVE IMMIGRATION

E. H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, Declares Restriction of Immigration is "One of the Worst Things This Country Ever Did for Itself"—Opinion Expressed at Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation—Earnings for 1922 Were $1,092,697,000, an Increase of $410,000,000 Over 1921.

Hoboken, N. J., April 16.—The barrier to aliens erected by the restrictive immigration law of the United States threatens to create a serious labor shortage and is "one of the worst things this country ever did for itself," E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation told stockholders at their annual meeting today.

Mr. Gary confined his remarks to affairs of the corporation, telling those who inquired concerning his recent tour to Europe that he would cover the subject at the annual meeting of the American Iron & Steel Institute in New York next month.

He reported that gross earnings of the United States Steel Corporation in 1922 were $1,092,697,000, an increase of $410,000,000 over 1921; that the total undivided surplus last December 31, exclusive of profits of subsidiary companies from sales of possessions to other subsidiaries, was $499,000,000 and that at the close of 1922 it had 214,931 employes who earned an aggregate of $322,678,130 during the year—an average of $1,501 each.

He estimated the total value of the corporation's holdings exceeded by a billion dollars their value when the organization was formed 20 years ago. And they are still going strong, he said, "year by year becoming intrinsically more valuable."

Directors re-elected for three years were George H. Baker, William J. Filbert, Samuel Mather, Thomas Morrison and John S. Phipps.

J. P. Morgan, R. V. Lindabury and Percival Roberts, Jr., were named a committee to administer the corporation's profit sharing plan fund.

"America is faced by a shortage of labor due principally to the laws restricting immigration," Judge Gary said in his address. "These laws as passed are the worst things that have ever happened to this country, economically. There is a great abundance of labor on the other side of the world that would be glad to come here and develop our resources.

"I am very glad to say that our enterprise is a successful, harmonious organization, which has been carrying on the affairs of the greatest industrial cohcern in the world. There are many things the management of no business can control — for instance prices of commodities manufactured and sold. That is something entirely in the control of sellers and purchasers together.

"While the Steel corporation has never been willing to take advantage of labor being plentiful and has always kept wages up to what it thought was generously fair, competitor companies have not always manifested this attitude. If the Steel corporation could do exactly what it would like to do it would always demand and receive fair prices for everything it produces. So that there should be a reasonable profit, depending on the value of investments. And it would never have prices rise so high as to be extraordinary.

"Our men would always be perfectly satisfied were it not for the uncalled for and unjustifiable interference of outsiders who don't know anything about our business and would just as soon see it go to smash as they would to see it succeed. Sometimes they create trouble but it is only temporary. When the men are given an opportunity to pass upon the questions that are raised they are generally easily persuaded that the management has their welfare at heart.

WOMAN'S SUIT REVEALS QUESTIONABLE CONTRACT

New York, April 16.—Alleging that Clendenin J. Ryan, son of Thomas F. Ryan, financier, had failed to keep an alleged contract to pay her $500 a month for life in return for her services in maintaining an apartment in New York, Miss Muriel Sharp, of Garden City, N. Y., has brought suit against young Ryan in the Nassau county courts.

The action was revealed today when attorneys for Ryan asked for a change of venue to New York, alleging that Miss Sharp was not a resident of Nassau county. Miss Sharp is suing for $500 to test the validity of the contract, it was said.

Miss Sharp alleged, in the papers filed, that the unusual contract with the financier's son had been made in February, 1922. The contract provided that Miss Sharp was to live at the apartment and maintain a living room there where young Ryan could entertain. She alleged that she was living with her parents when she met Ryan and was induced to leave her home by the guarantee of a regular income for life in return for maintaining the apartment. Ryan, Miss Sharp alleged, paid her $500 regularly each month until February of this year when payment was discontinued. Decision was reserved on the application for change of venue.

London, April 16.—(By The A. P.)—Great Britain has assured the United States government that she "has every desire to meet wherever possible" the representations from Washington regarding the prevention of liquor smuggling into the United States, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs Ronald McNeill told a questioner in the house of commons this evening.

Morton who figured in an accident Saturday night on Church street was charged with reckless driving and his case was continued until next Saturday morning. Adalgiso Peucillo of 103 Cedar street, New Haven, Morris Brown of 41 Village street, Rockville and Clarence Chamberlain of Scotland were charged with driving their automobiles past a standing street railway car while passengers were getting off or boarding the car. Brown pleaded guilty and Peucillo and Chamberlain pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The arrests in the three cases were made by Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria who testified to placing Brown and Peucillo under arrest at the foot of High street on Main street. Both men were released on $25 bonds. The Peucillo car was in the rear of Brown's machine and when the latter car started Peucillo followed. Brown was fined $25 and costs with $15 of the fine remitted, making a total assessment of $15.15 and Peucillo's case was nolled on a payment of costs in the case amounting to $5.15. Chamberlain explained that passengers were boarding the trolley car on the right a tthe Main street terminal near the railroad crossong.

There were cars stopped down as far as the crossing and if he had not gone by the trolley on the left side the gates of the crossing would have been lowered upon his machine. The court was inclined to be lenient and his case was nolled on the payment of the costs.

Monday noon in the superior court chamber in this city, a short calendar session of the Windham county superior court was held with Judge George E. Hinman on the bench. The arguments were heard in the case of the New York Trust Company and other trustees under the will of Norman B. Ream, late of Thompson vs. Edward K. Ream and the National Bank of Kentucky. Authority from the court was asked by the plaintiffs to accept an order on the estate in favor of the National Bank of Kentucky by which about $70,000 may be paid by the trustees to the bank and to charge the same against Edward K. Ream's income from the estate of his father.

According to the terms of Mr. Ream's will Edward K. Ream, his son, has about $36,000 a year income from the trust fund. The trust provided that the income should not be assigned so as to anticipate payments of the income. The real question is whether Mr. Ream's will created a trust fund which creditors of the son, Edward K. Ream, could not reach.

Judge Hinman reserved his decision. This was the only case to come up and Judge Hinman ordered court adjourned without date, at the close of the session.

How to Rid the Arms of Objectionable Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of hairy or fuzzy growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury, but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

"Cause and effect" is Nature's law —

It controls life—science is based on it—no one can escape it.

Many people find that coffee and tea, both of which contain the drug, caffeine, are often a cause of nervousness, headache and loss of sleep.

There are many, too, who have found that the easy and sure way to avoid coffee and tea troubles is to drink delicious Postum as the mealtime beverage.

Try Postum in place of coffee or tea. It is pure, healthful and has a delightful full-bodied flavor.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

Breed Theatre.

Mystery plays have become the vogue and last night at the Breed theatre the fashion was set for mystery films. In "One Exciting Night," a United Artists release, David W. Griffith has not attempted the spectacular or relied on stirring mob scenes, but has merely presented an excellent modern mystery drama in the Griffith way.

However, he was not content with the usual, so a hurricane, that for the present is the storm of storms on the screen, was used a climax. It raised our hair just a little higher, and only Romeo Washington—a negro character who was a whole "movie" himself—could smooth it down with his extremely amusing antics. Dorothy Strong makes this ambitious, love-hunting Romeo the life of the party, so to speak, and his love-making to the maid, played by Irma Harrison, is done in a charcteristic way.

It was requested that the plot should not be revealed, so what it is all about will have to be an added mystery. Feeling that half the pleasure would be spoiled by divulging the story, the request is heeded and all the characters will be brought forth.

C. H. Crocker-Kling, who plays the doctor in "Bulldog Drummond" lends his sinister eyes to a mysterious role in his clever way. Harry Fisher not content with the thrills of "The Cat and the Canary," plays the likeable John Fairfax. Morgan Wallace as Roosmaine has a Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde role, and Frank Sheridan and Frank Wunderlee give good performances. Carel Dempster plays a charming flapper who will make the unbelievers enthusiastic about the modern girl. She is pretty, winsome, and the many close-ups of her are a pleasure. Margaret Dale, Grace Griswold, Percy Carr and Herbert Sutch complete a typical Griffith cast.

"One Exciting Night" will be the feature at the Breed theatre again today and tomorrow and the Pathe News will make up the remainder of the bill.

At Strand Theatre.

Perhaps no word in the dictionary has been quite so overworked, misused and abused as "great." It is a word that has been applied indiscriminately to many motion pictures. Once in a great while—and in this instance it is very properly applied—a photoplay justly deserves the appellation. Such a motion picture was "Tol'able David." Now comes Richard Barthelmess in another which impels us to go one step further in superlatives and say "greater, if not greatest."

That motion picture is "Fury," the First National attraction which began an engagement at the Strand theatre last night. Replete with human interest, stirring with action, flavored with a heart touch now and then, in one moment draws a tear and the next a laugh, this production, filmed under the direction of Henry King, is a chapter out of life itself—life of the rugged sort that stretches from the bounding main to Limehouse, London, and Glasgow, Scotland.

Dorothy Gish gives one of her most appealing characterizations as Mamie, while Tyrone Power is splendid and convincing as Captain Leyton. Others whose artistry contributes to the high calibre of this production are Pat Hartigan, Barry Macollum and Jessie Arnold.

The sea "shots" on the "Lady Spray" are the last word in striking marine photography and constitute some of the best features of this truly great motion picture.

The Comedy and News also pleased.

Broadway Theatre.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville at the Broadway theatre seemed to please greatly by the generous applause given each individual act.

Amy Dean & Co. opened with a very good novelty act.

Jones & Johnson, two colored comedians followed with a comedy act that had many laughs.

Carol & Louise Dore, a brilliant violinist and pianist, appeared next in a delightful repertoire of "Music that charms", playing semi-classic music, popular music and songs of long ago.

George Mask told some very funny stories and sang a few funny songs.

Espe & Dutton closed the bill with a very funny comedy novelty offering.

Those lovers of the old romantic tales that cause us to catch our breath and think of the loves of our youth must have been more than satisfied with the beautiful production of "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," shown here for the first time at the Broadway theatre last evening.

JUDGE WEBB DISMISSES CASE AGAINST SCHLEIFER

New Haven, April 16.—The case brought against Ernest Schleifer, charged with inciting to acts of violence and felonies of striking shopmen against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was dismissed in superior court today when Judge James H. BASEBALL PROPHETS MAKE THEIR FORECASTS ON THE PENNANT RACE

New York, April 16.—Baseball's prophets, noted for their inability to remember in October what they predicted in April, made their 1923 guesses today, the eve of the major league season. A consensus of the prophecies draws the New York Giants and Yankees as world series opponents for the third time in as many seasons.

The Giants, opening tomorrow at Boston against the Braves, are chosen to lead the National league because of their extraordinary hitting power and a first class pitching staff. Little is said of their defensive ability, although it is rated as the best in the league. Jack Bentley, purchased from Baltimore, is expected to be a great aid to the mound staff, of which Art Nehf, the Barnes brothers, John Scott, McQuillan and Jonnard are the mainstays.

McGraw has not announced his pitching selection for the opening game, but it may be Nehf or Bentley.

The Cincinnati Reds, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals are considered the Giants' most dangerous foes, while the Cubs may make trouble. The Brooklyn Robins, the Phillies and the Braves are, generally, allotted positions in the wake of the race.

The Phillies will open the season at Brooklyn, the Cards at Cincinnati and the Pirates at Chicago.

The Yankee pitching staff is regarded as the club's greatest asset. With Hoyt, Bush, Jones, Shawkey, Mays and Pennock, Manager Miller Huggins has the greatest abundance of twirling skill in either league. The leaders of the Yankee shock troop, Ruth, Meusel, Pipp, Dugan and Schang, are capable of carrying on a consistent and effective attack.

The attacking force of the Detroiters, the dope says, will carry them far, but their pitching corps doesn't rank as high as those of the White Sox, the Athletics or the Browns. With a more dependable hurling staff, Cobb would have an even chance, the prophets think, of nosing out the Yanks.

Gleason's men, the Athletics and the Browns are given places below the Yanks and Detroit, the Browns mainly because of the absence from the line-up of George Sisler. If Sisler returns to the game during the first month of the season, however, St. Louis is conceded a place with the Cobbmen as the Yankees' closest rivals.

Cleveland, Washington and the Red Sox are given second division classifications.

The American league seasons opens Wednesday with the Red Sox aiding the Yanks in the opening of the new stadium in the Bronx, Washington at Philadelphia, Detroit at St. Louis and Chicago at Cleveland.

TO PICK TIGER CREW FOR CHILD'S CUP RACE

Princeton, N. J., April 16.—Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, Princeton's rowing coach, will decide this week which boat will participate as the varsity in the Childs cup race on the Schuylkill river, April 28. During the latter part of the week he will stage a race between the three leading crews—the Orange, the Black and the 150-pound, and the winner will be declared varsity for the opening regatta. The combination finishing second will be known as the junior varsity.

The crews had a long workout this afternoon and practice will continue during the week. Austin, who has been out of practice because of an injured hand, returned to his place at No. 4 in the first boat.

MANY BROTHER TEAMS IN THE BIG SHOW

Several brother teams will grace various major league clubs this year. It is a rather strange coincidence that in most cases the brothers shine at the same position.

The New York Giants have Virgil and Jesse Barnes, both mighty good pitchers. The veteran Jesse, when he has his curve ball working, is almost unbeatable. Virgil is one of the most promising youngsters in either major league.

Then there are the Meussels, Irish and Bob. Irish is rated by John McGraw as one of the most valuable outfielders in the game. Bob, who has even more ability, but far less ambition, shines in the outfield for the New York Americans.

The Chicago White Sox present the Blankenship boys. Both are pitchers. Ted made good from the very start last season, and when asked by Kid Gleason if he knew of any other good pitchers in Texas, replied that his younger brother was some thrower. Whereupon Gleason signed him up immediately.

The passing of Doc Johnston from the Philadelphia Athletics breaks up a brother combination that has performed in the big leagues for years. Jimmy Johnston has played much good ball for Brooklyn. The Johnstons are infielders, Doc holding down first, while Jimmy, although much shifted about, has done his best work at third.

EVANS DECIDES NOT TO COMPETE FOR WALKER CUP

New York, April 16—Chick Evans, Chicago golfer, will not sail tomorrow with the American Walker cup golf team, Robert E. Gardener, captain of the team, was advised tonight. Evans wired from Chicago that he would be unable to compete in the European play owing to the pressure of business.

Evans' withdrawal will leave a vacancy in the team of ten American amateurs. It was announced that his successor would be either Jack Neville of San Francisco, who will accompany the team, or Reginald M. Lewis of Greenwich, Conn., amateur individual entrant, who already is in England. The choice will be made during the voyage.

Members of the team who are to sail tomorrow are: Captain Gardner, S. Davison Herron, Chicago, and Francis Ouimet, Boston, former national champions; Harrison R. Johnston, St. Paul; Maxwell R. It is alleged that one of the men sold a grand stand ticket to August Herrman, president of the Cincinnati National League Club for $5, whereas the original price was $1.50.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

HILLIES RELEASE SIX RECRUITS AT BEGINNING OF SECOND WEEK

Beginning this week the Pittsfield Hillies, in training here for the 1923 season, will be cent through stiff workouts each day until the season opens on the 25th. The boys have had ample opportunity to limber up and Manager Wilson will now try to whip his recruits into a regular ball club, one that will be a contender for the Eastern League flag. Wilson said Monday after practice that he was much encouraged over the showing of the candidates and that his team will present a formidable line-up when the season gets under way.

The infield will be practically intact from last season with the exception of shortstop. Hal Leathers, Southern and Pacific Coast boy, will fit in nicely in this berth in place of Harry Bates, who went to Toronto. The outfield is also pretty well complete and with the addition of Howie Baker who arrived here on Monday the team is pretty well fixed. Baker, who has been outdoor all winter is in excellent condition, and expects to hit the .300 mark this season. He batted .256 last season.

The practice Monday was devoted practically to the pitching staff as the diamond was too soggy to allow much infield or outfield practice. Manager Wilson put his hurlers through a half-hour drill each in pitching to batters and fielding their position.

One boy that is showing up well in the outfield is Danny Sullivan, who is proving to be a fast lad on his feet and is developing into a good hitter. The other outfielders look promising.

After practice Monday afternoon Manager Wilson and some of the players went on a sight-seeing tour in Gus Gardella's machine.

Six of the rookies were sent back to the tall timbers on Monday, reducing the squad to twenty-two. Another cut will be made later in the week and some of the players will probably be farmed out to other clubs. The six who received their pink slips are: "Silent" Roche, collegian first baseman; Freddy Smith of Troy, N. Y., recommended to the club by Johnny Evers; Gene Campbell, Washington Crossings prodigy; Charlie Hewitt of Waltham, Mass.; H. J. Tully, a Boston boy, and Milt Christie of Long Island.

The Hillies are slated for a practice game next Saturday afternoon with the Norwich State Hospital team at the Riverview diamond. The team will be the guests of Dr. Wilcox on Saturday.

The one-hand wizard showed beautiful control of the ivories at all times and his misses were on long difficult shots.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

George Owen, the Harvard all-round and all-year athlete, is displaying the same old winning punch in baseball that distinguished his work in football and hockey.

Manager John McGraw of Giants and his assistant, Hughey Jennings, hays been pals ever since they broke into the game more than thirty years ago.

Luis Firpo's victory over Bill Brennan in the recent New York bout was spread all over the front pages of nearly all of the South American papers.

Unlike his manager, Champion Jack Dempsey refrains from picking the winner of the coming Willard-Johnson bout. Morager Kearns is "sartin" Willard will win.

Will Manager Ty Cobb of the Tigers hit for .400 this season, which will be big nineteenth year in the American league? Both Honus Wagner and Nap Lajoie fell below the .300 mark in their nineteenth major league season.

TALE OF FLOGGING AND DEATH OF LEASED CONVICT

Tallahassee, Fla., April 16.—(By the A. P.)—The body of Martin Tabert, North Dakota youth, who died while serving a sentence in a camp for leased convicts, was placed in a chea pcoffin in a grave half filled with water near the town of Clara, Fla., according to a statement made by Arthur Johnson, a former convict, to Assistant Attorneys General Grimson and and Kneeshaw of North Dakota.

Johnson said that he prepared the body for burial and later was one of the four men, three negroes and one white man, to act as pall bearers.

The amended house resolution calling for a statewide investigation into the flogging and other cruelties to convicts in both state and country convict camps by a joint legislative investigating committee was unanimously passed by the senate.

The joint committee wil lreconvene from its week-end recess tomorrow morning, and it was announced that the Tabert case would first be gone into.

Tabert died after he had been flogged, witnesses have testified, by Walter Higginbotham, the camp "whipping" boss.

Higginbotham was indicted by a Madison county grand jury last week on the charge of first degree murder.

Arthur Johnson will appear before the joint investigating committee. He is regarded as one of the most valuable witnesses yet obtained.

Johnson remembered when Tabert was brought to the camp. He became ill, he said, lost weikht until he was just a pack of flesh and bones.

"When the the boy died," he continued, "Captain Higginbotham told me and a boy by the name of 'South Carolina Eddie' to get the body and prepare it for burial. We went into the cell house and prepared to remove Tabert. The sheets and even the mattress on his bunk were covered with blood and the sheets stuck to the body.

"We washed the body, me and 'South Carolina Eddie' with just a piece of soap I got from the kitchen," declared Johnson. "We but the body in a storehouse and the next morning a 10 coffin came from Perry. Captain Higginbotham gave me a white shirt and Captain Shivers gave me a collar to put on the body. Later Captain Higginbotham brought me a coat and a pair of convict pants belonging to a negro from Montreal who escaped, and we put them on the corpse.

"Eddie and myself put the coffin in a wagon," continued the witness, "and drove over to near Clara, where two old negroes had dug a grave. They told us they had dug five feet and struck water. We put the box in the grave all of it went under water."

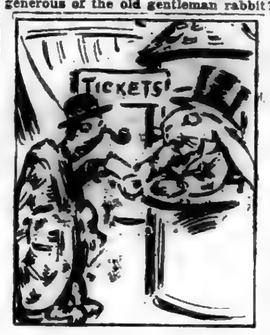
LITTLE JACK RABBIT

BY DAVID CORY

WHEN THE CIRCUS CAMe To Town

Oh, don't you hear the circus band
A-coming down the street?
Most every one in Rabbitville
Is dancing on his feet.
Of course, I mean the bunny girls
And little rabbit boys—
They'd rather see the circus
Than receive a million toys.

Oh, dear me! Wasn't Uncle Lucky busy. Well, I just guess he was. You see, he owned the big circus and if any little boy or girl in town didn't have the money to go, he'd give them a ticket for nothing. Wasn't that generous of the old gentleman rabbit?



Of course Teddy Turtle was late.

Well, sir, things were pretty busy out in the carrot field where the big circus tent was going up. But after a while everything was ready for the big show and from far and near, the little people of the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow were coming to town.

Chippy Chipmunk and Squirrel Nutcracker were on hand early, you may be sure. Grandmother Magpie was there in her new spring bonnet and Granddaddy Bullfrog in his best yellow waistcoat. The Big Brown Bear had combed his fur till it looked as good as new and Minnie Meadow-mouse wore his new school cap.

Pretty Lady Love, the little rabbit's mother, had a new pair of mittens and Mrs. Oriole a new vanity bag. Peter Possum with Mrs. Possum and the little possums sat in a box near the big ring and Photographer Crane with his great big camera was there to take a picture for the "Bunnyville Bugle."

Then, too, all the Cottontails were there as well as Uncle John Hare, and oh yes, oh yes; I almost forgot the Old Brown Horse and the Farmyard Folk. Cocky Doodles and Henny Jenny came together and after them Ducky Waddles and Turkey Tim. Of course, Teddy Turtle was late, for he was always behind like an old cow's tale, as they say in the country. And that makes me think of Mrs. Cow. Oh, yes, she was there with her pink sunbonnet over her horns and a new bell on her leather collar.

"I guess every seat will be taken," said Uncle Lucky, who sat in the little ticket house by the tent door and just then, who should come along but Danny Fox with Old Man Weasel.

"Goodness me! They can't have a ticket," said the old gentleman rabbit. "They're liable to break up the show any minute. I wouldn't trust them with a pewter dime."

But the two old robbers begged so hard and promised so faithfully that they would be good, that Uncle Lucky let them in. After that the show commenced and pretty soon the roasted peanuts were all gone and so was the pink lemonade and everybody said it was the best show he'd ever seen, and I guess it was for Uncle Lucky knew how to run a circus, let me tell you.

PLASTERER TELLS HOW CONTRACTORS WERE FINED

New York, April 16.—Testifying today at the trial 36 executives of Local 60, operating plasters and cement finishers' union, on charges of criminal conspiracy, Patrick J. Devine, former secretary of the union, told how contrators were "fined" by its officers for violating union rules or for failure to take notice of summonses charging violation of union rules.

Devine's testimony supplemented that of previous witnesses who described how, in order to advance the interests of its members, the architects' and builders' plans, and ordered it torn down and rebuilt to meet the requirements of Local 60.

When occasion arose, said Devine, delegates of the union appeared before its executive committee and preferred oral charges against employers who had infringed the code of the local. A summons to appear before the committee then was sent the alleged offender. If he failed to appear he was fined. And if he failed to pay the fine, workmen were withdrawn from all his jobs.

The witness denied that any of the fines had found a place in the pockets of the defendants, asserting that all such funds were turned into the union's general treasury.

SPIRIT GAVE THE NAME OF HIS MURDERER

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 16.—Testimony credited to the spirit world was introduced at a murder trial in criminal court here today.

It came from Mrs. Magdalene Capella, whose son Rudolph, was murdered in their home nearly two years ago. One night eighteen months after her son had been found slain, Mrs. Capella declared her son appeared to her in spirit.

"What are you doing here? You're dead," the mother testified she asked.

In a voice as natural as during his lifetime, the mother said, came the answer:

"Peter Capella killed me," that was all.

The next day Mrs. Capella swore out a warrant for the arrest of the man accused by the voice from the spirit world.

Other state witnesses today gave testimony tending to incriminate Capella.

The defendant is not related to the family of the murdered youth.

ALTERING OUR WARSHIPS.

New efforts are being made in behalf of changes in our battleship fleet that will alter the elevation of the guns and increase their range. The chief objection to it is the claim that it would violate the provisions of the naval agreement and to take such a step as that would simply be preliminary to the breaking down of the entire pact.

Rear Admiral Rogers, head of the general board of the navy, after an examination of the British and French tests of the treaty, believes that we should go ahead with the contemplated work, that what seems to be a handicap in the British text does not appear in the French text. There are of course those who maintain that nothing should be done that can be regarded as a violation of the treaty, and that is an attitude which must get very careful consideration. We cannot permit ourselves to be pointed to even as advocates of the violation of such a treaty if our efforts in behalf of that understanding is going to continue to command the respect that it has.

Much of what has been urged in behalf of changes in the American ships has been prompted by the claim that the British had already done this very thing. Great Britain denies such claims and the denial has been accepted by this government. Soon after came a statement from Tokio to the effect that Japan didn't consider that the treaty affected such work.

If there is a question as to what the treaty permits or forbids concerning this matter, this is the time to straighten it out. And until it is straightened out wisdom directs that we do nothing that can be interpreted as a violation of the treaty. It is not to be expected that we will intentionally neglect our first line of defense under the provisions of the treaty but instead of proceeding under an interpretation that is not accepted by all efforts should be made to bring about a common understanding as soon as possible.

MARATHON DANCES.

All kinds of fads have developed. They have had their run and new ones take their place. Just at the present time among a small number there is no resistance to the call of the endurance dances. The aim is to see how much longer it is possible to keep the feet moving over the ball room floor than someone else has done. It doesn't require much in the way of publicity on the part of one dancer to create a desire among others to outdo the accomplishment. It isn't a case of grace and polish now, it is the aim to set a new record even though it doesn't last much over night.

According to the last record noted the endurance limit had been pushed up to 65 hours and a half and the dancer was only partly exhausted. How many hours longer it would have been necessary for her to have kept up the effort without dropping from exhaustion there is no way of figuring. It, however, may yet be the object in the wild endeavor to set the pace, for there is no reason to suppose that two days and three nights of constant dancing will be accepted by some of the aspirants for honors as beyond their ability or endurance.

It means taking nourishment while whirling around the hall, quite the same as the endurance swimmers do, but none has yet been caught asleep on the job, though one has gone insane and another has become engaged.

There is no reason to believe that the marathon dance will actually prove popular. It must become even more monotonous for the watchers than the six-day bicycle races since there is little or no actual competition. It is one of those fads that can be expected to be short lived, but there is no reason to expect that it will be followed by an endurance dishwashing contest. No such desire to overdo a good thing exists in that direction.

SELLING THE SHIPS.

There has been nothing of late that would indicate that the shipping board in its recently declared plan can anticipate a quick disposal of its consolidated trade routes with the necessary number of ships to operate them, or that if there are offers made that they will be peak prices.

That the offer is to be made indicates that the government is going to go as far as it believes it is justified in endeavoring to get out of business of operating ships. There is the alternative of course that if the board is unable to get a satisfactory offer that it will continue to run the ships itself.

It is taking this course because it has found it impossible to do otherwise. It understands and has set forth the losses that it is experiencing under the present method of endeavoring to keep together a merchant marine. It has told the country how it can be overcome and it has endeavored to have congress give it the authority to go ahead with its cost cutting.

It is now asking the government to [illegible]

$30,000,000 in round figures to maintain its ships, some of which are active and some are not. It isn't regarded as a subsidy but it might as well be. Under the subsidy plan, however, it would require but $30,000,000, but the fact that there is a chance to save $20,000,000 a year is pushed aside because the word subsidy is attached to the plan which would save millions.

There is no hope that the government will be able to operate the ships any cheaper than private operators. It is not likely. In undertaking to operate the ships, if the rates are not effected, the government is endeavoring to make the best of a bad situation, and a situation for which it is by no means responsible. Those who pay the bills may not like the outlook but the responsibility rests with congress and not with the shipping board. It is making the most out of a situation in which it is keeping the welfare of the nation uppermost.

COURT, BUT NOT LEAGUE.

Sir Robert Cecil did not give expression in advance to what he expected as the result of his address to the women in convention at Des Moines. He told them that he wasn't there to give them advice, but he proceeded to set forth the benefits that would be obtained through the entrance into the league of nations by this country, and he hoped to send home that argument by the manner in which he bore down upon war, the manner in which it affects the women and the need of making it impossible.

He pointed out to them that many of them had suffered because of the recent war and he referred to the hatred and passion that is in evidence today throughout the world and oppressing men everywhere. The purpose was to get the women to say that this country should endorse the league, but it didn't work.

They know about Europe. They know that the European troubles are not going to be adjusted in a moment and they know that mixing into the affairs over there is going to bring us into the same difficulties and troubles that others are experiencing.

It is significant that following the address by Sir Robert Cecil in behalf of the league, and one by Secretary Hoover in behalf of the court of international justice that it was impossible to get a second to the motion to endorse the league, but that approval was given to the court plan. Entrance into the court does not mean entrance into the league. The difference was noted by the Des Moines conference and the vote as the result of the two addresses is significant.

A NEW REPARATION PLAN.

The idea that has been advanced by France and Belgium of getting busy and producing a reparation plan for Germany is not a bad one, but there is no assurance of course that Germany will ask for it or if it should seek terms from those countries that such as they offered would prove acceptable.

There have been hints that Germany would like some other country to undertake to bring about an adjustment. It is also declared that Germany will never make any offer that will be satisfactory because it is not able to do so, while the inference has been gained from French statements that that country will wait for a direct opening of negotiations by Germany, and also that it will not retire from the Ruhr until satisfactory reparation adjustments have been made.

The plan that is proposed of getting an agreement between Belgium and France on what they would ask of Germany in case Germany sought terms means taking time by the forelock. It doesn't mean that France or Belgium is ready to abandon the occupation of the Ruhr or the collection of the reparations which they claim they have not been getting. It seems to anticipate the day when negotiations may be undertaken and to appreciate the importance of being prepared to give a quick answer. In their own good time they will inform the other allies concerning their plan, and it is not impossible that they hope that it will encourage Germany to take that important plunge and open negotiations. It is a move that gives a hint of a possible change as the result of the Ruhr situation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We have enough representatives of radicalism in this country without admitting any more of the undesirables.

If there is the right kind of enthusiasm one never tires of getting into the clean-up movement each spring.

The man on the corner says: All that remains to be seen now is how much good training the umpire has received.

The continued execution of Irish rebels hasn't as yet resulted in driving the people of Ireland into the rebel camp.

If the government abandons the printing of $2 bills it will not be because gamblers are superstitious about them.

Greece declares it will never pay Turkey a Yarthing. Trying to collect indemnity would give Greece that chance to fight for which it has been looking.

Admirable as cleaning up the premises is, it should not be permitted to mean making the yard look spic and span by throwing the debris over onto someone else's property.

Some enforcement is being done when a bonded warehouse is required to hold what is seized in three states, but how many would be needed if all illegally possessed liquor had to be stored?

Canada objects to any restrictions on the use of vessels bought from the shipping board. Of course it doesn't want any interference with those ships carrying "medicine" to the country where there is such a demand for it.

Boston is boasting that it can accommodate the largest ship in the world without deepening the channel. Norwich has no thoughts of entertaining the Leviathan but it would like a channel that would permit some of the small boats to come up the Thames safely.

SECRET ABOUT WOMEN

"Good-looking!" Young Benedict saluted the plate of paper-thin cookies on the breakfast table. "Who told you about putting in the cream-way? It was mother, I'll bet."

"I didn't make them," confessed the sweet thing behind the coffee-pot, but they're home-made just the same. Try one and see."

"Top notch," he pronounced a minute or two later, reaching for a second cooky. "Mother made 'em."

The sweet thing gave a little sound of delight. "Oh, I had my mind all made up not to tell you," she said, "but it's too good. A woman named Home has taken over the delicatessen around the corner. Isn't that the most providential name you ever heard of?"

With a firm gesture he put his third cooky back on the plate.

"Now, Don—silly! When you liked them! I was reading only yesterday that it was really the duty of the modern housewife to patronize the neighborhood delicatessen rather regularly because there would be emergencies when she would need it, and how could she expect it to exist all by itself between times just to be ready for her emergencies?"

Benedict picked up the morning paper. "Let's see about the weather," he proposed with insufferable good nature. "M-m-m, partly cloudy with showers."

"Don, I call that rude. And as for the delicatessen, you're early-Christian on that subject. Their lemon pies—"

Down went the newspaper. "Now you're talking! Lemon pies! If you could taste the lemon pies I was brought up on! I say"—a brilliant idea struck him—"why not be a sport and let mother come over and show you?"

It took time after that to work things around to a satisfactory goody-by kiss with a wave at the window, but the Donald Benedicts had never parted unhappily yet, and they didn't begin then.

At about 11 o'clock that morning Madam Benedict dropped in and rather persisted in following out to the kitchen, where the sweet thing, with an open cookbook on the table, was assembling the parts of a lemon pie. And it really speaks volumes for Benedict's mother that the sweet thing, after a friendly greeting, was able to say without rancor: "Own up, mother! Don stopped and told you to come over and beguile me into asking you how to make a lemon pie."

Madam Benedict laughed helplessly. "My dear! He swore me not to give him away—and I haven't have I? But I'll tell you what I didn't tell him. I never did make a good lemon pie. The ones he dreams of must be my Hilda's. I had her twelve years, you know, and such a cook! I ought to have confessed, but how could I blight such confidence?"

There was really no resisting that, and two minutes later a gray head and an auburn were bending chummily over the cookbook.

"Well, good luck," said Don's mother after a bit. "I'll come in on my way back to admire it."

She did come, but not to admire. "It's a mess!" the sweet thing announced, "the yellow part is too thin and the meringue is a wrinkled brown skin floating on water. And the worst of it is, right after you left Don telephoned that his magnificent senior partner would be in our neighborhood this afternoon and had promised to stop for dinner with us, and I was so cocksure that I told him I was just making a terribly good lemon pie for the occasion."

Madam Benedict shook her head at the pie with a reminiscent smile. Then she said briskly "Do they make them fresh every day around the corner? Then you know what to do. And mum's the word, my dear! Remember that."

"Rather! I'm going after it now."

The dinner went off blithely. The epicurean senior partner praised everything. A lemon pie, deliciously deep and piled with fluffy meringue, was the fitting climax. Late that evening, as Benedict was remarking for the thirteenth time on the sweet thing's utter success with that pie, she suddenly held up her hands. "It's just like the third degree," she declared. "I'm going to confess."

In judicial silence he heard the story. Then he said "M-hm—I stopped at mother's to leave her insurance policy, and she told me the whole thing."

"She! But she pledged me never to let you know! She said not for worlds—"

"I know. And you told her the same, and yet the first thing both of you did the minute you got a chance was to give the whole show away. It just proves that you women——"

"That you women—what?" There was an ominous sound in the question.

"That you're honest," he finished, discreetly.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Count Krupp von Bohlen, whom the French accuse of being "the real power behind the riots, assassinations and train wrecks in the Ruhr," is the head of the great Krupp works at Essen, a position he owes to his marriage, in 1906, to Fraulein Bertha Krupp. Count von Bohlen was born at The Hague and belongs to a family of the old German nobility. In early life he took up the study of international law and also was given a degree as an engineer. Later he entered the German diplomatic service. For a brief time he served as secretary of the German embassy in Washington, from which post he was transferred to Pekin in 1900. The count is especially interesting to Americans because of a strong strain of American blood in his veins. His father's mother was Miss Sophie Borie, a member of the Borie family which for several generations was prominent in Philadelphia.

Wives of Famous Men

Athol Estes, Wife of O. Henry.

Life, not to be butdone by fiction, made the marriage of O. Henry, America's master of the short story, no less romantic than any of the magic tales he spun. His wife was Athol Estes, a schoolgirl when the young Sidney Porter, as he was privately known, met her during his Texas sojourn.

Athol was 17 and still in high school when the young writer determined to make her his wife. It was a case of love at first sight, on his part at least; but their courtship was deferred until the girl had finished her school career.

Paralleling the cruel parents in fiction were the girl's mother and stepfather, who opposed the marriage on the grounds of inherited ill health. Nothing daunted, the romantic pair followed the course of all thwarted heroes and heroines in stories. In a carriage borrowed from a neighbor, the youthful lovers eloped and were married in the local church. They sent the neighbor to make peace with Athol's parents, and, true to form, the errant couple was forgiven.

Mrs. Porter was an ideal wife, although, as all the world knows, her task was a hard one. When her husband was in Honduras, living on almost nothing, she refused to accept assistance from relatives and friends, but sought work for herself. Her health, never strong, failed completely under the strain, and learning of her condition the writers returned so that they might spend her last days together. Her final weeks were perhaps the happiest of her married life, since she had her beloved husband at her side, cured for the time at least of his wanderlust, and content to live for a while at least without adventuring.

CHILD TRAINING

Peter's Garden

By Mrs. Henry S. Collins

Peter's mother had a garden of beautiful flowers. It was the delight and joy of the whole neighborhood. Little Peter loved it as much as anybody, but he caused his mother endless annoyance by picking half-opened blossoms and breaking off foliage through his persistent handling and touching of the plants, in spite of her admonitions to keep away from them.

How to preserve her lovely flowers and yet satisfy Peter's love of them was a problem to his mother, but a happy solution was found in her decision that he should have a little garden of his own.

Accordingly then, at planting time, Peter's mother told him of her plan, and to his delight she presented him with a miniature set of garden tools. He helped to dig up the earth in his allotted small space and was untiring in his efforts to make it smooth and fine. Peter accompanied his mother on the trip to the seed store and reveled in the seed packets with their flowery illustrations, from which were finally selected seeds that would mature quickly and give an abundance of blossoms such as nasturtiums, larkspur, poppies, marigold and phlox.

With his mother's help and careful guidance, Peter planted the seeds and then began the watchful waiting for the first signs of plants in his very own garden. His mother taught him how to water it gently and one day showed him how to make a border around the garden of shells and small stones, which required careful matching and placing and occupied many happy hours.

Great was Peter's delight when the tiny plants began to appear and daily he reported the progress of their growth. "Mother, the poppies are poking through," or "the larkspurs are ahead of all of them!" he told his mother. Peter kept all weeds out of his garden as his mother had taught him to do and watered it whenever necessary. After long weeks of care, buds began to appear on the plants, and Peter and his mother speculated daily as to which one would blossom out first. By and by the tiny gard'en rivalled his mother's larger one, with its mass of gay colors, and Peter's joy was very great when his mother gave him a small pair of scissors and showed him how to cut the flowers carefully.

He loved to gather a bouquet for her to use on the table, or to select an especially lovely flower for his father to wear in the button hole of his coat. But he was happiest of all the day he gathered a beautiful bouquet of all the different kinds of flowers in his own garden and carried it to his grandmother for a birthday gift. And Peter's mother was as happy as Peter himself, not merely because her flowers were no longer molested by small hands, but because her little Peter was learning so much about nature, was experiencing the joy of possession and the still greater joy of sharing his possessions with others.

Stories That Recall Others

Suspicious.

A group of school children from the country was in the city with their teacher. As they stood on the corner waiting, one little girl noticed two men come from a building with a large black bag between them.

The girl whispered to another one in the party, "Grace, I bet those men are bootleggers."

New Haven.—The interspersion of certain periods of practical work in industries with the regular studies of an engineering student was advocated by Dean Charles H. Warren of the Sheffield Scientific school in an address in the Mason laboratory.

POETRY

THE FRIENDLY PINES.

In autumn, summer time passed, those
Historic friends of mine,
The maples shone, lovingly clad in vesture
Of flaming crimson,
In harmony they're blending with the ever-changing scene.
The south wind sings a lullaby—'tis music in my ears.
Ah, singing through the Whispering pines,
It breathes of bygone years.
When soldier harpists sounded, as all merrily we feared
Unknown of care and sorrow in the pines protecting shade.

They spread a fairy carpet on the soft earth underneath,
With health and strength equally in the fragrance that they breathe,
Though storm clouds may enfold them in their gray and gloomy pall,
They stand like sentinels on guard, serenely upright and tall.
While angry blasts assail them, their unconquered power to resist,
They gently sway beneath the gale, but when it passes by,
Behold the forest kings with heads uplifted to the sky.

Oh, pines, with all your majesty, you teach me to be strong.
When here and there a silver streak is woven in life's song,
Enwrapped in morning's rosy light—or bright with sunset's gold,
I read each day with thankful heart the lesson you enfold.
—Katherine L. Danther, in Farm Life.

DEAD GODS.

And I looked for you everywhere
Because I wanted you to stay.
The streets are now a tangled dream,
And you are far away.

My eyes are open all the time,
I always let them up to see.
I look at strangers very long.
They sometimes turn to look at me

And then I am afraid of them.
Of something not quite true,
It never say a little word,
I only walk and look for you.

I cannot find you in the town.
And now that you have fled,
I cannot bring you back to me,
Because I know the gods are dead.
—Helen Way Crawford, in Portland Oregonian.

BRITAIN TO CONTINUE CONTACT WITH RUSSIA

London, April 16.—(By the A. P.)—Great Britain's informal diplomatic contact with soviet Russia, effective for the last two years through the maintenance of trade missions in London and Moscow, will be continued, it was stated today in official circles, despite the recent straining of relations due to the bolshevik war on religion and the reported insulting soviet notes in answer to the British protests.

While the present soviet methods of handling foreign relations are highly unpleasant to the British, generous allowances are being made for the bolshevists who, officially as well as popularly, are still considered in England as quite "uncivilized" in their regard for recognized diplomatic forms and customs.

APPLY FOR TRUSTEE ON WILLIAM TIBBITTS' ESTATE

Relatives of William Tibbitts, missing since Monday night, April 9, from his home on the Fitchville road, have taken steps to have the property cared for and the stock disposed of to avoid unnecessary expense in maintenance.

Application has been made by Richard B. Tibbitts, a brother living in Salem, to the court of probate in Bozrah to have a trustee appointed for the estate of his brother, believed to be dead or gone to parts unknown. A hearing on the application is to be held before Judge Wareham W. Bentley of the probate Court at Bozrah on Friday, April 20, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Provided a trustee is appointed, it is stated that action will be taken to dispose of the livestock on the farm, inventory the personal effects of the missing man, and then, according to the law of the state, hold everything in trust for seven years. After seven years, if William Tibbitts is still missing, action will in all probability be taken to have the missing man legally declared dead, thus allowing the estate to be settled.

A Norwich relative of Tibbitts said on Monday that they wished it understood that the $100 reward was offered by the Tibbitts family and not by one brother alone. She also stated that they were willing to admit that Tibbitts was eccentric, but he had not been crazy for the last 20 years, as one Bozrah resident had expressed it.

TOTAL OF $2,959 ON FIRST DAY OF Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN FOR BUDGET

PHILIP A. JOHNSON
Captain of Team A

A total of $2,959 is reported Monday night in the first day of the Young Men's Christian Association's campaign for their annual budget.

General Shepard B. Palmer and his loyal captains and team workers rejoiced together at the supper meeting at 6.30 in the Y dining room over great things accomplished in the first day.

The women of the Central Baptist church abundantly satisfied the hungry men with a delicious supper which they contributed and served in royal fashion. Rev. E. C. Dunbar said grace and the men certainly did justice to the evening meal.

George A. Ashbey was delegated to express the thanks of the men to the ladies, which he did in an appropriate manner. Familiar songs were sung heartily and these kindled the enthusiasm among the group of faithful workers.

After supper General Palmer asked for experiences during the day and several of the men told of the kind and liberal spirit shown, several increasing their pledges this year over what they gave last spring because the recognize the fact that in the new Y home the operating expenses are much larger than in the old building.

Mr. Palmer complimented the men for their faithfulness and urged them to persist in the great task assigned them for the remainder of the week and he expressed the belief that they could "put it across."

President James C. Macpherson addressed his deep gratitude to the workers who had made such an unusual showing the first day of the campaign.

Philip A. Johnson, captain of team A, told of the liberality of those whom he and his team mates called upon and how gladly they "came across" to aid an institution which they considered worthy of their support.

Hearty applause followed the report of each team. The following was the result of the day's effort:

Team	Captain	Total
A—Philip A. Johnson		$1,525.00
B—Herbert B. Cary		470.00
C—Charles L. Stewart		560.00
D—Harold W. Burt		167.00
E—John M. Swahn		237.00
Total		$2,959.00

The meeting was adjourned by the singing of Old Black Joe, with Joseph S. Adams at the piano.

The supper was served by Mrs. Henrietta Neff, Mrs. Jennie M. Davis, Mrs. Willis Hill, Mrs. E. Y. Messinger, Mrs. Emery H. Davis, Miss Helen Moore and Miss Belle Rathbone.

SEARCH FOR TIBBITTS IS UP AGAINST BLANK WALL

Is William Tibbitts the missing farmer recluse of Fitchville dead or has he suddenly gone insane and wandered away, is the question that has run through the minds of most people who have closely followed the mystery of his disappearance from his farm one week ago Monday night.

Superintendent Robert Hurley of the state police who spent practically the entire day at Tibbitts' farmhouse Monday would make no statement to the press as he was about to return to Hartford. He said that it could not be said to be murder until a body was found, and as far as making any statement it was not a proper time for a man in his position to make any definite statement, when there was nothing of definite nature to warrant one.

Superintendent Hurley with State Policeman Sterling, County Detective Jackson and Constable Sweeney met at the Tibbitts' farm shortly after 10 o'clock Monday morning and were later joined by Sheriff Brown of New London County. They spent the entire day going over the effects of Tibbitts and getting at the case from all angles, going back over every clue that had been run to earth since Tibbitts disappeared from his home.

At the end of the consulation shortly before 6 o'clock Monday night the press was informed that there was nothing new to be given out, but that the meeting had simply been one in which all angles and developments in the case were discussed.

There are yet some clues that vary widely from those first given the officers and in checking up it is known that Tibbitts was at his farm shortly before 8 o'clock on the night of Monday April 9th and evidently was not there at 8.30 o'clock.

This was established when evidence was given by parties showing that Tibbitts had been seen between 7.30 and 7.45 o'clock Monday night but was not at home at 8.30 o'clock when a Norwich party went to his home to make a purchase they had arranged for previously or at least there were no lights on the farm.

Another story cropped up Monday to the effect that the barns were lighted at 11 o'clock Monday night and a Chevrolet car was in front of his house, and this story is to be checked up.

Many people had banked on the dog to show them where Tibbitts might be but Constable Sweeney claims that the dog is "no good" and that it wanders off for days at a time. It was also established that Tibbitts had tried to give the day away several times but it had always returned.

The only thing that came up Monday that suggested any possibility of shedding any light on the mystery was the information given to the press by William C. Santo of Vine Hill Farm, Elmwood, Conn., a son-in-law of Charles P. Bushnell of this city. Mr. Santo stated that an employe of the Vine Hill Farm saw a man come out of the woods there Tuesday noon and go to the home of a Polish woman about 300 yards back from the main road. The man asked for a drink of water and when told to go to the pump said he didn't dare to because two men were after him and wanted to shoot him. The woman gave the man a hat to wear as he had none and gave him something to eat. He then disappeared into the woods in the direction of New Britain.

The man was described as short, thin, evidently extremely nervous, somewhat deranged and one side of his face was badly slashed and cut evidently by some heavy instrument. His clothes evidenced his having been in a scuffle of some sort.

Superintendent Hurley when informed of this story said this man had been taken up by the state police last week Thursday or Friday and taken to Middletown. The man was afraid someone was trying to shoot him and although he did not mind being shot he was afraid bones might be broken.

All indications are that the case is at a standstill for the present although the officers have some clues they are still working on. If Tibbitts is found dead or alive it seems that the work will be a matter of many days, perhaps months. In the meantime the officers are following up every possible lead in hopes of solving the mystery, which at present seems likely to go down as one more unsolved such as are on the books of departments of every state.

NORWICH EAGLES BANQUET FOR 20TH ANNIVERSARY

Norwich aerie, No. 367, Fraternal Order of Eagles, celebrated its 20th anniversary Monday evening with a banquet, followed by a dance, at the Wauregan house, where covers were laid for 200 and the special guests included Mayor Milo R. Waters and members of the common council, Senator John Harder of Bridgeport, state president; Judge John H. Barnes, and James E. Tevlin of New York, representing the auditing, organization and insurance departments of the Grand Aerie.

The following was the menu.

Dr. J. J. Donohue, compensations commissioner for this district, was toastmaster, presiding with ability and introducing as the first speaker Judge Barnes, who responded with a pleasing address upon Evolution.

Mr. Tevlin spoke of the remarkable growth of the order, mentioning the Seattle aerie which had increased from 8,000 to 17,000 since the first of January. Recent class initiations, he said, had been South Bend with 1,056, Milwaukee with 1,352, and Seattle with 1,967. He enlarged in an impressive way upon the cardinal principles of the order, Liberty, Truth, Justice and Equality. Judge Harder spoke of the value of the old-age pension and what the Eagles were doing to forward that important department.

Following the speaking the enjoyable evening closed with dancing.

PROFESSOR FARRELL TRIUMPHS BEFORE NEW YORK AUDIENCE

Prof. Frank L. Farrell, concert pianist of this city, and William McCormack, of the International studio, lecturer, gave the programme Sunday night at a lecture recital by the Catholic club of New York city in their beautiful building at 126 Central Park south. Prof. Farrell's numbers were the feature of the evening and the enthusiastic audience of music lovers called for several encores. He first played Sonata Appasionata (Beathoven) and followed this with a group of four Chopin numbers, Rubinstein's Etude in C Major was greeted with a loud burst of applause which continued until Mr. Farrell responded with a charming number by Grainger called a Country Garden. His final number was Rhapsody No. 6 (Lisat). It was voted by the musical committee to place him on the regular course next year. The ovation given Mr. Farrell was the biggest ever accorded him in his concert career.

He is to play in New York on April 26 in Rumford hall in a joint recital with Miss Emily Roosevelt Chatterton, soprano, under the management of the Musical League of America.

STRING QUARTET APPEARS IN DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM

The String quartet, whose members are also seen in concerts, Miss Elizabeth A. Manz, Frederick W. Lester and Charles D. Gallup, gave the program Monday evening in Slater hall Annex that closed the season for the Norwich Music association. Those present at the well attended meeting had all their anticipations of a delightful musical evening realized, for the quartet seemingly never played with more artistic ensemble and interpretive insight.

They presented the following program:

Quartet in A major (K 464) Mozart
Allegro
Andante
Menuetto
Allegro non troppo

Impromptu, Ernest M. Ibbotson
Scherzo, Ernest M. Ibbotson

Quartet in E flat, Opus 47, Schumann
Andante cantabile
Allegro ma non troppo

Piano, Violin, Viola and Cello.

At the conclusion of the Mozart number, beautiful bouquets of roses were presented to Miss Mitchell and Miss Lane, and following the rendition of the two Ibbotson numbers, in which the impromptu was most effectively given, the applause continued until it brought out Mr. Ibbotson, the composer, organist at Christ church, to acknowledge the tribute of approval with a bow.

Again the audience was most demonstrative in applause for the quartet's delightful rendering of the Allegro in the Schumann number, which brought the season to a close in an impressive manner.

The annual business meeting of the association preceded the program. President Frederick H. Cranston thanked the other officers and members for the support that had been given the club during the season and the annual reports were presented by the secretary, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, and the treasurer, Robert C. Johnson.

Upon the report of the nominating committee, presented by Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, the officers were elected as follows: President, Frederick H. Cranston; vice president, Henry La Fontaine; secretary, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown; treasurer, Robert C. Johnson.

MRS. INGLEY WOULD NOT TAKE FORTUNE

Declares No Amount of Money Could Buy The Good Tanlac Did Her.

"Money couldn't buy the good that the Old Man and I am glad to tell my experience in the hope that others may be benefited," is the greatest statement of Mrs. Lottie Ingley, 61 Prichard St., Pittsburgh, Penn.

"Ever since I had diptheria over two years ago I was in a weakened, nervous, run-down condition and my digestion was so disordered that nobody is a thing I ate agreed with me. My nerves wouldn't let me sleep, gas and sourness in my stomach, and backache and headache all nearly drove me wild, and constipation bothered me all the time.

"My husband had been taking Tanlac so when I saw how it helped him I decided to try it, too, and now I feel like an entirely different person. My digestion is perfect, the run-down, nervous condition is a thing of the past, and I enjoy excellent health. The Tanlac treatment is just grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

In a justice's court in the town of Plainfield Monday morning Edgar Dupre of Moosup was fined $25 and costs on a gambling count and $50 and costs on a charge that he kept intoxicants with intent to sell. Mr. Dupre took an appeal on the charge relative to keeping liquors and the matter eventually will come into the superior court. Dupre's place at Moosup was raided by the state police Saturday evening.

At Monday's session of the Killingly town court Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed a fine of $25 and costs, a total of $36.94, on Ernest LaBonte of Putnam after the young man had been found guilty of operating an automobile here Sunday evening with only one headlight working. LaBonte's arrest followed his having been warned by Officer Arthur DeForest that the car must not be driven further until the light had been properly repaired. The car was parked early in the evening near the railroad station after the first warning by the officer, remained there until after the theater and was being driven off again with only one light showing, when Officer DeForest told LaBonte to appear in court Monday morning.

A Ford touring car stolen from Ernest Dubois at Wauregan on the night when automobile thieves made such a furore throughout this territory, about ten days ago, has been recovered in New Haven, where it was picked up by the police after being abandoned by whoever had it in charge after it was stolen. Recovery of this car clears up the thefts in which the state police here were interested, all of the cars now having been recovered and restored to their owners.

Sportsmen! Don't miss the hunting and fishing pictures put out by Field and Stream at the Orpheum theater Wednesday evening. Admission 30 cents.—adv.

Up at East Killingly the poultry business is having a big boom. Over at the Mason homestead in that section 1,000 incubator hatched chicks are strutting about. Up at the Quinn farm near East Killingly the program is for 2,000 chicks this year. And so it goes. East Killingly bids to become famous for its poultry activities. Numbers of fanciers have small flocks than the ones mentioned here, but in the aggregate the community is all set to make a financial cleanup in a business that enjoys a boom every spring.

It was stated here Monday that nothing definite is likely to be done for the present relative to obtaining the necessary right to remove William Kempf from New Hampshire at the end of the sentence he is now serving in the New Hampshire state prison. Kempf is incarcerated for from one to two years. This period gives ample time to consider what county officials may care to do with him for having twice broken out of Brooklyn jail and causing much trouble and expense in getting him back from where he was arrested in Vermont after his first escape. Kempf for his illegal activities in Putnam was arrested in Danielson where he had been loitering about and working a little from time to time over a period of several weeks.

A week from Wednesday evening a large number of the Danielson members of Putnam lodge of Elks will go to Webster for the institution of a new lodge in that place. This will be the first lodge of the order instituted anywhere hereabouts in more than a year, so the event holds special interest for all eastern Connecticut Elks. Webster has promised that the institution will be an occasion long to be pleasantly remembered.

Tax Collector George A. Williams soon will be engaged with his annual collections for the town of Killingly. His early work will be done in the villages of the town outside of Danielson, which part of the town will receive attention during the later part of the collection period. Mr. Williams is already receiving requests for statements of amounts due by local taxpayers, but said on Monday that this matter may well be allowed to rest for the present.

East Killingly people have practically abandoned hope that the Whitestone mill, destroyed by fire early last December, will be rebuilt. No action has been taken for the restoration of the plant, which was practically destroyed with all its contents, in a fire that raged for hours. However, there is a good water privilege at the mill site and this eventually may be the means of interesting some concern in establishing a new plant on a site where manufacturing has gone on for a great many years.

Practically no plowing has been done in territory hereabouts this spring. What was hoped would develop into an early spring is proving an exceptionally backward one. On Monday, April 16, brought hail mixed with the rain that was falling. There is no promise in such weather for early spring work and the forecast is that vegetables that are usually available early will be scarce and high priced this year.

Announcement Monday, as told in the Putnam news this morning, that the Manhasset Manufacturing company of that city is to close its Taunton plant and remove the machinery to Putnam, where it again will be set up and operated, created special interest in this town, especially in view of the fact that the change is being made principally on account of the 48-hour week in Massachusetts while 54 hours constitute a week's work. Labor was particularly interested in the announcement, which is of more than ordinary interest in Danielson because the Connecticut Mills company of this place also has a yarn mill and an extensive plant at East Taunton and ships yarn turned out there to the weaving mills in Danielson, where no yarn is spun, though put through various processes to make it ready for use in the looms.

There is advocacy that the week of April 30 be made clean-up week in Danielson. The proposal is that there need not necessarily be an official proclamation on the subject, but that citizens take it upon themselves to spend some time during that period tidying up their properties and clearing them of the various accumulations that are the heritage of a severe winter. If the idea finds general approval Danielson will be up to its usual standard of summer neatness early in May.

Indications are that numbers from Danielson and other surrounding towns will go to Montreal this summer at the time when the supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus is held in that beautiful city. Members of Rose of Lima council are especially interested in the prospect of seeing the international body of their order in session and are talking over plans for motor trips and other methods of journeying that will bring them and their parties into the largest city of the Dominion during the days when the convention is in session. This is to be the second supreme convention of the order to be held in Canada, the first being at Quebec about a dozen years ago.

Numbers of Danielson people made up theater parties to attend the production of Shuffle Along at the Bradley theater in Putnam Monday evening.

Pierre Boulaine is a medical patient at a Worcester hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boulais of School street have removed to Fall River, where Mr. Boulais will be office manager and paymaster at the Globe mills. He has for several years been a member of the office of the Connecticut Mills here.

Mrs. P. F. Murray and Leslie Murray have returned from New York, where Mrs. Murray chaperoned a party of young women students of St. Vincent college at a dinner dance at the Biltmore, the student party including Mrs. Murray's niece, Miss Helen Cronin.

George A. Henderson of Lowell was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Monday.

The highway leading eastward from the junction of Broad and Franklin streets is being put in good repair by town workers. This is a much used route to South Killingly and other points to the east.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y.— "I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives." —Mrs. ENGLEMANN, 2032 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

You should give it a fair trial now.

PUTNAM

Michael J. Lynch, 61, long an active figure in the business life of Putnam, died Monday morning just before 10 o'clock at his home. He had been in a very serious state of health for the past two months after suddenly breaking down when apparently as active and filled with energy as ever. A surgical operation failed to do more than temporarily relieve his condition. After a number of weeks at the hospital he was sufficiently improved to allow of removing him to his home, where he has lingered, growing weaker, until Sunday, when his condition became so critical as to indicate the approaching end.

Mr. Lynch had lived his life in Putnam. Always characterized by his industry and sunny disposition, he steadily paved the way to entering into a business in which he was eminently successful and in which he met hundreds of persons who became his close friends and admirers. For more than a score of years his place of business in the courthouse block was one where almost everyone came at least occasionally, and where one always found Mr. Lynch directing business with his usual careful attention and extending warm greetings. He was accommodating in the extreme, seemed tireless in his labors and was never happier than when busy with the multitude of details that claimed his attention. Having been so long in Putnam, and known to so many people, his death will be especially regretted.

Mr. Lynch is survived by his wife, by a son, John, who for years has been associated with him in business, and by two daughters, Mrs. Fred M. Bruce and Mrs. J. Otis Fox, all of this city.

Mr. Lynch was a member of Putnam lodge of Elks, an organiation with which he had been associated for years.

A capacity house saw the jazziest, danciest and most singingest musical show Monday evening when Shuffle Along with a sterling troupe of colored entertainers played the Bradley theatre. Scores who clamored for admission after the house was sold out missed one of the great shows that has played Putnam in recent years.

The clever performers had the house with them from the first note of jazz that drifted out over the footlights and there never was a minute of the entire performance that didn't scintillate with something out of the long list of good things the show affords. The cast abounded with dancers who just couldn't seem to make their feet behave, and with singers who had everything that makes the snappy, modern music go over with a swirl. There were just over 50 people in the cast, and no one of them was being carried for ornamentation purposes. Each contributed something to make the show the big success it has proved to be wherever it has played.

The company left here early this morning on the State of Maine express en route for Worcester, where it is booked for the remainder of this week and where the advance sales indicate a duplication of the success that has become a regular thing. It was stated here Monday that this company is kept on the road at an expense in excess of $5,000 per week.

What about daylight saving in Putnam this year? No bricks or bouquets, please. But the fact is the public is becoming interested in the matter. The betting seemed to be on Monday that Putnam will cling to standard time, as was done last year.

Surrounding agricultural communities that are a big business asset to Putnam storm at any proposal favoring daylight saving for Putnam, and business interests here are inclined to listen to these protests. The local public as a whole has a passing interest in the subject, but it cannot be truthfully stated that there is any great public demand for adoption of what some call fast time. However, the railroad will so change the running time of its passenger trains on April 29 as to put them on what practically amounts to a daylight saving schedule. This is chiefly of interest to those who travel regularly and not to the public as a whole. The chance will mean earlier rising for those who ship milk, however.

Many a householder who had felt that the fuel problem was over until next fall got a severe jolt Monday morning upon finding the temperature down in the 20s and a feeling of snow in the air. There was hurried action to put stoves, gas heaters and other aids to comfort back into service after discarding them for what was hoped would be a respite of six or more months. This cold weather came close after the sleet and snow squalls of Sunday afternoon.

Two suspicious appearing youths, strangers, who were engaged in looking over parked automobiles in the center of the city were made subjects for trailing by Captain Remi Delage, and he feels confident that by keeping such close tabs upon them he prevented the theft of a car here on Sunday. The youths eventually, after being followed all the way, got into a car that came along near the Little Dam tavern and were whisked away in the direction of Chepachet.

Walter Gilpatric of New York and Raymond Gilpatric of New Britain were visitors with relatives in Putnam over the week end.

Rev. N. B. Burton has resumed his labors here after being reappointed as pastor of the Methodist church for another year.

Monday evening's show at the Bradley theatre attracted attention from all the surrounding territory.

Frank Tourtellotte has been appointed freight agent of the New Haven road at Webster. Mr. Tourtellotte, who for a number of years has been in the road's employ and is very well known here, formerly was station agent at Quinebaug.

Bootlegging in and about dance halls in the suburban sections is not as safe a proposition as it used to be, for the state police, acting upon information given them, are keeping tabs on such matters and are getting results.

Attention of children in the schools is being called to Governor Templeton's proclamation relative to Arbor and Bird day—May 4.

For driving a car with only one headlight lighted, Ernest LaBonte of this city was fined $25 and costs, a total of $36.94, in the town court at Danielson Monday morning.

A. E. Wilkinson, vegetable specialist from the Connecticut Agricultural college, will address a meeting of vegetable growers at the Community house in Woodstock today (Tuesday).

The past week end was a very orderly one in this city and there were no arrests and no session of the city court Monday morning.

WILL MOVE TAUNTON PLANT TO PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, April 16.—Announcement Monday morning that the Manhasset Manufacturing company is to close its Taunton plant and transfer the machinery to this city, where its main manufacturing interests are located, came as good news to the people of this city.

It means, in all probability, an increase of from 200 to 250 in the number of employes at the big plant of the company here and a very material boost in the payroll. There is also the possibility that the coming here of all these workers and the other members of their households will increase the city's population by 600 to 800 and make necessary the construction of more houses by the company, which is engaged in the manufacture of tire fabric.

It so happens that there is ample available space at the Putnam plant to house the machinery that will be brought here from Taunton—in one of the new mills constructed during the World war period and never as yet used for manufacturing purposes.

The Taunton plant is chiefly engaged in the production of yarn for the Putnam mills of the company, so with the setting up of the machinery in this city the activities of the company will be greatly centralized.

The announcement of the company's decision was hailed with delight here Monday and taken as an assurance that this city is due for a new and important industrial boost. The prospect is especially encouraging to business interests as well as to those in many other lines of endeavor.

The 48-hour law operative in Massachusetts is given as a principal reason for removing from Taunton to Putnam, a city where 54 hours per week is the labor schedule in the textile industry, a fact that will permit the concern to operate more successfully than where the hours of labor are so restricted.

An official of the company is expected to come from the general offices of the concern in Providence Tuesday to make such arrangements as are necessary for transferring the Taunton machinery to Putnam.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 16.—Frederick Di Bendetti, aged 38 years and proprietor of a knife sharpening establishment at the corner of Reed and Tilinman street, will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning on a serious charge for this evening he, it is alleged, took liberties with Florence Wilder, aged 8 years of No. 468 Bank street. A complaint was lodged with the police and as a result Di Bendetti was locked up on a charge of indecent assault.

The girl went to the Di Bendetti store shortly before 7 o'clock when she was having work done upon her. glasses and according to the girl, the proprietor took liberties with the girl. Before the girl departed from the store Di Bendetti is alleged to have endeavored to entice the girl to the rear of the store to partake of milk and wine, but the invitation was refused. When the girl went to her home she related to her mother what had occurred and the actions of Di Bendetti. Mrs. Wilder went to the street where she located Patrolman Dennis Cavanaugh, and asked for the arrest of Di Bendetti. The officer brought the accused and took him to the police station. Mrs. Wilder appeared at the police station a short time after Di Bendetti was locked up and declared that she would have her daughter in court tomorrow morning to tell what happened in the store if the accused in her endeavor to have the man punished. Di Bendetti has before been before the police court, but not on a charge of this nature.

Mayor Murray was in attendance at the meeting of the city council this evening for the first time in several weeks, he having recovered from an attack of pleurisy that confined him to his home. The meeting was one of the shortest the council has ever held. The only business transacted was the granting of four applications to build and the reading of ordinances by title. It developed after the meeting that no supernumerary policemen are to be put on the force unless some pressure is brought to bear for their appointment. The city is now patrolled by fewer men than ever before under the present management or under that which immediately preceded it.

Mrs. Michael Corcoran, wife of Patrolman Corcoran, is confined to her home, No. 139 Crystal avenue, by illness of a serious nature.

Milton Card, the 19 year old youth who was so unfortunate as to run down Mrs. Leo Brogan in Groton Sunday night, is in no condition to talk about the case and to give his version of how the terrible accident occurred. He was take home in a collapse after the occurrence and he later became unconscious and remained in that condition during the early morning of Monday. Mrs. Brogan was a New London girl prior to her marriage. She was the daughter of Mrs. Nora Hogan of Williams street and was employed a long time by J. Warren Gay as bookkeeper. Both she and her husband have been active in the Catholic church in Groton and they were on their way to the home of Rev. Father Fox when Mrs. Brogan met her death. Her mother, two sisters and a brother survive her.

Mr. and Mrs. Brogan were active in producing an entertainment for the church recently and their attendance at the home of Rev. Father Fox was to settle up the financial details of that entertainment. They were run down near the clergyman's home while they were walking along with linked arms. How the accident could have happened no one can tell and the details will not be known until young Card is able to give his version of the facts. That he will be charged with manslaughter in the Groton court when he is able to appear and the coroner who investigated the case there is no doubt. Keeler, which grounded on the rocks off Bartlett's Reef nearly a month ago during a severe gale and which was floated about ten days ago, is much more extensively damaged than was at first believed. The tug is now hauled out on the marine railways of the New London Ship & Engine Company and an examination of her steel hull has revealed two large holes in her. The largest hole is on the port side about midship. Temporary repairs will be made, which when accomplished will result in the tug being towed to New York where permanent repairs will be made.

When Charles R. Noyes of Old Lyme, who was taken into custody when he had forged prescriptions for laudanum and had consumed the contents of the vials of stuff he secured, he was a nervous wreck. He could barely keep awake while he was in the police court and that tribunal was considering his case. When the proceedings were at an end he did not realize what had taken place. He was told and then was informed that he had been placed under a bond of $500 to appear in the court today. He offered his auto as security on a bond that he would be on hand when wanted, but that would not be accepted by the clerk and Noyes was taken to the New London jail, where he has been receiving treatment since. That treatment, under the direction of Dr. Lawson, has proved of immense benefit to Noyes and he was in a nearly normal condition today.

He is about 40 years of age. He is to appear before Commissioner Mathewson at Norwich Wednesday and there it will be decided what will be done with a man who has in his desire to get intoxicants defied the laws of his country and has used his ingenuity to get drugs. Noyes is believed to be one of the many who have become addicted to drugs who can be saved and his intelligence restored by treatment. An effort will be made, it is said, to bring about leniency and consideration by the government that he may be confined in the state hospital at Norwich for a stated time that his cure may be accomplished if that is possible.

Noyes, it is said, has seven children and a home such as should be preserved. He is much addicted to the cigarette habit and that, too, perhaps, may be overcome. The authority of Commissioner Mathewson ends when Noyes is held for the United States court, but on advice from the judge of that court Noyes may be sent to the Norwich hospital that he may receive the treatment his case seems to need.

WANTED TO COMPROMISE $20 FINE WITH COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 16.—Tony Milia came here from Westerly Saturday and drove right up to a parking sign on Bank street where he left his car for a couple of hours. Had he read as he ran he would have observed that it was in conflict with an ordinance of the city to park a car on Bank street between State street and Tilley for a longer period than thirty minutes. But Tony was in a hurry and he didn't read.

Then Officer John Courtney tagged the car and Tony answered in court today. He admitted that he was a violator of the parking regulations. That cost him about $20. Then he wanted to compromise with the court and pay $10, but that did not go," and he paid the face of the bill rather than go to jail. Tony said he did not come to New London often but in the future his visits would be less frequent.

MORSE REPORTED ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 16.—Harry F. Morse, whose residence is on Montauk avenue in this city, is said to be on his way to Washington to appear in the District of Columbia supreme court Tuesday to answer to a charge of alleging the participation in a conspiracy to defraud by using the United States mail for forwarding a scheme to sell stock in a steamship company. Morse's absence from court was because of his physical condition as represented by his physicians. Two doctors were sent to New London last week and they examined Morse and the action of Justice Stafford in ordering the bond of $10,000 which Morse furnished for his appearance in court today forfeited would indicate that the doctors sent to New London reported Morse to be able to go into court. Justice Stafford said yesterday that he would reopen the bond if Morse appeared in court Tuesday. It is also declared that Justice Stafford issued a bench warrant that would bring Morse into court.

TELEPHONES IN STATE GAIN 4,831 IN QUARTER

In the three months ended March 31st, a net gain was made of 4,831 in the number of telephones in public service, indicating an increasing demand for this indispensable public utility. On the date mentioned, the Southern New England Telephone company had 288,754 telephones in its comprehensive communications system, reaching into every byway and crossroads in the state.

New Haven leads the cities in the number of telephones in service, also in the net gain recorded during the first quarter of the year. Hartford, Bridgeport and Waterbury follow in the named, while substantial gains also are shown in a number of other places.

The number of telephones in service and the increases for the quarter in several cities follows:

	Total	Gain
New Haven	34,078	868
Bridgeport	30,707	527
Hartford	33,299	843
Waterbury	12,223	360
Stamford	7,475	133
New Britain	7,041	186
Meriden	5,118	175
Norwich	4,726	145
New London	6,893	142
Danbury	3,841	183

The town that "crowns them all" is last in the list but it is plain that its net, in proportion to the total of telephones, is larger than in most of the cities mentioned, showing that the hat business must be good these days.

MARKET WAS QUIET

New York, April 16.—The failure of the recent rise in prices to attract sufficient outside buying power brought about fresh selling in today's stock market with a resultant decline in prices in most sections of the list. The reaction, however, was an orderly one with net losses comparatively small. The relatively light volume of sales indicated an absence of any extensive forced liquidation.

Oils were again the center of attack. These issues were offered freely on a revival of rumors of a prospective cut in mid-continent crude oil prices. The Pan-American issues each yielded more than two points but the B stock made up about half of its loss before the close. Mariand closed 1 3-8 lower on the day and Houston, 1 1-8, but the net losses in other active issues were held to fractions.

Marking up of the call money rate to 6 per cent. after a renewal rate of 4 1-2, was regarded as a temporary hardening incidental to April 15 dividend, interest and state tax payments, but it served as an excuse for further professional selling in the late dealings.

Chairman Gary's explanation of the U. S. Steel Corporation's surplus resulted in some selling on the part of those who bought stock in anticipation of extra stock or cash dividend disbursements, the stock closing 5-8 lower at 106 1-8. Fractional losses also were recorded by the other shares of that group.

Strength of Canadian Pacific, which established a new high at 153 3-4, up 1 3-8, was one of the features of the trading in rails, which showed mixed changes at the close. Recent buying of this issue has been attributed to foreign account. St. Paul common and Chicago anr Northwestern preferred each dropped a point on small turnovers.

General Motors was the most active stock on the list, touching 16 1-4, a new high record. Du Pont, which owns a large block of General Motors stock, advanced 5 points. Activity of General Motors was accompanied by reports of an early increase in motor car prices. Stewart-Warner advanced 2 1-4 points and Bosch Magneto, 1. Western Union advanced 2 points on publication of a quarterly earnings report, partly estimated, showing earnings of $3.77 a share for the quarter.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent. and successively advanced to 5, 5 1-2 and 6 per cent. but dropped to 5 1-2 and thence to 5, the last three changes taking place within an hour. Some 30 and 60 days time loans were arranged at 5 1-4 per cent. but bankers are asking prices were 5 1-2 for all maturities. Commercial paper rates were unchanged at 5 a 5 1-4 per cent.

Trading in the foreign exchanges were extremely dull with most of the principal rates showing slight concessions from Saturday's final prices. Demand sterling yielded 8-8 of a cent. to $4.65. French francs, held steady around 6.65 cents and Italian lira dropped 2 points to 4.95 1-2 cents. Canadian exchange was conspicuously heavy, the Canadian dollar being quoted at 97.62 cents, ascompared with 98.71 on Saturday.

BOND MARKET

New York, April 16.—Chief interest in today's bond market centered in the offering of $75,000,000 Federal Land bank 4 1-2 per cent. bonds, which are reported to have been well taken. These bonds, offered at 100 1-2 as compared with 101, the offering price last January, give a return 20 to 40 points higher than most of the high grade municipals, which also are tax exempt.

Trading in listed bonds was dull and irregular, the ticker tape standing idle for minute at a time. Net losses exceeded net gains at the close but the fluctuations, in general were within a small radius.

The foreign issues were firm. Belgian 8's standing out with a gain of 1 1-4. All the United States government bonds except the Liberty 3 1-2's, which advanced 2-32ds of a point, were reactionary, the net losses ranging from 1-32nd to 5-32nds of a point.

A gain of 1 point by Pere Marquette refunding 5's and a loss of 1 1-2 by St. Paul, Kansas City Short Line 4 1-2's, were the only important changes in the railroad group. Montana Power 5's advanced 1 3-4, Punta Alegre Sugar 7's dropped 2 1-4 and Cerro De Pasco 8's, 1 1-2. Of the other changes in the industrial and public utility groups being fractional.

Total sales par value were $10,334,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, April 16.—Wheat underwent a sharp decline in price today owing chiefly to better weather northwest but also more or less as a result of the United States Supreme Court decision upholding the grain futures act. The market closed unsettled, 1 3-4 to 2 5-8 net lower, with May $1.24 1-8 to 1.24 1-4 and July 1.21 3-4 to 1.22. Corn finished 1 a 1 1-8 to 1.7-8c down; oats off 1-2 to 1 1-8, and provisions varying from 15c decline to 5c advance.

For a moment at the outset, wheat prices were on the upgrade, and July delivery touched a new high price record for the season. Then heavy selling set in, apparently of a profit taking nature and induced by prospects that spring crop seeding northwest would soon be under way. Declines which ensued had been in progress two hours before announcement was made that the grain futures act had been declared constitutional. No decided additional setback in prices took place immediately, but an hour later when details of the supreme court decision about trading in futures deliveries were at hand the market underwent a material further decline.

Some rallying power was shown by wheat values as the day came to an end, but the upturns failed to get more than a fraction above the low points which had been reached. A small increase of the visible supply was a handicap on the bull side of the market and so too was the fact that primary receipts continued of good volume.

Corn and oats followed wheat in a downward swing of prices. With weather more seasonable and with a number of traders inclined to be pessimistic over the supreme court decision, recoveries lacked vigor.

Provisions were depressed by weakness in large quotations at Liverpool.

SMALLER TOWNS RECEIVE MOST IN SCHOOL AID

Eighty-eight towns in Connecticut which are in the "small town" class receive 5.4 times as much state aid for each school pupils as do the towns of larger proportions. This statement is contained in the biennial report of the state board of education which has been submitted to Governor Templeton by Commissioner A. B. Meredith. It is made to show that, contrary to the general belief, the towns with only a small proportion of the state's children have the advantage over the city and larger town schools in the matter of state aid.

This is proved by figures, which show that 88 towns with grand lists under $2,500,000 received 32 per cent. of the state appropriations for schools in which were found only eight per cent. of the children of the state, while 68 per cent. of the state aid money went to towns with grand lists over $2,500,000 in which were schooled 92 per cent. of the children. The report also shows that no less than 39 per cent. of the town's no cost of schools in the smaller group was borne by the state. This money is used for tuition, transportation and teachers' salaries.

The report gives a comprehensive outline of the outstanding features of the work of the board for the last two years.

Duties of Board

The opening paragraphs of the report contain the following significant statement:

"Among the responsibilities imposed by statute upon the state board of education is that of apprising the general assembly of the needs of public education. These needs may be of different kinds, involving questions of educational method, revisions of courses of study and the internal matters of school administration. Obviously these are not matters which directly concern the general assembly. On the other hand, there are needs which can only be met by legislative action and it is these needs which from time to time are brought to the attention of the house and senate."

The report then reviews the action of the board in conducting a series of school committee institutes during 1921 and 1922 which resulted in the majority of the bills offered during the present session.

Need for Dormitories

With regard to the need for dormitory facilities in normal schools for which the present session is being asked to appropriate money for construction of such buildings at Danbury and New Britain, the board makes this comment:

"The board is unanimously of the opinion that in order to attract the desirable kind of prospective teachers and to safeguard their interests while in training, proper home life is absolutely essential, and further, that kind of life may be best had in suitable dormitories. The social development of the teacher is quite as essential as the training in the technique of teaching and of class room management."

About "Red" Schoolhouse

Concerning education in rural communities, which developed such widespread discussion during the present session of the legislature in regard to the possibility of the ultimate elimination of the "little red schoolhouse" the board says:

"That Connecticut is vitally concerned with the stimulation of the economic and social growth of its rural communities is universally admitted. The history of educational development in the state provides ample proof of this fact. Likewise it is conceded that growth to the point where such communities may be able to provide from their own resources a modern schooling for their children, raises a question difficult to answer.

"Meanwhile, the state cannot afford to neglect by insufficient aid the schooling of these children. This problem is of immediate concern and in the opinion of the board, is capable of a much more satisfactory treatment than is now provided by law. State aid for the transportation of elementary school children would make a more modern school organization possible in some towns, and such aid seems, therefore, desirable.

"The fact is that the present operation of the support of schools law, whereby towns receive from the state treasury a proportion of the amounts paid for teachers' salaries, tends to encourage the continuance of many small schools which for other reasons town school committees would deem it wise to close.

"Should a town school committee determine that the best interests of a district and of the pupils would be served by closing a school and transporting the pupils, then under existing law the entire cost of such transportation would have to be borne by the town. It is likely that the cost of transportation would exceed the net cost to the town of the teachers' salary of the school under discussion.

"The evidence that town school committees do find it practicable to close certain schools and to provide transportation may be seen by the fact that the number of one-teacher schools has steadily decreased for the past 23 years from 1,077 in 1900 to 647 in 1922.

47 Schools Closed in Year

"During the year ending July 14, 1922, 47 schools were closed and because of shifts in population 11 were opened, and the total amount paid for transportation came from local funds and was $311,992.96. Of course all this transportation was not the result of closing schools, since all children between 7 and 16 years are entitled by law to school facilities by transportation or otherwise.

"This board is confidently of the opinion that many of the one-teacher schools should never be abandoned assuming of course that they are kept in repair and adapted for use, even though good roads be provided since there are geographical and social reasons which make their continuance both desirable and necessary. In its proposals for legislation, the board is not remotely suggesting that all one-teacher schools be closed. It does believe, however, that some state aid should be provided to assist those towns which upon their own initiative decide that the best interests of the pupils will be served with better training and more permanent teachers. It follows that when transportation is provided it shall only be under such conditions as shall be conductive to the health, safety and moral well being of the pupils."

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week there has been good progress made on all local building projects. The excavation work on the new power house of the Eastern Conn. Power Co., at Montville, is being rushed along and a large force of men from the Hope Construction Co. is at the plant. The Disco block on Main street is practically completed with the exception of some of the interior work. The outside walls of the new Palace theatre on Rose place have been practically completed and the steel superstructure and truss work is being put in place. The Pasnik block on West Main street is being rushed along at a rapid rate and the walls have been raised to the second story from the street level. The interior studding has also been set in place.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton seven building applications were granted, including one for a two-family house, two for new garages and the remaining four for alterations or additions. The following are the permits granted:

To Valentine Reich to erect a two-family house on Fowler avenue. The house will be 27x41 feet and of frame construction. The foundation will be of stone and cement and the exterior will be finished in composition shingles. There will be six rooms and bath to each apartment.

To Frank Prodell to erect a frame garage, 18x18 feet on Smith avenue. The garage will have a cement foundation and the exterior will be finished in cedar shingles.

To Lawrence Tefft to erect a large frame garage on Summit street. The garage will be 20x36 feet with a foundation of stone. The floor will be of cement and the exterior finish will be of composition paper and shingles.

To Charles R. Browning to erect an addition of one room to the house of Frank Fitch on Oneco street. The addition will conform to the construction of the present building.

To Louis Ortmann to build a piazza on the house owned by Mrs. Lois Bell on Hamilton avenue. The piazza will be 6x42 feet.

To Antonio Alfero to alter the house at 80 Hickory street. The addition will be 12x20 feet. David Kinney has the contract.

To George W. Allen to alter the house on Park street owned by Hugh Kinder. An addition will be built on the house, 8x12 feet, and two stories high.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 22 sales of real estate as compared to 17 sales for the corresponding week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $30,700 and $35,852.

There were 11 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 3 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $154,930 and $10,024.

The State Situation.

The statistics of building permits granted in the larger centers of the state as compiled by the Commercial Record, for the past week do not reflect any gain in the volume of building throughout the state. The 301 permits issued in these places for the week were for buildings, the aggregate cost of which was $750,581. These figures compare with 393 permits in the corresponding week of 1922, for buildings costing $1,249,093, and 330 permits in 1921, when the buildings cost only $295,859.

NEW LONDON.

The contract has been awarded to build a two-family house at the corner of Lincoln avenue and South Ledyard street for Catherine Sheehan, and others. It is to be of frame construction, 36x47 feet, two and a half stories high, with concrete foundation and shingle roof. There will be five rooms to each flat, with heat and all modern conveniences.

The permit has been issued to erect a bungalow at 249 Vauxhall street for William T. Miller. It will be of wood, 26x47 feet, one story high, with concrete foundation and shingle roof. There will be about seven rooms, with bath, and all modern improvements.

A local builder has the contract for the erection of an addition in the rear of 21 Main street for Gager-Crawford Co. It will be of brick, 21x27 feet, two stories high, used for storage purposes. The plans were prepared by Architects Bilderbeck & Langdon, Inc., Barrows Building.

The contractor has started the erection of a dwelling at 37 Georgiana street, for W. H. Moyles. The plans will provide a frame house, arranged for one family, of bungalow design. It will be 24x34 feet, one and a half stories high, containing six rooms, bath, and improvements.

NORWICH TOWN

The meeting following the combined missionary meeting of the women of the United Congregational and Park Congregational churches, held Thursday afternoon at the Community house, which was addressed by Mrs. Simango of Africa, and to which women of other churches were invited, was attended by a large delegation from Norwich Town.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic H. Wyant entertained the Saturday Evening Pinochle club at their home on Town street at the last meeting of the club. The prize winners were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Houston. A tempting supper of cold meat, salads, hot rolls, cake and coffee was served by the hostess at the close of the game.

Ever Ready circle of the King's Daughters will meet this (Tuesday) evening at the home of Miss Jessie E. Hyde of Washington street.

John C. Hinrichs, D. C., Ph. C., of Town street returned Sunday evening, having spent the week end in Providence, R. I., on a business trip.

The Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society will hold a meeting Wednesday afternoon in the First Congregational chapel.

Several boys from the Norwich Town troop of Boy Scouts, accompanied by Frederic H. Wyant, scoutmaster, spent a number of hours on Sunday aiding in the search concerning the mysterious Tibbitts case.

TAFTVILLE

Usually at this season of the year the village is visited with some serious woodland fires, but up to the present there have been no large conflagrations. One day the latter part of last week, a brush fire in Lisbon got out of control and spread to the neighboring woods, but a force of men employed by the Ponemah company were summoned and extinguished the blaze before much damage was done. A small grass fire in a vacant lot on Providence street gave promise of setting the fence ablaze and destroying it, before it was extinguished, and another small blaze at the base of the "ledge" was brought under control before the flames had spread to the woods.

Taftville Division, A. O. H., met Sunday afternoon at its rooms in Parish hall on Merchants avenue. President Joseph Nevins was in the chair and routine business was transacted, several important matters being disposed of.

Miss Pauline Brodeur of Norwich avenue was hostess Friday evening to a company of eight of her friends in observance of her birthday.

The Community Sewing Class met Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

J. T. Small has resigned his position with the Ponemah Company.

Troop 4, Boy Scouts, met Monday evening in their rooms in the Sacred Heart school building.

On Sunday afternoon, the children of Sacred Heart church parish enjoyed a special program at Parish hall, tendered them by the church and Fire Company No. 2, who have been jointly conducting a carnival in the hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ulric Gouin have taken a house on South A street.

Joseph Beausejour has returned from a several days' stay in Canada, and has been accompanied home by his wife, who did not enter this country with Mr. Beausejour several weeks ago.

Oscar Mathewson, Jr., was the leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting at the Taftville Congregational church, Sunday evening.

The annual meeting of the Taftville Athletic association was held Monday evening in Ponemah hall. The association voted to support a baseball team the coming season and elected the following officers: President, George W. Weller; vice president, William Donohue; secretary, Fred Knowles; treasurer, James White; directors, William Brown, Christopher Troeger, Roderick Molleur, Michael Murphy, Fred Knowles, James White, William Donohue, George Coleman and George W. Weller.

Thomas Webster of Baltic spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Webster of North A. street.

Kenneth Gestner, a student at Harvard and Conrad Gestner, a student at Dartmouth, are guests of Warren Sharples of North Second avenue. Today Messrs. Gestner and Sharples will leave by auto for Eastern Penn.

FOREST FIRE WARDENS CAUTION GENERAL PUBLIC

State Forester A. F. Hawes, former state forester, Filley, assistant state forester, Stocking, representatives of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and C. V. R. R., Ozias Dodge of Norwich, Forest Fire Warden F. A. Benton of Norwich and about twenty-five local wardens attended a conference in New London last week by the forest fire wardens of New London and Middlesex counties.

At this meeting the subject of forest, brush and grass fires was gone over pretty thoroughly, warnings were given, and an attempt was made to place the matter, through the wardens, the newspapers, and posted notices, before the public so that preventive measures would avoid the disastrous fires of last spring, when many thousands of dollars damages were done to the property of Connecticut.

Two patrolmen, or rovers, who are state officers, will visit each section of the state at frequent intervals to see if the state laws are being observed. They have the power to arrest violators without a warrant, if after consulting the local wardens they find that violations are going on.

For the instruction of the public they emphasized the following state laws:

That "Burning brush or rubbish without a written permit, except as provided by law; maximum penalty, two hundred dollars fine and six months imprisonment. (Sec. 2159)."

"Kindling a fire in the open air which causes injury to another; maximum penalty two hundred dollars fine and six months imprisonment." (Sec. 2158).

"Setting woods on fire carelessly by throwing down a lighted match or other burning substance, maximum penalty five hundred dollars and six months' imprisonment." (Sec. 6273).

Over 100 Baptist Men for Trip.

Monday night it was known that over 100 men of the City Bible class of the Central Baptist church would make the trip to New London tonight (Tuesday) to enjoy a supper at the expense of the Men's forum of the First Baptist church of that city. The call has been issued for the men to be at the Central church at 5.30 sharp, so that they can be ready to march on time to Franklin square, headed by John Swahn's band, to take the 5.45 special trolley cars for New London.

UNCLE DAVE TO TALK TO NORWICH KIDDIES

"Oh dearest me!" cried Little Jack Rabbit, as Mr. Wicked Wolf jumped out from behind a big rock, "Now I'm a goner."

But just then the little rabbit spied a Hollow Stump telephone booth.

"S. O. S.! Please come quick. Policeman dog, with your hickory stick!"

Thus wailed Little Jack Rabbit over the 'phone. It remains for David Cory, the "Jack Rabbit" man to get Little Jack Rabbit out of this tight fix. He promises to do so when he talks to the children of Norwich on Wednesday.

"Uncle David" Cory, noted author of "Little Jack Rabbit" stories that appear regularly in the Norwich Bulletin, will be a visitor in Norwich on Wednesday. In the forenoon he will visit several of the town schools and address the children. He will tell some stories and also endeavor to impress upon his young friends the value of good books.

Mr. Cory will be a guest of the Rotary club at its regular weekly luncheon at the Wauregan House, and Wednesday afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock he will be at the book department of The Porteous & Mitchell company where he will be pleased to meet his young friends and tell them about "Jack Rabbit" and the rest of the folks in Rabbitville.

Writes Stories, Too.

The story about Mr. Cory himself is almost as interesting as those he has been writing and telling thousands of kiddies in all parts of the country. He was manager of a New York stock exchange house until it was closed in 1914. Then he decided that he'd been so successful entertaining his own children with "Little Jack Rabbit" stories that he would enter a wider field, and entertain other people's children.

Mr. Cory began writing his stories for The New York Mail six years ago. He still is, but he's also writing them for many other papers, and he has written about 40 books. Then he decided to be an itinerant story teller and roam the country like the bards of the olden times. He's been doing it for the past four months, gathering delighted children about him wherever he goes, and talking over radio at many of the largest stations in the country.

PASADENA IN THROES OF NTL. ROQUE TOURNEY

It will be of interest to Norwich enthusiasts in roque who annually contest in the national tournament in this city to know that a national tournament is now in progress at Long Beach, Pasadena, Cal.

A Pasadena newspaper describes the interest taken there as follows:

Long Beach is experiencing the sporting thrill of its lifetime. A worlds' championship baseball series could be pulled off there now and hardly excite a ripple of interest, it would be so overshadowed in the minds of the Long Beach fans by the great things now in progress. The American Derby, the English Derby and the Grand Prix could be run there all at once on the same track, but the crowd would not be there. For when the beach does go in for sport, which isn't so often, it goes in heart and soul. And right now it is thrilling to the event of events, the titanic struggle to which it has been looking forward for years.

In other words, the national roque tournament is in progress there, and Jimmie Keane, in person, is defending his title against all comers. And Jimmie isn't holding off and dickering about it for weeks and months and years at a stretch, as some champions do. Jimmie is a real sport and is vanquishing rivals just as fast as he can be introduced to them. Two hundred are entered in the tourney and it looks as if Jimmie will have to lick them all before they are satisfied.

Could Dempsey, Willard, Carpentier and Siki, all in one ring, equal that? Not in Long Beach. Only one other sporting event could possibly equal it—the national horseshoe pitching tournament.

Some years ago roque courts and horseshoe pitchers' stakes were established in the park right in the business center of Long Beach and there every sunny day the former citizens of Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and numerous other Midwestern states met in fierce competition. Some citizens demurred. They said it sort of sized their city as a jay town. They finally got the powers-that-were to order the horseshoe pitchers and roque players out of the park. But the latter were so confident of public opinion that they circulated a petition for a referendum and so put Long Beach on record as the only city in the world to hold an election over such a question. And the horseshoe pitchers and roquers won by a good big majority.

That shows how sentiment stands in Long Beach. Let other towns have their world series and Dempsey-Willard battles. The red-blooded sports of Long Beach have chosen their sport and they stick by it.

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION OF LATE HEMAN AVERILL

In the death of Heman O. Averill, which occurred recently in his home at Washington Depot, a Norwich resident who knew him well says, Connecticut loses a most worthy citizen. General Averill, as he was more familarly known, was a person of high ideals, loyal to every trust placed in his hands, whether in business, or political ways; and in all his various charges proved a faithful and conscientious servant.

In his social and busines life alike, it was always a pleasure to meet him. He was not only of a congenial nature; but was kind hearted and sympathetic, being admired and respected by the large circle of friends which during his long term of years in the business interests of the state, were privileged to be associated with him.

During his charge as commissioner of domestic animals covering a period of 14 years, Dr. Charles H. Lamb, of this city, through these years, acted as state deputy to General Averill in examining tubercular cattle, etc., in this section of New London county. General Averill filled this office several years longer than any other preceding, or succeeding commissioner. Since his retirement from this office General Averill has continued his interests as judge of probate in the town he represented; having lived rather a retired life in the home he loved so well, which had been his since his birth.

It is through these years that he and Dr. Lamb have retained the same strong friendship cultivated by them. Upon learning of General Averills death, Dr. Lamb, who feels a personal sense of loss, has spoken of him in most affectionate terms, as "A Man Among Men."

Fourth Birthday Party

Edith Blackburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blackburn, entertained twelve of her little friends at her home on Franklin street Monday afternoon in honor of her fourth birthday. The table decorations were in pink and white and in the center of the table was a large birthday cake upon which was written the name Edith Blackburn and her age. Each child received as a favor a basket filled with candy. Many games were enjoyed and prizes were awarded to the winners.

THREE AVIATION RECORDS BROKEN AT M'COOK FIELD

In Breaking Speed Record, Lieut. Harold Harris Averaged 114 Miles an Hour for 10 Hours and 53 Minutes—Lieut. Rutledge Irvine With a Single Motored Plane Gained an Altitude of 11,300 Feet—For Sustained Flying Lieuts. J. A. MacCready and Oakley Kelley Eclipsed the French Record of 34 Hours 54 Minutes by Flying 36 Hours, 5 Minutes, 20 Seconds.

Dayton, O., April 17.—Flying almost twice as fast as the former record holder, Lieutenant Harold Harris, McCook field, today set new speed records for 1,500 and 2,000 kilometers.

Harris maintained an average speed of 114 miles an hour throughout his flight. His time for 1,500 kilometers (as 8 hours and 9 minutes, and for 200 kilometers was 10 hours and 53 minutes.

This flight began at 6.28 a. m. this morning and was conducted over the 93 1-8 mile triangular course, over which Lieutenant John A. Macready and Oakley Kelly are flying to set a new endurance record.

Harris landed at 5.21 p. m., and appeared in excellent condition. He also holds the world's speed record for 1,000 kilometer course, set here in an aerial derby March 31. He flew in a rebuilt De Havilland 4-8 in his flight.

First word from Macready and Kelly was received this afternoon when a note, dropped from the monoplane T-2, was found at Wilbur Wright field. This note read:

"Wilbur Wright Field: We will probably land about 9 or 10 o'clock. Have searchlight placed to give up the longest approach and landing area so that we can land into the wind with our left side to the lightest part. Provide no means the will enable us to tell the direction of the wind—smoke might do."

Immediate preparation for the landing, were begun, as soon as this note was received.

These two pilots already have succeeded in setting a new distance record, eclipsing their former mark of 2,060 miles, and at seven o'clock tonight will have passed the endurance record now held by a French aviator.

ALTITUDE OF 11,300 FEET IN SINGLE MOTORED PLANE

Dayton, Ohio, April 17.—Carrying a dead weight of 2,422 pounds, a navy bi-plane piloted by Lieutenant Rutledge Irvine, Anacosta Station, Washington, D. C., gained an altitude of 11,300 feet over McCook Field this afternoon. This is the highest altitude ever gained by a single motored ship, carrying this much weight.

Over-all weight of the ship, including the deadweight and the weight of the pilot and Chief Machinist Mate Cole, approximated 6,000 pounds.

Plans are under way according to Commander K. F. Smith, naval attache at McCook Field, to remodel the ship and send it on a speed flight, in an effort to gain for the navy the records for 2,500, 3,000, 3,500, 4,000 kilometer speed records, and the distance record.

Commander Smith said tonight if the ship used had been equipped with a super-chart, it would have gained an altitude of approximately 19,000 feet. Dead weight carried today included a torpedo weighing 1,650 pounds; shot weighing 600 pounds, and additional equipment making up the balance of the weight.

FOKKER MONOPLANE IN THE AIR MORE THAN 36 HOURS

Dayton, Ohio, April 17.—Climaxing a day of superior flying, Lieutenants John A. McCready and Oakley Kelly landed the Fokker monoplane T-2 at 9.43 o'clock tonight, establishing a new world's record for sustained flying. They were in the air 36 hours, 5 minutes and 20 seconds. In addition nine other records were made.

TURKS MUTILATED BODY OF AN AMERICAN SOLDIER

Washington, April 17.—State department agents today confirmed charges that Turkish soldiers had mutilated the body and destroyed the tomb of George Dusoy, an American soldier to whom a Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded after he met his death in the World war. In a preliminary report the agents said "Those responsible for the profanation were apparently actuated by cupidity rather than by malice or any intentional act of disrespect."

Dilboy was of Greek extraction and live in Somerville, Mass., at the time he enlisted in the 26th division. He went to France with that organization and was killed in action near Belleau.

The report of the investigators showed that the coffin had been placed in the Orthodox Greek church at Alachata, pending interment. The town was taken by Turkish soldiers during their advance on Smyrna last September.

Representations to the Turkish government were made by Rear Admiral Mark Bristol, American high commissioner at Constantinople, to Adnam Bey, former speaker of the Turkish assembly and chief agent of the Angora government at Constantinople. He personally expressed regrets, the state department was informed, and promised Admiral Bristol to obtain a statement of the circumstances from Angora at an early date. He was quoted as having assured Admiral Bristol that his government would do "its best to clarify this case."

Full details of the investigation, the cable received today said, will be reported by mail. Meanwhile state department officials will press their demands for a disavowal of the incident by the Turkish government, and will endeavor to have responsibility fixed and adequate amends made.

ATTORNEY APPEALS THE SCHLEIFER DECISION

New Haven, April 17.—An appeal was granted State's Attorney Alling of New Haven county by Judge Webb from the decision of the latter, in which the demurrer of counsel for Ernest Schleifer, labor leader, was sustained today. Mr. Alling will ask the general assembly to consider a bill which will meet conditions outlined by Judge Webb in his decision to the effect that inflammatory speech to incite violence such as was alleged against Schleifer cannot be punished in this state because there is no law to fit the case. Mr. Alling was to be in Hartford today seeking a hearing before the judiciary committee on a bill which he has drawn. Mr. Alling alleges in his motion for the right to appeal that Judge Webb erred in granting the motion of counsel for the defence, and in dismissing the complaint.

10-YEAR OLD OXFORD GIRL WAYLAID AND MALTREATED

Oxford, Conn., April 17.—Police assistance was called upon by the town authorities today to capture a man who waylaid ten year old Bertha Domsrad, and her brother, Adam, as they were going to school, threatening both with a revolver, and then maltreating the girl so badly that physicians sent her to the Griffin hospital in Derby. The boy was so rightened that he was unable for a time to tell about his experience, but later he described the man for whom a search is now going on.

NEW JAZZ DANCE RECORD 68 HOURS AND 40 MINUTES

New York, April 17.—The police of East Portchester, Conn., today stopped Vera Sheppard and Theodore Gill, marathon dancers who toured three states, after they had one-stepped continuously, in dance halls and moving vans, for 68 hours and 40 minutes, a world's record.

Chief of Police James J. Nedley stopped the dancers after he had watched them for about twenty minutes. The chief said the dancers came to East Portchester on their own hook and asked no ones permission to stage the dance. They did not have a license, and neither did the club where the affair was staged, he said.

In view of the fact that police officials in other cities had decided to keep the marathoners moving he knew of no reason why he should be an exception to the rule.

The dancers philosophically accepted the chief's point of view and stopped.

Houston, Texas, April 17.—When Miss Magdalene Williams was informed her dancing record of 65 hours and 53 minutes had been beaten she announced she would make an effort to win back her laurels on Monday.

GOMPERS DEFIES SOVIET GOVERNMENT OF RUSSIA

New York, April 17.—Samuel Gompers, addressing the annual convention of the national civic federation today, defied the soviet government of Russia to destroy the American Federation of Labor and himself as its president as a means, he declared, of its avowed plan to overthrow the republic of the United States.

"I don't know whether there will be any cause and effect in this statement," he said, "but I think it would help our government and our people to understand that regardless of the differences of nationality and nativity, that American labor would stand 100 per cent. behind the republic"

URGES CRUSADE AGAINST THE RUSSIAN SOVIETS

New York, April 17.—Cardinal Mercier of Belgium, heroic prelate of the World war, has written Columbia, the official magazine of the Knights of Columbus, suggesting that the league of nations start an international crusade against the Russian soviets to wipe out barbarism and safeguard civilization.

"In four years," wrote Cardinal Mercier, "the World war mowed down, I believe, ten millions of human lives. In a little more than that time bolshevist socialism has sacrified from twenty to thirty millions."

Death of Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle

Was Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church in U. S. —Was 86 Years Old.

St. Louis, Mo., April 17 (By the A. P.)—Right Rev. Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church in the United States, the oldest Anglican bishop in point of service in the world, died at his here here this afternoon. He was 86 years old.

Death came at 2.03 o'clock. He had been ill since Feb. 23, when he suffered an attack of grippe. Hope for his recovery was abandoned two weeks later, and his vitality shown in his remaining alive since then, has been ascribed as astounding by attending physicians.

With the aged prelate's death passed the system of awarding by seniority the office of presiding bishop of the United States, which Bishop Tuttle held by security since 1903. Under an arrangement voted at the Episcopal general convention in 1919, however, direction of the chuch's affairs has been placed in the hands of a national council, with an elected bishop as head. Bishop T. G. Gailor of Memphis, Tenn., heads this council at present.

Tolling of the bells at Christ church cathedral, the seat of the Missouri diocese of the church, Bishop Tuttle's diocese, was begun as soon as news of the churchman's demise was received.

Prayers for his recovery had been offered in the cathederal daily, and in all Episcopal churches in the diocese, since the serious character of his illness became known.

During his illness the venerable churchman was at times unconscious for long periods, while at other times he sat up, took nourishment and read from his prayer book.

Coadjutor Bishop Frederick Froote Johnson becomes, by automatic process, the bishop of Missouri, succeeding Bishop Tuttle. He is 56 years old and before coming here was bishop of the South Dakota diocese. He is related to the family of the late Mrs. Tuttle.

The bishop was opposed to woman suffrage, and favored local option as against statewide prohibition.

BISHOP GARRETT WILL SUCCEED BISHOP TUTTLE

New York, April 17.—Right Rev. Alexander Charles Garrett, D. D., bishop of Dallas, Tex., oldest living bishop in the American episcopate, will succeed Bishop Tuttle of St. Louis, who died today, as presiding bishop of the Episcopal church in the United States, it was stated at the offices of the national council.

He will hold office until 1925, when the next general convention of the church will elect a successor, who automatically will become president of the national council, a post now held by Bishop Thomas F. Gailor of Memphis, Tenn.

Bishop Garrett, who is the ranking bishop of the church in the order of consecration, is in his 91st year, five years older than Bishop Tuttle. He was not consecrated, however, bishop of the church until 1874, seven years after the consecration of Bishop Tuttle, who was one of his consecrators.

Bishop Garett entered the American chruch through the Church of England. He was born in Ballymote, County Sligo, Ireland, Nov. 4, 1832. Bishop Garett's father, grandfather and great-grandfather were rectors of the parish in Ballymote for 150 years, and he is the youngest of five brothers, all of whom were priests of the church. He was educated at the school for the sons of Irish clergy at Lucan, near Dublin, and afterwad at the University of Dublin, from which he graduated in 1855. He was ordained deacon July 6, 1856, and priest July 17, 1857, by the bishop of Winchester.

In 1869 he was called to San Francisco as rector of St. James' church, where he remained until 1872, when he was installed as dean of Trinity cathedral, Omaha, continuing in that post until he was elected missionary bishop of northern Texas by the Episcopal general convention of 1874.

Consecrated bishop of that district on Dec. 20 of the same year by Bishop Clarkson, Spaulding, Tuttle and Hare, Bishop Garett entered upon his work in Dallas Dec. 31, 1874. His work has since been devoted to building up the church in Texas, the diocese of Dallas having been organized in 1895, and Bishop Garrett installed as its bishop.

During his episcopacy Bishop Garrett has been responsible for the erection of 54 churches in addition to St. Mary's college, Dallas, of which he is chaplain, St. Matthew's home for children, Dallas, and All Saints' hospital, Fort Worth. He is the author of numerous theological works, including "Historical Continuity," "Philosophy of the Incarnation" and "Eternal Sacrifices" and other sermons.

Among those eulogized by Mrs. George Maynard Minor, president general, and other speakers was Mrs. Mary Smith Lockwood, one of the founders of the society, whose death occurred last November.

Part of the day was devoted to reports of committees and national officers, while the evening was given over to a reception. TWO WOMEN SAVE MAN FROM DROWNING

Springfield, Mass., April 17.—While scores of persons watched from the banks, two women in a rudely constructed yo wboat fought a thrilling battle with the swift current of the Chicopee river late this afternoon and succeeded in rescuing Ladislas Wozsck, of Ludlow, as he was about to be drawn over the dam at the Indian Orchard Company plant. Wozsck was towed to safety behind the rescue boat which was manned by Mrs. Alfred Goddu and Mrs. Henry Chenvert. Wozsck was crossing the river when his boat collapsed and sank.

The two women seeing him struggling in the river put out in their boat to his rescue.

Dublin, April 17.—(By the A. P.)—President Cosgrave, replying to a question by George Gavan Duffy in the Dail Eireann today, said he intended within a month to introduce a bill authorizing expenditure on the redemption of Irish Dail bonds issued in American and elsewhere.

Mr. Cosgrave, replying to criticisms that the taxes on tea, tobacco and income should be reduced, said the nation should bear the cost of starting the independent state and not pass it to the futire. It had not been considered whether it was possible to come to a final financial arrangement with Great Britain without arbitration, and the question must be postponed until conditions are normal.

President Cosgrave asserted that the arrest of the women had been followed by a cessation of violent activities in the city. CHARGES OF BOOTLEGGING AGAINST NEW YORK POLICE

New York, April 17.—Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield, investigating charges of bootlegging against the police, considered at today's hearing two specific cases in which irregularities were charged by City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan.

Luigi Caridi, poprietor of a restaurant on West Houston street, recalled, again denied he had told the magistrate that raiders had drunk his liquor and that some of his stock was peddled in the neighborhood soon after the raid. Testimony of his lawyer, Leslie S. Lockhart, that he had made these charges to Mr. Corrigan were untrue, he said.

After announcing that the testimony of Corrigan, Lockhart and Caridi would be sent to District Attorney Banton, Mr. Hirshfield turned to the case of Charles Tiernan, bartender in a Ninth avenue saloon, who charged he had been framed and that Detective "Bob" McAllister, track athlete, known as "the flying cop," had filled a bottle of water and presented it in court as evidence.

McAllister vigorously denied the testimony of this witness and the commissioner, asserting that the story was unbelievable, dubbed it "deliberate perjury."

Meanwhile Assistant United States Attorney Blue in Brooklyn heard a charge that a motorcycle policeman last Sunday had delayed three federal prohibition agents trailing a suspicious truck. He said he was particularly interested in the case in view of the talk that the police were standing in with bootleggers. He added, however, that he did not believe it was true in this case, and the charge apparently was dropped as far as the federal authorities were concerned.

The other members of the license board said they would uphold Chief Hill in any move.

the Grand Central Palace, April 21 to 28.

Publically, under supervision of Sir Arthur or his representatives, he would photograph any individual sitter and guarantee that aghost would appear on the plate in accordance with Sir Arthur'h instructions. Mr. Horgan said his demonstration would show up Sir Arthur's "spirit" photographs as entirely human in their production.

"Photographers realize that Sir Arthur has been completely hoodwinked by these pictures," said Mr. Horgan. "The general public may not know it, but during the war glass was scarce and photographic plates were used again and again. They were washed in many solutions and then resold. In many cases, however, light impressions of the original photographs remained on these plates.

"They were purchased by persons who did not know they had been used previously and, naturally, if the blurred faint impressions appeared on them many persons were fooled into believing them super-natural. Such plates are known to the trade as "ghosts." The persons selling these plates took great care in cleaning them, but a photographic plate is extremely sensitive and it is difficult to remove all former impressions."

LIQUOR CHARGES AGAINST RHODE ISLAND DRUGGISTS

Providence, R. I., April 17.—Acting Prohibition Director Harry G. Sheldon today cited 15 Rhode Island druggists to show cause on and after May 4 why their federal permits to dispense liquors for medicinal purposes on physicians' prescriptions should not be revoked.

The charges, according to Mr. Sheldon, include falsifying of accounts, shortages of liquors, filling orders without prescriptions, direct sales of liquor without prescriptions and possessing liquors not legally acquired.

STATE SOLDIERS' BONUS BILL UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Attorney General Healy Bases Opinion on Precedents Established in This State, Massachusetts and New York—Declares That Submission of the Bill to a Referendum Vote by the Citizens of the State Would Add Nothing to Its Validity.

Hartford, April 17.—The soldiers' bonus bill now before the general assembly was declared unconstitutional by Attorney General Frank E. Healy in an opinion given to the committee on military affairs at an executive session today. As a result of this decision, it was authoritatively learned, the committee will report the bill unfavorably.

The attorney general also declared that the submission of the bill to a referendum vote by the citizens of the state would add nothing to its validity.

In summing up the reasons for his opinion, he said:

"I am not unmindful of the sacrifices which had to be made by the soldiers in winning the war, and I, in common with the rest of the people of the state, glory in that high achievement.

"But, fundamental principles as set forth in our Constitution, cannot be evaded or denied because of feeling of gratitude or patriotism. The war would have been fought in vain, if, in the government of a free people, life, liberty or property was no longer secure. This country has experienced many wars since the adoption of the present Constitution, and where legislation of this character has been enacted, it has been declared invalid.

"This statute seeks to equalise in some measure economic conditions by paying a bounty for past military services. Being an expenditure of public money for a private, and not a public, purpose it would, in my opinion, be unconstitutional."

The opinion is based on precedents established in this state, Massachusetts and New York. In the New York case, the attorney general said: "The people of the state of New York approved a bonus bill similar in character to the one under consideration by a majority of over two to one, but its highest court declared it unconstitutional because on its face the act itself was an attempt, not to pay a claim, but to give a reward."

The Connecticut cases cited were those of Beach versus Bradstreet and the state versus Conlon. The first case resulted from the passage in 1911 of an act giving a pension of $30 a month to every resident of the state who had served in the Civil war. At that time the attorney general declared that the act was unconstitutional and said: "The unconstitutionality of this act is rested upon the single specific ground that it devotes public funds to private ends. * * * No public purpose is subserved by taking by taxation the property of the many and giving it under the guise of state support, to those who are out of reach of its need."

The attorney general so commented on the taxation problem which would result if the bill were passed. Declaring that 83,000 persons would be eligible to the bonus, he said that the present revenues of the state would be insufficient and that the general assembly would have no constitutional right to devise new taxes to provide the necessary funds. The bill would provide for the payment of $10 a month for every month of service from April 6, 1917, to November 11, 1918, to men and women in the military service.

Pointing out that the bill makes no distinction between volunteers and conscripted men, the attorney general said: "When war was declared by the United States and the quota of the army was apportioned on the basis of population among the several states, the patriotic had already volunteered. The conscripts were taken as an incident to citizenship in the government of free people. The selective draft act provides in terms that no bonus should be given to men conscripted under it, and that no substitute should be accepted."

PHOTOGRAPHER CHALLENGES SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

New York, April 17.—Stephen H. Horgan, an old-time New York photographer and an expert on engraving, today challenged Sir Arthur Conan Doyle to name a ghost picture subject for photography he could not produce. Mr. Horgan promised to produce so called "spirit" photographs under instructions given by Sir Arthur and the International Photographic Arts and Crafts exposition at

TO INCREASE PRESSURE AGAINST THE GERMANS

Duesseldorf, April 17.—(By the A. P.)—The French and Belgian ministers of war conferred here today with the military commanders in the Ruhr in regard to measures for putting into effect the increased pressure against the Germans agreed upon at the recent Franco-Belgian conference in aris.

M. Maginot, the French war minister, told the newspaper correspondents after the conference that, while the allies were resolved to intensify their measures, the new plans did not call for any extension of the occupied area. His inspection of the district, he said, showed that, while many obstacles had been encountered, the results of the occupation were in nowise discouraging.

The French continue to confiscate German money sent into the Ruhr wherever they suppose it is designed to encourage the resistance to the occupying forces; 150,000,000 marks have been taken at Recklinghausen and 22,000,000 marks at Duesseldorf. The Germans say this money was not intended for the strikers but for the unemployed.

FAILED TO FIND CLUE OR PIECE OF JEWELRY

New York, April 17.—Dr. A. E. Austin, health officer of Greenwich, Conn., returned from Europe on the Majestic today. He spent four months abroad studying at the universities in Berlin and Vienna. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter. Returning empty-handed after three months of private sleuthing through France, Albert R. Shattuck, another passenger renewed his offer of $20,000 reward for the capture of Bandits who last year locked him and his wife in the basement of their Washington Square home and escaped with a fortune in jewels.

In January, after detectives here had lost all trace of the robbers, Shattuck announced he had a tip they were in Paris. He sailed with his wife, determined to run them down.

"But I didn't find a clue—or a piece of the jewelry," he said today. "The $20,000 reward still stands." Mrs. Shattuck is remaining in Paris.

BRUTALITIES IN FLORIDA COUNTY CONVICT CAMPS

Tallahassee, Fla., April 17.—(By The A. P.)—The joint commission of the Florida legislature investigating reported brutalities in state and county convict camps today heard gruesome testimony in connection with the death of Martin Tabert, of North Dakota, who died while serving a sentence in the camp of the Putnam Lumber Company near Ciara, Fla.

A. B. Shivers, former convict guard at the Putnam camp, held the committee spell-bound as he related how prisoners were flogged by the "whipping boss." He declared whipping was a daily occurrence and that from one to five men were whipped each day.

Shivers named Walter Higginbotham, now under a first degree murder indictment, as the "whipping boss" of the camp and who gave Tabert more than 100 licks, he said, with a heavy strap four days before the youth died.

He declared this particular whipping administered to Tabert was done in the presence of 80 to 90 convicts and guards; that after more than 100 strokes had been given the youth, the "whipping boss" followed Tabert as he staggered in a half circle about the camp, hitting him over the head with the handle of the strap.

Prior to Shivers' taking the stand, Sheriff J. R. Jones of Tallahassee, testified as to the arrest, conviction and leasing of Tabert to the lumber company.

MAY COLONIZE ARMENIAN REFUGEES IN RUSSIA

Paris, April 17 (By the A. P.)—George R. Montgomery, director of the Armenia America Society, is sailing for the United States on the steamship Olympic tomorrow, bearing an authorization from the Russian government to arrange for the colonization in Russia of the Armenian refugees, of which there are about 300,000 in various parts of the Near East, notably Syria, Greece, the Aegean Islands and Constantinople.

It is possible that an international commission may be formed to handle the refugees. Upon his arrival in the United States, Dr. Montgomery will lay the results of his mission before those who have been interested in finding a safe asylum for the Armenians.

OBITUARY

Rev. Dr. George Clark Houghton

New York, April 17.—The Rev. Dr. George Clark Houghton, pastor for the last 26 years of the famous "Little Church Around the Corner," died suddenly of heart disease in the church rectory today.

Dr. Houghton, who was 70 years old, was called in 1897 to succeed his uncle, the Rev. George Hendric Houghton, as rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, the official name of the little church.

Dr. Houghton was fond of recalling the manner in which his church got its familiar name. The story runs that, on the death of an actor friend, Joseph Jefferson was told at an imposing church on Fifth avenue that funeral services could not be held there for a member of his profession, but that arrangements could be made at "a little church around the corner" Jefferson's fervent "God bless the little church around the corner" fixed the name.

After that many weddings and funerals of stage people were conducted at the church, and to it came young couples seeking matrimony free from parental interference and also strangers in the city who wanted a religious, instead of a civil ceremony.

At the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination, the things that pleased the old clergyman most were two memorial gifts from the dramatic profession.

Born in New York, and educated at St. Stephen's college and at the General Theological Semipary, Dr. Houghton was ordained in 1871 by the Right Rev. Horatio Potter, bishop of New York. His first call was as an assistant priest in Trinity parish.

Upon arrival at the house Rev. and Mrs. Pearce were informed that they would have to suspend their packing up preparations and enjoy themselves for a few hours.

During the course of the evening, John N. Williams presented Mr. Pearce a sum of money in behalf of the Men's club and made a few timely remarks. Rev. Pease's reply was made with a great deal of feeling. On behalf of the Ladies' Society, Miss Katherine Peacock presented Mrs. Pearce a set of solid silver tea spoons. Before leaving for their respective hosts those present expressed wishes of success to Rev. and Mrs. Pearce in their new field of labor.

The funeral of Mrs. Adorna S. Sweet was held Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock at the late home in South Windham. Rev. C. B. MacDuffee conducted the services and was assisted by Rev. Arthur W. Barney Gunshinan, the club's professional instructor, is supervising the work of a force of men who are getting the course in excellent shape for the coming season. Two new greens are being installed making a total of nine holes as compared with seven last year.

There is no doubt but that the local club has been unusually successful considering its short existence and the officers and members are very enthusiastic over the prospects. Mr. Gunshinan was agreeably surprised to find the local course in such fine condition for a two year old course.

The Willimantic Lodge, No. 1300, B. P. O. E., will stage Ladies' night at the state armory on Pleasant street on Friday evening and it promises to be an unusually brilliant affair. Mr. Lincoln, in his introductory remarks, stated that we do not consider how recklessly we have been cutting down our trees. It is safe to say that we have wasted our natural resources to an appalling degree and we have got to stand the consequences. He made mention of the fact that the Honorable Olive A. Hiscox who was to speak of the county forestry was unable to be present because of illness. Mr. Hiscox is a member of the Windham County committee and he has represented the town of Woodstock in the state legislature. Mr. Lincoln said that Mr. Hiscox was a very interesting man who has given much attention to forestry in Windham county.

Frank L. Davis of Putnam, county agent of the Windham County Forest association was the first speaker and he addressed the assembly on Fertsry in the farm. Mr. Davis was listened to with much attention as he compared the connection between the farm and the forestry problem in an interesting manner. Henry I. Baldwin, secretary of the Connecticut Forestry association, explained the purposes of that organization and, in behalf of the association thanked the people of Windham county for the interest manifested in the campaign in the interest of forestry preservation and he stated that he was glad that the committee had become so active in the county as to arrange this meeting. He said that the officers were glad of the support which the citizens recorded.

How We Handle Fires was the subject of a very interesting address by District Fire Warden Alfred P. Abbee. Walter Filley of New Haven of the state park and forest commission was called upon by Chairman Lincoln and stated that we have got to look forward to the time when Connecticut will have a greater population and accordingly needs will be greater for timber and its products. Chairman Lincoln appointed a committee Egbert A. Case, Mrs. John Reilly, Elizabeth L. Branch, Daniel Chesebro, A. W. Buchana, Jr., to draft suitable resolutions. State Forester A. F. Hawes of Hartford was the concluding speaker of the evening, his subject being Why Forestry is Taught. It was illustrated. After the meeting luncheon was served by the committee of the chamber of commerce.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. If is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clean" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. Used 30c.

AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAMS GET AWAY TODAY IN RACE FOR 1923 PENNANT

New York, April 17 (By the A. P.)—With the national league tordes as busy as the worst bees—prepared to knock off the first game of the season in the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon, when the Boston Braves open a opening carnage, the spotlight in the junior circuit will be directed toward the smoke troops of the New York Yankees, victors in two successive campaigns, who will undertake the yankee stadium, their first appearance on the bronx, in the opening skirmish with the Boston Red Sox.

Washington will pry off the lid against the Athletics in Philadelphia, while in the west Tris Speaker's Cleveland Indians will entertain the Chicago White Sox and the "Sisterless" St. Louis Browns will be hosts to Ty Cobb's Detroit Tigers.

Possibility of a new record for baseball attendance being established at the Yankee stadium opening was forecast late today by announcement that the entire reserved seat capacity of 38,000 had been sold. At noon tomorrow 30,000 additional grandstand seats and 20,000 bleacher seats will be put on public sale at the park, with indications pointing to the limit of 70,000 being touched.

The present attendance record is 42,324, made at Boston Oct. 12, 1916, in a world's series game between the Boston Red Sox and Brooklyn.

The Yankee dedication ceremonies will be witnessed by a host of official notables, including Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, Governor Alfred E. Smith, Mayor John F. Hylan and others. Ban Johnson, president of the American league, was compelled to forego attendance because of an attack of influenza.

The Yankees, with their 1922 lineup intact, and an all-star twirling staff buttressed by the addition of Southpaw Herb Pennock, will take the field tomorrow favored by a majority of critics to repeat their triumphs of 1921 and 1922. The club will start the season in better shape than a year ago, when Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel were out of the lineup for a month, suspended by Commissioner Landis as a result of an unsanctioned barnstorming tour.

Ruth and his mighty bludgeon, intent upon a come-back to retrieve prestige lost last season, will be an important factor in the Yankee attack.

Detroit, more powerful on the offensive than the champions, but lacking as reliable and well-rounded a hurling corps, looms as the contender-in-chief for the Yankees' laurels. Ty Cobb has instilled into his men a will-to-win which will be hard to beat.

The addition of two costly third basemen, both from the Pacific coast, has played a prominent part in improving the pennant chances of both Chicago and Philadelphia. Willie Kamm, from San Francisco, gives every indication of being worth all of the $100,000 he cost the White Sox, while Sammy Hale, obtained by Connie Mack from Portland for around $45,000, promises to give the Athletics the best in field since the days of the famous "$100,000 quartet."

St. Louis, minus George Sisler, its mainspring on both attack and defense, does not figure to land near the top. Cleveland has strengthened several positions with promising young talent and may be the surprise of the race, but Boston and Washington, in the hands of new pilots, Frank Chance and Donie Bush, appear irretrievably moored to the second division.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE GETS UNDER WAY TODAY

New York, April 17.—(By the A. P.)—With prospects of an unusually keen pennant race, due to a better balancing of clubs than has existed in several years, the International league will start blazing the 1923 trail tomorrow.

Opening festivities will be staged in the southern wing of the circuit, Syracuse playing at Baltimore, Buffalo at Reading, Toronto at Jersey City and Rochester at Newark.

"The outlook for 1923 seems unusually bright," declared John Conway Toole, president of the league, who will assist in the opening ceremonies at Reading.

Despite the loss of Jack Bentley, star pitcher and hitter, who was sold to the Giants, and the fact that several veterans have slowed up a bit, Jack Dunn's Baltimore Orioles, four-time champions, are picked by a majority of critics to add another triumph to their string.

The titleholders, however, it is predicted, will face stiffer opposition, particularly from Rochester, Buffalo, Toronto and Reading.

Assignment of umpires for opening games was announced tonight by President Toole as follows: Newark, Carpenter, James and Hett; Jersey City, Gaston and Magerkurth; Baltimore, Geisel and McDevitt; Reading, McBride and Phyle.

New York, April 17.—Seeking new laurels and commissioned with the defense of those already won, nine representatives of the first flight of American golfers sailed for England on the Mauretania today. Best known of these were Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, Francis Ouimet, and S. Davidson Herron, former American amateur champions, and Jess Sweetser, the present title holder.

This quartet, with George V. Rotan, of Houston, Texas, Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, Oregon; Fred Wright, Los Angeles; Max Marston, Philadelphia; and Harrison R. Johnston, of St. Paul are members of the Walker cup team, which will defend the trophy won by Americans from British players on the national links last year. The play for the cup this year will be on the links at St. Andrew's, Scotland, on May 17 and 18.

Others in the party were J. F. Byers of Pittsburgh, president of the United States Golf association, Guy Standifer, of Washington, D. C., and Jack Neville, of San Francisco, who boarded the ship as the gangplank was being pulled in.

Captain Gardner expressed confidence that the cup would remain in America.

"We've got a pretty likely lot," he said, "and Sweetser helps a great deal."

DODGERS BATTLE PHILLIES TO 15-INNING TIE

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 17.—Brooklyn and Philadelphia battled fourteen innings to a 5-5 tie to open the season here today. Ruether, who beat the Philadelphians seven straight last season, went the entire fourteen innings. The visitors used four pitchers. Hubbell had a three run lead up to the sixth, when the Dodgers bunched three singles, filling the bases with one out. Mitchell, last season with Brooklyn, relieved Hubbell. A sacrifice fly, two passes and a scratch hit by Ruether, tied the score and sent Mitchell to the showers.

Winters and Betts blanked the Dodgers during the remainder of the game, although the latter had ten men left on bases during that stage, and fifteen altogether. Score:

M'QUILLAN PITCHES GIANTS TO FIRST 1923 VICTORY

Boston, April 17.—McQuillan pitched the world champion Giants to a 4 to 1 victory over the Braves in the opening game today. He was hit safely only four times and did not let ragged support bother him. Groh's triple and home run, both off McNamara, accounted for three New York runs. Despite the cold, there were 16,000 present to encourage President Christy Mathewson of the Boston club in new venture.

The army, marines and navy had picked men in the drill before the game. Commissioner Landis, Governor Cox and Mayor Curley acted as catcher, pitcher and batter, respectively, in the ceremony of throwing the first ball. O'Connell, Bagwell and Conlon played in their first big league game. The score:

RECORD CROWD SEES CUBS-PIRATES GAME

Chicago, April 17.—Between 33,000 and 34,000 persons, the largest crowd on record to witness an opening game in Chicago, packed the reconstructed Chicago-Nationals' ball park today and saw Pittsburgh win the first game of the season from Chicago, 3 to 2. The park, enlarged to twice its seating capacity during the winter was opened shortly after noon and by game time all seats had been sold and the fans were standing three and four deep back of the top row of seats.

The usual opening day ceremonies took place, Mayor Dever of Chicago pitching the first ball, and John Heydler, president of the National league, being the guest of honor.

The game itself was a good exhibition, the visitors winning it in the fourth inning, when Grimm uncorked a double to right with the bases filled, and two men out. He tried to stretch his hit to a triple but was retired at third. Aside from this one inning the Pirates had no other opportunity to score, so well did Osborne pitch. The passes in this frame and a fumble by Kelleher who played short in the absence of Hollocher, who is confined at his home in St. Louis with influenza, preceded Grimm's winning blow.

Chicago bunched hits in the second inning and put across the first run of the game, and added another run in the seventh when Morrison became unsteady and walked Miller. The next two outs put Miller on third and he romped home when Morrison cut loose with a wild pitch. Aside from these two frames Morrison pitched effectively. Score:

PADDOCK BARRED FROM COMPETING IN PARIS

New York, April 17.—The board of governors of the National Amateur Athletic union tonight refused to grant an appeal by Charles W. Paddock, University of Southern California sprint star and world's record holder, for sanction to take part in an international college track meet at Paris in May.

The board's decision was based on its feeling that an exception in Paddock's case could not be made to the recent A. A. U. ruling barring all American athletes, except the Yale-Harvard track team, from participating in international meets abroad this year. This ruling was effected to assure concentration upon America's preparation for the Olympic games at Paris next year.

Paddock, after presenting his case to the board of governors, announced that he would acquiesce in the decision and not take part in the Paris meet, but would go abroad anyway for business reasons, which he planned originally to combine with his athletic venture. He has booked passage to sail Friday.

The sprinter, who has been in training for some time, was plainly disappointed by failure to obtain sanction to compete abroad. He had felt, he said, that no objection would be raised inasmuch as the meet at Paris was a college affair.

The board of governors pointed out that the meet was not of regular intercollegiate character but promoted by student interests in Paris.

The exception made in the case of the Harvard-Yale's track team's meet with Oxford-Cambridge in England next July, was due to the fact that plans for it had been made about two years ago.

REDS TAKE FAST PLAYED GAME FROM CARDINALS

Cincinnati, O., April 17.—The Reds opened the National league season here today by winning a well played 11 inning game from the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2. Donohue was hit freely but kept them scattered except in the seventh, and eighth rounds. Hornsby, leading hitter of the National league, did not get one safe hit in five times up, but Bottomly made four singles. The Reds fielded without an error. The paid attendance of $6,338 broke the opening day record for Redland field. The score:

BIG OLYMPIC COMMITTEE TO BE SELECTED

New York, April 17.—Appointment of a general committee of 3,000, representing athletic interests in every state and important city of the country, was authorized tonight by the executive committee of the American Olympic committee to promote interest in, and enlist support for, this country's participation in the international games at Paris next year.

The names of 1,200 men were suggested to the executive committee as a nucleus for the general organization which will have more than six times the membership of a similar committee appointed for the 1920 Olympics. It is hoped to complete the list of 3,000 before May 1.

Adoption of a new code of rules to govern the work of the American Olympic committee, additions of more than a score of members to the executive committee and discussion of preliminary plans for sending this country's athletes abroad were other matters taken up tonight.

A tentative report was submitted calling for the sending of a team of nearly 350 athletes in various branches of sport to Paris but the executive committee expressed its belief that this representation should be cut down to around 250.

Major General Henry T. Allen, former commander of the American Army of Occupation, was added to the executive committee as executive officer.

Other additions to the committee of which Colonel Robert. M. Thompson, of New York, is chairman, included: M. F. Loughman, Herbert L. Pratt, and Judge J. P. Mahoney, of New York; J. W. Wear and C. E. Cox, of Philadelphia; Fred W. Moore, graduate manager of Harvard athletics; T. Morris Dunne, of Portland, Ore.; Edwin S. Schaefer, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Samuel Goodman, of San Francisco; Colonel Washington Bowie, of Baltimore; A. J. Geiger, of Boston; J. J. Mitchell, of Chicago, and John K. Tener, of Pittsburgh, former governor of Pennsylvania.

REGULARS BEAT PONIES IN PRACTICE GAME

"Zimbo" Zimmerman, Manager Art Wilson's trusty lieutenant, had charge of the Pittsfield Hillies during their practice here Tuesday morning and afternoon. The afternoon practice was featured by a five-inning game between the Regulars and Zimbo's Ponies in which the Ponies were ridden hard on the short end of a 4 to 4 score. The regulars started off strong, scoring two runs on hits by Leary, Leathers and a double by "Hank" Bosse. The Ponies scored their one run in the last half of the second stanza on a hit by Sullivan and a hit by Tetrault.

Johnny Tillman and "Babe" Demers did the hurling for the regulars while VanAlstyne and Batchelder performed on the mound for the Ponies. VanAlstyne is fast rounding into form and his fast ones are breaking prettily. Colonel Snover and Gallegher did not work out.

After the game there was a short infield practice rounding out one of the best days of practice since the Hillies arrived.

Manager Wilson is in New York attending the Dodgers-Phillies games and will then go to Boston for a look at the Giants and Braves. Manager Wilson while saying that he was simply going to see the games between the big league teams, it is thought, will get a line on some of the youngsters that are likely to be farmed out when the major teams start cutting down.

Howie Baker, last year's outfielder, was out with the boys yesterday and started in strong banging the first practice ball over the exhibition hall. Howie is in great condition and faster than ever.

Gus Gardella went to New Haven yesterday to see the Toronto-Pröfs game in which Johnny Bates played. Kenyon, who played with the local Kacey team here last season caught for Toronto.

After yesterday's workout the boys look much better than they did during the latter part of last week and many are showing a very great improvement in their work.

GOOD CARD FOR BENEFIT SHOW AT NEW LONDON

Followers of boxing are just beginning to realize that a rather remarkable card is being offered for the big Boy Scout benefit at the Lyceum theatre at New London on next Friday night. Any card that has been picked out by the Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue and Promoter George Dwyer of Bridgeport is sure to have merit. At the top of the bill is that sterling performer, Frankie Quill of Brockton, and that redoubtable battler, Izzy Tanner, of St. Paul. Recently this pair fought at Hartford and the battle was described as one of the "fightingest" battles ever staged in a capital City ring. These boys are on the card for a 12 round encounter at 150 pounds.

The semi-final bout will be a ten-round bout between Tracy Ferguson of Wallingford and Jim Latzo of Bridgeport at 147 pounds.

The second preliminary will feature Steven Smith of Bridgeport and Willie Angelo of Stamford in a six-round go at 126 pounds.

Young Petit of Bridgeport and Young Downey of Stamford will stage the first preliminary, going four rounds at 122 pounds.

As the event is for the benefit of the Boy Scouts all friends of the boys are invited to pitch in and give this deserving organization the support it deserves.

EASTERN CONN. LEAGUE HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Representatives of the Taftville, Plainfield and Jewett City baseball teams, members of the Eastern Connecticut baseball league last season met at the Ashland club house, Jewett City, Tuesday evening to discuss plans and possibilities for continuing the league another season.

The general sentiment of the meeting was that the league could be successfully conducted this coming season and that fans and players in the towns represented were enthusiastic about the continuation of the league. Willimantic, while not represented at the meeting had previously expressed the desire not to give up its franchise. New London was not represented and no word was received from this club.

The league last season was not a howling success but it is thought with proper publicity and cooperation of the fans in the town represented in the league that this year it will go over big. The sporting department of the Bulletin stands ready to cooperate with each and every team at all times to further a league in this part of the state.

There will be another meeting at the Ashland club in Jewett city next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock and any team desiring to enter the league this year is cordially invited to send representatives to this meeting.

HEARNE WILL DRIVE FOR CLIFF DURANT

Eddie Hearne, veteran of many speed duels, will drive one of Clifford Durant's four cars in the 500-mile international sweepstakes at Indianapolis on Memorial Day. In Hearne Durant has chosen a consistent, heady, pilot, who is always a contender in any rase in which he takes part. Hearne has all the spirit of a youngster coupled with that sound judgment which comes with years of experience on a speed course.

The redoubtable Eddie is usually an odds-on favorite to complete any race he enters as a member of the first group to get across the finish mark. There is nothing flashy about his driving, however, and a casual spectator would scarcely know he was in the race until it came time for the checkered finish flag, and then he would generally find that Eddie was one of the first to nod an assent to it.

LITTLE DIFFERENCE IN OPENING ATTENDANCES

Chicago, April 17—A comparison of attendance record sin the four cities where the National league opened its 1923 season today and the 1922 attendance records for the opening day showed a difference in the totals of less than one thousand, the edge being in favor of the 1923 season.

MULDOON LIFTS HIS OFFICIAL BAN ON JOHNSON-FULTON BOUT

New York, April 17.—Floyd Johnson, Iowa aspirant for heavyweight boxing laureis, will go through with his much-dreaded match with Fred Fulton, Minnesota plasterer, next Monday night at Jersey City, and risk, upon the result, his chances of meeting Jess Willard in the main bout of the charity show at the Yankee stadium May 12.

This announcement was made tonight after William Muldoon, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, withdrew his order barring Johnson from boxing Fulton until after his scheduled match with Willard.

Under the arrangement reached after a series of conferences during the day, Johnson will forfeit to Fulton his place on the Yankee stadium card in the event he is defeated by the veteran Minnesota boxer. Thus he will not only risk his pugilistic future on the bout but also a purse of $25,000 he was to have received for boxing Willard.

Fulton, who previously had offered to fight without compensation at the charity show, signed an agreement on this basis, to be effective if he defeats the young Iowan.

Should such an upset develop, it was declared tonight that Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight, who is matched to box Jack McAuliffe, 2d, of Detroit, on the same card, probably would be substituted for Johnson against Willard, with McAuliffe and Fulton as a second attraction. Firpo already has signed to take the place of either Johnson or Willard in an emergency.

As New Jersey boxing laws do not permit a decision, it was agreed to leave the verdict on the bout, a 12-round affair, to the majority opinion of sporting writers on New York morning newspapers.

Earlier today Newton K. Bugbee, New Jersey boxing commissioner, had announced Johnson and his manager, Charley Cook, were indefinitely suspended for failure to go through with the Fulton match last night, when it was originally scheduled. Mr. Bugbee also threatened to break off friendly relations with the New York commission unless his action was upheld here.

The threatened split, however, was avoided by Muldoon's change of front. Muldoon was swayed in his decision, it was said, by appeals from Cook and Tex Rickard, promoter of the Yankee stadium show, that Johnson be permitted to go through with the Fulton match, for which he had signed prior to the New York commissioner's edict. They argued that if the Iowan was not able to defeat Fulton he was not entitled to fight Willard.

ED WALSH A LEADER IN FUNGO HITTING

Ed Walsh, former White Sox pitching star, tried umpiring last year in the American League but failed to make the grade. They do say that he was once a player, which very naturally interfered with his chances.

Next to pitching, Walsh likes to hit fungoes. He holds the record for long-distance fly ball hitting. That will be one of his duties this summer as first assistant to Manager Kid Gleason of the White Sox.

Last year Walsh a number of times, while attired in umpire garb, would spend much of his time before the game hitting fungoes to the ball players. It is needless to say that President Johnson hardly thought that in keeping with the duties of the umpire.

JACQUES FOURNIER TO MANAGE SEMI-PRO TEAM

Jacques Fournier, veteran first sacker, who was obtained by the Robins from the Cardinals, has signed to manage a semi-pro club in Centralia, Ill., according to reports. If this is true he will be suspended by President Ebbets of the Brooklyns on the first day of the National league championship season. The Robins have made several attempts to get Fournier to report, but he has turned down all offers advanced by Squire Ebbets and Manager Robbie. The Robins have not been officially notified that Fournier is now manager of a semi-pro club.

IRISH COUNCIL REFUSES TO POSTPONE GAMES

Dublin, April 17.—(By the A. P.)—The general council of the Irish Olympic games decided tonight to postpone them until the first fortnight in August, 1924, owing to conditions in Ireland. It had been the intention to hold the games in August of this year.

The holding of the Irish games in August, 1924, would conflict with the regular Olympic games, which are to be held in the Colmbes stadium in the suburbs of Paris, next summer.

HE'S JUST AS GOOD AT WRESTLING AS AT BOXING

There is another budding heavyweight out in the west who is just as good in the wrestling ring as he is with the mitts. The two-sport marvel is Paul Krauski of the University of Iowa. Krauski won all sorts of fame for himself the other night by winning the heavyweight boxing championship of the university and then annexing the Iowa campus heavyweight wrestling laurels 30 minutes later.

CAMPBELL GETS BROKEN JAW AT PINEHURST

Pinehurst, N. C., April 17.—Lieutenant J. C. Campbell, a star player on the Fort Bragg polo team, suffered a broken jaw while practicing at Pinehurst today for a game in which his team was to oppose the Sand Hill Blues in the annual spring polo tournament.

This was Lieutenant Campbell's third accident in the course of the winter polo season. He had several ribs broken in a hard fall in January and suffered a broken arm a month later.

JERSEY COMMISSION WILL LIFT SUSPENSION

Trenton, N. J., April 17—Commissioner of Boxing Newton A. K. Bugbee, late today announced that the suspension imposed earlier in the day against Floyd Johnson, heavyweight contender, and his manager, Charles Cook, would be lifted if the boxer goes through with his agreement to fight Fred Fulton at Jersey City next Monday night.

LAPORTE CLERGYMAN PLAYS SUNDAY BALL

A semi-pro baseball clergyman has come to the fore out in Indiana. The Rev. J. J. Gapczynski, of Laporte, has furnished the reformers of his neighborhood something to rave about by announcing his intention of heading a regular semi-professional nine to play in Laporte every Sunday afternoon this summer. He will don a uniform and manage the team.

Looking for Games

Thomas Colgan, manager for the Berkshire nine, one of Bridgeport's fastest semi-pro teams, is desirous to arrange games with any semi-pro team in Norwich and vicinity preferably a Norwich Catholic club or Rockville Town team. For arrangements get in touch with Thomas Colgan, Berkshire A. A., 1037 Kossuth street, Bridgeport, Conn.

EFFICIENT TRANSPORTATION.

At all times the country is greatly dependent upon its railroads. Transportation must be had and the more efficient, the greater the satisfaction. When it fails it affects everyone directly or indirectly.

For that reason it can be fully appreciated that whatever efforts can be put forth by the shippers to overcome handicaps to better service will be beneficial to the degree that such cooperation should be cheerfully forthcoming.

Secretary Hoover in a letter to trade bodies has been urging the assistance of the shippers that the railroads in preparation for increased business this year may be able to handle the business more expeditiously and without congestion. It isn't solely for the benefit of the railroads, but for the general good of the transportation situation.

Everyone knows what procrastination does and what trouble follows congestion. In the interest of prevention Secretary Hoover urges upon shippers:

"The advance storage of their winter coal during the light consuming season—that is, from now until September 1, including the early movement of lake traffic.

"The loading of all cars to full capacity, their prompt loading and discharge.

"Reduction of reconsignment shipments and restriction of to-order bills of lading.

"Demands for no more cars from the railways than can be promptly used."

Like the prompt loading and unloading of cars there is much to be gained through a general effort for the elimination of congestion. With the roads and the shipers working together to a common end, greater efficiency in transportation can be expected. It is not the good effect it might have upon the railroads alone that need to be considered but the general good that is certain to result. Whatever contributions can be made to the goal of improved transportation is worth making.

GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS.

More government buildings are being sought in Washington. The demand for them is nothing new. Each year there is pointed out the lack of proper protection for valuable records, the lack of room for various departments and the economy that would result if the government erected its own, properly designed and fireproof structures instead of paying the enormous rents that are demanded for leased buildings or floorspace. There are instances where owners of buildings would welcome such a chance to get even larger rentals for their property than the government is paying.

The latest suggestion for such construction comes from the public buildings commission which, as the result of a survey it has made, will urge upon the next congress the expenditure of a sum aggregating about $15,000,000 for such purposes. There is a demand for new buildings for the internal revenue department, for the department of justice, for a general accounting office building and for a building to house the national archives.

In the past the chief objection that has been raised against such an expenditure has been that the government had more urgent need for its funds in other directions and that such outlays could wait without any serious harm. Even though greater economy and efficiency would result the amount that would be required has been sufficient to block an appropriation. Possibly the situation might be met piecemeal but with the demands for the curtailment of expenditures and taxation there seems to be no greater likelihood of favorable action for the entire project in the next session of congress than in the past. The fact that such work can wait without serious harm is usually sufficient excuse for unfavorable action.

RUSSIA'S OWN FAULT.

Strange as it may seem there are those in this country who are deploring the action of this government in refusing permission to the wife of the president of the soviet government of Russia to land in the United States. The number is small but such are deploring the fact that the opportunity to make an appeal for the starving children of Russia is being denied. They have become terribly worked up over the position of the Russian orphans, but they give no thought to what is responsible for the orphans and what is at the present time doing nothing for them but leaving it to those whose tender mercies can be worked upon to give just that much indirect financial assistance to the soviet government.

The wife of the Russian president would have represented the soviet government even though her pleas would have been in behalf of the Russian children. She would have accepted the chance in telling how suffering they are. We doubt very much if Mrs. Kalinin would have been allowed to see the huge grain crop that Russia produced, and the fact that three and a half million pounds of grain were exported during the year. That grain wasn't used for the purpose of relieving the starvation conditions, nor were the proceeds from its sale. It was utilized for the support of the soviet government, and the expectation was that those who have been putting up millions for the purpose of relieving the distress in Russia would be sufficiently urged to continue to carry on their charitable activities.

It is a beautiful sentiment, of course, that something should be done for the neglected children of Russia, but somehow Russia doesn't seem to think that any responsibility rests upon its own shoulders in furnishing the needed relief. The fact of the matter is that if Russia was devoting its production to such ends as any other country in similar circumstances would do, there would not be any necessity for such an appeal.

In view of the attitude Russia has been taking for a long time no other action could reasonably have been expected by this government when it gave notice that Mme. Kalinin would not be admitted.

THE BONUS BILL.

That the opinion of the attorney general to the effect that the proposed bonus bill is unconstitutional will serve as the guide of the general assembly, as well as the committee on military affairs, is to be expected.

What is being attempted in this state is only what has been undertaken in others where state constitutions stood in the way. It is also only what was attempted a decade or so ago when a state pension for the Civil war veterans was sought. It is not even an instance where the appeal is in behalf of the disabled but for the able bodied, and where, if adopted, unjust discrimination would be shown between the veterans of previous wars and those of the last.

The military affairs committee has not disclosed what its recommendations would be regardless of the constitutionality question. But with the opinion of the attorney general to the effect that such a law would amount to nothing if enacted there appears to be no other course to pursue than to be guided thereby, even if there should have been a favorable disposition toward such legislation.

Connecticut made provision some time since, through the establishment of a fund of two and a half million, for the relief of veterans and their families who were in need of such assistance. The benefits of such a fund are highly preferable to any general bonus plan. The decision of the attorney general should serve to hasten the report on the Bill and its final disposition.

PUNISHING THE RECKLESS.

Western Massachusetts is much interested at the present time in the case where an auto was driven into a crowd of people waiting for a trolley car, causing the death of two and injuries to others.

It is indicated that it is another of those frightful tolls that comes from driving an automobile while intoxicated and emphasizes the danger of the highway when such individuals are abroad and permitted to hold the steering wheel.

Cases of this kind direct increased attention to the triple fatality under much the same circumstances in Philadelphia, when a prominent citizen who had been drinking drove through a group about to board a trolley car and failed to stop. The authorities were not long in bringing him into court and it is to be noted with interest that justice has not been long in doing its part, for he was this week sentenced, following a plea of guilty, to imprisonment for not less than six nor more than ten years.

It cannot be regarded that such a sentence was any too severe. Regardless of what benefit he may have obtained through a plea of guilty it is impossible to regard it as harsh when it is realized that through his recklessness three lives were snuffed out.

The idea that leniency can continue to be practiced in the case of those who persist in driving automobiles when under the influence of liquor is gradually being shown to be wrong. There is the protection of those who have a right to be in the highway that must get proper consideration, and it will not be assured until adequate punishment is handed out to those who have at more regard for the lives of others than they would have for a skunk. The Philadelphia court realizes that the practice of imposing fines amounts to nothing.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A backward spring never created any prolonged worry over the menace of dog days.

If the Einstein theory cannot be expressed in words what is the use talking about it?

With only about two months to graduation there are some who are realizing that their school days are about over.

Oil may be expected to quell the disturbed waters, but it is the basis for continued trouble in the near east.

For those who want to there is no objection to getting out the bathing suits at the same time they do their straw hats.

The man on the corner says: Now that the baseball season has opened the next thing to look forward to is rhubarb pie.

With the endurance record for dancing now at 66 hours 30 minutes it looks as if some of the girls were preparing to outdo St. Vitus.

Trotzky is now said to be favorable to the building up of Russia. Has it got to the point where there is nothing more to tear down?

The Coue method of hastening the arrival of spring hasn't produced any noticeable results, but we have no doubt it has been liberally tried.

It doesn't require a very extensive survey to get acquainted with the fact that highways in this part of the state are due for a substantial amount of repair work.

ALL ALIKE

"I'm relieved," breathed the young man with the defiant hair, who had been reading the football news and whose attention had strayed when his eye caught the picture of a pretty girl on the society page. "Now I know where they are! Listen! Mr. and Mrs. Artichoke Salsify-Budge have closed their summer cottage at Lake Geneva and are back in town temporarily at the Gander hotel, their city residence being leased for two years to the Gallstone Whatts. Mr. and Mrs. Budge expect to leave the first of December for two weeks at Boiling Springs and will then take their family to their pecan plantation in Texas for Christmas, returning to Chicago only to pack their trunks before leaving for their winter home at Santa Barbara, Cal. In the spring they expect to run over to Paris for a short visit before opening their summer home at the lake.' Can you beat it?"

"Mercy!" dutifully gasped the domestic girl who was devoted to him and therefore to his ideas, "I shouldn't think even they themselves would ever have the slightest idea where they were, jumping around at that rate! I'd rather stick to my own home."

"They do," insisted the contrary girl, who thought nothing worth talking about under the fourth dimension. "The trouble is they have too many homes! If you have a lot of homes I suppose there is nothing to do but to use them, if you have a sense of economy.

"But I should think that it would bother Mrs. Salsify-Budge dreadfully keeping track of her belongings," the contrary girl continued. "Now, I live in one room and everything I own disappears in the most maddening way!

"Suppose Mrs. Budge is putting on her gray lace dinner dress, which she especially wants to wear because it harmonizes so well with the lavender orchids decorating the table. Well, just as the maid goes to fasten it up with the jeweled dufunny that loops up the drapings they discover that the buckle isn't there. Without it the dress is hopeless.

"'Non, madame,' says the maid, 'it is not in the wardrobe nor the jewel-case nor the other closets!'

"'Where, then, can it be!' moans Mrs. Budge, wringing her hands. 'Did we leave it at Santa Barbara? Seems to me I saw it on the dressing table down in Texas—or no: The last time I wore this frock, Marie, was at the dinner to the dear duc in Paris and we sent it to the jeweler to have the catch repaired!'"

And the Budge dinner is practically a symphonic loss, the only possible rag left for her to wear being a coral velvet trimmed with gold, because the last shipment from Paris was delayed.

"It must be something awful for the poor woman to bear! Never to know whether your second beat transformation is with you or 2,000 miles away, or whether the Mrs. Dilly whom you have been warned to cut is a resident of this city or that! Just as you grow accustomed to

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fishing.

Mr. Editor: The fishing season has arrived, and the fishermen are out for fish. Many of the sports bring home tales of their great luck, and often show some fine specimen beauties, claiming that they caught them. For their eyes I would like you to publish the following poetry, author unknown:

THAT'S THE WAY OF IT!

Three fishers went gaily out into the north,
Out into the north ere the sun was high,
And they chuckled in glee as they sallied forth,
Resolved to capture the trout—or die.
For men will fish, and men will lie
About the trout they "caught on the fly,"
Their Sunday school lessons scorning.

Three fishers lay under the trees at noon,
And "blamed" the whole of the fanny race,
For ne'er a nibble had touched fly or spoon,
And each sighed as he wet the hole in his face.
For men will fish, and men will lie,
And they say they catch trout when nobody's nigh
Is something to tell in the morning.

Three fishers came into the town at night,
And their "speckled beauties" were fair to see;
They talk of their sport with keen delight—
The envy of all the fraternitee.
For men will fish, and men will lie,
And what they can't catch they're sure to buy,
And never repent in the morning.

Yours truly,
RE SQUARE.

HOW TO FORGET TROUBLES

TROUBLES knock up your system like Jack Dempsey knocks down his opponent.

Troubles deal blows both in the head and stomach—and they hurt the stomach more than they do the head!

Troubles give the stomach indigestion, slow up the liver—and then follow constipation and biliousness.

The way to get rid of troubles is to invigorate digestion, stimulate liver and bowels and tone up the entire system. The best way to do this—has been for the past 30 years—is to take Beecham's Pills.

Then you will feel so good that "troubles" become merely problems, to be solved readily by the clear, keen brain of health.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Monsieur Jon J. C. Bratianu, who has been forced to resign the Rumanian premiership by the anti-rent riots in Bucharest, has long occupied a prominent place in Rumanian affairs. He is the son of the famous statesman M. Jon Bratianu, who in 1877, was largely instrumental in causing Rumania to join forces with Russia against Turkey. Educated as an engineer, in Bucharest and in Paris, M. Bratianu, on his return from the French capital, entered the service of the Rumanian state railways. He early, however, turned to politics, and in 1895 secured a seat in parliament. His progress was rapid, and in the following year he was made minister of public works. After filling several other cabinet posts he became leader of the liberal party, and prime minister in 1908. M. Bratianu was leader of the movement which culminated in the adoption of Rumania's new constitution.

Wives of Famous Men

Jane Reynolds, Wife of Thomas Hood.

Though illness and suffering were their portion for many years, the marriage of Jane Reynolds, schoolmaster's daughter, and Thomas Hood, great English poet and master of puns, was one of rare happiness. Seldom does the wife of a poet quality for fitness into both the realms of domesticity and intellect, but Jane Hood was not only a fine housekeeper but a woman of unusual mental attainments.

Mrs. Hood had a carefully cultivated literary taste and her husband had so much confidence in her judgment of poetry that he read and reread, and corrected, with her, all that he wrote. Many of his articles were dictated to her before they became finished manuscript, and her ready memory supplied him with references and quotations.

As he grew older and feeble in health, her devotion increased. He was restless and unable to write unless she was near. Some of his sweetest and best-known songs were written to Jane. The one, for example, which begins:

Good morrow to the golden morning,
Good morrow to the world's delight:
I've come to bless thy life's beginning,
Since it makes my own so bright.

When absent from home in search of health this husband-lover wrote most tenderly to his wife. Concluding a touching epistle in which he once more declares his love for her. Hood wrote:

"Bless you, bless you again and again, my dear one, my only one, my one as good as a thousand to your old Unitarian in love, T. H."

Stories That Recall Others

The Paltry Dime.

A man was stopped the other evening by the press of traffic. He noticed three girls standing at the edge of the sidewalk, gazing silently at the pavement near where they stood. This aroused his curiosity and he stepped over near them and saw a dime at the spot on which their eyes were glued. He advanced with the remark:

"I'll pick it up for you," and asked to whom it belonged.

"Me," said one of them.

Handing it to her, he asked: "Why didn't you pick it up?"

"Didn't want to," she answered.

"And why didn't you pick it up?" he asked the second girl.

"Too tired," was her answer.

"And you?" addressing the third.

"Too lazy," was the response.

"What are your names?" he asked, and was answered: "Jane, Helen and Ruth."

"Well, mine's Bill. Good night," and he sauntered on.

Had Warmth, Anyway.

Recently a man approached the front of a store where a gas heater was apparently radiating heat. He rubbed his hands, stood there for about ten minutes, and then said to another:

"Say, these grates are mighty nice, aren't they? This one dried my shoes in a jiffy."

He walked away, unconscious of the fact that the grate was an exhibit and the "heat" was the light of electric bulbs reflected through a colored cloth.

CRIMINAL ASSAULT CASE CONTINUED UNTIL FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 17.—When Fernandino Benditto was arraigned in the police court today to answer to a most serious charge of attempting to assault a girl of eight years, named Florence Wilder, the prosecutor had not had an opportunity to investigate the case so it was continued till Friday and Benditto was released on his own recognizance in the custody of Probation Officer Mansfield. The child's mother claims that her daughter went to the shop of Benditto to have roller skates repaired and that while she was there Benditto took liberties with her.

All this the grinder man denies and says he wants a chance to refute what has been said about him. He has obtained counsel who will take care of his interests when he comes to court Friday. Benditto was formerly in business on Bank street, but he sold his place and went to Italy attracted by the opportunity to make money there with the small fortune he had amassed in the United States. It is said that he did not realize his hopes in Italy and returned here and took up the business he had disposed of a few years ago.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Henry E. Barrows

Mrs. Jane R. Stead, widow of Henry E. Barrows, died Tuesday morning after a short illness. She had been in failing health for some time.

Mrs. Barrows was born in Norwich Nov. 11, 1832, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Stead, and on Jan. 1, 1855, was united in marriage with Henry E. Barrows, who died in this city about seven years ago. Mr. Barrows was prominent in the plumbing business in Norwich for many years. Mrs. Barrows had always made her home in Norwich and had resided at 98 Sachem street.

Two children resulted from this union, a son, William H. Barrows, of Norfolk, Va., and a daughter, Gertrude J. Lathrop, who died on April 17, 1888, in this city. Besides her son, William E. Barrows, she is survived by two grandchildren, William B. Lathrop of Norwich and Raymond H. Barrows of Norfolk, Va.; also by a brother, George O. Stead, of Norwich, and by several nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Barrows was a member of the Methodist church during her life and had many friends in this city. She was of a kindly disposition, a loving mother and sister and a true Christian. Her death has removed from the family a member whose place can never be filled, and a host of friends sympathize with them in their time of deep sorrow.

Ferdinand Herman Opitz

After being in poor health for some time past Ferdinand Herman Opitz died at his home at 12 Arnold street Tuesday morning at 3 o'clock. Mr. Opitz suffered a shock last October and had never recovered from the effects. He had resided with his son Herman M. Opitz for the past 10 years and was tenderly cared for during his illness.

Mr. Opitz was born in Chemnitz, Saxony, Germany, March 5, 1848, and lived there until 1887. He learned the trade of a tailor early in life and also served during the Franco-Prussian war. He came to this country in 1887, settling in Norwich where he spent the remainder of his life. For many years he worked for Hirsch & Kronig, which later became the Manhattan. After leaving this company he opened his own shop and continued in business on Main street until 1919 when he retired.

In 1876 he was married to Johanna Wolf of Chmnitz who survives him with three children, Herman M. Opitz and Miss Margarethe J. Opitz of this city, and Mrs. Harry W. Rogers of New London.

Mr. Opitz was a member of the Sons of Hermann and the Taftville Maennerchor. He was well known in his business and made many fast friends through his honesty and fairness. He was a true husband and father and his home was his chief joy.

Mrs. Edward A. Young

Sarah L. Smith, widow of Edward A. Young, died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles E. B. Dickinson of Newark, N. J., aged 78 years.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alba A. Smith, her father having been prominent in his early life as an inventor in this country. Later he was president of the N. & W. railroad and the Norwich and New York Transportation company. He was known as the father of the local water system and was president of the board for many years.

On October 17, 1881 she was united in marriage to Edward A. Young by Rev. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, D. D., and spent most of her life in this city. Her husband died a number of years ago. She is survived by her daughter in Newark, and other relatives.

OLD FALLS MILL WAS BURNED 32 YEARS AGO

Thirty-two years ago Tuesday at 1.30 a. m. the old Falls mill was discovered to be on fire and within a short while was totally destroyed with a loss of $150,000. The fire was one of the most disastrous fires that had visited Norwich in 23 years proving more disastrous than the burning of the almshouse, and entailed a greater loss even than the Apollo hall fire in 1865. The Bulletin of the date said:

The fire broke out in the napping and beaming room of the mills but the automatic striker was so erratic in its action that the firemen were at a loss as to the exact locality of the conflagration. A bright flare in the direction of the Falls showed the place and the firemen were soon there.

It was soon evident that the east mill would have to go, as the fire had worked from the east end to the centery or tower, where the walls of the new mill served to check the flames.

The firemen by ladders reached the roof of the new mill and fought bravely but low water pressure handicapped them greatly.

At 2.30 a. m. the walls began to fall and there was little left to do but save adjoining property and the new mill.

The loss in goods was 15,00 pieces of finished cloth, and 15,000 pieces of clothin the looms, all of fifty yards each, a loss of $50,000 in finished pieces alone. The machinery consisted of three nappers, 350 looms, two slashers and four quilters, swelling the loss another forty thousand, while the building would stand $50,000 more.

The mill was the oldest one standing owned by the company and was built in 1853 by William P. Greene. It was two stories high and until the new mill was built at a cost of $100,000 was the principal mill.

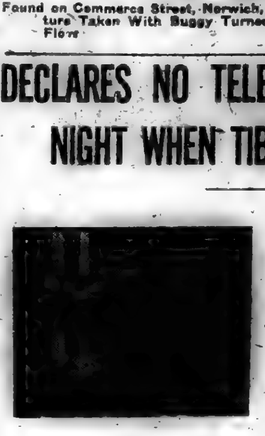
The loss was extremely heavy on the Falls company as the company is rushed with large order.

This was the first fire at the Falls company in three years, the last having been in the picker room, not causing much damage.

In a Sardinian dance, the solemn dancers rock slowly back and forth in tune with a wordless chant sung by one familiar with the country's ancient customs and legends.

TIBBITTS' BUGGY
Found on Commerce Street, Norwich, On Night Tibbitts Disappeared. Picture Taken With Buggy Turned On Side To Show Bloodstains on the Floor

DECLARES NO TELEGRAM SENT ON NIGHT WHEN TIBBITTS DISAPPEARED



Ransacked Desk at Tibbitts' Home

An answer to the question "Where is William Tibbitts of Fitchville?" is worth not less than $100, but up to Tuesday night no one had come forward to claim mthe reward.

The officers at work on the case since it was first reported that Tibbitts was missing from his lonely Fitchville farm one week ago Tuesday night are still at work but report that nothing of an enlightening nature has turned up during the past 24 hours.

Early Monday morning the officers were given a tip that some sort of a message, very likely by telegraph, had been sent out of this city some time early last week to a relative of the missing man. On Tuesday morning Constable Sweeney worked on this clue and after canvassing local offices where messages could be sent from stated that he had learned a telegram had been sent some time last week but the contents and the name of the sender would not be divulged.

Later it was learned that the telegram that was causing the mystery was sent by Mrs. Herbert N. Hill of 34 Oneco street, a niece of the missing man, to Frederick Tibbitts of Lowell, Mass., his brother. When asked by a representative of The Bulletin for information about the telegram, Mrs. Hill said she sent it from the office of the Western Union in Norwich on Wednesday night, some time after 7 o'clock. Having heard the report that William Tibbitts was dead and missing she wired to his brother in Lowell: "William Tibbitts killed, body not found; come at once. Signed, Mother," and received a reply later in the evening from another relative of the missing man who had been in touch with Frederick Tibbitts of Lowell.

When the officers had checked up on this message it was seen that the mystery message had no bearing on the case, as was first supposed, before the name of the sender and the time of sending was learned.

As far as the officers know, this was the only telegram sent out by the local office, and they state that they know nothing of another telegram alleged to have read "Tibbitts is drowned," reported in an evening paper to have been sent out from the local Western Union office on April 9th, the day of the supposed murder.

In the evening paper of Tuesday there was a statement that a telegram, "Tibbitts is drowned," had been sent out from the local office, and the article also carried the statemept that "information from the Western Union office was that the telegram was sent out on the evening of April 9th, and was sent to a place not far from Norwich."

Alexander Warner, manager of the Western Union office, when asked about this telegram Tuesday night, denied that his office had made any such statement or had given out the contents of any such telegram. He stated that there must be a misunderstanding somewhere, for he had not given any such information either to any officer or to the press.

Asked about the telegram reported to have been sent out, Mr. Warner said: "I have nothing to say; there might have been some telegram sent from this office, but I cannot and have not given out any information to that effect."

It was also learned by officers that Tibbitts had considerable money in local banks, possibly about $900, but no information has been given out whether or not this money remains in the banks today. Friends of Tibbitts also scout the idea that he was hard pressed for money, claiming that his property would easily provide any amount of money he might need. It was also disclosed that although he had worked in an official capacity for the town in which he had lived, and had about $150 due him, he had never sent in his bill for the money, this indicating that he was not in need of money.

Further investigation has shown that Tibbitts was not charged with watering his milk but had been held up because of the unsanitary condition of his dairy barn. He had simply been notified by the commission to come to Hartford and learn what he could do to remedy the unsanitary conditions at his barn.

All things summed up, there is every evidence that Tibbitts had no need of running away from his farm, and this has caused many of his friends to again swing to the belief that murder has been committed and that the recluse farmer has met with foul play at the hands of someone who knew or believed he had large sums of money in the house.

If Tibbitts left home on his own accord, it is evident that he did have money about the house and in or underneath everything in the house that would afford a hiding place for money. Bureau drawers, closets, tables and boxes were ransacked and mattresses and pillows on two beds and two couches in the house were pulled up and left in that manner, all this showing, it is believed, if Tibbitts himself made the hurried collection, that he was looking for something he had hidden in all these places.

On the other hand, working on the murder theory, the same jumbled mattresses and ransacked bureaus and closets would indicate that someone had caused the upset condition in a hurried search in or under everything where it was supposed money or valuables might be concealed.

No report as yet has been made relative to the stains in the house and on the flooring of the buggy supposed to be bloodstains, but friends state that if the examination by the state chemist shows them to be bloodstains, it can indicate only an assault on Tibbitts by parties unknown, and that he has been taken from his home and hidden in a spot not yet found by searching parties.

There seem to be three theories advanced and these are: Murder, with the body taken away and hidden; insanity, Tibbitts having suddenly left home leaving no trace; assault, Tibbitts having become frightened and left for parts unknown. Friends scout the idea that Tibbitts became frightened and left his valuable farm, and this leaves but the two—murder or insanity—and indications at the farm would tend to point towards either.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN REACHES $5,314 ON SECOND DAY

The hustling workers of the Y. M. C. A. campaign teams met Tuesday evening for the second report of the campaign, and there was a distinct feeling of hopefulness among the workers. Promptly at 6.30 o'clock the men sat down to a very tasty, well prepared supper which was served by the women of Grace Episcopal church of Yantic. After the fine feast, President J. C. Macpherson made a few timely remarks, and asked that the captain of Team A Philip Johnson, call for the reports. Mr. Johnson suggested that as the report of each team was given, members of the team tell of any helpful experiences they had had during the day. One after another mentioned the way in which they were received by those whom they solicited. This proved very helpful and encouraging to the workers as a whole. Some reported new subscribers who had offered to give, others reported splendid increases over last year, and others mentioned the willing spirit with which the people responded.

As the team reports were given, each team was applauded and when the amounts were totaled $2,355 was registered for the day. This, added to the amount previously secured made a total to date of $5,314 towards the $15,000, which is the goal.

Reports by Teams.

The team reports were as follows:

Team. Captain.	Total.
A—Philip Johnson	$1,570.00
B—Herbert B. Cary	385.00
C—Charles L. Stewart	110.00
D—Harold Burt	92.00
E—John M. Swahn	198.00
Total	$2,355.00
Previously reported	2,959.00
Grand total	$5,314.00

The women in charge of the supper were Mrs. Charles B. Harvey, Mrs. George Fraser, Mrs. Edward Smith and Mrs. John Kilroy. The waitresses were Miss Dorothy Harvey, Miss Lila Smith, Miss Lois Manning and Miss Olive Bishop. By unanimous vote, Mr. Johnson was requested to express the thanks of the workers to the ladies, and this he did in a pleasing manner.

CITY BIBLE CLASS ENJOYED FINE TRIP

Members of the City Bible Class for Men of the Central Baptist church enjoyed the reward of winning a month's attendance contest with the Men's Forum of the First Baptist church of New London by being guests of the New London men at a supper and entertainment Tuesday night in the city at the mouth of the Thames.

The Norwich men inaugurated the evening's entertainment with a parade at 5.30 from the church to Franklin square, headed by John Swahn's band. Over 100 besides the band were in the line that was led by President C. D. Noyes and Secretary Edward Y. Messinger of the class and others joined them at the square filling two special trolley cars with about 150 for the trip to New London.

At New London 100 men of the Forum were on hand with red fire to escort the Norwich men from the Parade to the church where the supper was served. Then followed several hours of delightful fraternal association between the men of the two churches. Pink rose boutonniers were provided at each place and the following menu was served, completely in charge of the men of the New London church: Tomato bisque, saltines, pot roast, mashed potatoes, boiled onions, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake.

Remarks by the presidents of the two classes, by the two pastors, Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt of this city and Rev. Chester H. Howe, of New London, and by several of the men, with tenor solos and songs, contributed to the pleasures of the evening.

The return trip to this city was made by the special cars from New London at 9.45.

GEN. WILLIAM A. AIKEN REACHES 90 TODAY

One of the most popular men of Norwich, Gen. William A. Aiken of 157 Washington street, reaches his 90th birthday today (Wednesday.) Gen. Aiken is in his usual good health and is active, never missing his daily walk down town where he transacts business or calls upon his numerous friends.

Although there is to be no formal observance of the day his many friends will remember the day by showering him with messages of congratulation.

Gen. Aiken, though far past the allotted three score and ten years, bids fair to celebrate many more happy birthdays. He keeps up a healthy interest in the affairs of the time and reads the daily papers with unfailing zest. His knowledge of things of the past and things of the present makes him an able conversationalist and he is always listened to gladly when his opinion is ventured on any subject.

As president of the board of trustees of the Otis library he devotes much time to the welfare of this institution and its excellent service to the reading public of Norwich is in large measure due to his guidance and direction.

A city of friends extends to the General every happy return of the day, and the wish that he may celebrate many more birthdays.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The news that Byron Larkin is showing decided improvement at the Day Kimball hospital is very very good news to the great number of people in this section of the county who have become interested in the case because of the tragic manner in which the family was nearly wiped out by an epidemic of pneumonia, the father, two sisters and a brother succumbing to the disease in such close proximity to each other as to arouse widespread interest. Byron, the only remaining member of the family, was taken from his home near East Killingly to the hospital to undergo an operation that, it is now indicated, helped materially toward aiding him to a much improved condition. His recovery is now looked forward to with confidence.

Supt. Leon Farrin of Killingly's schools has given out the following list of those who have attained highest honors during the months of March and February:

Higrest Honors

Seniors—Laurette Brodeur, Mary Elliott, Mary Geer, Janet Paine, Isabel Payne, Emily Pike; juniors, Mildred Codding; sophomores, Alma Forcier, Mariette Paine, Frances Tillinghas; freshmen, Zylpha Codding, Rose Milone, J. Dyer Potter, Mary Young.

Seniors: Eloise Babson, Pauline Bouliane, Emily Davis, Frank Kimball, Wesley Lohrer, Byron Parker, Emma Perry, Theodore Simoneau; Juniors, Laurie Beeney, Tmita Berthiaume, Fleurette Bouliane, Eugene Downs, Elizabeth Francis, Doris Hope, Ruth Spaulding, Blanche Tetreault, Mildred Wilde; sophomores, Arthur Beeney, Harry Boyd, David Carter, Deborah Codding, Helen Congdon, Madalyn Cronin, Yolande Gingres, Mildred Keene, Thelma Kinder, John Moody, Mary O'Neill, Edna Simoneau, Dorothy Smith, Ruth Spencer, Ellen Stockton, Jean Storer; freshmen, Hyden Bacon, Bernice Burdick, Thelma Cogan, John Crosby, Benjamin Foster, Gunner Gunderson, Flora Keech, Elsie Laine, Walter LaPierre, Ruth Litch, Thomas Page.

This is a spring of big stories about hens. A man who lives up in the Ballouville section of the town told this one to Chief John McFarland, and the chief marveled at it, hearing as he does so many fantastic tales of people and events from day to day.

The Ballouville man, it appears, drove down to Attawaugan and stopped on some errand at a neighbor's. The nature of the errand doesn't matter, but upon resuming his journey to Danielson the man heard a cackle from somewhere in his wagon that would indicate he had an uninvited passenger aboard. Investigation developed that there was and that it was a hen from his neighbor's flock and that the hen had taken possession of her place in the wagon while he was talking business with the neighbor, and had selected a bag as a nest and laid an egg—hence the cackle that aroused the driver to her presence. And furthermore, thisvexatious Ballouville man had the bag, hen and egg along with him when he was telling about it and was to deliver up his neighbor's property as soon as he could get back to Attawaugan.

Increases in wages that are coming to textile workers, carpenters and others in trades on May 1, will increase the earnings in this territory by many thousands of dollars weekly after the first of the coming month. The advances referred to will be effective not only in the town of Killingly, but in all of the surrounding towns that have manufacturing interests, and indicates a summer of prosperity ranking close to the levels attained during the war—and with the nation in a much happier state of mind.

A canvass of coal yards in Danielson Tuesday by some prospective buyers revealed that there was no hard coal for sale in the borough. In each instance dealers have heavy shipments ordered and in some cases as many as ten or a dozen cars en route, but now there is an embargo on coal shipments, just to illustrate that now more than ever before life is one consarned thing after another. True there isn't the demand for coal now that there was during the winter period, but the temperature is persistently remaining too low to allow of heater fires being dispensed with, so many householders are put to it to keeping them going until warmer weather is at hand, and that condition hasn't even threatened yet, though the month of May is less than two weeks away.

Members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club will have what might be termed an unofficial get-together meeting this evening when they congregate at the theatre to view a special series of motion pictures depicting hunting and fishing in all the seductiveness of these fascinating sports. The showing of pictures has been arranged as one of the diversions that will mark the club's activities throughout the year and are supplied through a sports publication that has devoted much time and skillful search to picturize many splendid sporting scenes and reproductions of wilr life.

A gathering of women interested in the work of the Catholic Women's council of Connecticut was assembled Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy on Furnace street to discuss among other things of interest to the organization to the vacation home for Catholic women that is being established in the Berkshires and is to be known as Lakeville Manor. The Danielson chapter will contribute a substantial sum to the development of this vacation home, which will accommodate 100 guests.

Captain F. O. Armington and upwards of 20 members of the service battery, 192nd Field Artillery, went to Norwich Tuesday evening to participate in a series of athletic events staged in the state armory in that city. These events included short distance dashes, runs up to one mile, shot putting and various other events.

The meet was for battalion members and it is anticipated that it will be followed by a regimental meet.

It now appears that instead of going to Camp Hoyle, Maryland, for the annual tour of duty, as recently was thought would be the case, that the command will be at Camp Eustis, Va., again this year, the period being from September 8-22.

Mrs. Charles McComber of Plainfield is visiting at the home of her son, George McComber, in Danielson.

The Treble Clef club, which so successfully presented a concern at the Orpheum theatre the past week, has a meeting scheduled to be held this (W'ednesday) evening at the Methodist church.

Rev. Francis T. Ledwith, M. S., who the past Sunday successfully completed a week's mission at Dayville, left Tuesday morning for Hartford.

Owners here of beach property have found little this spring to tempt them to venture shoreward for a day's outing, though frequently in other years they have been at their summer resorts much earlier than the present date.

Mr. and Mrs. John Owens, who have been spending the winter in Florida have returned to Danielson, much pleased with their southern experience.

Walter A. Mesner of New Bedford was a visitor Tuesday with friends in Danielson.

Baseball fans will quickly turn to the sport pages this morning to read of Tuesday's first game of the season in the National league. Incidentally, little has been heard in Danielson to date relatives to organizing a baseball team for the season now budding.

Borough officials who are charged with the duty are making ready to issue notices relatives to filing returns on taxable property within the borough.

Every motorist trusts that whatever New Haven road official is entrusted with such matters will find the money and time to have the Main street crossing replanked pronto. It has been in poor condition for months, and it must be admitted that the hammering the planking gets from heavy motor traffic has much to do with this condition.

At Dayville the new and short stretch of macadam highway being put in inconnection with the New Haven road's program for eliminating the White street crossing is practically complete. A steam roller was at work there Tuesday smoothing out the freshly wet down top dressing.

PUTNAM

To be or not to be—that seemed the situation Tuesday as to whether the Manhasset Manufacturing company is to remove its yarn making operations from Taunton and locate them in this city, where the resin producing plant of the big corporation is located. Monday morning an Associated Press despatch dated at Providence, where the general offices of the concern are located, quoted Treasurer Vermilya of the company as saying that the Taunton plant would be abandoned and the machinery transferred to Putnam, where one large new unit of the company is unoccupied for manufacturing purpose and has ample floor space to house the spinning and other yarn making machinery. Monday evening's Taunton paper stated that there was no truth in this story and quoted General Manager Harrison of the company as its authority, pointing out that Putnam had no accommodations to house the several hundred people that would come to this city in case the Taunton plant were abandoned. Local officials of the corporation decline to be quoted in the situation, which is peculiar to say the least; but the matter is of vast interest to Putnam insofar as its industrial and business interests are concerned. What is going on behind the scenes the public may only conjecture.

Preliminary plans or sketches for a new building to replace the destroyed Donahue block have been presented to Stoumbelis brothers, recent purchasers of the Donahue site. Contractors have been looking over the sketches and site with a view to submitting figures when the proper time comes and every indication points to early undertaking of the building operations. It is indicated that the structure will be at least semi-fireproof and in every way a credit to the city. It is understood that sketches so far submitted provide for different types of buildings, one plan providing for four stores on the street level, whereas there were but three stores in the building recently destroyed by fire. However, no definite plan has been decided upon, the interest being in the fact that there is real activity toward getting going.

An extensive building operation that is now showing commendable progress is that at the plant of the Adams Manufacturing company on North Main street. The roof is being removed from the old stone mill to permit of such remodeling operations as the company has in mind. In the meantime the excavation for the new addition has been accomplished. This week there has been an increase in the number of workers employed at the remodeling and extension operations at the plant. The work will proceed throughout the spring and summer season and when completed this city will have a fine new industry furnishing employment for a very considerable number of hands. The plant now being worked upon has been closed for more than a year and formerly was one of the Morse-Nightingale group.

Business was generally suspended in this city for an hour Tuesday afternoon during the funeral services for George E. Shaw, one of the city's best known business men, conducted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Silas M. Wheelock on Church street and attended by relatives and friends of Mr. Shaw. Rev. Simeon E. Gosse of the Congregational church, of which Mr. Shaw was associate Sunday school superintendent for a number of years, conducted the service. Burial was in Grove street cemetery.

Commander Thomas Bell, vice-commander J. J. Whitehead and Past Commanders Dr. Edward F. Perry, John Moss and Alfred Pigeon constitute the general committee of Anpin Mayotte post, American legion to have charge of arrangements for the observance of Memorial day in Putnam. This committee is already giving attention to various matters pertaining to the annual observance. The prospect now in that Rev. Albert E. Stone, a United States naval chaplain, stationed at the Submarine Base at New London, and formerly pastor of the Baptist church of this city, will be the Memorial day orator, providing it is possible for him to obtain the necessary leave of absence, and the committee expects to be notified as to this within a week or ten days.

Miss Ellen E. Osgood, who suffered a paralytic stroke at her home in Hartford about ten days ago and has since been at the point of death, died Sunday evening at her home in East Hartford. Miss Osgood, a cousin of Deputy Sheriff George F. Holbrook of this city, was among the most prominent woman educators in New England during the years of her activity and for a long period was principal of Cushing academy. She was an assistant principal of Putnam High school when that institution first opened its doors and many who are still residents of Putnam were her students.

What appears to have been a flurry as to ascertaining the sentiment of local people on prohibition was recalled Tuesday when mention was made of the fact that some boxes left in stores and other places in the city for the receipt of ballots on prohibition, these placed by an association opposed to prohibition, have never been opened and the votes counted. Neither has anything been heard recently about opening them and counting the votes. While it is conceded that in any case the result would only indicate the personal opinion of a small percentage of the people of the city and it would have no effect at all as regards existing laws, there is naturally curiosity as to the result the balloting would show. The ballot boxes in question were put out here more than a year ago.

On Thursday of this week members of the Windham County Medical society will gather at the Putnam inn for the 138th annual meeting of the organization. A dinner will also be a feature of the day.

A complaint recently registered with the chamber of commerce that the parking regulations were being too severely enforced by the police seems to have petered out upon investigation. In their endeavor to control traffic in the congested central business portion of the city the police, it was stated Tuesday, only ask of all that the restrictions be obeyed. These restrictions are not great, are courteously enforced and generally respected by all who have a desire for order and free movement of traffic, and were introduced in the interest of all. The police realize that at times an individual may become a bit peeved over not being allowed to have his own sweet way as to where he shall park a machine or leave a horse-drawn rig, but these cases are kindly and firmly dealt with, and every effort made to avert controversy in handling them.

Landlord Samuel Smith of the City hotel was reported Tuesday as quite seriously ill.

An embargo on coal is now given as the reason why greater quantities of the fuel are not reaching this territory. The belated coming of warmer weather makes the coal shortage an irritant to many who desire to keep heaters going, but not such a serious proposition as durrng the winter season.

The Catholic Womans' Welfare Council of this city is interested in the vacation home that the state organization is to establish on the southern slopes of the Berkshires and to be known as Lakeville Manor. It will be formally opened on Memorial day with appropriate exercises at which Rt. Rev. J. J. Nilan will assist. This home will be open throughout the year and will have accommodations for 100 guests, who will be charged only nominally for the services rendered.

Supt. Robert T. Hurley of the state police department recently was a guest at a small dinner party given at the utnam inn.

George C. Leland of Brattleboro, Vt., was a visitor with friends in Putnam Tuesday.

One theory advanced for state highways breaking down this spring is that they were kept so free of ice and snow during the long, hard winter that the frost was able to penetrate to a greater depth than otherwise would have been the case.

Strand Theatre

Friendship has long been considered one of the greatest treasures of mankind, but the extent to which it can go has perhaps never been better nor more humorously exemplified than in Richard Barthelmess' latest First National starring vehicle, "Fury," that is moving audiences to laughter, tears and shivers of excitement at the Strand theatre this week.

For Looney Luke, the poet-cook of the doughty schooner "Lady Spray," thinks so much of "Boy" Leyton, the misjudged and browbeaten young second mate, that he makes a sacrifice which few youthful swains of this day and age would dare to duplicate.

When the ship docks at London Looney bestows some beautiful bird of paradise feathers on his "best girl." Returning to the vessel with her, he finds "Boy" Leyton in a downcast mood and learns that the parrot the second mate brought for his own sweetheart, Minnie, had been poisoned. Whereupon Looney hits upon a bright idea and when his girl is not looking deftly removes the feathers she has proudly placed in her hat and gives them to his friend.

A comedy and news is included.

Broadway, Thurs., Fri., Sat.

Fink's Mules are the headliner at the Broadway theatre for the last half of this week.

"The critter who declared 'mules ain't got no sense at all' was about as wrong as the colored gentleman who declared the sun do move.'" For further proof of the incorrectness of his statements, may be had by witnessing a performance of Fink's Mules. These mules not only accomplish a series of unusual feats, but do them willingly. With the exception of Jim Dump, Fink's Mules do not even seem to be obstinate. Jim Dump is not only contrary but absolutely unridable. He is the clown of his species and he provides more laughter than most chalk face comedians. Mr. Fink in addition to his mules has some dogs and ponies. These are also accomplished performers. The act however, is conspicuous because of the presence of this mule. It is quite unusual to see these animals performing so much service outside of the United States army.

Four other acts are included.

Betty Compson learned to dance the hula hula and then had to learn all over again! En route to the Hawaiian islands to film her latest Paramount picture, "The White Flower," which comes to the Broadway theatre Thursday the star took daily lessons in the art of hula hula dancing as practiced in the United States, and when the ship docked at Honolulu she learned that the dance she had so painstakingly mastered wasn't danced by the natives at all!

Broadway Theatre

There are five excellent B. F. Keith vaudeville acts at Broadway theatre today being the last day for these five star acts. The photoplay feature is Thorns and Orange Blossoms with a start cast.

Breed Theatre.

There is a thrill, a chill and a good laugh at the Breed theatre where D. W. Griffith's new cinema, "One Exciting Night," will be shown for the last times today.

"One Exciting Night," a United Artists release, is a mystery drama, with just enough comedy to relieve a tense situation when the plot begins to thicken. While Mr. Griffith has departed from the heavy and spectacular, he has produced a picture that will live among the immortals of the silver screen. It is one of the best photoplays ever shown and a well balanced cast of characters, which is headed by Miss Carol Dempster, who shares the honors with Henry Hull. The cast includes Porter Strong, Morgan Wallace, C. H. Crocker-King, Miss Margaret Dale, Frank Sheridan, Frank Wunderlee, Miss Grace Griswold, Miss Irma Harrison, Herbert Sutch, Percy Carr and Charles T. Mack.

The producer has left nothing undone to make the picture a real thriller. Spooky hands, secret panels, shadows and darting figures all have their play, while Porter Strong and Miss Harrison, playing servants, are humorous throughout. Just before the identity of the mysterious villian becomes known there is a storm scene, which is about the most realistic ever produced on the screen.

When the man of mystery is exposed all the patrons gasp, and so will you, if you go to the Breed theatre.

Glad to Meetcha Says Pola Negri

"Glad to meetcha." Pola Negri's convinced that that's the national American expression. That's what they've all said to the Polish actress en route to Hollywood from Poland via New York.

And so "Glad to Meetcha" has assumed a central place in Pola Negri's limited English vocabulary of 100 words. It's a general term that is serving her well until she learns to differentiate and say instead "Good morning," "good night" and "how are you?"

And so it was that when California boosters met her train in Pasadena and presented her with an overflowing basket of of California oranges, her first, she favored them with a gorgeous smile—and the only English words of greeting and thanks she knows, "Glad to Meetcha," thereby scoring victory for those who uphold colloquial Americanisms!

Bella Donna will be the feature production on the bill at the Strand theatre soon. In support of the star is a trio of prominent leading screen players: Conway Tearle, Conrad Nagel and Lois Wilson.

NEW LONDON MAN CLAIMS HE WAS BEATEN AND ROBBED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 17.—Gustav Christopherson, of No. 35 West Pleasant street, evidently has the idea he is a sleuth, for this afternoon after Mrs. Christopherson had reported to the police that her husband had been assaulted and robbed of $90 last night, Christopherson appeared at the police station and requested that the police discontinue their endeavors to locate his assailant as he intended to conduct a personal investigation and believed he could solve the case by ascertaining the identity of the man who attacked and robbed him. The police accommodated him, although two suspects had been brought to the police station, so if Christopherson fails in his detective work, he will not obtain any further assistance from the police.

Following Mrs. Christopherson informing the police of the alleged assault and robbery of her husband, Motorcycle Officer William Babcock was assigned to the case. The officer went to the Christopherson residence and obtained his version of the affair of the night before and but little credence is given Christopherson's story because of the fact that the robbery was not reported until 12 hours after it had occurred and the circumstances attending the alleged affair.

According to Christopherson, he arrived in New London from Providence about 11 o'clock last night and hired a public service car at the union station to take him to his home. When the car reached a point on Coleman street the engine stalled and the operator alighted to make repairs. The repairs not being perfected within a few minutes, Christopherson declares that he started to walk to his home and when he had traveled but a short distance, he was struck from behind, being dealt a number of blows and rendered unconscious, in which condition he remained for several hours. When he finally regained his senses he continued to his home, where he discovered that he had been robbed of $90. He remained home until after his wife had been communicated with the police at 12.20 o'clock when he decided to handle his own case.

Where the alleged assault and robbery occurred is not a direct route to Christopherson's home, in fact, being a most indirect way and with the failure of Christopherson to make known his beating and loss of money until twelve hours after is supposed to have occurred is the reason for the authorities being of the belief that the story is somewhat "fishy."

The city has received a request from the police department that the two motorcycle officers not be compelled to purchase their cycle uniforms from the officers' compensation. City Manager Barlow stated this afternoon that while the request had been received that no action on it had been taken as yet.

The city has two motorcycle officers, who are assigned to duty early in April or the first of May, the case this year being that one officer is already doing cycle duty and the other will be assigned to this duty May 1st. The officers are required to provide themselves with a uniform of brown and to purchase it means an expenditure of between $40 and $50. The officers feel that if they are required to do motorcycle duty that the city should bear the expense of purchasing the uniforms, in view of the fact that the officers are required to purchase the regulation blue uniform.

The police received a telephone call last evening from William H. Guest of No. 25 Cleveland street, who stated that a suspicious man was loitering about his home. Sergeant Patrick Murphy went to the Guest residence, but the man had disappeared. A good description of the man was obtained, but a thorough search in the vicinity failed to locate him. Mr. Guest informed the officer that his attention was directed to the veranda by an unusual sound and going to one of the windows observed the man peering through another window.

A woman complained against her husband at the police station last night, stating that the husband came home early in the evening and after hearing her clothing to pieces administered da thrashing to her. The woman wanted "something done," but she did not want an arrest made. The police were at a loss to know what the woman wanted done, and they refused to act in the matter unless the complainant would appear against the husband and this she refused to do so the complaint was dismissed. The husband is a chief petty officer stationed at the submarine base.

Harry F. Morse, of No. 890 Montauk avenue, who is under indictment together with his father and two brothers for conspiring to defraud the government, and whose case in the United States supreme court at Washington, has been postponed a number of times because of the alleged inability of the former to attend court because of heart trouble, left New London last night, presumably for Bridgeport to consult with his attorney.

A federal officer, who was to have departed from Washington this week for the purpose of compelling Morse to accompany him back to Washington, has not put in an appearance in New London yet. Dr. Carlisle F. Farrin, physician in attendance upon Morse, stated today that Morse is suffering from a heart attack and is not shamming and that a trip to Washington might produce a severe attack of the vital organ.

Deputy Collector of Customs Joseph C. Comstock and Mrs. Comstock have gone to their cottage at Black Point, where they will remain until next fall.

The funeral of Clifford E. Crouch of Waterford, whose death occurred at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital Sunday, was held from his former home this afternoon. Interment was in Poquetanuck cemetery.

Mrs. Lillie S. White, wife of Percy White, died this morning at her home, No 28 Starr street. She was 46 years of age and besides her husband, she is survived by several children.

Mrs. Isabelle Wilkins, widow of John Wilkins, died last night at her home, No. 66 Douglass street. She was 80 years of age and had been in some time.

Miss Elizabeth Wall of Norwich, John Vogeltanz of Montville, Cadet Beverly Moody of the United States Coast Guard Academy, Danata Fata of Terrace avenue and Mrs. Odman Bennett of Mercer street, were patients discharged at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital today.

Funeral services for Charles P. Avery were held this afternoon at two o'clock at his former home in Waterford, Rev. Mr. Strauss, pastor of the Jordan Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in East Neck cemetery.

Mrs. Elizabeth Geer, wife of William Geer, a passenger conductor in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad, died suddenly of heart trouble at her home, No. 27 Cole street, last night. Besides her husband, Mrs. Geer is survived by a son, Leon A. Geer. Because of the death of Mrs. Geer, her son and Miss Margaret S. Darling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Darling, of No. 148 Montauk avenue, were married this forenoon, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Domeyn Danforth at the home of the clergyman. The wedding was to have been solemnized tomorrow.

Mrs. Geer, who has been a victim of heart trouble a long time, was about her home yesterday and last evening appeared stronger than usual. During the evening and when she was about to retire she experienced a faintness and requested that the windows of the room be opened. This was done and Mrs. Geer assisted to a chair near one of the windows. She suffered a heart attack almost immediately and expired before a physician could be summoned.

The striking weavers of the Edward Bloom Silk company will return to their labors tomorrow or Thursday, for last night the conference between Edward Bloom and a representation of the strikers, reached a compromise whereby the wage difficulty was settled and the strikers agreed to return to their labors. Since the strike started about two weeks ago when the company refused to increase the wages of the men from seven to 10 cents per yard, the mill has not been in operation. The strikers numbered 50. The compromise made is that the weavers will receive a wage of nine cents a yard hereafter, which is an increase of two cents per yard.

The condition of Milton Card, the Groton youth whose automobile run down and killed Mrs. Leo Brogan of Park avenue Groton, on the Eastern Point road Sunday night, is considerably improved today. The young man, who lapsed into a state of unconsciousness immediately following the accident, has almost entirely regained his senses during last night. The young man partook of a small quantity of nourishment and stimulant during today and it is believed he will gradually recover his senses. Dr. E. P. Douglas, the attending physician, refused to comment upon the young man's condition when interrogated today, stating that he had "nothing to report," but he did not admit that the patient was "quite a little improved."

The condition of Mrs. Nora Brogan of No. 433 William street and Mr. Brogan, both of whom suffered greatly from nervous shock following the fatality, was reported this afternoon as being vastly improved.

New London lost two of its oldest residents by death today, Henry C. Holmes expiring this afternoon and George H. Powers passing away in the early hours of the morning. Mr. Powers was in his 87th year, while Mr. Holmes was approaching 80 years of age. They were representatives of a New London of long ago. Mr. Powers was engaged in the fish market business at the foot of State street till progress drove him out, though he disposed of his business at a good price then. He was associated with the late William Hamilton and with William Smith, who was also an auctioneer and was universally known as "Bill" Smith, a wirey and energetic man of indominatable energy. This form had the fish business of the city for many years and they made a good deal of money at it.

Mr. Smith went to Washington, D. C., and there was in the market business for several years. When George Powers disposed of his market he procured wharf property off Howard street and that yielded him a comfortable living as the berthplace of yachts. He was the owner of the property at his death. His residence overlooked the cove. He had been the treasurer of the Niagara Engine company for more years than the memory of most men here runneth, and held that place year after year without a competitor. His accounts were kept in the simplest manner, but they showed whether the company had a balance or a deficit in its treasury. They showed a balance while Mr. Powers was in charge of the finances for he would not pay beyond the capacity of the organization to settle. He carried most of his accounts in his pocket and could at any time state the financial standing of the company if the information was sought. Mrs. Powers died many years ago. The couple had no children.

REVENUE OFFICERS' PRIVATE LIQUOR STOCK STOLEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 17.—Man has long been advised not to lay up for himself riches in places where thieves may break in and steal and as long as he declined to be governed by the advice. But Ellery Allyn, an agent of the internal revenue department of the state did not suppose when he stored some choice liquors and wines in his home before the time that Mr. Volstead made it unlawful to make, buy or sell beverages with more than one-half of one per cent. alcoholic content that the beverage would tempt anybody to break in and steal.

Mr. Allyn was in error in that supposition for Sunday night his home at Goshen, near Pleasure Beach was visited by crooks and they got away with enough "stuff" to make them rich if they can dispose of it at ruling prices. They stole some dozen cases of choice whiskey and wines. It was the kind—the kind ... cannot be had at any price this side of the Bahamas or Bermuda or away from France. The robbery was not discovered until Monday morning and then the state police were called in and were told to find the liquors at any cost. They started out, but their efforts had not been successful up to this afternoon. It is safe to say that if Mr. Allyn can get hold of the fellows who robbed his cellar he will make things so hot for them that they will wish they had bought their liquors instead of stealing them. When conditions arise that a revenue officer is robbed, things, even in Waterford, have reached a pass where they should be changed.

SENATE VOTE WAS 30 TO 5 TO PASS HUBBARD BILL OVER GOVERNOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 17.—Among the bills taken from the calendar and passed today was one providing a standard weight for bread. Bread shall weigh one pound or one and one-half pounds, or some multiple of one pound. This does not apply to biscuits, buns, crackers, rolls or bread weighing less than one-quarter pound per unit or what is known as stale bread. All loaves that are wrapped shall have plainly printed in the wrapper the weight. Those that are sold unwrapped are to have the weight impressed in the pan so that it will be transferred to the bottom of the loaf. No bread shall vary more than one ounce per pound within twelve hours after delivery. The weight of twelve loaves selected at random from any one baking shall not be less than the total of the individual or marked weight of such loaves.

School Children From State Institutions.

A bill which is of direct interest to Norwich, Preston and Lyme, provides that in any town in which a public institution is located and from which any child residing in state property exempt from taxation, connected with such institution, should attend either a public school in such town or a high school in another town at the expense of such town, the town shall be paid by the state such proportion of the actual expense of maintaining its public schools and the cost of transportation, provided the amount to be paid by the state shall not exceed $35 per child per annum.

Another bill was Senate Bill 644, which provides that no person shall use any animal, reptile or bird for the purpose of soliciting any alms, collection, contributions, subscription, donation or payment of money, upon any street, highway or public park or at any fair, exhibition, or place of amusement. Violation may be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars with imprisonment of not more than thirty days, of both.

This will shut out the use of monkeys, fortune telling birds or chameleons.

So-Called Donohue Bill.

House Bill 23 which would not allow any licensed physician who is a compensation commissioner, to practice in compensation cases came back to the house this morning, with an unfavorable report from the judiciary committee. This is the bill that has been commonly known as the "Donohue bill" as it was recognized that the bill was aimed directly at Dr. James J. Donohue of Norwich, compensation commissioner for the 2nd Congressional district. The bill was reported by Mr. Darbie of Killingly, who said in part, "that while the bill had some merit, it appeared to be a sort of family row and that they did not feel it was worthy of being dignified by a favorable report."

Two bills passed today relate to testing the eyesight of school children. House Bill 884 provides that any licensed optometrist, under the provisions of chapter 49 of the general statutes may make the examination and House Bill 846 requires that in every school in which no examination has been made, the superintendent, principal or teacher shall make such examinations, aided by test cards furnished by the state board of education.

The House was called to order at 11.15 by Speaker Nickerson and was followed with prayer by the chaplain.

All business acted upon was under suspension of the rules, transmitted to the senate.

The house adjourned to Wednesday at 11.15.

GOSHEN

A Goshen farmer who takes enjoyment in the raising of prize winning Rhode Island Red poultry met with bad luck on Thursday morning. He went to the brooder house to feed the young chicks and found the happy family all dead. Investigation disclosed the depredation to be the work of a sneak thief who had gained an entrance some time during the night, by a fiendish clever detective work he was captured and capital punishment was meted out to him for the grave offense of murdering 119 innocent lives in cold blood. The evidence in the case was convincing. The culprit's name was Wharf Rat.

Deputy Sheriff John Dolan captured a thief in Glasgo Monday and lodged him in jail in Jewett City. Frank E. Robinson notified Sheriff Dolan that the bank placed in Glasgo school for the children's savings, was found smashed and the money gone, when school opened on Monday morning. Sheriff Dolan and Mr. Robinson went to Glasgo to investigate and Joseph Dumas was arrested. He confessed his guilt, saying he entered the building early on Friday evening, by putting a stick up to the window, smashing a pane of glass with his elbow and then raising the catch. The amount he stole was $7.53, but often there has been anywhere from thirty to forty dollars in the bank. The money had been spent for food, he said. About a year ago, Dumas was arrested by Sheriff Dolan after finding stolen goods hidden under the Boardman schoolhouse.

He was tried Tuesday morning before Judge Allyn L. Alying in the Griswold town court. Dumas will appear in the superior court and will be held under bonds of $1,000. He was unable to furnish the bonds and was taken to the Norwich jail.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

EVERYBODY MUST DO SOMETHING.

One bright morning, as Little Jack Rabbit hopped along the Old Rail Fence, Professor Crow looked out of his Tall Pine Tree House and said:

"Let me read you something from my little Black Book."

So the little rabbit sat up on his hind legs and wiggled his nose three times and a half, and when he had finished, the old black bird had on his spectacles and was ready to commence.

"In the Spring, the wild birds sing,
The flowers nod and smile,
The Bubbling Brook, with twist and crook
Flows on for many a mile.
The farmer plows the fields again
To raise potatoes, beans and grain,"

"I know that," said the little rabbit. "I saw him do it last year."

"Wait a minute," said Old Professor Crow, "I haven't finished yet."

"And every little boy and girl,
Should well each day his time employ,
And sow a kindly little seed
Or help a friendless one in need."

"You see," said Professor Crow.

"No Siree, I get them for myself."

closing his little Wisdom Book, with a snap, "everybody must do something in this great busy world. He mustn't sit still while the Bubbling Brook turns the Old Mill Wheel and the farmer plows the field. Oh, my, no. Everybody must do something to help."

"That's what mother says," laughed the little rabbit. "I polish the front door knob every day, feed the canary and keep the woodbox in the kitchen full of wood; after that I've the rest of the day to myself."

"Well, I'm glad you are doing your part," answered Old Professor Crow, putting his spectacles away in the case, "if you always do what your mother says, you won't go wrong."

Then, away flew that wise old bird and the little rabbit hopped into the Shady Forest to see what Squirrel Nutcracker was doing. And what do you suppose he was up to? Well, you'll never guess, not if I gave you till tomorrow or a year, so I'll tell you right away. He was cooking a last year's nut, for, of course, the old Chestnut Tree didn't have any nuts on it. Oh, my no, it wouldn't have until the Autumn came.

"How did you know enough to store away nuts," asked the little rabbit.

"Ha, ha," laughed Squirrel Nutcracker. "A fellow who can't take care of himself in this world might just as well try to borrow a dollar from a miser! I don't sit still and wait for someone to hand me a nut. No Siree, I get them for myself." And after that, Squirrel Nutcracker ran up the tree to ask Mrs. Nutcracker how she felt for she had lost her vanity and was feeling very ill over it.

Ten million pounds of copper were utilized in making a transmission cable for a California water-power project recently.

COLUMBIA

Mr. and Mrs. W. Clifford Robinson of Post Hill returned from Florida on Friday last where they have been during the past two months. They visited all the prominent points of interest, including St. Augustine and Palm Beach, and saw 22,000 acres under cultivation for celery, also acres of early vegetables and strawberries, besides beautiful orange groves. They said the weather was warm and pleasant, but just before their arrival there had been a slight frost.

Among those in town who are ill are Mrs. Emily Little at her home with muscular rheumatism, and Fred A. Abell, who is convalescing at a hospital in Willimantic after an operation.

A pruning and grafting demonstration was given on the farm of A. H. Benton on Tuesday last by W. H. Darrow, fruit specialist of Storrs Agricultural College. He was accompanied by E. E. Tucker, county agent, who assisted him.

A box containing 100 one day old chicks arrived for Mrs. Tomchson on Chestnut Hill on Tuesday last from New Jersey and judging from the noise they made they were in robust health.

Cecil L. Gates who has been living in Hartford during the winter was at his home near the lake on Thursday night.

In a bulletin issued by E. O. Russell, school supervisor of this district, which includes the schools in six towns, he states that there are 92 children in the Columbia schools, who are depositors in the Chelsea Savings Bank, which is a greater number than from any other school in his district, the next highest being Sprague with 39 depositors, and the lowest 10 from Franklin. The highest percentage of scholars depositing in the bank is in Franklin being 6% per cent. and the next highest is Columbia 4% per cent. while Hebron and Sprague are the lowest 2% pre cent. each.

Regarding the increased cost of education, which Mr. Russell says one hears so much about in these days he states that the expense per capita of the schools 1921-22 in Columbia was $648 being the lowest in his district, which includes $3.82, the cost of teachers, while the greatest expense was $8.89 for Willington. In contrast to those figures, he says the cost of tobacco in 1920 was $21 per capita in the entire United States. The comparison is obvious. Shall we have an expensive, injurious habit, or happy, healthy and educated young people?

Practically all the teachers are doing some kind of project work in the form of folders to do away with useless note books. This has been done in geography, history arithmetic, citizenship and health teaching.

All the teachers in town have been asked to renew their appointments for the coming school year, and to hand in their decisions by May 1st. Miss MacIntosh of the Hop River school, Miss Clow of Chestnut Hill and Mrs. Cummins of the Pine Street school have already signed contracts.

A speaking and spelling contest was held in the West street school on Tuesday afternoon. The speakers and selections were as follows: Elsie Michaels, Gettysburg Address; Ethel Krosewitz, A Violet; Joe Krosewitz, The Three Bells; Charles Gorman, Concord Hymn; Louis Sitkis, The Blue and the Gray; Amelia Gorman, Oh Captain, My Captain. The judges were Mrs. J. A. Isham, Mrs. Robert Cobb and Mrs. Philip Isham, who awarded the first place to Amelia Gorman, and the second to Joe Krosewitz. Ethel Krosewitz won first place in spelling and Amelia Gorman, the second.

Miss Gertrude Gates and Miss Rachel Buell, who are in business in Hartford, spent the week end at the home of Miss Buel.

There was a social and dance at Yeamans Hall on Saturday evening under the management of Jesse Johnson, and was attended by twenty young people of the town.

Slow wisdom is sometimes better than sudden inspiration.

If you feel "out of sorts," sluggish and weary

If you feel "out of sorts," sluggish, weary and irritable; if you lack the spirit and sparkle and the ability to do your work with the same briskness and cheerfulness that you see in others, it is probably because your organs are not generating enough vital energy.

If your blood lacks the normal amount of the elements that are necessary in the production of vital energy, it is not possible for you to feel strong, industrious and sprightly; you are bound to tire quickly, feel downcast and find it difficult to take proper interest in your work or your favorite recreations.

If you are not feeling as "fit" as you would like to; if you are in need of reinvigoration, you should take Wincarnis for a week or so. You will probably be surprised and delighted at the promptness with which this general tonic and restorative will enrich your blood, strengthen your nervous system and relieve your feeling of general debility and exhaustion. Physicians are prescribing Wincarnis because of its great virtue as a tonic and reconstructive.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, April 17.—Prices in today's stock market moved to higher ground in response to aggressive buying operations in a number of selected issues by speculative cliques. There also was evidence, however, of increased public participation, particularly in the rails but this buying slackened perceptibly on unconfirmed reports that the big railroad brotherhoods were about to apply to the railroad labor board for a wage increase.

New higher records for the year were made during the session by General Motors at 17 1-8, Dupont at 139 1-2, Stewart-Warner Speedometer at 54 1-2 and Canadian Pacific at 154 1-2, but some of these prices were shaded at the close. Dupont's net gain on the day was 6 3-4 points. However, there were also several points of weakness new low records being established by Marine preferred at 34 3-4, American Ship & Commerce at 14 3-8, American Hide & Leather preferred at 37 1-2 and International Paper at 49.

Several of the large commission houses had advised buying of the rails with the result that more than a score of the representative issues had gained 1 to 3 points before noon. Among those which closed a point or more higher were Baltimore & Ohio, St. Paul, Rock Island, Lackawanna, Reading, New York Central, Pere Marquette, St. Louis & Southern and Union Pacific.

American Waterworks issues developed unexpected strength on reports of large current earnings, the common gaining more than 6 points and the 6 per cent. preferred, 3 1-4. Columbia Gas crossed 110 for a net gain of 1 5-8. Duplication of the previous high of 6 cents a pound for Cuban raw sugar revived interest in the sugar shares, gains of a point or more being recorded by Cuba Cane preferred, Manati, Punta Alegre and South Porto Rican.

Some of the other strong points in the industrial group were Baldwin, Houston Oil, Reynolds Spring and California Petroleum, up 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points.

Call money opened at 5 per cent., advanced to 5 1-2 and then fell back to 5. Time money was quiet with a few 30 and 60 day loans arranged at 5 1-4 per cent. and bankers asking 5 1-2 for all maturities. Out-of-town institutions were the principal takers of commercial paper, the rates of which were unchanged.

The foreign exchange market showed irregularity. Demand sterling eased off at the start and then advanced to $4.65 1-4, up 1-4, in response to a good demand for sterling bills by local importers. French, Belgian and German currencies were heavy. French francs fell 9 points to 6.56 cents and German marks dropped from .0047 to .0043 1-2 cents. Swiss checks were at 18.07 cents, a new low for the year.

BOND MARKET.

New York, April 17. — Impressive strength of French government and municipal bonds in the face of reactionary Paris exchange rates was the feature of today's bond market, prices in which were mainly higher. French 5's, Bordeaux 6's and Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6's all established new high records for the year, buying apparently being based on speculative hope of an early agreement between Germany and France on the reparations question. The net gains were mostly fractional.

Some good buying also took place in the railroad group but most of the gains there also were limited to fractions. Some of the most prominent were made by Norfolk & Western convertible 6's, Burlington refunding 5's, Kansas City Southern 5's and "Soo" 6 1-2's. Pere Marquette refunding 5's lost ground.

Punta Alegre Sugar 7's, up 2 1-4, featured the industrial group, other strong spots in which were Bethlehem Steel refunding 5's, Northern States Power refunding 5's, Southern Bell Telephone 5's and American Water Works 5's, all up about a point. Morris & Co. 4 1-4's touched a new low.

U. S. government bonds moved irregularly within the narrow radius of 2-32's of a point.

Total sales (par value) were $10,013,000.

The principal offering today was the $8,000,000 issue of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the Public Service Electric Power Company at 98.75 and accrued dividends to yield 7.10 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, April 17. — Unfavorable crop reports led to renewed buying of wheat today, and brought about a material advance in prices. The market closed strong, 1 5-8 to 2 1-2 net higher with May $1.25 7-8 to $1.26 and July $1.23 3-4 to $1.23 7-8. Corn gained 3-4 to 1 1-4, and oats 1-8@1-4 to 1-2@5-8c. In provisions the outcome varied from 7c decline to a rise of 3c.

Nebraska and Ohio crop prospects were in particular regarded as new incentives to purchase wheat, estimates being current that both states would harvest much smaller yields than last year. In Nebraska the estimate was on the basis of at least normal weather for the remainder of the season until the crop matures. Ohio reports indicated much heavier acreage abandonment and lower condition than was reported in the early week of March. Bullish crop advices from Indiana, Illinois and Texas attracted special notice also in the late trading, and were in some degree responsible for the fact that closing quotations were at the day's topmost figures.

Taken in connection with the dubious outlook as to spring seeding in the Northwest and also in the light of previous disturbing reports from important winter wheat states such as Kansas, the crop news put bears at a disadvantage from the outset. The United States supreme court decision upholding the validity of the grain futures act seemed to have no effect whatever today as a depressing influence. On the contrary, it was said that considerable of the wheat which because of the decision had been sold out yesterday was brought back today.

Corn and oats reflected the wheat advance. Besides, the corn market was helped by an estimate that the Argentine exportable surplus of corn was the smallest in five years.

Provisions declined with hogs and because of the semi-monthly report on lard stocks here.

MARKET CONDITIONS.

Fancy apples are in limited quantities on the markets at present. Higher prices are now evident for the fancy stock. The poor to ordinary grades continue to move along slowly. The market for potatoes rules higher under a better demand. The celery market is unsteady, only fancy stock bringing steady prices. The butter markets still remain unsettled. The call for tub butter is improving now as the quotations on this particular grade are falling off gradually. The pressure to sell table graded butter is in evidence now. Trading for dressed poultry is very light at present. Light fowls are in fair demand but still are not cleaning up fast enough to hold the prices on a level. Country dressed calves of good quality are scarce. The market is made up mostly of the common grades of calves now which bring very low prices when sold. The demand for this particular grade is very light. The grain markets are witnessing higher prices this week. The trading operations are becoming more prominent. Wheat, corn, oats show evidences of higher outlooks. The high prices seem to awaken the public to buy more stock before higher prices set in.

RECONSIDERED VOTE TO LAY TAX ON COUNTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 17.—A meeting of the legislative committee from New London county was held at the close of the session today at which the action taken in March laying a tax of 1-2 mill was reconsidered. It was then voted to raise the sum of $50,000 by levying a tax upon the towns in the county, the same to be payable to the county treasurer by July 1, 1924.

On motion of Senator Gibbs of Norwich a rising vote of thanks was given Senator Rogers for his hospitality shown the members at the recent dinner given by him at the Hotel Heublein.

Representative Lee L. Brockway of Lyme, was warmly greeted today by friends after a three weeks' absence caused by illness. "Brock" by his genial ways has won a place in the appreciations and regards of his fellow members. During his illness a handsome basket of flowers was sent to him, with the idea that it was better for him to have them while he was alive and not wait till he was beyond appreciating them.

Derby.—Rev. Worthy F. Maylott, pastor of the First Congregational church, has returned from East Canaan, where he attended the funeral of his old friend, E. S. Roberts, who was formerly music teacher.

WAR DEPARTMENT SETS CLOSED PERIODS FOR BRIDGES

The war department has announced a new ruling in relation to the opening and closing of drawbridges on all navigable streams, which includes the Thames river bridges, both the highway and the railroad bridges.

Under the new regulations the bridges will not open for boat traffic between 6.30 and 7 a. m., between 12 m., and 12.15 p. m., and between 12.45 and 1 p. m. At all other hours the bridges will be opened for the passage of boats at any time before the expiration of 20 minutes from the time the first boat signals for opening, and at the time which, in the judgment of the bridge tender, will cause the least interference with land traffic over the bridge. It is expected that the new ruling will better accommodate commuters who use the bridges more freely during the above hours specified as closed to river traffic.

NORWICH TOWN

The many and useful gifts which from time to time quite recently have been presented to the Johnson home, for the pleasure and comfort of the household, through Home chapter and several circles of the King's Daughters, are much appreciated by the matron, Mrs. May Rollins, and those connected with the home.

Home chapter made a gift of $100 to purchase bed linen, and also presented several pair of lace curtains for the attractive parlor which the chapter originally furnished. Euphemia circle of the Greeneville Congregational church presented a bedspread, quilt, two pair of pillow cases and four sheets.

Class circle of the King's Daughters, having recently disbanded, the room looked after by this circle has been taken over by Loyal circle. From the latter circle the home received a bedspread, beautiful pair of woolen blankets, two pair of pillow cases, also flowers for Easter and a postcard shower for the occupant of the room, and one-half dozen tray cloths for the dining room.

From Grace circle $5 was presented to the matron to purchase any necessity in the way of cooking utensils for the kitchen, also one-half dozen tray cloths for the dining room.

Members of Home chapter and the several circles take a great interest in the welfare of the home, and aside from looking after the several rooms assigned to their care often provide entertainment in the way of vocal and instrumental music, readings, and by the serving of refreshments on their special visits. All this helps to pass away the time most agreeably for many who are shut-ins.

Rev. W. L. Muttart, pastor of the Preston City Congregational church, and Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, exchanged pulpits on Sunday morning. At the latter church Rev. Mr. Muttart preached from the Lord's prayer, on Hallowed Be Thy Name, Luke 11: 2. The Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 6.30 had for its topic "How Can We Become Truly Educated; Proverbs 4: 1-9." Miss Estred Alquist was the leader.

The society also held its monthly business meeting, during which several important topics were discussed. The one that aroused the most interest was that of the Christian Endeavor institute which is to be held in New London Saturday and Sunday, May 5th and 6th. The special feature of this was concerning the delegates from this society, which will be named later.

The Church Night service of the Congregational church on Thursday evening will have for its topic Christ's Sermon on the Mount.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday morning Rev. Harry E. Olcott of Hartford spoke of the work of the Anti-Saloon league. An offering was taken for temperance work. The church pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, presided over the service. In the evening Rev. Mr. Aldrich preached from Proverbs 3: 7, Be not wise in thine own eyes; fear the Lord, and depart from evil.

Miss Theodora Brown was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service. The subject treated was How Can We Become Truly Educated?

LYME RESIDENT WILL FIGHT IN COURT AGAINST $69,000 ASSESSMENT

William Gillette of Lyme, who put his property in the grand list in October, 1923, at $21,050, which the assessors raised to $70,000 and the board of relief reduced to $60,000, has brought an appeal to the superior court from the board of relief. The suit is returnable on the first Tuesday in May.

The valuations are on a dwelling house, vessels and boats, dock and basin, which were rated as follows by the owner and the tax officials:

Owners' valuations: Dwelling house $20,000; vessels and boats, $550, dock and basin $500, total $21,050; totals with all property included $22,375.

Assessors' valuations: Dwelling house $62,000, vessels and boats $5,000, dock and basin $3,000, total $70,000; total with all property included $71,650.

Board of relief's valuations: Dwelling house $62,000, vessels and boats $4,000, dock and basin $3,000; total $69,000; totals with all property included $70,325.

Two Divorce Actions.

Other May suits filed with the clerk of the superior court are the following:

Frances Greenman Lovett of Griswold has brought suit for divorce from Dwight C. Lovett of Windham whom she married Sept. 7, 1903, and whom she claims deserted her Feb. 1, 1919. She asks the custody of a daughter.

Mary Hubbard Alves of Norwich seeks divorce from Joseph Alves, now of parts unknown. They were married Aug. 2, 1914. She alleges that he was habitually intemperate for more than five years prior to March, 1920 and had been intolerably cruel to her since their wedding day. She asks change of name to Mary M. Hubbard.

Claim Left Out in Will.

Robert H. Appleby of Old Lyme claims that there was due him $2,640 from the late Augusta M. Clark of Old Lyme at the time of her death and he sues the executors of her estate, Robert Noble and Eugene Calkins, to collect it. Appleby, who was manager and caretaker of th eClark homestead from October 1, 1918, to June 1, 1922, the date of Augusta Clark's death. He claims she had agreed to pay him $100 per month, of which she was to pay $40 monthly in cash, which she did, but the balance of $60 per month was to be paid by a provision in Augusta Clark's will. She made no such provision in her will and he sues on this claim for $2,640 at $60 per month from Oct. 1, 1918, to June 1, 1922.

Suit on Note For $1,250.

Jacob Maroon of Colchester sues to collect a note for $1,250 dated Sept. 28, 1922, from Jacob and Sadie Boratz, husband and wife of Colchester.

WOULD STRIP TITLES FROM GOVERNOR'S STAFF

Members of future governor's staffs would be stripped of special titles by a general militia bill approved by the legislative committee on military affairs for recommendation to the legislature this week, it was stated recently by Brig. Gen. Morris B. Payne of New London, quartermaster general on Governor Templeton's staff.

The place of assistant quartermaster general with rank of colonel would be abolished and the place of armory board inspector without military rank established in its place. The rank of the quartermaster general would be reduced to that of colonel and the Connecticut naval militia resurrected. There would also be a change in the pay of soldiers in the Connecticut national guard, with the maximum rate raised from $3.50 to $4.50 a day.

Appointments by the governor of civilians to the places on his staff of surgeon-general, chief of ordinance, inspector-general, and judge-advocate general would be discontinued. The governor would have ten staff appointments to make, but all would be aides-de-camp, four with rank of colonel, five with rank of major and one with rank of lieutenant commander.

Staff Not Recognized by Army

The reason for this change, according to General Payne, who is himself a house member of the military affairs committee, is that, under the national defense act, officers of the governor's staff as such are not recognized by the federal government. While Col. Arthur F. Ells of Waterbury is judge advocate general on Governor Templetons staff, military matters arising in the Connecticut national guard requiring legal interpretation must be sent to Major Charles E. Hart, judge advocate in the national guard.

The designation of Colonel Ells was an honorary appointment and was recognized as such when made, as were those of Col. John H. Trumbull of Plainville to be chief of ordinance; Col. Howard B. Dunham of Wethersfield to be inspector general and Col. John S. Dye of Waterbury to be surgeon general.

The actual ordinance officer in the national guard is Maj. Robert F. Gadd of Hartford, the inspector general, Maj. Francis J. Shearer of New Britain and the senior medical officer, Col. Charles W. Comfort, Jr., of New Haven.

Surgeon General Not Appointed

Under the new militia bill, the senior medical officer in the C. N. G. would automatically become a member of each governors staff without special appointment, as is now the case with the adjutant general. This is the only place left on the governor's staff which carries a salary of $500 a year, being provided by statute for the surgeon general on account of the duties required of him as a member of the soldiers' hospital board.

General Payne said that the plan had been submitted to Governor Templeton and approved by him. The proposed staff changes would not be effective until the beginning of the next administration. The idea of abolishing the place of assistant quartermaster-general on the staff is to discourage frequent changes of the official responsible for the 24 state armories, rifle ranges and other military property of the state. Col. Harry G. Bissell of Manchester, now assistant quartermaster general, will probably be transferred to the new place of armory board inspector, thus keeping the work in charge of a practical military man, and at his present salary of $2,500 a year.

The place of assistant adjutant general would be continued at the present salary of $2,500 a year.

Changes in Pay

National guardsmen are now paid under three rates. The new national defense act revised in 1922, puts the men in seven grades, and the military affairs committee will recommend in its bill that seven corresponding rates of pay be established, with a new minimum of $2.15 a day instead of $2.50 a day as at present, and a new maximum of $4.50 a day instead of $3.50 now paid. The government pays $1 of all rates of pay, the remainder being paid by the state. The state pay would be effective for 15 consecutive days only except in case the national guard should be called out by the governor for riot duty or other emergency. Otherwise, at the end of 15 days allowed for annual camp duty, the state pay would end and the men would receive only the government pay of $1 a day.

March 25, in the Greek calendar (April 6 in ours), is celebrated by Greeks as their Independence day, because the war against the Turks, which resulted in the independence of Greece, started on that day in 1821.

"THE PERFECT MIRROR" IS NOON MEETING TOPIC

The Y. M. C. A. noon meeting at the Richmond Radiator company Tuesday was well attended by the employes who listened with deep interest to Rev. C. H. Ricketts who addressed them on the topic, "The Perfect Mirror." Among other things Mr. Ricketts said:

Gazing into a looking glass may not always be satisfactory, neither is it always an act of vanity. Vain people of course do it and very likely find pleasure in it, but the majority do it from a hard sense of duty to make a clear and national distinction between vanity and a just pride that urges them to be neat, tidy, becoming and attractive in personal appearance. The looking glass has its legitimate uses.

We must go to the mirror to get a full and correct view of ourselves; the mirror will not come to us. A vest pocket mirror gives a limited and hence unsatisfactory view. Pocket editions of anything are partial failures. To hear a great speaker or singer one must go to the hall or church where the speaking and singing are heard. They do not come to our homes.

The mirrors we use are more or less imperfect; they tend to distort the images they are supposed to reveal, and hence we do not see them just as they are. Your own features reflected in shimmering water are hardly recognizable. Trees, shrubs, bits of landscape and clouds dance about in crazy fashion. Life is full of imperfect mirrors that distort persons and things. The mirrors of men are so distorted with prejudices, passion, partisanship and partiality that we cannot trust the images they present. Is there in existence the portraiture of the real Napoleon? Abbott, who extolls him to the heavens, is as unreliable as Sir Walter Scott who besmears him with lampblack.

The only perfect mirror is the incomparable Christ. Human hearts are revealed just as they are in Him. Law as given by Moses is cold justice, but in Christ Who is the fulfillment of the law, we find justice warmed and humanized by love. Philosophy as revealed by Plato and his followers is abstract reasoning, but in Christ it is made a living reality. Compare Plato's "Republic" with Christ's "Sermon on the Mount." Not one person in ten thousand has been influenced by Plato, while the majority in Christian lands have been uplifted by the philosophy of Christ.

By looking at Christ we are changed into His likeness. We always grow into the likeness of the things that delight us most. The miser's face grows to look like the hard coin he worships. We always take on the color of the environment we are in. If the atmosphere we live in is coarse, vile and sodden, we can hide it no more than a "leopard can hide his. The face of the true scholar grows brighter all the way from kindergarten to university. The true Christian who lives in the presence of his Master" is changed into the same image from glory to glory."

But we must look at Him with "open face." When we sit in a photographer's chair we do not cover up our face with a napkin. There must be no obstruction between his camera and ourselves if we want a reproduction of our real likeness. We cannot appear before the Master with a mask. Mere pretence must be cast aside before Him, for He sees us just as we are.

There will be a desire on our part to look into His face when His spirit is in our hearts. "We are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord." Like not only reproduces like but it seeks the fellowship of like. With Christlikeness in our hearts we shall go out in search of like qualities in other hearts. And we shall ever grow more and more into the image of things true, lovely and of good report, for John has told us: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him for we shall see Him as He is."

For Forestry Campaign.

The Connecticut Forestry Association is extending its work by the formation of committees of interested citizens in each county, such as, landowners, farmers, manufacturers, and others. The county agricultural agent and county blister rust control agent are ex-officio members of the committee.

Great interest has been shown by these citizen committees and extensive forestry work is planned in many counties. Community forests will be established, motor-camping grounds for the accommodation of tourists developed and many reforestation projects undertaken. Soldiers' memorial trees and roadside shade and nut trees are to be planted in some counties.

Membership in the Connecticut Forestry Association is open to all who are interested in supporting the conservation movement. The membership now exceeds 600 and county committees are striving to reach 1,000 by June 1st. Dues are $1 for annual members, $10 for sustaining and corporation members, $25 for life and $250 for patron membership, the last two exempting from further payment of annual dues.

The organization in Eastern Connecticut is as follows.

New London county: Ozias Dodge, 8 Mediterranean lane, Norwich Town, county vice president and chairman. Groevenor Ely, Norwich; George L. Ingals, Norwich; Angelo Filosi, East Lyme; Dr. Charles B. Graves, New London; Alfred D. McDonnell, county blister rust agent, 153 Huntington street, New Haven, ex-officio; M. F. Johnson, Shannon building, Norwich, ex-officio.

Windham county: Allen B. Lincoln, 783 Main street, Hartford, county vice president and chairman; Albert P. Albe, South Windham; Irving W. Davis, Danielson; Oliver A. Hiscox, Woodstock; R. H. Hick, county blister rust agent, Rocky Hill, ex-officio; F. L. Davis, county agent, Putnam, ex-officio.

STREET DEPARTMENT MONEY IS PROVING NOT ENOUGH

The last report of city treasurer C. S. Avery, which was presented at the April meeting of the common council, showed that there was a total of $1,438.05 in overdrafts in the street department in four divisions of the work up to March 15. Unexpended balances in the other divisions of the work are shown at $3,025.86 to carry on until the close of the year on the first of June.

In the ordinary repairs and expenses there is an overdraft of $1,411.73, the appropriation having been $48,000. The amount expended for parks and trees has run 90.69 over the appropriation of $18,000 and there has been expended for liability insurance $335.16 more than that the appropriation of $2,167.81.

The sewers and catch basin account shows that all but $2.54 of the $4,000 appropriated has been spent, and in macadam repairs there is a balance of $4.49 left from the $12,000 appropriation. In oiling and sprinkling all but 28 cents of the $6,000 appropriated has been expended.

Outside work has a balance of 390.66 left from the appropriation of $5,000 and the garbage and ashes account has remaining $2,338.48 from the appropriation of $22,000. There is a balance of $287.78 on hand from the $1,600 appropriated for the comfort station for women.

Total scores: Mrs. Houston 74,645; Dr. Boynton 73,315; Mrs. Standish 73,020; Miss McNaught 72,685; Mrs. Wyant 70,755; Mrs. Crowell 70,225; Mrs. Maples 67,805; Mrs. Ringland 67,695.

Clowns Practice for Y Circus

Clowns held sway in the Y gym Tuesday night when the young men who are to be the funny fellows in the Y circus met to rehearse their antics. This year's program affords these "knights of the sawdust" ample opportunity to do some good work, for some good comedy is on the list and most of this year's clowns were initiated into clowndom in last season's circus. Tempesta and Pinesuit, A. Grebe, H. Charnetsky, H. Lasch and C. William are taking the leading clown parts.

Kangaroos are found in only one place in the world, Australia.

EXPECT UNCLE DAVID AT SCOUT ROUND TABLE

The Norwich scoutmasters and officials will meet at scout headquarters, Shannon building, this (Wednesday) evening for a conference and round table to discuss some important scout matters. It is hoped to have Uncle David Cory, the fascinating story-teller, present for a short time during this meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Quarters for the scout pet show have been secured and any registered scout may enter a pet for competition at this show. A small admission fee will be charged and the proceeds devoted to the scout fund. A number of special prizes in addition to ribbons will be awarded the same as last year. Anything from a bee to a Shetland pony may be entered.

The time for the annual inspection of the Norwich troops is rapidly approaching, and the date will be set soon for the latter part of May. The winner in this inspection will be entitled to possession of the Ferguson challenge cup, now held by Troop No. 1 of the United Congregational church.

Plans are now under way for 1923 scout camp at Lake Paucamac. The camp committee will meet in a few days, after which further notice will appear when opportunities will be given scouts to enroll. A little thrift each week will give each scout a good time this summer.

MOOSE PREPARING TO ATTEND STATE CONVENTION

Norwich Lodge of Moose balloted on one name and initiated one candidate at the last regular meeting. COLLIDE ON CROSSWALK AT HEAD OF BATH STREET

A Buick roadster driven by Arthur J. Silvy of 221 West Main street, who had come up Bath street and was circling the silent policeman to return down Bath street, was in collision Tuesday afternoon about 1 o'clock with a Ford sedan which was coming up Broadway and was driven by F. M. Perkins of 57 Melville avenue, Dorchester, Mass.

The cars met on the crosswalk in front of the Shea newsstore and the Ford had its front wheels and steering gear so badly damaged that it had to be towed to a garage for repairs. The right forward mudguard of the roadster was badly bent and the radiator jammed so that it leaked.

Both drivers reported to police headquarters, where it was found that Silvy did not have his license with him, and he was ordered to appear in court.

At the meeting the members agreed and it wa voted that the council take advantage of the invitation of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus, Mercier Assembly, and attend their open house on the evening of Wednesday the 18th. Its fame has spread from shore to shore until it is now looked upon by women everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills. It has been proved that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it, which is a marvelous record for any remedy to hold.

SHOP WORKER AIRED VIEWS AT NEW HAVEN ROAD MEETING

Robert Henderson, Secretary of the Federation of Shop Crafts, Holding Proxy of a Stockholder, Charged That the Policy of the Directors Has Been "Rule and Ruin" —Criticism Was Launched During Discussion of a Motion to Authorize $5,000,000 Bond Issue—General Manager Bardo Was About to Refute Accusations When Director Arthur T. Hadley Interposed and Asked That the Discussion End—Bond Issue Was Authorized 915,236 to 30.

New Haven, Conn., April 18.—For the first time in its history, it is believed, a labor union officer today was disputant in the annual meeting of the stockholders of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company. The officer was Robert Henderson of Readville, secretary of the Federation of Shop Crafts on the system which since July 1 last has conducted a strike of shopmen. Mr. Henderson held a proxy for a stockholder.

The question under discussion was adoption of a motion to authorize the company to issue $5,000,000 in bonds to provide for new equipment and to reimburse the treasury for cash expended for various purposes. Mr. Henderson said that the policy of the directors was a "rule and ruin" one and asked if it was to be continued. He said that the officials should have settled the shopmen's strike "instead of trying to wreck the unions."

"I am not a paid labor agitator," said Mr. Henderson, "but when the New Haven road locked out its shopmen—for it has been a lockout since September—they drove 5,000 men on to the bricks. You have created bolshevism among men who do not want bolshevism. Is there no justice in this board? I say the employes had cause to strike. If the directors continue this policy of rule and ruin and then ask for more bonds to buy equipment while good equipment out of repair is on the lines this road will never get ahead. I want to say that if the stockholders want this policy of your directors continued there is no hope for the road. I could talk for hours and show you things you don't know. I was offered proxy after proxy by stockholders but I did not need them. I only want to tell you that I am not a paid labor fakir. I have been a worker in the shops all my life."

Mr. Henderson sharply criticised the policy of the officials towards the shopmen and was discussing railroad labor conditions in general when President Pearson, on a point of order that Mr. Henderson was not speaking on the bond issue, seated him. General Manager Bardo rose to reply but did not do so, for as Mr. Henderson was demanding the right "to take a shot at him" in rebuttal, Arthur T. Hadley, a director, asked that the discussion end.

Mr. Henderson's opportunity to speak came after Hagop Bogigian had declared that the road had too many supervisory officials and thought a number of superintendents should be cut down. He said that he had letters to prove that there were more superintendents, overseers and other high salaried men on the road than laborers. He did not object, he said, to paying salaries to men who are worth it, "but," he added, "when you pay $5,000, $10,000 and $12,000 salaries to men who sit on padded chairs at desks and then pay for upholstering those chairs, we object."

After Mr. Henderson had spoken Mr. Bogigian said he regretted that the labor question had come up in the way it had.

The stock count showed that the company's annual report had been accepted 915,861 to nothing, the board of directors elected 916,561 to nothing, and the bond issue authorized 915,236 to 30.

CABLE PARAGRAPHS

Strike of Shop Girls in Paris

P.)—Monsignor Lubio, envoy of the Holy See, is willing to act as peacemaker in the present conflict between the Free Staters and republicans if invited to do so, it was stated on good authority today. Monsignor Lubio came here recently with credentials from Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, to investigate conditions in southern Ireland.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS FAVOR CONCRETE OFFER TO FRANCE

Berlin, April 18 (By the A. P.)—On the resumption of debate in the reichstag today on the recent address of Baron von Rosenberg, the foreign minister, Herr Breitscheidt, speaking in behalf of the socialist, strongly urged that the government should make a definite concrete offer to France for a settlement of the reparations question.

"Our duty," said the deputy, "is to bring about a speedy end of the Ruhr adventure. We have no friends in the world. America and England will not intervene."

While not saying that it was acceptable, Herr Breitscheidt suggested that the plan of Louis Barthou, on behalf of France, and M. Delacroix, on behalf of Belgium, for the payment of $5,000,000,000 gold marks by Germany had the merit of definiteness. "What we object to in the plan," he added, "is the stipulation for the progressive evacuation of the Ruhr, and its failure to reimburse Germany for the costs of maintaining the armies of occupation.

Herr Breitscheidt expressed the opinion that Germany probably would be far better off by making a direct offer than to risk the verdict of a board of experts, which latter procedure he believed France and the other allies would not accept.

"We are not affiliated with or related to this government," declared the deputy; "but nevertheless we desire to see it remain in office to liquidate the Ruhr conflict, which occurred during its regime."

REMARKABLE SLUMP OF THE GERMAN MARK

Berlin, April 18 (By the A. P.)—After standing for weeks in the neighborhood of 92,000 to the pound sterling, the German mark suffered a remarkable slump today, dropping to 120,000 to the pound.

The spectacular slump temporarily overshadowed interest in the reichstag debate on Baron von Rosenberg's speech, and while financial experts assert that the mark for a long time has been due for another drop "on general principles," political circles profess to see in the sudden rise of the dollar the first beneficial effects of early resumption of reparations conversations.

DEPORTATION OF JAMES J. LARKIN ORDERED

Washington, April 18. — Deportation of James J. Pre-Election Uproar At D. A. R. Congress

Charges Made of a Campaign Based Upon the Defamation of Character of Candidate.

Washington, April 18.—Mrs. William Cumming Story of New York, one of three avowed candidates for election as president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, suddenly announced her withdrawal from the race while nominations were being made tonight at the annual congress of the society. Announcing that she was withdrawing in favor of Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Story told the delegates she did so "in repudiation of a campaign based upon defamation of the character of a candidate," her statement threw the convention into an uproar.

Mrs. Story announced her decision from the floor immediately after she had been placed in nomination. Her action left two nominees for the post of president-general, now held by Mrs. George Maynard Minor, in the field—Mrs. Cook and Mrs. G. Wallace W. Hanger, of Washington. Mrs. Cook had been nominated just before Mrs. Story's name was presented, while Mrs. Hanger was nominated afterward.

As soon as Mrs. Story had made her brief statement, Mrs. Cook rushed to the platform and declared se saw no reason why a withdrawal should be made in her favor.

"I am perfectly willing," she added, "to share the votes with my opponent."

Mrs. Story's allusion to defamation of character was declared by her friends to have been directed at the circularization among members of the organization of a letter said to have reflected on the war record of Mrs. Cook's son.

The letter had been denounced by Mrs. Cook as untrue, members of the Pennsylvania delegation backing her up with the announcement that proofs of denial in affidavit form were held at the Pennsylvania headquarters.

Tonight's incident served to intensify the political atmosphere of the congress. Balloting for president-general and other offices will begin tomorrow morning, the opinion prevailing today in the event a deadlock develops between Mrs. Hanger and Mrs. Cook, a "dark horse" candidate will be entered. The new president-general will serve for three years.

GOVERNOR FOR HIGHWAY COMMISSION OF THREE

Hartford, April 18. — Governor Templeton today challenged a statement of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce that the establishment of a three-headed state highway commission would undermine the independence and efficiency of a high grade engineer. In a letter to Secretary George B. Chandler of the chamber of commerce, he answered several statements made in a report of a substitute committee of that organization.

In his letter the governor said: "The reason I believe that we should have a commission to supervise is because of the expenditure of $8,000,000. I do not feel that any one man is bi genough tto look out for all the details necessary to successfully distribute so much money for the state. Mr. Bennett, I believe, agrees with me on this point.

"We are governod by political parties and just so long as we are governed by political parties we have to meet with 'log rolling' as you term it.

"I believe that a board of directors would have a tendency to strengthen the independence and efficiency of an engineer. In other words, the support of three strong men would mean a great deal to an engineer inasmuch as when he questioned his own judgment he could always appeal to them.

"I have not the least objection to your organization, or any one else differing with my views in the matter, and I am a great believer in discussion. However, I want you to know absolutely and positively that I have no personal interest in this matter whatsoever—my only interest being for the best of the state of Connecticut."

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cohen of 212 Montauk avenue, patients at the Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, having been admitted there at 10.30 tonight, after having been found unconscious at their home, were still in an unconscious condition, but their recovery is expected. Finally trying the apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Cohen, being unable to get a response, he discovered a window unfastened and climbed through it. Going to the kitchen of the house, he found two gas jets of a cooking stove open, and Mr. and Mrs. Cohen, who occupied a room off the kitchen, unconscious in bed.

Prohibition Officials To Review Rum Fleet

To Enable Dry Agents to Decide for Themselves the Exact Size of the Fleet Off Jersey Coast.

New York, April 18. — Prohibition officials plan tomorrow to review the rum fleet which for months has been riding at anchor beyond the three-mile limit off the entrance to New York harbor.

The purpose of the visit which will be made on the coast guard cutter Manhattan, is to enable dry agents to decide for themselves the exact size of the fleet and the best methods for combatting smuggling operations.

Palmer Canfield, federal prohibition director for New York, heads the expedition. He will be accompanied by two representatives of the United States attorney's office and a party of newspapermen.

Mr. Canfield declined tonight to state whether he hoped to board any of the mother ships as has been reported, but coast guard officials made it clear that, as far as newspapermen were concerned, they would have to stick to the Manhattan until she returned at night to the Battery. As one officer put it, the Manhattan was, legally speaking, American soil, whereas the rum vessels were reported to be of foreign registry, so that they could not be boarded without passports.

As far as boarding was concerned, it was the understanding that even if Mr. Canfield so desired, he could legally step aboard foreign craft outside the three-mile limit only at the invitation of their skippers.

HAS BEEN FOX-TROTTING AND WALTZING FOR 80 HOURS

Cleveland, O., April 18.—World's endurance dancing records were made and fell fast here today, the championship for both men and women being held tonight by Arthur Howard Klein, 26, who until he won the title late today, had danced at a local academy as the "masked man of mystery." At 10 o'clock tonight he had fox-trotted and waltzed continuously for 80 hours and still was at it, declaring he intended to continue until midnight.

Klein wiped out the record of 73 hours made by Miss Magdelene Wolfe at a local club earlier in the day and the non-stop mark for men established several hours before by James M. Casey of Milwaukee, who quit after he had danced for 67 hours and 7 minutes.

As Klein danced on, Miss Margaret Gerrick stepped over the tile floor of the club until 1.10 tonight, establishing a new record for women, of 75 hours and ten minutes.

HIGH PRICES MIGHT CAUSE BUYERS' STRIKE

New York, April 18.—Possibilities of a buyers' strike were suggested by Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company in an address tonight before the Alumni Association of the New York University School of Commerce.

"Rising prices may shortly result in a pronounced lessening of demand, and something like a buyers' strike," Mr. Sission warned. "Safety lies in continued caution by business men and discrimination by banks in the extension of credit."

CONTEMPT PROCEEDINGS IN WALTER S. WARD CASE

New York, April 18.—Proceedings to have Bertha Robinson and Samuel Miller, employes of Rabenold and Gardiner, attorneys for Walter S. Ward cited for contempt, were begun today. Miss Robinson is a lawyer and managing clerk of the law firm.

BUYING MOVEMENTS CAUSE PRICES OF SUGAR TO ADVANCE

Demands of Housewives Have Forced Refiners Into the Market—Large Purchases Made for England in the Past Few Days—Price of Raw Sugar Advanced Twice Yesterday—Refiners Have Increased Wholesale Prices for Granulated Sugar to 9.60 Cents a Pound, the Highest Price in Nearly Three Years—Result of Government Investigation of Prices Expected Within 24 Hours.

New York, April 18.—Heavy purchases of raw sugars by big refining interests today caused an advance in prices of all classes of sugar to the highest levels since 1920. The demands of housewives throughout the country for granulated and other refined sugars forced the refiners into the market, it was reported around the sugar exchange.

The price of raw sugar advanced twice during the day's trading, the last sale of Cuban raw being at 6 1-4 cents. The refiners at the same time advanced their wholesale prices for fine granulated to 9.60 cents a pound, the highest price in nearly three years.

Brokers established the refiners' purchases today at about 500,000 bags for prompt and future delivery, with the price ranging from 6 1-8 to 6 1-4 for Cuban sugars. Sales of Porto Rican and Philippines sugars were also reported.

A large buying movement from England reported in the past few days was caused, it was said, by the failure of the British government to make any change in the duty rate.

Acting Attorney General Seymour, in charge of the department of justice's investigation of the high price of sugar, conferred with President Harding today. While it was intimated that some official announcement might be expected soon as the result of the investigation now going on here, local officials were silent on the subject. They refused to comment on the situation in any way.

Cuban holders of raw sugars are withholding offers until satisfied with the price, it was reported, as they are impressed with the possibility of a reduction in the final crop figures.

Senator Wadsworth of New York in a discussion of the sugar situation today said he believed the Cuban production might not be more than 3,500,000 tons, said to be the lowest estimate made this year.

TO REPORT ON SUGAR PROBE WITHIN 24 HOURS

Washington, April 18.—The department of justice investigation of the sugar price advice, inaugurated several weeks ago, reached the point today where officials were able to promise a statement of results within 24 hours.

Acting Attorney General Seymour, after presenting a report on the inquiry to President Harding, the second within two days, announced that it had been decided to show at least a part of the government's hand tomorrow. He refused to give any advance information as to the course of the investigation, which has been conducted largely through United States District Attorney Hayward at New York, the controlling sugar market of the country.

The fact that the acting attorney general had found it necessary to present a report today supplemental to that laid before the cabinet yesterday was generally construed as indicating additional developments in the inquiry. Mr. Seymour

DECLARES MARATHON "DANCING" A FRAUD

New York, April 18.—Many of the long-distance dancing records reported through the country in the latest "craze" imported from Europe today were dubbed fraud by Mrs. Evelyn Hubbell, official judge of dancing in one of the city's largest halls.

"It is a physical impossibility to continue any recognized standard dance fairly and above board for more than 20 hours," she said. "Contestants may have walked longer but all recognized dances require pivots, turns and other steps that call for such physical energy that the human system never could stand up under the strain.

"In one instance while contestants in a non-stop dance took time out to sleep another couple danced disguised as the originals. In another instance the announced record makers were off the floor for periods of from 40 minutes to an hour and 40 minutes."

Miss Vera Sheppard of Long Island City winner of the recent tri-state dance marathon, which ended at East Portchester, Conn., today announced her readiness to enter another contest in two weeks, if necessary, after she had recovered some of the 10 pounds she had lost.

STEEL MANUFACTURERS TO END COMPETITION

New York, April 18.—An agreement between the steel manufacturers of Great Britain, France and the United States to end destructive competition in their foreign markets was advocated by Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of directors of the Bethlehem steel corporation, in an address before the British empire chamber of commerce today.

Mr. Schwab declared that while German efficiency apparently had been destroyed for year to come, German industry eventually would come back with ruinous competition for the world's steel business unless there was an agreement to distribute steel products in the foreign markets in the most economical fashion.

"I know that we can manufacture steel cheaper than you can in Great Britain," he said. "But you can ship your goods cheaper and handle your foreign banking, collections, etc., cheaper than we can. We would be satisfied with our fair share of the steel business of the world if we could put an end to destructive competition.

The keynote of the steel everywhere, he said, should be economy, and indicated that the countries producing export steel should be allowed to take over the markets to which they could ship with the most economy.

MORGAN CONVICTED OF SLAYING LILLIAN GILMORE

Philadelphia, April 18.—Wylie M. "Texas" Morgan, formerly of Maud, Texas, was today convicted of murder in the first degree for kidnapping, attacking and slaying Lillian Gilmore, six years old.

The verdict of the jury after a nine days' trial was reached in an hour and a quarter.

Counsel for Morgan made the usual motion for a new trial and pending a decision on this, the sentence of death in the electric chair, which a first degree verdict carries with it, was deferred.

The crime for which Morgan was convicted was described by the police as particularly atrocious one. On Saturday afternoon, February 24, Morgan who was employed in a hat factory, borrowed an automobile from a friend and picked up the little girl and her sister, Dorothy, four years old, near their home for a ride. Several hours later Dorothy was returned to the vicinity of her home and told her parents that a strange man had taken her and Lillian away. Kidnapping was suspected and Morgan was arrested the next day on the strength of stories told by persons who knew him.

FIRE DESTROYED THREE GARAGES IN BRISTOL

Bristol, Conn., April 18.—A high wind placed residences in the Federal Hill section of the city in danger of destruction by fire this afternoon. After a hard fight firement held the blaze to three garages which were burned in whole or in part, and damage to several houses and the belfry of the Congregational church. The loss was about $20,000.

The fire started apparently from gasoline being used for cleaning purposes by a chauffeur in the two story garage of Carlisle F. Barnes in Prospect place. This structure was doomed before the firemen arrived and the two story garage of Walter B. Woodruff, and that of Harry C. Barnes were next to go. Houses of Mr. Woodruff, B. Curtis and Arthur L. Cuccui, 32 Merrimax street, were on fire at one time but were saved. A brand lodged on a ledge of the Congregational church belfry and a fire blazed up but was extinguished with damage not exceeding $250. The chauffeur who was using the gasoline was burned on the face and hands.

DEBATE ON PROHIBITION CONDUCTED BY RADIO

New York, April 18.—Debating by radio broadcasting with listeners-in casting votes was initiated today when General Ransom H. Gillett supported the "pro" and Wayne B. Wheeler the "con" of "Should the National Prohibition Act Be Repealed?"

Each speaker made a fifteen-minute address into the broadcasting device, after which a half hour program of music, including songs with both "wet" and "dry" themes, was sent out. During the musical interlude, questions were received from the radio audience by telegraph and long distance telephone.

Then each speaker devoted fifteen minutes to answering the questions and concluded with a ten-minute rebuttal of his opponent's argument.

When the votes of all the listeners-in have been received, it was stated, the name of the winner of the debate will be broadcast.

MARCH RETAIL TRADE IN IN NEW ENGLAND LARGE

Boston, April 18.—Retail trade in New England was exceptionally large during March, according to reports received by the federal reserve bank of Boston and compiled today. "Net sales in dollars in leading Boston stores will probably be larger than in any previous March—larger than even in March, 1920, when commodity prices were considerable higher than at present," it was said. "Net sales of the eight largest Boston department stores showed an increase of nearly 14 per cent. over last March, while stores situated in other New England cities reported an even greater improvement, their sales being more than 20 per cent. higher than in March, 1920.

"Part of the increase shown in March over a year ago, was due to the fact that Easter came on the first day of April this year, while it was about two weeks later last year. Therefore, all the Easter buying this year came in March, while last year it was spread over into April. Nevertheless, preliminary reports indicate that the volume of trade so far this month has been above the corresponding period in April a year ago, showing that the March improvement was based on something more fundamental than the difference in the date of Easter. It was probably a reflection of the numerous wage increases made throughout New England.

BRIBE CHARGE AGAINST "FLYING COP" M'ALLISTER

New York, April 18.—Mrs. Mamie Castro, keeper of a seamen's boarding house raided by the police for liquor, today charged that Detective "Bob" McAllister, known on the track as "the flying cop," had shaken her down for a $800 bribe under threat of arrest.

Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield, conducting an inquiry into charges of bootlegging against the police, told her flatly he did not believe her story and dared her to sue him for $50,000 slander, as had Charles Tiernan, a bartender, whose testimony he yesterday had termed perjury.

"I don't need to sue him," replied the woman. "The one who laughs last laughs best."

Later she repeated solemnly:

"Yes, McAllister did take $600 from me, so help me God. May my three children die if he didn't."

McAllister, taking the stand, twice denied Mrs. Castro's charges, and Patrolman John J. Reed, who said he was one of the raiding party, and other policemen supported their brother officer. Reed added that nine out of every ten persons arrested raised a cry of "frame up."

McAllister, who, with tears in his eyes, declared Mrs. Castro's tetimony was a lie, told Mr. Hirshfield that as a result of the charges made against him and the notoriety attending the hearing, his mother and bride of one month were suffering nervous breakdowns.

A number of the members of the local chamber of commerce gathered in the chamber rooms Wednesday evening to meet representatives of the Norwich concern to discuss the advisability of erecting a new theatre in this city. Those representing the concern were A. Davidson, who operates the Broadway theatre in Norwich, Attorney V. P. Quinn, and S. Simons. Theodius L. Murphy had charge of the meeting.

Attorney Quinn explained that it was planned to erect a theatre with a seating capacity of 1300. The building is to be four stories high with the theatre and two stores on the lower floor and twenty-five offices on the upper floor. He stated that the proposed method of procuring the necessary funds was to form a corporation of which at least two Willimantic men would be officers. Stock would amount to $150,000. He stated that approximately $75,000 of the stock would have to be sold in this city. It would cost approximately $1,500 or $1,600 per week to operate the theatre while staging motion pictures every evening and three vaudeville shows of four acts a week.

Close figuring brought out the fact that the operating cost would be automatically covered by the sale of tickets at popular prices and the offices and stores would net about $10,000 a year in rents. Due to the fact that the theatre would be in the proximity of the railroad tracks provision would be made to make it sound proof. Suggestions and remarks pro and con were offered by the local men and it is expected that within a few days a decisive step will be taken.

PACKARD

The Packard Single-Six occupies an exceptional position among cars of the highest class, in that it so rarely needs tuning up or mechanical attention.

Nevertheless, Packard officials were first to recognize the importance of service, even with such a car; for good service easily available is essential to complete motoring satisfaction.

The Packard service organization extends throughout the country and abroad as well. These well equipped establishments operate under a unified policy of the highest standards. They are manned with mechanics who understand Packard products and Packard methods.

The owner is thus assured that whenever service is necessary, it is given according to Packard standards and at very reasonable prices. This contributes in no small way to the proverbial Packard contentment.

Glenwood
Makes Cooking Easy

You can cook everything on this menu all at once with a Gold Medal Glenwood

NOT even a dinner party has any terrors for a Gold Medal Glenwood. With its three capacious ovens, four ovens for coal and five gas burners, it can do all the cooking that any one person can take care of.

See, for instance, how this range would make it easy to get ready every item on this dinner menu:

1. Soup—on a gas burner.
2. Steak—in the gas broiler.
3. Potatoes—on a coal range.
4. Peas—on a gas burner.
5. Stewed Tomatoes—on a gas burner.
6. Pie—in the coal oven.
7. Hot Biscuits—in the gas oven.
8. Coffee—on a coal range.

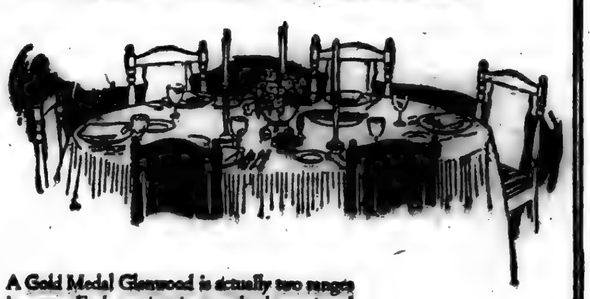
—and there's still room for the tea kettle.



A Gold Medal Glenwood is actually two ranges in one. Each section is completely equipped with every modern device to save time and trouble. Finished in ebony black or pearl gray porcelain enamel. It really does make cooking easy.

"BABE" RUTH CHRISTENS YANKS' NEW STADIUM WITH HIS FIRST 1923 HOMER

New York, April 18—(By the A. P.)—Babe Ruth came back into his own today.

When the mighty Yankee slugger cracked his first home run of the season far into the right field bleachers of the massive New Yankee stadium, 74,200 howling fans—the largest throng that ever attended a baseball game rose to accord their idol a thunderous ovation.

Ruth's circuit clout, clinching victory for the American league champions in their opening game with the Boston Red Sox, added the one touch needed to complete the most picturesque drama in diamond annals. The babe, those thousands agreed, had come back.

A super-world's series atmosphere pervaded the formal dedication of the huge new home of the Yankees. The record crowd, which jammed every nook and corner of the huge triple-decked grandstand, and packed all but a few corners of the bleacher sections, far exceeded expectations. Every seat in the mammoth structure could have been filled but several thousands chose to stand in the aisles rather than perch in the few vacant areas of the bleachers.

The attendance bettered by more than 30,000 the previous high mark of 42,620, set at Braves' Field, Boston, in 1916, in a world's series game between the Red Sox and Brooklyn.

The reserved bleacher sections, accommodating 20,000, were sold out 24 hours before opening time.

Formal ceremonies of the occasion included raising the 1922 Yankee pennant by Managers Miller Huggins and Frank Chance and a parade about the field, headed by Commissioner K. M. Landis, Governor Alfred E. Smith, who tossed out the first ball, and other notables, but the real thrill—the kind that comes only to the heart of the dyed-in-the-wool fan on opening day—was provided by Babe Ruth.

The home run king demonstrated in practice before the game that he had the range. Taking his first turn at bat, he picked Sam Jones' first offering for a terrific drive into the right-field section. He followed with an even loftier drive shortly afterward that struck with such force as to splinter the planking in one of the top bleacher benches, scattering a group of youthful enthusiasts who immediately returned to scramble for the ball.

The game itself offered little excitement after the Yankee rally in the third inning, when Ruth's drive accounted for the runs that clinched the game. The Red Sox threatened but once in the seventh, but were quickly checked. The score:

VETERAN BOXING PROMOTER IS DYING IN HOSPITAL

Chicago, April 18—Charles Harvey of New York, pioneer manager of boxers, was reported dying in a hospital here tonight as the result of an automobile accident today in which three others were injured. He suffered a fracture of the skull and has not regained consciousness.

Harvey has been identified with boxing 40 years and made a business of importing English champions to box in the American rings. He brought Owen Moran, Ted (Kid) Lewis, Johnny Summers, Jem Driscoll, Bill Wells, the present British welterweight champion and others to this country.

Harvey was riding in a car driven by Howard Carr, known as "Kid" Howard, an owner of a gymnasium for professional boxers. The police charge Carr violated a boulevard traffic signal, failed to stop and a car coming in the opposite direction crashed into his machine. The car was wrecked and overturned.

THE "special discount" is tempting, but not when you understand who pays for it. The tire dealer doesn't pay for it. The manufacturer cannot afford to. Chances are it comes out of the quality of the tire, so, after all, you pay for it. None of the quality of Goodyear Tires ever is sacrificed to "special discounts" or anything else.

At Goodyear Service Station Dealers we sell and recommend Goodyear Tires and Auskhomes use solely standard Goodyear Service

ATHLETICS START SEASON BY BEATING SENATORS

Philadelphia, April 18.—Philadelphia opened the American league season here today by defeating Washington 3 to 1.

A home run by Dykes in the second inning with a teammate on the sacks was the blow that sent Walter Johnson down to defeat.

Harris twirled fine ball for the Athletics, holding his opponents to four widely scattered hits.

Miller's sensational catch in the eighth was the fielding feature. More than 20,000 persons saw the game. The score:

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION GETS GOING TODAY

Chicago, April 18—(By the A. P.)—Facing the brightest prospects in its 21 years of unbroken campaigning, the American association will open its season tomorrow with Columbus playing at Toledo; Louisville at Indianapolis; Minneapolis at Milwaukee and St. Paul at Kansas City.

"We are looking forward to the greatest season in the history of the organization," President Hickey said tonight. "Last season there was not a club on the circuit that failed to make money. Six clubs finished with a comfortable margin of profit. The population of the smallest city in the league is more than 200,000 and the largest approaches a million. We drew more than 1,000,000 fans last year and expect to exceed that figure this year."

GIANTS TAKE ANOTHER FROM THE BRAVES

Boston, April 18.—Long hits off Watson and Oeschger enabled the world champion Giants to beat Boston 7 to 4 today. Scott was given brilliant support and his home run to right center in the fourth also scored Snyder. When Scott walked Gowdy in the last of the ninth, J. Barnes relieved him. Bagwell hit the left field wall on the fly, getting only a double for this unprecedented feat. Conlon played an excellent all round game. RECORD-BREAKING CROWD SEES INDIAN-CHISOX GAME

Cleveland, Ohio, April 18.—One of the largest opening day crowds that ever witnessed an American league game here saw Cleveland make a ninth inning rally and defeat Chicago, 6 to 5 today. After Chicago had gone into the lead, 5 to 4, in the eighth inning, "Wamby" led off the ninth with a double. Speaker fouled out, Buthaulso walked and Summa and Sewell singled, two runs scoring.

Kamm made his American league debut by handling his two assists cleanly and getting a double out of four times at bat.

Faber, who started the game for Chicago, retired in favor of Pinch Hitter Strunk, who started a rally in the eighth which resulted in Covelleskie being knocked from the box.

The official attendance was 20,375, about 350 less than the opening day record. Score:

DODGERS CUT LOOSE IN NINTH AND WIN

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 18.—The Brooklyn Dodgers staged a riotous ninth inning today to beat out the Phillies, 6 to 5. The visitors apparently had sewed up the game in the ninth when Sand boosted a homer over the wall, driving in Walker to make the score 5 to 1. Wheat greeted Ralph Head, who had held the Dodgers to three hits in eight innings, with a circuit swat over the right field wall. Schliebner singled and Barber walked. Hubbell relieved Head and, after passing Ruether and allowing De Berry a hit, was sent to the showers. Meadows then passed Grimes and Olson's single won the game without a Dodger being retired in the inning. The score:

"ZIMBO'S" PONIES HAND REGULARS THEIR FIRST DEFEAT OF SEASON

Lefty Batchelder and Joe Russell pitched Zimbo Zimmerman's Ponies to a 3 to 2 victory over the Pittsfield regulars in a seven-inning game at the fair grounds Wednesday afternoon. The two rookie pitchers twirled mid-season ball and the wrecking crew of the regulars was a puzzled and perplexed bunch of stickers. Batchelder and Russell are both speed merchants that can burn the old pill across the plate.

This was the first time that Batchelder has cut loose and his work made his teammates sit up and take notice. His work heretofore has been simply tossing them over to the batters, putting a little on them now and then. His cross-fire and port-side delivery is deceptive and found many a victim among the regulars. His hooks break with a nasty cut either in, down or out.

Joe Russell, who comes to the Pittsfield club from the Canadian league, showed his stuff Wednesday afternoon which was aplenty. Joe had all kinds of steam and plenty of control, but his hooks do not break as fast or as sharp as the Boston boys. Both boys will prove valuable asset to the Hillies.

The game yesterday afternoon was a nice close game with just enough hard hitting and snappy fielding to make it interesting. The rookies scored their first run on a pretty triple by Steve Tetreault, who smashed one to left center that almost rolled out of the lot. He tried to stretch it and Colonel Snover shot the ball to left field to catch him and he scored. The other two runs came on an error by "Sheik" Bosse, who let a drive filter between his shoes.

Colonel Snover had a bad afternoon at bat, due largely, according to his version, to the poor eyesight of Secretary Frank, who bravely assumed the duties of the arbitrator. It is a wonderful thing to possess the good nature of the "Sec," his constant geniality has made him a favorite with the boys.

The Rookies would have had more runs had not Joe Leary, the fleet centerfielder, thrown a monkey-wrench in the works when Sullivan tried to drive one out of the orchard. Art had started the all apple on an endurance flight and Joe started a marathon in the same general direction and both arrived at the same place at the same time. Joe tackled the old pill just as Sullivan had turned second base. It was one of the longest hits made on the diamond and it was a great run that Leary made.

Howie Baker was conspicuous in right field and with the stick, getting a triple or rather a near triple if the old wind had held out.

"Zimbo" Zimmerman played first base for the rookies with a skill that was worthy of a Hal Chase.

AMERICAN BOXER WINS ENGLISH AMATEUR TITLE

London, April 18 (By the A. P.)—Edward P. Eagan, the American student at Oxford, who holds the Olympic light heavyweight boxing championship, tonight defeated F. J. Hulks of St. Pancras in the third round at Alexander Palace, thus winning the Amateur Boxing Association heavyweight championship.

Eagan trained for the bout in Dublin, acting as a sparring partner for Mike McTigue. Tonight was the 39th time the championship has been contested and Eagan is the first American to win it.

Eagan competed also in the light-heavyweight class, but was beaten on points in this event by H. J. Mitchell, holder of the title.

PLANS FORMULATED FOR NATIONAL GOLFERS' ASS'N

Chicago, April 18—(By the A. P.)—Tentative plans were made today for the formation of a national association of golf players more than fifty years old and recommendations were made for a meeting to be held within a couple of weeks in Chicago to formulate plans for the organization.

It was suggested that the body be known as 'seniors' golf association and that state bodies be created so that there eventually would be 48 regional associations which would hold annual tournaments. The champions of these state organizations would then meet in a national championship for men past the half century milestone.

WESTERLY MAN ENTERED IN BOSTON MARATHON

Boston, April 18.—Horatio S. Stanton of Westerly, R. I., a Narragansett Indian, entered for the annual American Marathon to be held from Ashland to this city tomorrow, established training quarters near the starting place yesterday. He also hiked over part of the course, to become familiar with it, and found others of the four score entrants doing likewise. Five former winners are entered, among them Clarence H. De Mar of Melrose, victor last year and 11 years before.

CHANCE TREMBLES WITH EXCITEMENT AT STADIUM

New York, April 18.—Frank Chance, "Peerless Leader" of the old Chicago Cubs, sat among his Red Sox in the visitors' dugout at Yankee stadium today, trembling like an oak leaf in late fall.

"What's the matter boss, cold?" asked "Chuck" Fewster, the Red Sox shortstop.

"Cold nothing!" smiled Chance. "Excited, like a fish that's been hauled out on a river bank, then thrown back into the stream."

HARVARD SLUGGERS BEAT NAVY'S PITCHING ACE

USING MOHEGAN PARK.

Copies of the rules and regulations concerning Mohegan park have been placed at different points about the city. They are drawn for the protection of this important natural beauty spot and call for careful observance if the best interests of the park and those who find so much pleasure in it are to be served.

For the preservation of certain attractive features the picking of flowers or the mutilation of property in any one of many ways is strictly forbidden. Hunting, or the use of firearms, in the park is prohibited and dogs must be in a leash. The speed limit of autos is restricted, parking places are established, proper conduct is insisted upon, the sale of articles and public demonstrations are restricted to those securing the privilege from the commissioners. Bathing, in proper costume and in designated places, is permitted.

Wise is the rule against the kindling of fires or the use of fireworks, while much improvement will result from the enforcement of that rule against the leaving of papers, and other rubbish which picnic parties get through with them.

Conditions with which the commissioners have been confronted are responsible for the establishment of the rules. The park is for the enjoyment of all, but it is clear that thoughtlessness on the part of a few, to say nothing of vandalism, cannot be permitted to destroy the attractions for the many.

The commissioners properly call attention to the fact that the park belongs to the people of Norwich, but that it is their duty to see that the interests of all therein are properly served.

Enforcement of the rules and regulations will become a minor detail if there is the proper cooperation on the part of the park users to keep it neat and attractive. Let the expenditures for the park be for constructive purposes rather than for the repairing of damage and the overcoming of the effects of antidiluvians. The appeal which the commissioners make to the people of Norwich is an excellent one and should not go unheeded.

BASEBALL AGAIN.

With both of the big leagues in action the baseball season of 1923 is underway. The miners haven't done anything more than contribute training rules to appease the demands of the baseball fans as yet, but they will gradually come forward and do their part in entertaining the eager and enthusiastic baseball throng from ocean to ocean and border to border. And the colleges and schools can be depended upon to contribute no small degree of interest.

Baseball at this season is more by fans confined to the super fans, those who keep in touch with the game the year round, know all the players by their first names and have their information on the game reinforced by records, statistics and a generation old memory.

Before the season is very old they will find that they have plenty of companions. The great national game has a hold upon the people which cannot be shaken. Warm weather and a better line on the season's playing will help to warm them up to real enthusiastic interest. Likewise it is no small bit of inspiration that comes from the kind of ball that is being pitched by this or that aggregation, or this or that particular star. A fan is a fan regardless of the weather or the season, but some display it much easier than others.

There may be other attractions, but there is none which has quite the same general appeal as baseball. It appeals to all ages and both sexes, and the baseball star doesn't have to doff his hat to those in other lines when it comes to the question of popularity.

"Play ball! Batter up!" will be the prevailing daily cry for the next six months and the numbers that will be there to hear it will be enormous.

THE IMMIGRATION PROBLEM.

Conditions have changed from what they were a few years ago, and legislation that has been enacted is brought to attention whether or not it has had a part in the improved conditions.

When it became evident that this country was due to be flooded with immigrants at the close of the war, the putting up of the bars was advocated. Restrictions were placed on immigration and instead of the doors being wide open to all those who can pass muster only a certain number is admitted each year.

In the meantime the country has gone from a period of extensive unemployment to one of widespread prosperity. In all lines of business and industry a marked change has taken place. The lack of unskilled and skilled labor has forced up wages and higher wages are aiding in bringing about higher prices. In order that the labor situation may be better met there is a demand for the removal of certain immigration restrictions that the cheaper unskilled labor may come in in greater numbers to more nearly meet the requirements. This demand comes at a time when others are also urging the increasing of the restrictions so that even a smaller number may be admitted yearly.

While immigration laws may need amendments from time to time, and while there may be a plausible argument for changes now and then, there is no reason to believe that there will ever be a return to conditions that existed when the door stood practically open and even the undesirable encountered less restrictions.

The existing restrictions have served to keep out many that it is for the interest of the country should be kept out. It was they stopped many that might quickly make desirable citizens and it has failed to stop some that could serve to be admitted. The chief consideration now hasn't as yet been provided. It is certain that those never will be one that will quickly overcome.

FORCING AUTO INSURANCE.

While efforts are being made for better protection of the users of the highway from the reckless driver, attention is also being directed to the better protection of the highway users from an insurance standpoint.

Just how Massachusetts is going to act upon it is unknown, but it has a measure before its legislature requiring that all owners of automobiles must carry liability insurance. This is in keeping with legislation that this and other states have enacted for the protection of those who patronize jitneys, and who happened to experience injuries through accidents. Compulsory insurance provides something from which to recover damages, whereas such would be impossible in many cases could the owner of the car have little equity therein and nothing else that could be covered by damages.

In opposition to such a compulsory insurance there is raised the point that too large burdens already are placed upon the owners of automobiles, and that the rates for such insurance are beyond the limit of reason, since the plan would be putting far more money into the insurance companies than it would into the pockets of those injured.

That may be a view of the matter that calls for careful attention before any definite compulsory step is taken, but the risk that is being run by the users of the highways today because of reckless drivers, and the fact that many of the auto drivers own nothing and are uninsured as far as damage caused by them is concerned, makes it evident that such a plan is one based upon common justice to those who are endangered or injured.

PRESERVING MONTICELLO.

From time to time efforts have been made to acquire Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson and perpetuate it for what it is. There have been times when considerable objections were raised to such an idea from the fact that the owner was unwilling to dispose of it.

Apparently that handicap has been surmounted for the organization of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial foundation for the raising of a million dollars to purchase and maintain the home indicates that nothing stands in the way except the lack of funds to carry out the plan.

Monticello is bound to be one of the points of national interest because it is so closely connected wirth the life of Jefferson. Fortunately for the most part at least it has been in sympathetic hands. Many acres have been added to the estate by the present owner and under such private ownership there is no question but what it will be carefully preserved.

But thought must be given to the future and to the public interest in such a historic building, dating back as it does to the time of the Revolutionary war. The aim of the present movement is not solely to acquire the property but to provide for an endowment that will make certain its upkeep and preservation for the future, and there seems to be little doubt but what sufficient interest and support will be provided to carry out the objects of the undertaking. If Monticello is going to be made a national shrine like Mount Vernon there is no better time to accomplish it.

WASTE BASKET CURE

Blaikie, a good cigar between his teeth, was padding around the new apartment in his slippers, evidently looking for something. At last he reappeared in the living room doorway.

"What's become of the waste basket?" he demanded.

Mrs. Blaikie laid down her book.

"I—I put it out," she said. "I threw it this morning when I read about that man's losing weight by jumping over the waste basket twenty times a night. And, Rags, you simply can't! What would those people downstairs think of us?"

"You hid them, then?"

"I—put them out of sight. It's such utter nonsense, anyway, dear. They all say nowadays that eating less is the only sure way. It's cheap luncheon—"

"What'll do on the lunches, please. After the starvation diet I've given myself for the last three months it doesn't set very well."

She looked him over—a large-sized man, I am very sympathetic, dear, but all these somersaults and things! What I mean is—if you must be fat couldn't you at least be dignified about it?"

A silence ensued. Then, with usual dignity, Blaikie remarked, "If there's one word that ought to be canned right out of the English language it's fat!"

"I know it. I beg your pardon."

"Come on, then, and walk," he capitulated suddenly. "Is that dignified?"

She thrust out two white-slippered feet. "This apron dress, too," she protested. "I got into it to cook dinner and I just can't dress again."

The apron was unbleached muslin with lavender and rose peaches appliqued in black—very fetching and gay, but hardly a street costume.

It took urging before Mrs. Blaikie slipped her white-stockinged feet into a pair of dingy brown oxfords, wrapped herself in an old evening cape of apricot cloth with black fur trimmings and stole out into the dark. Blaikie pulled a disreputable but beloved cap over his eyes and briskly propelled his 200 pounds at her side. It proved to be a lakeshore tramp, and they were both astonished when they reached their own neighborhood once more to find that the time was 2 a. m.

"By jingo!" said Blaikie, clapping his trousers pocket. "The keys! I must have left 'em on the dresser when I changed my clothes. And every door and window in the place is burglar proof."

"And you haven't found out where that visiting janitor lives yet?"

"Not I." Blaikie's hand, groping inside his coat, met a fat billbook. Then the idea came. "I'll tell you. That new family hotel down the street. H. M. Foster signs it and lives there. We'll go tell him the story and get a room."

"Cout him out of bed! And look at my shoes—and my hair—and this apron dress!" But Blaikie was already under way.

One secret of Blaikie's success in business is that when he wants anything he hurls his whole bulk at it—mentally, physically, every way. What was it to him that he found Foster out of town? His demander of the doubting clerk a first-class room with bath. Mrs. Blaikie lingered miserably in the background.

"Baggage!" she heard her husband explode. "I've just told you our predicament and you ask for baggage! I'll see what Dan Foster will say to this! I'll—"

And the next thing she knew they had the room.

To Blaikie it was all a diverting lark. It made him jovial to see his wife, in her short apron-dress, sedately sailing into a ballroom when the observant maid entered to turn down the covers, or a knowing bellboy appeared with ice water. The walk had tuned up his appetite and before he could be restrained he began telephoning for food at 1.10 a. m. Mrs. Blaikie was vague as to how he managed that. The billbook helped. It also brought the necessary toilet articles from the corner drug store.

The night was short in spite of a late breakfast—served in their room. That over, Blaikie, deaf to the idea of hunting up the janitor, telephoned a nearby locksmith to meet them at the apartment. Then, with uncovered head high, and the old apricot wrap drawn close over the apron-dress, Mrs. Blaikie sailed past curious eyes and down the street to her home.

"Roger," she asked, as she buckled her pretty white slippers over her fresh stockings after the locksmith had left, "How much did that performance cost us?"

Blaikie did a bit of quick reckoning. "About $15."

Without a word she went to the hall closet, produced a waste basket and planted it in the middle of the room. "Jump over it whenever you like," she said.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who is mentioned as a possibility for the democratic presidential nomination next year, has had a long and distinguished career in the public service. He is a native of Lynchburg, where he makes his home. His family shared in the wreckage of the Confederacy and as a result he had to get out and hustle for himself when he was 14. He began as a printer's devil, and by the time he was 20 he had acquired ownership of a daily newspaper in his home town. It was not until 1899 that he began his public career as a member of the Virginia senate. Then he was sent to congress, where he served eight terms and became known as a high authority on currency and banking. As a result he was given the treasury portfolio in the Wilson cabinet. To him the country is largely indebted for the creation of the federal reserve system and the federal land bank system.

Wives of Famous Men

Frances Folsom, Wife of Grover Cleveland.

The first White House bride and up to the present time the only woman to have that distinction, Frances Folsom, widow of Grover Cleveland, was the heroine of a most romantic love story.

Hardly more than a child when she married the then president and the daughter of an old family friend, Miss Folsom was thus introduced to society. The social duties of the first lady of the land are always trying; but they were more than ordinarily difficult for this untried girl bride who had spent all her life in the quietness of her Buffalo home. But her youth and inexperience seemed no check on her ability and poise. She met all issues with wisdom and graciousness and his marriage was one of the most popular acts of Grover Cleveland's administration.

Her position as first lady and her attendant leadership of Washington apparently did not turn the head of Mrs. Cleveland, and in every way she proved herself to be an admirable choice for madam president.

In addition to her charm and sagacity, Mrs. Cleveland was considered a great beauty and a charming hostess. Writing of the family life of the Clevelands, a newspaper correspondent during the second administration said:

"By nature inclined to domestic tastes, Mrs. Cleveland is devoted to her home and children. The Clevelands are ideally happy together; in fact, their married life is more to be envied than that of almost any public figure in American history."

For many years after her husband's death, Mrs. Cleveland lived in retirement with her family, her remarriage occurring but a few years ago.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Abraham and Tutankhamen.

"With the civilized world still amazed at the tangible evidences of 3,300 years ago found in Tutankhamen's tomb, come dispatches telling how the time line of recorded history even now is being pushed farther back in Mesopotamia," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Digging into the ruins at El-Mukaiyar really means probing the remains of 'Ur of the Chaldeans,' home city of Abraham and later capital of Nebuchadnezzar, Napoleon of Babylon.

"News reports tell of a house, just uncovered, thought to be 5,000 years old. The pick and the shovel already have carried secular history to the period of the eleventh chapter of Genesis, have found evidence to reconstruct the daily life of the times of Abraham, and have revealed the essential differences of customs in the Tigris-Euphartes delta from those of Tutankhamen's time along the Nile.

"The familiar story of the tower of Babel gives the clue to one such difference. You will recall how the children of Noah, in the Bible narrative, said to one another, 'Let us build us a city, and a tower.'

"The temples of Egypt had a succession of chambers on the ground level; a characteristic of a Babylonian temple were its chambers arranged vertically, each successive story being a little smaller than the one beneath. In modern parlance, Egyptians tended toward bungalow architecture; the Babylonians had the first skyscrapers.

"One, then, may picture Babylonia of Abraham's time as a land dotted with busy towns, each walled around with brick, and having a tower as pretentious as it could afford.

"The writer of Genesis makes another significant statement when he records that these early Semitic peoples 'had brick for stone, and slime they had for mortar.' There being no stone in this region the use of brick was universal, and this absence of both stone and wood had a marked influence upon the dwellings. Roof-beams were scarce, hence the rooms were long and narrow, even in the palace of the city's priest-king, which usually adjoined the tower.

"Politically, Babylon was not yet a nation. Ur, Umma and Lagash were city-states comparable in their pride o Florence, Venice and Milan of medival Europe.

'How they came to clash is easily understood by noting their plan. In he center were tower and palace, around these were dwellings, and this cluster of buildings was rimmed with cultivated land. Beyond this cultivated belt was the pasture land, netted with irrigation canals, always held in common. As the towns grew and more grazing land was needed, trouble arose. And there was a strife between the herdmen of Abraham's cattle and the herdmen of Lot's cattle.'

"The contrast between this town life period of Babylonia and the Empire of Egypt was as great as that between our own New England communities of the mid-eighteenth century and the regal splendor of France under Louis XIV.

"This 'small town' period of Babylonia disappeared, however, with the conquests of Sargon, King of Akkad (not the Assyrian) who ruled nearly 2,500 years before Tutankhamen was interred.

"Further explorations among the remains of the city of Abraham will be secondary to the greatest single find in this region—the code of Hammurabi. This scholarly king ruled in Babylon about 2,300 B. C., and the laws he codified are proof of a high civilization built up through many centuries before his time.

"Raids on gay road-house parties were common in those days. Wine selling was regulated and the enforcement was put squarely up to the vender. One section of the penal code provided, 'If a wine merchant has allowed riotous characters to assemble in her house, and those riotous characters (she) has not seized and driven to the palace, that wine merchant shall be put to death.'

"A maid might sue for breach of promise, a landholder had to pay a heavier tax if he did not cultivate his allotment, guardians were provided for estates of widows and orphans.

"Mounds and occasional masses of brick work laid bare by winter rains, and ditches which hint at the canals of an elaborate irrigation system, are the only surface traces left in lower Mesopotamia today of this splendid civilization.

"One puts to himself many questions as he gazes at these slight visible vestiges of a people of whom James Baikie wrote, 'In Babylonia life in Abraham's time was practically as thoroughly organized and as carefully regulated as it is in our own'."

MRS. EARLS TELLS WOMEN

How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Olean, N. Y.—"Every month my blood would go to my head and I would have such a headache, nose-bleed, backache and pains that I could not do my work. At night I could not get my rest and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read some of your testimonials about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, so I decided to try it. I had only taken two bottles when I began to be better, and my back did not hurt me nor my head ache. I felt like a new woman. The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine and I will always recommend it."—Mrs. A. D. EARLS, 630 N. 5th St., Olean, N. Y.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

An Early Call.

The old cow blew on her crumbled horn
And woke the tramp, all tattered and torn,
Who had gone to sleep neath the old hickory tree,
Because the hotel was as full as could be.

"Ha, ha!" laughed Little Jack Rabbit as the victrola stopped singing this pretty song. "I guess I'll call up Uncle Lucky and ask him to come over and hear our new record."

So the little rabbit hopped over to the telephone and took off the receiver: "Hello, Central, give me Oh, oh, oh, Rabbitville. Ring Happy Bell!" and pretty soon he heard the old gentleman's voice:

It was Monday Morning.

"Who's calling me, I'd like to know,
So early in the morning?
I've hardly had two winks of sleep
And haven't finished yawning."

"It's me," answered the little rabbit. Of course, he should have said, "It's I," but never mind, don't you care, the strict school teacher wasn't there.

"Oh, it's you, is it?" asked Uncle Lucky, beginning to sneeze, for the bedroom window was open and he had forgotten to put on his slippers.

"Wait a minute while I close the window," and then, oh, dear me! I hate to tell it. He dropped the receiver on his left hind toe—the little toe you know that had the rheumatism and the telephone girl heard something dreadful, but I'm not going to tell you what it was, for when she told me, I promised not to give the dear, old gentleman rabbit away.

Well, in about five hundred short seconds, he picked up the receiver and said:

"I'll be over in a little while," and, after he had put on his wedding stovepipe hat and wound his gold watch and chain he went out to the garage to give the Luckymobile a drink of gasolene. Then he hopped in and started off for the Old Bramble Patch. By and by, after a while he saw Sammy Skunk creeping up the Shady Forest path.

"Where are you going?" asked the old gentleman rabbit.

"Oh, just taking a walk," answered Sammy Skunk.

"If you're going my way, I'll take you along," said Uncle Lucky, who was always doing nice kind things, as you know, by this time.

"Much obliged," said Sammy Skunk, "but if I ride, I won't find anything to eat and I haven't had my breakfast yet."

So, the old gentleman rabbit didn't stop but kept right on, and pretty soon he came to the Old Bramble Patch. It was Monday morning and Lady Love, the little rabbit's pretty mother, was hanging out the clothes in the back yard and in the next story I'll tell you how a blackbird pinched her nose."

Stories That Recall Others

Boots.

Father bought a pair of hip boots in anticipation of the fishing season. The boots greatly interested Ann, his three year old daughter. So one day when mother and father were preparing for a trip down town, and mother was putting on her Russian boots, Ann turned to father and said:

"Daddy, why don't you wear your boots, too?"

WOMAN.

Women are dear and women are clever;
Most well bred, with a laugh.
The female of the species,
Or a husband's better half.
They sing their praise in many ways,
They belles them—but, O,
How little they know of Woman
Who only women know.

Now women are pert and women will flirt,
And they're catty and rude and rash;
And sometimes they're witty and sometimes they're pretty—
And sometimes they're awfully plain.
But Woman is rare beyond compare.
The poets tell us so;
How little they know of a woman
Who only women know!

Women are very perverse and contrary,
They will contradict you flat;
O, women I'll call the devil and all,
There's no denying that;
But Woman O, man is beyond our ken,
Too cagelie for morals below;
How little they know of Woman
Who only women know!
—Carolyn Wells, in Saturday Evening Post.

MADE WILD DRIVE IN AUTO THROUGH CITY

Running into at least two automobiles before he came to a crash in his Ford sedan against a telegraph pole on North Main street near Erin street, a man supposed to come from Voluntown was captured by the police after he had got away from his encounter with the pole and was nobblind up North Main street with disabled steer gear and front wheels.

He was so helpless from intoxication that he gave the name of George Diwlong at police headquarters and lapsed off into a deep sleep as soon as he was put in a cell. A pocket knife with the name of A. L. Kilgood, Voluntown, on it gave a clue to his identity, his car registration was in the same name and his operator's license was in the name of Silas H. Arnold of Voluntown. At two o'clock this (Thursday) morning he was still too stupefied to tell who he is.

The car he was operating first struck the machine of Dr. W. K. Tingley and drove it up onto the sidewalk at the doctor's office on Main street. Next he hit the car of William Swasey of Lisbon on North Main near Erin and immediately afterwards ran into the telegraph pole. He was arrested by Officer William Sharpe.

Fidel Williams, colored, was in the car with him and was summoned as a witness.

Careless Smokers Cause Fires

The second call came in at 5.50 for a fire on the property of John Cotter of Spring street extension. Men had been seen walking across the field shortly before the fire and it was believed that a match or cigarette had been dropped causing the fire.

Taftville—At a meeting of Sitarra temple, Pythian Sisters, the following officers were elected: Most excellent chief, Mrs. Ada Brewster; excellent senior, Mrs. Augusta Prince; excellent junior, Mrs. Signa Wetmore; manager, Mrs. Jessie Fletcher; mistress of [illegible] Mrs. Blanche MacGarvey.

SPECIAL CITY MEETING VOTES ALL THAT WAS ASKED IN CALL

In one of the quietest and smoothest meetings in many a month, everything announced in the call for a special city meeting was voted by some 150 men and two women who attended the session at the town hall Wednesday evening.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Milo R. Waters, and City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read the warning for the meeting. The first matter of business was to vote on the acceptance of a bid of $20,350 by Abraham Ableman for the old Main street building of the fire department. Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., offered a resolution that the offer of $20,350 for the Main street station be accepted by the city, and that Mayor Waters be empowered to give the deed of the property to Abraham Ableman on receipt of the amount mentioned for the sale.

The resolutions were quickly seconded and it was unanimously voted to accept $20,350 for the Main street property.

The next matter of business was also quickly disposed of, this being that the sum of $20,850 be appropriated from the treasury of the city solely for the use of the fire department for the purchase of a pumper for the Greeneville station, for payment for alterations at the Greeneville station, and for the purchase of land and the erection of a station in the Falls district of the city, so-called. Councilman Edwards Crooks made a motion that Corporation Counsel Shields be instructed to cast one ballot for the resolution as offered by Alderman Anson R. Dreyer. This was voted and the resolution adopted.

The third item of business was for the appropriation of $7,000 by the city for a new steam roller, sprinkler, and other equipment needed by the street department. Alderman Gilbert S. Raymond offered a resolution authorizing the borrowing of $7,000 for the purpose of this equipment, notes to be given by the city payable in yearly installments, to be entirely paid in seven years. This also was voted by one ballot cast by Corporation Counsel Shields on vote of the meeting.

The last matter of business was the appropriation of $50,000 in addition to all funds previously voted to the Norwich gas and electrical department for the payment of current bills for the present fiscal year. A resolution was offered by Martin M. Jensen to this effect, and he explained to the meeting that early in the year the sum of $250,000 was voted for the expenses of the department, it being estimated that a like sum would be received. The department has earned $650,000, and as there are bills of $50,000 to be paid, this sum would be taken from the receipts of the department.

Corporation Counsel Shields was empowered to cast one ballot in favor of the resolution and it was adopted.

The meeting adjourned at 8.20 o'clock, having been in session but 20 minutes.

MURPHY & McGARRY SELL THEIR CLOTHING BUSINESS

The firm of Murphy & McGarry, which since 1890 has conducted one of the best known men's clothing stores in Norwich on Wednesday disposed of their business at 217 Main street to Savard Bros., who conduct nine other stores in Connecticut and New York city. Timothy C. Murphy and William P. McGarry, who have composed the Norwich firm, are to retire from active business, while Savard Bros. will continue the store in the same location. The transfer of interests was consummated Wednesday, the new owners taking over the store at once and announcing that they would close it for two days (Thursday and Friday) in order to prepare for a great clearance sale on Saturday.

The firm of Murphy & McGarry was established on Sept. 15, 1890, in the store at 146 Main street, now occupied by Utley & Jones. After 24½ years there, the store moved to the present location where it has done business for the last 24 1-2 years. In that long period they have built upon an enviable reputation in the trade and one upon which the partners can look with pride as they retire from active participation in commercial affairs. At all times it has been their principle to satisfy their patrons and the successful record that they have made indicates how well they have achieved this aim. It will give much regret that their many friends learn of their decision to retire from active business life.

Commercial affairs have not so much engaged their attention that they have been unable to serve in civic interests, for both Mr. Murphy and

WILLIAM P. McGARRY

Mr. McGarry have participated and served in matters affecting city and town. Mr. Murphy is an ex-mayor of the city and Mr. McGarry is at present on the town school board, while a number of real state transactions in the business center of the city in which they have been engaged have resulted in substantial improvements to business property.

The firm of Savard Bros. is composed of T. H. Savard of Bridgeport and Thomas H. Savard of New Haven, the latter to be manager of the Norwich store. They started in business 25 years ago in Bridgeport and have since then added stores in New Haven, New London, Middletown, Bristol, Conn., and in Albany, Troy and Saratoga Springs, N. Y. They will make general changes in the store front and the fixtures and will plan to have modern, up-to-date store in all its appointments and in stock to be carried. Their long experience in the men's and boys' clothing line gives assurance of their ability to do all that they promise. They will be welcomed as the right kind of progressive business men to be added to the commercial life of the community.

Tennyson Club Met

The Tennyson Club met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles J. Twist of 102 Prospect street and enjoyed a costume party. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served. The party proved to be a most enjoyable one for all.

ENCOURAGING PROGRESS IN THIRD DAY OF CAMPAIGN

A large number of tired but happy team workers met at 6.30 Wednesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. dining room to make reports of the third day's hustle in the strenuous financial campaign being waged this week for the year's expenses. The first thing on the program was a very appetising supper efficiently served by the women of Park Congregational church, and the workers were delighted with the menu and voted that William Wyman express thanks to the ladies.

After supper, General Manager Shepard B. Palmer called on C. C. Hatfield of the Y. M. C. A. state office for remarks, and his words were words of encouragement to the team men. Harold E. Robbins, who succeeds Harry M. Clark in this city, was invited to say a few words, and responded happily and helpfully. President J. C. Macpherson, H. B. Cary and C. E. Carpenter each made brief and encouraging speeches.

Joseph Adams officiated at the piano while the men sang heartily several of the old familiar songs. George Ambey acted as scorer and Chairman Palmer called for the reports of the day, which were as follows:

Team.	Captain.	Totals.
A—Philip A. Johnson	.....	$775.00
B—Herbert B. Cary	.....	361.00
C—Charles L. Stewart	.....	240.00
D—Harold S. Burt	.....	425.00
E—John M. Swahn	.....	845.00
Total for day	.....	$2,086.00
Previously reported	.....	5,314.00
Total to date	.....	$7,400.00

The ladies of Park church who kindly served the supper were Mrs. Henry D. Johnson, Mrs. John Blackman, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Harry Prentice, Mrs. Charles A. Saxton and Mrs. William Collins.

The friends of the association are being urged to give liberally during the next few days.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S COUNCIL ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

The meeting of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women was held Wednesday evening in the rooms of the council in the Carroll building, and a musical program was given, violin solo, Miss Driscoll; vocal solo, Miss Margaret Driscoll.

McDermott of New Haven, who is a member of the educational committee of the league of women voters, and also a member of the legislative committee of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women. Mrs. McDermott spoke very interestingly on the value of political knowledge and at the close of her address she was given a rising vote of thanks.

The business meeting was continued and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year. President, Mrs. Joseph P. Cummings; vice president, Mrs. Anna McGrory; secretary, Miss Margaret M. Murphy; treasurer, Miss Agnes White; members of the executive committee, Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll, Mrs. Joseph Mayo, Mrs Patrick F. Sweeney, Mrs. John R. Tarrant, Mrs. John J. B. hall, having extended invitations to White Cross council, K. of C., and St. Mary's T. A. & B society. The hall was handsomely decorated in the assembly colors, white and gold, by Joseph Farrell of the Porteous & Mitchell store and the stage had appropriate floral decorations by Hawkins in the same colors.

He was introduced by the president, Mrs. Hannah Biermann, and spoke strongly of the value of the organization and of the lines of work that it could undertake. He was followed by Rev. W. A. Keefe of St. Mary's church, who reinforced the remarks of the bishop.

R. C. PLAUT FINDS RIO WONDERFUL CITY

Rutherford G. Plant of this city, who is on a trip to South America, has written one of his characteristic and interesting letters to a Norwich friend. He describes something of the steamship trip to Rio de Janeiro and of sightseeing in and around that city as follows:

March 20, 1923.

My dear Ad: I certainly was glad to get the mail on the steamship "Southern Cross." It kept me busy for a while and to hear that all were well was extremely gratifying. I note from the papers that the cold weather still continues cold.

I don't know just what I wrote you in my last letter, Ad, but if I repeat it won't be for lack of material, for I have plenty to write about, if I only would take the time to do it, and as our time, I sure have plenty of it. One gets awful lazy in this tropical climate. You will note I said "awful lazy," because just "lazy" would be natural for me. That is why I modified it.

At my table on the steamship Western World was a Mr. Gail B. DePierre. He was the representative of The Baldwin Locomotive Company in Brazil. Seated beside him was a Mr. Alexander Quinn, who represented The General Motors Company and hailed from Fall River, Massachusetts. He had several hundred Chevrolet motor cars on board for Rio. Harry C. Brown, who was seated next to Quinn, was sent from Chicago by Wilson & Company as a cattle buyer at their big plant at Sao Paulo. Call Umbach from Los Angeles represented the International Harvester Company and he was en route to Buenos Aires. Others of more or less note were Mr. Walter J. Cross, representing the United States Steel Products. Mr. Cross, salary is $40,000 per year and he has a commission besides. Warren M. Finks and Mr. John G. Hollman were two engineers representing the Canadian and General Finance Corporation of Toronto, Ontario. They were going to harness and develop a river—a six million dollar proposition. William L. Stultz, a Curtis Aeroplane man, was going to instruct the army in flying. Harold D. Cranmer was a Standard Oil man. Gilbert J. Huber represented the Johns-Manville people. Most of them have lived in South America for several years. There is a crowd of college girls on a tour with two conductors (women) and three of the girls have their mothers with them. They are making the identical trip that we are going to make. Several diplomats from all parts of the world are en route to Chile for the conference of nations.

Too Late For the Sun.

It was on the morning of the first of March that we came within sight of Rio de Janeiro and we were all up to see the most wonderful harbor and city in the world. We wanted to see the sunrise, but were too late. The sun would not wait for us and was up and dressed and darn hot, I'll say, from the distance on the landside you can see a row of incomparable hills guarding the city. Several islands also appear. In the distant sky of blue and purple, a gray bald head, called "Gavea," is noticeable and is a famous landmark of the harbor. The world-famed Corcovado Needle, with the city of Rio at its foot and The Pao de Asucar also display themselves. Both the Corcovado and the Asucar or Sugar Loaf will receive a full description.

How to Pass Customs Inspectors.

We dropped slowly up this beautiful harbor, with something interesting to attract you at each turn of the boat—Brazilian battleships, Brazilian Exposition Grounds, and immense size steamers from all ports of the world. The boat was allowed to dock and the port doctor came aboard. Such docks—for miles, solid concrete piers. As we looked over the side of the vessels, we were attracted to an army of "stevedores," who have numbers on their hats. They signal to you to motion them to carry your trunks. It was awful hot this day and I exaggerated one. He was number Cinko, pronounced "Singko," meaning number five. He carried our four trunks and hand luggage to the custom house authorities. Each trunk he carried on his head. The custom house employes are very slow and inquisitive as to what you have in your trunk, but for—five milles—(10 cents), they forget all and they mark it O. K. and you go on. We were fortunate, thanks to your friend, Mr. Wagner, in having a Mr. Sidney Shill meet us at the pier. He said he had instructions by cable to do so. He was very attentive and it was such a relief to find one who could talk Portuguese, because if you don't talk Portuguese you are out of luck, although some can talk French. We located at the Hotel Gloria, the finest in Brazil, and we have nothing in the states that can beat it. Of course, we have larger hotels. The hotel is not a year old and was built by German contractors in a year. All materials were imported. The sheets on the beds are genuine linen—hemstitched—and are valued by people from the states at $25 each. The bath towels are five feet wide and six feet long and every detail is in comparison. Ride to Sugar Loaf.

After resting for a while, we took a ride. It was a well chosen itinerary as it gave us at the outset a definite birdseye view of Rio de Janeiro. We skirted the sea front boulevards and

DANIELSON

A nice little surprise was incident to a recent visit here of John I. Lusk, formerly principal of the Danielson graded school, now agent of the Division of Vocational Education of the Massachusetts State Department of Education. While calling upon Superintendent Leon M. Farris of Killingly's schools Mr. Lusk turned over $113.35, which the pupils of the Danielson's schools raised under Mr. Lusk's principalship, the amount consisting of a Liberty bond of $100 and interest. The money was raised for playground equipment for the Danielson school and in accordance with Mr. Lusk's desire, the money will be promptly expended under the direction of Principal Byron R. Knight, principally for the smaller children for a combination merry-go-round and teeter board, swings and other playground equipment.

Wednesday's issue of a well known financial publication quoted W. I. Bullard at length on the textile situation in the country. Mr. Bullard is a vice-president of the Merchants National bank of Boston and treasurer of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

In the course of his review Mr. Bullard mentions that the cotton mills of the country are now running about 113 per cent. and the woolen and worsted mills about 95 per cent. of their single shift capacity. An unusual amount of business has been placed for woolens and worsteds and so great has been the volume of business offered that, orders have had to be drastically reduced by the mills, for the offerings were far beyond the capacity of the mills to manufacture.

In northern cotton mills the business now on hand represents about the normal amount for single shift operation, while the southern cotton mills are operating about 25 per cent. over time on single shift basis and there is sufficient business on their books to keep the mills so engaged for a number of months.

High prices for wool and cotton are operating to restrict the mills from making long time commitments, as they did with such final disastrous results in 1920, and buyers, too, are evading making long time contracts as a protection against a quick change from present market conditions. Mr. Bullard points out that some classes of wool are now up 50 and 75 and even 150 per cent. from the prices touched during the depression. Cotton is three times as high as the quotations for the same recent period of depression. In spite to this and the fact that the world's cotton supply is short, there is a tremendous demand for cotton for manufacturing purposes. Buyers of finished cotton products are anxious to know the reaction of the public to the high prices that must be charged for these products when they come onto the counters priced as they must be under the new and higher manufacturing costs. This apprehension has led to the placing of many short term contracts, an arrangement that is regarded as favorable to the mills and buyers and likely to be a safeguard against any sudden and severe slump such as was experienced in 1920, and consequent bad effect upon the industry.

Financial journals of Wednesday carried articles commenting interestingly relative to the resignation of Elmer G. Wilmer as president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and of the appointment of George M. Stadelman to succeed him. Mr. Stadelman, an outstanding figure as a sales factor and one of the greatest specialists in the world's rubber industry, represents interests that were replaced two years ago by Mr. Wilmer and his organization and his appointment as president is regarded as the first step under the present movement to again bring Frank A. Seiberling into control.

At the present time, one article states, Goodyear is turning out 41,000 tires each day. Of these 31,000 are being made at the Akron plant, 6,000 at the Los Angeles plant and 4,000 at the Canadian plant. At the peak of production before the nation-wide business reversal in 1920 Goodyear was making only 55,000 tires daily. The present high production is being attained with a force of 15,000 to 16,000 employes, or only about 50 per cent. of the employment requirement during the former peak period. This indicates how the industry has been centralized and a greater production of tires obtained with about half as many workers as formerly. Goodyear is going great guns and rapidly coming back to its former remarkable prosperity.

Fifty-eight women who attended a meeting of the local branch of the Catholic Woman's council of Connecticut at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy Tuesday evening heard interesting address by Rev. John Roux, M. S., pastor of St. James' church, on the vacation home project that the state council has worked out and through which a fine place for rest and peaceful recreation has been provided near Lakeville. The local chapter voted an appropriation of $50 to the state organization for use in maintenance of the home, which will be formally opened in the presence of Rt. Rev. J. J. Nilan on the afternoon of Memorial day.

Another meeting of the local council is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy a week next Thursday evening and the members have been asked to invite one or more of their friends to attend this gathering. It is hoped to increase the membership of the Danielson council to several hundred members.

Members of the Service battery and their friends here were very much pleased over the showing made by the athletes of the local battery in the indoor meet at the state armory in Norwich Wednesday evening. Gordon Gale was the bright particular star of the Danielson team, winning first in the dash, first in the mile, first in the high and first in the broad jump. Arthur Williams, Jr., won first in the shot put. The Service battery got second place in the relay race.

Captain Armington is delighted with the showing made by his men.

Misses Jennie Williams and Mary Geer were visitors in New London Wednesday.

Housewives now engaged with spring cleaning find that soft coal smoke and soot mussed up hangings and furniture in a distressing way during the winter, and they will not be voters in favor of soft coal for household use in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Blake and their children of High street have removed to Providence, where Mr. Blake has been employed for some time.

PUTNAM

Dr. George T. LaMarche, the president, will preside at today's annual meeting of the Windham County Medical society to be held at the Putnam inn. A feature of today's meeting will be the address to be given by Dr. Stanley H. Osborne, state commissioner of health, his subject to be The Practicing Physician and Preventive Medicine. Another feature that is expected to be of special interest will be an address on The Law Governing Coroners by Coroners by Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, a member of the Windham County Bar association. Reminiscences of Fifty Years Ago will be the topic of a talk by Dr. J. Bryden Kent of this city, a member of the county medical society since 1871 and one of the oldest practicing physicians in the state.

A Preliminary Method of the Gauge Drop Method of Giving Ether will be the subject of Dr. Marguerite J. Bullard of this city.

The physicians are to assemble for the business session at noon. Receiving of reports, election of officers for the ensuing year and the naming of delegates to the state and county medical meetings will be included in the matters to receive attention at the business session, which will be adjourned for a two o'clock dinner. The addresses will follow the dinner.

Wednesday morning the funeral of Michael Lynch was held from his home with services at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock and business generally was suspended in the mercantile quarter during the hour of the service as a mark of respect to Mr. Lynch, for so many years identified with the business interests of the city.

Rev. Charles F. Bedard, Rev. Adrian Dykemans and Rev. W. Arthur Routhier were the officers of the solemn high mass of requiem, attended by relatives and many friends. A delegation from Putnam lodge of Elks was present at the service. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were Frank Sherlock, James O'Brien, Morgan Delaney, Thomas P. Ryan, Jerry Labby and J. A. Gagne.

Nothing particularly new developed here during Wednesday relatives to the much discussed removal of the Taunton plant of the Manhasset Manufacturing company to this city. A chief obstacle in the way of this removal, much talked of and now denied through various sources of publicity, is lack of housing accommodations in Putnam for such a number of employes and members of their households as would flock in here should the change be made. But where there is smoke there must be some fire, and the fact that removal is being talked of at all, being both affirmed and denied, is ground for awakening real lively interest in what is an all important matter to Putnam and its hopes of development.

Add to the list of small boys who have heedlessly run out into busy street to be knocked down by a motor vehicle the name of Henry Duff, 6, who had his experience on Providence street. Arthur Perry of Providence was the driver of a small touring car that figured in the affair, eye witnesses of which state that the driver was not at all to blame for the accident. The car was being operated slowly at the time of the accident and when the child ran against a fender he was bowled over but not hurt in any serious degree, being more frightened than hurt. Mr. Perry reported the accident to Captain Reml Delage of the police department.

Mrs. Fredick B. Harrison of Woodstock will be the speaker at Friday afternoon's meeting of the W. C. T. U. at the home of Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, Main street. Mrs. Harrison recently attended the national convention for women at Des Moines, Ia. On Wednesday Mrs. Harrison delivered an address in Danbury and this (Thursday) in Danielson.

Of general interest in Windham county is the announcements relative to a special meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange, No. 2, with Little River grange of Hampton on Saturday, April 25. The day's sessions are to open at 10:30, in the fifth degree, for conferring the Pomona degree. Dinner is to be served at noon.

At the afternoon session opening at 1:30, the lecturer's program will be of prime interest, and this period will be open to all patrons. Rev. Charles N. Hawkins of Norwich and Senator John Ash of Pomfret are to give addresses. Miss Mason of the United States extension service will speak on the Attractive Farm Home. A farce by Brooklyn talent and musical selections by the Ash quartet and Miss Ruth Burnham will complete the program.

George W. H. Farley, who has been ill at his home on South Main street the past three weeks, was reported Wednesday as improved. Mr. Farley underwent a surgical operation to relieve the condition of a troublesome foot, the operation causing the pain and reducing the inflammation. Simon Farley of Pawtucket, formerly of this city, is coming here the latter part of each week to assist in conducting his son's business.

Following services held in East Hartford, the body of Miss Ellen Elisabeth Osgood was brought to Abington Wednesday afternoon for burial in the cemetery at that place. Miss Osgood was a native of the town of Pomfret and her early education leading to the scholarship she later attained was obtained in the schools of that town.

Thomas McDermott, who successfully managed some fast semi-pro baseball teams in this city during the past few years has been invited to take the management of a Webster team during the present playing season, but has declined the offer, saying he is out of baseball for the present.

John McArdle, who for the past two years has been manager of the Motor Tire Service company's business here, has taken an interest in the concern as an owner. Mr. McArdle has been very successful since coming to Putnam from Worcester and has made a large number of friends in Putnam and all of the surrounding territory.

The majority of trout fishermen have about given up the sport until warmer weather comes. High and cold water in the brooks and low temperatures every morning make a combination that has discouraged many anglers.

Good progress is being made, it was stated Wednesday, with the preliminary work or organizing a hunting association with member in Putnam, Pomfret, Woodstock and other towns in this city.

Track crews of the New Haven road are preparing to do much tie replacement work during the late spring and summer. Creosoted ties are distributed along the right of way and will be used for replacements.

NOANK

The death of Miss Prudence M. Davis Tuesday at the home of her parents at 14 Pearl street caused much sorrow to her friends. The deceased was the daughter of Elmer and Emma Davis and was born in Westerly, R. I., July 18, 1893, but she had lived practically all her life in Noank. She attended the public schools here and was a graduate of the Williams Memorial Institute of New London, in the class of 1913. After the bedtime romp that plays such havoc with clean little nighties—the tatterman comes

Those funny baggy little nightclothes

How much loving energy it takes to keep them sweet and clean

So little and chubby they look in them—so uncertain on their pins! How they tumble around in their efforts to walk. They seem to wipe the dirt off every step before toddling on to the next.

When they fall down they make a thorough job of rubbing dirt into their clothes before getting up.

But mothers today can keep those active little bodies sweet and clean in spotless nightclothes—they can keep them shining and fragrant in rompers and school dresses.

A wonderful new kind of soap makes even a wash of grimy little garments easy.

With this new soap—Rinso—soaking takes the place of rubbing. Its soapy suds go through every fold and thread, gently loosening all the dirt. Only spots where dirt is actually ground in — knees, neck-bands, seats of rompers and the like—will need any rubbing and these but lightly with a little dry Rinso. The old hard, harmful rubbing is banished for good.

Make your next washtub easy with Rinso. It takes the place of bar soap at every step of the family wash—for soaking, boiling, and in washing machines. Just as the textile manufacturers advise Lux for fine fabrics, so leading washing machine manufacturers tell women to use Rinso in their machines.

Get Rinso today—at any grocery or department store. It comes in two sizes, the regular size and the big new package. Made by the makers of Lux, the largest soap makers in the world. Lever Bros. Co., 164 Broadway, Cambridge, Mass.

BREED THEATRE

Today, Friday and Saturday at the Breed theatre the many local admirers of Charles Ray will have the opportunity of seeing him in what promises to be his masterpiece, if time, care and a great story count for something; a cinema version of the immensely popular stage play, "A Tailor Made Man." For this is the costliest production Charles Ray has ever made, and is in keeping with his announced policy of two super-productions a year for United Artists. In fact, "A Tailor Made Man" is Ray's first screen play under his new alignment.

According to critics who previewed this photoplay, Charles Ray has been provided with a vehicle which allows him full scope for his ever delightful humor, wit and tenderness. "A Tailor Made Man" is said to rank with the highest achievements of the motion picture art.

The supporting cast is of all-star calibre, and includes such artists as Ethel Grandin, Jacqueline Logan, Thomas Ricketts, Douglas Gerrard, Victor Potel, Thomas Jefferson, Stanton Heck, Edyth Chapman, Kate Lester and Frank Butler.

"A Tailor Made Man" was adapted to the screen by Albert Ray from the stage play by Harry James Smith. Joseph De Grasse is the director.

Movie Chats and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

"The movement to establish a national theatre in the United States will be discussed at the annual convention of the Drama league of America, opening today at the University of Iowa."

Observance of Patriots' day, the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, England, Thursday as Patriots' day, in honor of the memory of Lord Baltimore.

Fifty years ago today the first important American engagement in the World war occurred at Seicheprey.

A great pageant of progress is to be given at Wichita Falls, Tex., today in celebration of the completion of a $5,000,000 irrigation project.

Lord Robert Cecil, the English statesman, is scheduled to speak in Richmond, Va., this evening under the auspices of the English-Speaking union.

"The movement to establish a national theatre in the United States will be discussed at the annual convention of the Drama league of America, opening today at the University of Iowa."

Fink's Mules at the Broadway Today

Fink's Mules are the headliner at the Broadway theatre for the last half of this week.

"The critter who declared 'mules ain't got no sense at all' was about as wrong as the colored gentleman who declared the sun do move." For further proof of the incorrectness of his statements, may be had by witnessing a performance of Fink's Mules. These mules not only accomplish a series of unusual feats, but do them willingly. With the exception of Jim Dump, Fink's Mules do not even seem to be obstinate. Jim Dump is not only contrary but absolutely unridable. He is the clown of his special and he provides more laughter than most chalk face comedians. Mr. Fink in addition to his mules has some dogs and ponies. These are also accomplished performers. The act however, is conspicuous because of the presence of this mule. It is quite unusual to see these animals performing so much service outside of the United States army.

Edwards are Shadowgraphists who excell in this kind of work.

Bowers and Steger are comedians.

Nance and Dawn offer a novelty singing act.

James Eadie and Ann Ramsdel comedy due, will be seen in Charlie's Visit."

Fears for the safety of Betty Compson and the other members of the company who sailed for the Hawaiian Islands to film the Paramount picture, "The White Flower," were expressed in hundreds of queries made at Paramount's West Coast studio when news was cabled that the "City of Honolulu," a trans-Pacific steamship was burning at sea.

These fears were set at rest by word received from Honolulu to the effect that the company had arrived safely at the island port several days before the sea disaster occurred. Members of the cast of "The White Flower," a Hawaiian story which was filmed against its native background, and which will be on view at the Broadway theatre today, Friday and Saturday, include Betty Compson, star; Edmund Lowe, leading man; Arline Pretty, Sylvia Ashton, Leon Barry, Arthur Hoyt and Edward Martindel. Mrs. Julia Crawford Ivers, author of the original story, wrote and directed the screen play.

Strand Theatre, Friday and Saturday

An automobile story, Racing Hearts, written by Byron Morgan for Agnes Ayres, Paramount star, and directed by Paul Powell, will be the attraction at the Strand theatre Friday and Saturday. This is one of the best pictures in which Miss Ayres has appeared. She plays the part of the ultra-modern girl, a firm believer in advertising as a business builder. Her father's competitors by her exploits are in a bad way. Miss Ayres, by a series of clever publicity stunts, saves the firm from bankruptcy and wins the love of the son of one of her father's competitors, by her exploits. Richard Dix plays opposite Miss Ayres. Theodore Roberts is the automobile manufacturer.

Round three of the Fighting Blood series will also be shown. Leach Cross, the ex-pugilist of great fame, actually takes part in this round.

A new weekly conclude s the bill.

Brings Egypt to Hollywood in Making Pola Negri's "Bella Donna."

The man who brought Egypt to Hollywood! That is the title George Fitzmaurice has been awarded because of his feat in the production of Pola Negri's first American Paramount picture, "Bella Donna," which will be on view at the Strand theatre starting next Monday.

As every reader of Robert Hichens' novel knows, much of the action of this story takes place in Egypt. In fact, it happens all over Egypt—in a Nile houseboat, beside the pyramids in a villa at Luxor, Shepheard's hotel, the camp of an Egyptian millionaire, the streets and cafes of Cairo and the wastes of the desert.

All this and more was filmed in "Bella Donna." And, with the exception of the desert scenes, all Egypt came to Hollywood.

The reproductions of the famous ruins, building and scenery of Egypt for this Paramount picture have won high praise from the critics and technical experts of the film center who were privileged to see them.

In this, her first screen venture in the United States, Pola Negri is supported by one of the most notable casts ever assembled, included Conway Tearle, Conrad Nagel, Lois Wilson, Claude King, Mabry Harlan and Robert Cain. Adelbert Cecile Burgess adapted the Hichens novel for the screen.

NEW LONDON POLICE DEPARTMENT IN NEED OF MORE PATROLMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 18.—It is probable that within a comparatively short time that ten or twelve supernumerary policemen will be appointed by City Manager Barlow. A vigorous howl is being made by some of the taxpayers because of the continual lack of patrol of several sections of the city due to the fact that regular patrolmen are off duty either because of illness or vacations. It is best known that six or eight beats have not been patrolled recently because of the conditions and an appropriation was made to cover this expense, together with the fact that an ordinance exists calling for the appointments, the city manager will probably make them through the holding of examinations and determining such applicants for the position as apply.

Mrs. Johanna Dewire, widow of Philip Dewire died at her home here last night, death resulting from infirmities attending old age. She was 81 years old.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the suspension of the operators licenses of two New Londoners and caused another to be returned. The autoists to draw suspensions were H. J. Hahn of No. 253 Williams street, stationed at the submarine base and J. E. Getchell of No. 616 Williams street. Mr. Setchell declares that a mistake has been made in suspending his license as he has not figured in an auto mishap and that the party is J. B. Getchell of New York, whose car was in collision with another automobile in New Haven recently. The autoists whose license was returned was Robert McFee of No. 74 Pearl street without license was suspended April 11th.

The police were called to the house at No. 575 Bank street this morning by a woman who stated that an insane man was making things dangerous for the occupants. Motorcycle Officer Williams Babcock and Patrolmen Augustus Ray and David Nagle went to the house only to ascertain that the man who had caused the trouble there was a sailor who had recently returned from the west coast and had brought with him a quantity of liquor, of which he had drank freely. As the alleged insane person had made himself scarce when the officers were summoned he was not to be found when they arrived there.

Two New London couple made known their recent marriages today, both being a surprise to their acquaintances, who knew nothing of their contemplated wedlock. Ensign Dallas Grover, stationed at the submarine base and Miss May Smith, a saleslady residing at No. 154 Green street were joined in wedlock the latter part of March, the ceremony being performed by Rev. M. B. Ganter, pastor of the Methodist church.

Leo M. O'Donnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Donnell and employed at the plant of the Thames Towboat company, was married recently to Miss Margaret Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Finn of Jefferson avenue.

The condition of Timothy P. Sheehan, retired from the regular force of the New London police department several years ago, and who has been confined to his home on Brocker street several months with heart trouble is now such that he is able to sit up daily and when mild weather prevails, Mr. Sheehan is able to enjoy the sunshine from the veranda of his home.

Clarence Hath, a youth but 19 years of age, who claims to be without a home, was removed to the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital tonight, suffering from what is believed to be measles.

Harry Manheimer, proprietor of a grocery store at the corner of Green and Pearl streets, was taken into custody late this afternoon by Sergeant Samuel Hick, charged with breach of the peace in assaulting Ralph Wolfe, aged 21 years and residing at No. 81 Golden street. Manheimer was released from custody on furnishing a surety on his bond of $50 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

The youth went into the Manheimer store and it is alleged that while there that the groceryman attacked him. Manheimer, however, declares that the boy, who had been outside the store some time with companions entered the store, bleeding from the nose, Manheimer did not want the boy in the place and caused him to return to the street. The boy then lodged complaint with Sergeant Hick and Manheimer's arrest followed.

The police were called this evening to the office of a physician where a negro was making matters unpleasant for the physician and the latter not desiring to have trouble sought the police to have him ejected. When an officer reached the place the negro was occupying a chair and refused to depart, but it was a question of seconds only before the intruder was landed in the hallway of the place and had the physician lodged a complaint against the unwelcome caller he would have been arrested.

The citizens party held its caucus this evening in Groton to make nominations for the election that is approaching. The caucus was attended by a representative gathering of voters and resulted in George R. Hempstead, the present warden, being renominated, and Albert J. Thompson, Patrick H. McNamara, Robert P. Richards, Chester Glidden and George N. Wood, being nominated for burgesses.

Charles R. Noyes, the Old Lyme resident who was arrested here for obtaining laudanum by fictitious prescriptions, is being held at the local jail for presentation in the federal court on the 23d inst on a criminal charge that carries with it a severe penalty. He has improved under treatment at the local jail and will present a condition that approaches normal when he goes to Hartford for trial. It is claimed that he secured blank prescriptions which he filled out with fictitious names and used at local drug stores. Louis Kelley, an agent of the federal narcotic force in Connecticut was given the case to look after and he got the evidence he sought against Noyes. Then he was arrested and arraigned in the local police court, which held him for appearance before Commissioner Mathewson of Norwich.

The latter held him for the federal court in a bond of $5,000. This he could not furnish. Laudanum was found in the possession of Noyes when he was apprehended.

If there had been a mechanical talking machine in the police court today it would have been silenced by the man arraigned for intoxication, Catherine Perino. He admitted that he was intoxicated when he was taken into custody yesterday, and insisted on telling the court that his brother came here from Philadelphia and that to celebrate with him we drank two glasses of wine. He properly meant two bottles but he said glasses. It was the twelfth appearance of Bruno so a fine was attached to him as a penalty with the warning that the next time he appeared he would be sent to jail. Bruno was never before known to plead guilty. He always had a long story to tell but it never included the confession that he was drunk when arrested. He admitted after the court session that he was earning $30 a week on two jobs and said that he worked day and night for his wages.

Parents of children residing in the lower section of the city are complaining because children are permitted to attend the motion picture shows unattended by their elders. The parents declare that they do not want their children in the picture houses at night and that for the reason given they do not accompany them. But they say, the children are permitted to attend and to stay away from home until a late hour. The matter will be brought to the attention of the police with a view to putting a stop to the custom that now exists.

The police say there are fewer pool rooms in New London now than there have been in several years. Perhaps there is not the business for them. That would seem to be the only reason for a decrease in the number.

New London has abandoned the idea of celebrating its natal day on the 6th of May.

Mrs. Harry Larner and baby of Culver street, Mrs. Ellsworth Horton and baby of Howard street, Master Warren Carlson of Cracker street, Mrs. Harry Spring of East Lyme, Mrs. Charles Chiappone of Waterford and Miss Rosie Contina of Bank street, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

The funeral of Joseph A. Foster of No. 120 Bayonet street, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. John McGrath. The bearers were Frank Rotheri, Burt MacMartland, Charles H. Havens, John Toohey, Charles Smith and Thomas Curtin. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Irene Agnes, the six years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hamilton of No. 68 Lewis street, died this morning at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital of diphtheria, the child having been ill but a few days.

Mrs. Edith J. Burrows, wife of Wilfred T. Burrows of Williams street, died last night at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, her illness having been of but short duration. Mrs. Burrows was 36 years of age and besides her husband, is survived by a six months' old child.

Miss Orleana E. Schwillie, a trained nurse, died at her home, No. 105 Broad street, this morning, her demise ending a long illness. Miss Schwillie had been a practicing nurse in New London many years and was a graduate of the former Memorial hospital. The body will be taken to Miss Schwillie's former home in Northampton, Mass., where the interment will take place.

The funeral of Mrs. Eleanor H. Brogan, wife of Leo Brogan of No. 3 Park avenue, Groton, who sustained fatal injuries Sunday evening when she was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Milton Card on the Eastern Point road, dying in Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital an hour after she was admitted of a fractured skull, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by an immense throng of mourners, who included relatives of the young lady and sorrowing acquaintances of the bereaved families.

A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William Fox of Groton, assisted by Rev. Timothy Cooney as deacon and Rev. Alexander Wolfschlager as sub-deacon. The bearers were Frank Gilroy, Joseph Costello, Thomas O'Neill, David Moran, Hubert Ryan and John Kelley. The floral tributes were many and handsome and testified to the esteem that Mrs. Brogan was held in by her many acquaintances and the sorrow that is extended to bereaved mother, husband, sisters and brother. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

MAYOR REVIEWS YEAR'S WORK DURING THE ADMINISTRATION

[illegible] by Mayor [illegible] and the other by Dan'l Cory, author of the Little Jack Rabbit stories, during the holiday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. Mayor Waters who had charge of the after-dinner programme broke on the affairs mostly review of what had been done by the present administration during the first year in office, but refrained from making any predictions as to what the administration would accomplish during the next year. Mayor Waters spoke as follows:

Last week when Russ Clapp notified me that I was to preside today, he suggested that I should tell the Club something of the Council's plans for the coming year. Perhaps it would be well first to tell briefly what progress has been made during the past year. Last year the North Main Street improvement was about two-thirds completed. This has now been finished at a cost of approximately $88,000. The State of Connecticut has carried out the improvement on Fox Hill from the top of the hill to the blacksmith shop and it is hoped that they will carry it to the bridge this summer. Asylum Street from West Main to Newton Street, Mechanic Street from West Main to Spring Street, Shipping Street and Perkins Avenue have been macadamized at a cost of about $19,000. Sewers were constructed in Boswell Avenue, Laurel Hill Avenue, Hamilton Avenue and York Avenue at a cost of about $14,000 and the much needed improvement of the Franklin Street Brook was completed.

Work is now starting on the permanent street improvement on Laurel Hill Avenue and on Water Street from Market Street to Commerce Street. On Laurel Hill Avenue the construction will be cement from curb to curb with the trolley track in the center of the road, leaving eleven feet clear on each side of the track, the same width as we now have on Thames Street. By the way The Connecticut Co., is now planning to build an entirely new track on Laurel Hill Avenue, using the present tracks until the new tracks are laid when the old one will be removed. It is hoped the Water Street Improvement will relieve the congestion on Main Street to some extent.

As you know the two volunteer fire companies in Greeneville have been mustered out of the service and after remodeling the building the Main Street station was closed and that company transferred to Greeneville giving more adequate fire protection to a large industrial section of our city.

In compliance with petitions from the Chamber of Commerce and many of our citizens an ordinance establishing a Recreation commission was carried through, the commission was appointed and now has charge of the Playground movement in our city.

The Gas and Electrical Department at the beginning of the fiscal year estimated that their receipts would be $525,000, but it now appears that they will approximate $580,000.

For the Police Department an ordinance has passed the Council that will fix the age limit at which patrolmen may be appointed at thirty-five years. In the past men have been appointed to the regular force who were from forty-five to fifty years of age and in consequence we have men on our force over seventy years of age and as our Police Pension Fund is growing smaller each year we cannot at present retire them. We hope to solve this problem in the near future.

Action is being taken at the present time to help eliminate the congestion at the corner of Broadway and Main Street by asking the Connecticut Co. to cut out all stops to take on or let off passengers between Market Street and Franklin Square.

Petitions will undoubtedly be presented at the annual meeting in June asking for the improvement of Central avenue, West Main Street on Central Wharf and West Main Street beyond Thames Square.

Jack Rabbit Author Speaks

After Mayor Waters' talk Uncle David Cory, originator and author of the Little Jack Rabbit stories now being published in the Norwich Morning Bulletin, gave a very interesting talk on his work and how he came to start writing this series of stories. "What appeared, at the time, to be a catastrophe proved later to be a blessing in disguise," said Uncle David. Back in the early years of the late war I was in charge of a brokerage business and when they closed Wall street I was out of a job. I did not know what to do. I had been telling Little Jack Rabbit stories to my boys and I knew I could tell them. A friend who heard me telling the youngsters some of my tales asked why I did not try to get some of them printed in the papers. I took his suggestion and wrote a few and took them down to the New York Sun office and left them with the tender mercies of an office boy, hardly daring to believe that I should ever hear of them again.

In a day or two I received a telephone call to come to the Sun office, and it was then that my work began. I wrote stories for the Sun for a few months and then went to the New York Journal and later to the New York Evening Mail with whom I have been for a long time. Now I have my stories appear in 50 different papers in the country each day.

In trying to tell stories to the kiddies I find that the mind of the child is a fertile garden where beautiful flowers grow. He looks at a thing through eyes of truth and simplicity so that is why I have tried to make my stories carry a moral.

In my stories Daddy Rabbit and Lady Love, are our father and mother, the Little White Bungalow is home and the Wicked Wolf, and Daddy Fo are the trials that go with life. Underneath all these stories I try to bring out the love for home and beauty and in each story try to teach the kiddies some lesson that will make them better boys and girls and try to instil in the mind of the child of today, who will have to face the grim realities of life in a short span of years, something that will show him his duties and yet show him that happiness and beauty is in the home.

I think I am doing a little of what I intend for I receive hundreds of letters from parents telling me how my stories have helped them in the governing their children. I also talk to the kiddies and parents on the radio every evening and seem to get in personal touch with the youngsters all over the land.

The Rotary clubs all over the land are backing up the boys and are trying to do the same as I only in a different way. The Rotary clubs in many cities are providing playgrounds, athletic fields and in a hundred different other ways helping the boys to live right and get right in life. They are trying to form that youthful sharp group in all youngsters into the right channels that make for better American. Make your boys your playmates and be on the level with them.

Dan Cory was given a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of his talk.

For the business session President Charles A. Harris presided and John [illegible] was [illegible] were several selections by the club members under the direction of the extremely energetic song leader.

A number of the local Rotarians will go to Putnam next Monday evening when District Governor Donald Adams of New Haven will present the charter to the Putnam club, the grandson of the Norwich Club. The Rotarians will go by special train that will also take up a delegation from New London club.

PINE GROVE COTTAGERS SUFFER FROM THIEVES

There has been considerable petty thieving at Pine Grove during the winter. The matter of apprehending the thief or thieves is a topic of much consideration by the residents of the grove. All property owners at the grove are becoming very much disturbed over the present serious situation. Most of them are afraid to leave anything outdoors after dark thinking that thieves may visit their places during the night and plunder their property.

A summer resident from Bridgeport who spends much time at Pine Grove, has offered a large reward for the apprehension of the culprits, but so far there is no clue for the residents to work on who will benefit by securing the reward offered. At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Connecticut Spiritualist Association, which is held in August at the Pine Grove pavilion, this matter will be discussed at length and possibly some drastic methods will be used to run down the culprits. It may be necessary to install watchmen at the grove during the winter to protect the interests of cottage owners.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

New York, April 17—Prices of stocks continued their rise to higher ground in today's more active market with the railroad shares giving the best exhibition of group strength. While short covering operations and pool manipulation undoubtedly were an important factor in the rise of many shares, the volume of sales and the nature of the buying indicated an increasing public interest in the market.

International buying also has been an important factor in the recent advance. Much of the impetus for the week's ten point gain Canadian Pacific which today touched 160, a new high for the year, and an overnight gain of 5 1-2 points, has come from buying orders originating in London and Montreal. General motors, which established a new top at 17 1-2, and Atchison, which closed 1 1-4 higher at 106 3-4, have been in demand by foreign buyers. Sales of Anaconda copper for British account also were reported by local brokers. The announced tax reductions in Great Britain are generally believed to have been responsible for a re-awakening of foreign interest in the local securities markets.

Speculative expectation of favorable March traffic statements account, in part, for the revival of interest in the rail group. Some of the outstanding strong spots were Union Pacific, up 3 5-8, and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, Texas & Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Atlantic coast line, Chicago & Northwestern common and preferred, "Soo" Northern Pacific and the Reading issues, all up 1 to 2 points.

A sharp break in German marks, which sustained an overnight drop of 10 points to .0033 cents, was the feature of the foreign exchange market. While official explanations for the decline were not available here, local exchange dealers were of the opinion that the German government, which had kept the mark "pegged" at .0048 cents for nearly two months, had withdrawn its support or found it ineffective under the tremendous floor of new paper money. French francs rallied 8 points to 6.64 cents but the other European rates showed little change.

Call money opened at 5 per cent, but eased off to 4 1-2 just before the close. Business in the time money market was confined almost entirely to renewals which were arranged at 5 1-4 and 5 1-2 per cent, depending upon maturity. The commercial paper market was less active with no change in rates.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, April 18—Notwithstanding that wheat today touched the season's highest price yet for July delivery the market ruled lower the greater part of the time. Better weather conditions together with absence of any important new export business put bulls at a disadvantage. The close was unsettled at 2-3 to 1 1-8 net decline with May 1.25 to 125 1-2 and July 1.28 1-8 to 1.28 1-4; corn lost 5-8 to 1 1-8; oats 1-4 to 3-4c, and provisions 7 a 10 to 15c.

With some indications of an improved outlook for both seeding and growth, the wheat market showed a downward tendency at the opening. The fact that Liverpool quotations had made but little response to yesterday's upturn in values here was an additional bearish influence. Nevertheless, prospects of crop curtailment this year led soon to considerable speculative buying and to a price advance based also on assertions that grain values had still to be adjusted to the low purchasing power of the dollar.

Dwindling of the volume of purchase orders in the wheat market set in, however, when May and September deliveries appeared on the verge of following July to a new high price record for the season. The advance seemed to have made the market top-heavy, and it took but little selling pressure to send the values downgrades, especially in the last hour. When advices from the seaboard implied a downturn in prices.

Corn and oats were bearishly affected by the action of wheat sales on the part of scattered longs was evident in the corn market, despite a good feeding demand.

Provisions went lower in line with hog values.

had a splendid view of the landlocked bay and harbor of Sugar Loaf, the famous guardian island mountain, of Corcovada, the lookout mountain, while in every direction other landmarks were pointed out, the names of which at that time meant nothing to us. At the end of the bay boulevard, when all seemed to end in a mountain pass, we suddenly penetrated the mountain by tunnel and came out into sunshine and beauty on the ocean front. Here was a small city of beautiful residences, overlooking a half circular beach of the whitest sand you ever saw. Above the beach was a boulevard of asphalt, with a protecting wall and bordering that was a continuous row of palatial summer homes. One end of this beach carries the unpronounceable name of Capacabana. After this trip we all rested again. You can rest and bathe and rest and bathe and then after you are finished you should rest and bathe again. The next day we took an automobile to the entrance gate for the ride to Sugar Loaf, a conical shaped mountain which towers over the bay. The trip to its summit is made in two stages, from the base to a companion mountain about two-thirds the height of Sugar Loaf, called Penedo da Vlez, where we disembarked and walked to the top of this way station here. Mine got cold feet and quit us, remaining for us to return. We three continued with our guide. The vehicle of transportation is a small basket-like car, accommodating twenty passengers. This is suspended in mid-air on huge cables and on them you are carried from one mountain height to another. You feel a bit squeamish at first, but then, when you get settled down to it, you don't mind it at all. Viewed from a distance, the aerial flight appears as a perilous undertaking, but the reality furnishes a novel experience. When we reached our first station, we were concerned to see the higher second peak covered by a cloud. As we proceeded, however, it soon disappeared and we were rewarded by a sunlit view of the bay, the city, the mountains back of the city, and the great ocean to the east and south. A view from above of the tropical jungle that lies between the two mountains is a most interesting sight. It has a beauty of color and a feathery like softness of appearance that tempts one to jump into it. Our guide told us one man tried it and it was fatal. Our steamer that we arrived on the day before was just passing out of the harbor, en route to Buenos Aires and we watched it until it was well out on its way.

By Cog Railroad.

It was on a Sunday that we visited Corcovada. The mountain is reached by a cog railroad and has on its peak a pavilion which overlooks the city and surroundings. From the vantage point, one gets not only a superb bird's eye view of Rio de Janeiro and the bay, but its relation to the surrounding country, its several summer suburbs, with their extensive beaches, and also the mountain landmarks, of which this one is the most impressive. On arriving at the summit this day, we were enveloped in a dense cloud and Cadden was almost accusing me of putting the clouds there. Our disappointment was almost reaching despair, when I told the guide that I thought it his duty to push the clouds away. Of course he couldn't understand a joke, took it serious, and began to explain why and wherefore, etc. But we had the good fortune of having the clouds move by and we discerned in the brilliant sunlight the ocean beaches of Copacabana and Impaneta. Turning, we had a marvellous view of the city bay and shipping. The ride down the mountain side, through its tunnels of green jungle with the many glimpses one receives of the valleys below, was as pleasing to me as the complete view at the top. Nowhere about Rio can one view the jungle to such good advantage as on this ride. Here are depths and heights and the undisturbed jungle and tropical tangle. Here are the purple and yellow trees, masses of vines and shrubs, and you find the "butterfly chaser" plying his trade of catching the most beautiful butterflies with the most gorgeous colors, which he sells and gets the munificent sum of 500 reis or 6 cents. Those butterflies are made into designs and are sold in trays or brooches and what not.

Part way down the mountain we emerged into the sunlight with clouds and shadows around us. We stopped at Paeneiras, a halfway station, where a hotel and restaurant mark the route of an ancient aoqueduct that was built 300 years ago to furnish water to Rio. The aoqueduct is constructed of solid masonry and now, after 300 years, is in perfect repair and a fine stream of water was running through it. We finished this trip with a ride on the train on Santo Thereza Hill. It takes you along the route of the old aoqueduct and it is claimed that the monks built it several hundred years ago. On the approach to this hill and on its terraces are many of the picturesque homes of Rio. Here hundreds of feet above the bay, they have beautiful views, stirring cool air and the silence of the country. Cadden marvels over this beautiful view and it's well that he does, for I do not believe that in all the world there is another like it. I always thought, since I saw the Pali in Honolulu, that I saw the apex, but it cannot be compared with the Corcovada.

The next long trip we took was to Tijuca. Tijuca—a name that excites the memory and imagination of every visitor to Rio. While it is the name of a mountain, it calls to mind a circular marvellous drive through Alto de Eva Vista, Vista Cheneza, Meza de Imperador, Gavea Mountain, the Cliff Wad, and a return trip by the famous beaches. It was a beautiful morning and we had a guide and a sturdy motor car. No description can do justice to this excursion. In it are packed all the thrills and panoramas of Rio de Janeiro, a marvel of mountain sides, impossible heights, impenetrable jungles, fascinating bridle paths, and astonishing waterfalls, which seem to come from the skies—cascades and bridal veils of mist. At one point, high on the mountain, we emerged upon a promotory and there below was the many colored city of Rio de Janeiro, the great harbor and in a small gap between two hills was the Atlantic Ocean, stretching on, as Cadden says, "to Africa." At another window of the mountain, we saw the beaches of Capacabana, Impanema, and Leblon. They looked like wonderfully executed maps, the outlines were so pleasing and symetrical and the coloring so wonderful. Finally, at the bottom of the valley that has the appearance of "Hell's Half Acre," because of the confusion of monster boulders that have been thrown there in some remote convulsion of nature. I can't try to describe this place, as it is beyond me. All I can say is that it was a "wonderspot."

We made a visit to Petropolis. I knew before hand that something was going to happen, because Cadden had broken two nice drinking glasses. I am not superstitious, but it did happen. We missed our train, so we put the trip off for another day. We might have passed it up, as far as I was concerned, but as long as we saw it I will describe it. Petropolis is a city of summer homes for the society of Rio de Janeiro and the government officials and the president. It is reached by a railroad. It is situated in the mountains at an altitude of several thousand feet and is about a two hours' ride from Rio, part of the way via a cog railroad. Petropolis is peculiar in that it has very wide streets through the center of which, dividing them into two roadways, runs an open canal, thirty to forty feet in width, through which flows pure water from the mountains.

Customs in Rio.

Now that I have told you of the natural beauty of Rio, let me tell you a bit of its people. Portuguese is the language. Rio de Janeiro is the capital. In 1920, the population of Rio was 1,157,783. The area of Rio is 40 square miles. Now for a few peculiar facts. No alcoholic drinks, except beer and light wines, can be sold after seven o'clock at night. There is no all night drug store in Rio. Stores, with few exceptions, must cease to do business at 7 p. m. No one is allowed to carry a suitcase on a first class trolley car. Corpses must be buried in 24 hours. When a marriage is performed in a house, all the doors must be left open, so anyone who cares to witness the ceremony may enter. Lawyers wear a ruby ring, doctors a ring with an emerald, engineers a sapphire, priests an amethyst, military officers a topaz, and people of no rank at all wear a diamond. Unless accused of crime, or charged with the police arrest an man, they are not allowed to use handcuffs on him, no matter how dangerous he may be. On Good Friday, motormen on trolley cars do not sound their gongs as a warning to pedestrians or traffic vehicles. There are no private undertaking establishments in Rio. All funerals must be arranged through the Empresa Funeraria. A special delivery mail carrier carries his letters on his head and has a brick on top so that they won't blow off. Coffins are also delivered on the head. We saw several. Carfare is 200 Reis—about two cents—second class is 100 Reis, or one cent. An American magazine came out with an editorial, welcoming the tourists and ended by saying "when you go back home please don't write a book about Rio." I investigated and found out that someone wrote a book and when they wanted to name the book, they were at a loss to do so, so they finally named it "To Hell and Back." Hence, the request not to write a book. I almost forgot to tell you that we had an auto accident. Quite accident, rather, developed. It was very unpleasant. We were almost to our hotel, when an auto passing us, the driver of which lost his control on account of the steering gear breaking, ran into the rear of our car, taking the running board with him and climbing a high wall, which kept the sea out. I don't know whether or not the others were hurt. We were not, although the Misses Cadden were pretty well shaken up. That note there is another revolution in Brazil. We are leaving, anyway, but I fear that won't make much difference.

I know, Ad, there are lots of other things that you would like to hear about, but I will tell you when I get home.

Johnny Walker sells for 30 milreis—two dollars and forty cents—a quart. The best alcohol I pay one and a half milreis—18 cents—for. Everything is in proportion. Ordinarily, for a dollar, you get three milreis, but during our stay the rate ranged from 3 to 4 for a dollar. This helped a lot.

Give my regards to all. I will follow this letter up with another. I owe many the ladies.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion (which is what a cold really is) and stimulates circulation.

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

35c and 65c, in jars and tubes.

Better than a mustard plaster

TAFTVILLE

The work of laying water pipes on Hunter's avenue, which was stopped late last fall when the frost in the ground made digging difficult, has been taken up again by the outside men of the Ponemah farm. Last year pipes were laid as far as the residence of Edmund Proulx, and it is from this point that the labor this spring has been started. Many of the houses at the southerly end of the avenue will soon have the advantage of water piped to their residences.

The Ladies' Benevolent society of the Taftville Congregational church met Wednesday afternoon at the church. Miss Gertrude M. Young, the president, presided over the short business meeting, following which a barrel of old clothes was packed to be sent to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Werking, who are in charge of the Chandler Normal school for colored people at Lexington, Ky., and who were former residents of this village. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Herbert P. Hoyle, Mrs. Thomas Grimshaw, Mrs. Clarence J. Nagle and Mrs. Eugene N. Monty.

Mrs. George Muddeman was hostess to the Thimble club Wednesday evening, the affair being a baby party. The members came dressed as infants and the favors were rattles. Punch was served in nursing bottles. All who attended wore bib masks. Mrs. Muddeman served refreshments.

The Ponemah Wheel club inflicted a heavy defeat upon the Army and Navy club in the second game of the pool tournament. The totals for both games now stand as follows: Wheel club 470, Army and Navy club 294. The individual points for the Wheel club are: Mathewson 100, Blanchette 88, Benoit 88, Edwards 94, Armitage 100. For the Army and Navy club: A. Adams 60, Surprise 97, J. Herd 83, G. Adams 63, Landry 51.

Charles Chenelle has returned to his home in Troy, N. Y., after spending a brief time this week in town. Mr. Chenelle is now the proprietor of a fire extinguisher business and was, some years ago, the overseer of the No. 2 carding department of the Ponemah mills. For a time after leaving here he was employed by a manufacturer of cotton machinery, and is now engaged in business for himself. While employed here, he was a resident of south Second avenue.

Ernest Couture, U. S. A., has returned to Fort Wright, Fisher's Island, after spending several days as the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Couture, and family, at their home on South Second avenue.

Henry Fontaine of Plainfield was a visitor in the village Wednesday.

The Has Beens club met Wednesday evening in the Ponemah hall for the purpose of decorating for their annual private dance which is to take place this week. The decorations are always a feature of this large social event.

HOUSE KILLS SUNDAY BASEBALL BILL BY VOTE OF 139 TO 86

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 18.—The house this afternoon, 139 to 86, rejected the bill which would have legalized the playing of professional baseball and football on Sunday. The bill had passed the senate.

The "Sunday baseball bill" was taken from the table on motion of Mr. Buckley. The matter was ably debated by Mr. Burkett of Willington who opposed the passage of the bill, and Mr. Talcott of Vernon, who characterized the bill as a "home rule" bill and said he would vote for it as he did not think it would do any harm. The bill was favored by Mr. Wheeler of Stratford. Mr. Bell opposed the bill as he was not in favor of commercializing the Sabbath day. He voted against a similar bill in 1921 and he should vote against this bill.

A motion of Mr. Schatz of Hartford that debate be limited to 1.30 p. m. as the democratic members of the house had made other arrangements, was lost.

Mr. Pratt of Trumbull warmly supported the bill. He was in the automobile business, he said, and had tried to close his business on Sundays and was vigirously condemned by those who were opposed to this bill. His business certainly was of a commercial character. Mr. Pierpont of Shelton was in favor. Mr. Merz of North Haven was opposed. He wanted the Sabbath kept holy, and free from commercialism. Senator Eddy of Canton said that nearly every town of the state was violating the present Sunday observance law, this bill will legalize the playing of ball and will secure the payment to the state of the admission taxes which are now lost by the non-observance of the law.

Mr. Meech of West Hartford was opposed to any further commercialization of Sunday. Rev. Mr. Mortenson of Cromwell, said Sunday ball games were played for the money that was in it. The pleasure of those attending was a minor matter with the management. If the games did not pay they were abandoned.

Mr. Southwick of Cromwell said if this bill should pass, nothing would be said about enforcing it, but if it should fail, it is suggested that a strict enforcement law would be offered.

Mr. Andrews of Danbury said he was not in favor of commercializing Sunday for the purpose of catering to the incoming of continental Europe. Miss Green of Tolland vigorously opposed the passage of the bill.

Mr. Bill of Torrington called for the previous question and it was ordered.

Chairman Buckley of the judiciary committee closed the debate. He contended that this is a purely local option measure. He believed that public sentiment favored the passage of this bill. There was certainly a formulative demand for a law such as this bill provides. The return of only about 900 of the 5,000 questionaires sent out certainly did not indicate any great opposition, but rather showed an indifference to the matter he said. The bill permitting the showing of motion pictures on Sunday had been passed after many failures and had provided pleasure for thousands who had no automobiles in which they could scurry away to the seashore or the mountains. This bill if passed will give enjoyment to thousands who are employed six days in the week. The roll call to be taken will disclose whether the members of this assembly were in favor of the present conditions or were in favor of legalizing the matter.

The roll call showed 86 yeas and 139 nays for the passage of the bill. Before the vote was announced Mr. Buckley for parliamentary reasons changed his vote from "yea" to "nay" and then moved that the house reconsider its vote and that the bill be laid upon the table.

He will now offer his proposed amendment that calls for a rigid enforcement by the state attorneys of the several counties.

Proposed Amendment

The amendment which was printed in the journal yesterday which will probably be offered by Mr. Buckley reads:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof, the following, viz: "The state's attorney upon complaint, supported by such information as he may find sufficient, that any person, association or organization contemplates, intends to, plans for or arranges to give, hold or conduct on Sunday any baseball or football game at which any charge for admission or for any seat at such game shall be made, which game is intended to be held within the jurisdiction of such state's attorney, shall forthwith apply to the superior court or any judge thereof for an injunction restraining the giving, holding or conduct of any such game. Upon cause shown such injunction shall issue."

This was the longest session that has yet been held as it was 2.45 when the house adjourned to Thursday at 12.15.

While the prevailing opinion of the house was against legalizing Sunday baseball it is not believed that the house would be willing to go to the other extreme of strictly enforcing the present law. Governor Templeton in declaring that he would veto the original bill if it were passed, has represented himself as being in favor of leaving things as they are.

The house spent almost three hours on the bill despite several attempts to cut the debate short.

The house assembled at 11.15 with Speaker Nickerson in the chair. Nineteen bills that had passed the senate came into the house with and all were ordered on the house calendar with the exception of S-B 382, concerning appeals in juvenile cases, which was recommitted to the committee on the judiciary. H B. 500 concerning commitment of children under four years was also recommitted.

An animated discussion was held on the bill for annexation of a portion of the town of Harwinton to the town of Torrington. Mr. Bell of Torrington offered an amendment to the bill which has been favorably reported, providing for a referendum vote. This was opposed by Mr. Buckley, house leader. The amendment was lost. Mr. Bell asked that the bill be temporarily passed and retain its place on the calendar and it was so voted. Mr. Bell said that he had learned at this session that nothing could be obtained at this session for the town of Torrington unless consent was given by the gentleman from Union.

A bill concerning the authority of the commissioner of domestic animals, was debated and tabled, retaining its place on the calendar.

This bill relates to the inoculation of animals, for rabies. It was opposed by Mr. Bell of Torrington in a lengthy speech.

SENATE

Immediately after the day's session of the senate was opened Executive Secretary McCook presented two communications from Governor Templeton. One was for reappointment of Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne of Putnam for four years from July 1, 1923, and the other was for the appointment of Howard P. Dunham of Wethersfield to the position of insurance commissioner for four years from July 1, 1923, as the successor of Burton Mansfield. The nominations were referred to the committee on executive appointments.

The committee on the judiciary reported favorably on a substitute bill requiring state institutions on or before August 8, 1923, and annually thereafter transmit to the comptroller an inventory as of June 30 of their property. Calendar.

The committee on senate appointments reported favorably on the appointment of the following as resident trustees of the Bacon Academy: Aldea A. Baker, Samuel P. Willard, Clayton G. Muller, Arthur L. Stebbins, Elizabeth B. Bicelow, Cyrus E. Pendleton and John Condren; and the following as non resident trustees: Curtis M. Geer and Robert E. Foote. The reports were accepted.

The committee on the judiciary reported favorably on a substitute bill fixing the compensation of assistant messengers of the superior court at $4 a day. Calendar.

The committee on finance reported favorably on a bill providing that the license fee for advertising signs shall be one cent for each square foot and shall be collected by the superintendent of state police. Tabled for calendar.

Two Reports on Vaccination

There were two reports from the committee on public health and safety, one unfavorable and the other unfavorable. The bill provided that "no person shall be compelled to be vaccinated against his will, or, if a minor, against the will of his parent or guardian." The expense of vaccination was to be paid by the town, city or district where the person vaccinated resided. The majority reported unfavorably on the bill. Both reports were tabled for calendar.

The committee on public health and safety reported favorably on another vaccination bill which provides that a child may not be vaccinated if a certificate is presented to the local board of health or health officer from a physician practicing in the town where the child resides certifying that in the opinion of the physician such vaccinations would not be prudent on account of the physical condition of the child. The bill was tabled for calendar.

On the favorable report of the committee on forfeited rights a resolution was passed restoring forfeited rights to Hiram W. Mills of Hartford.

The committee on roads, bridges and rivers reported favorably on a bill concerning the elimination of dangerous conditions at grade crossings on trunk line highways, and on a bill which provides that the framework or superstructure of any overhead bridge crossing a railroad shall be kept in repair by the company operating the rail road. The bills were tabled for calendar and printing.

DENIES MOTION TO SET ASIDE VERDICT FOR $1,000

Judge C. L. Avery of the superior court on Wednesday handed down his verdict denying the motion to set aside the 1,000 verdict given by a jury in the suit of Anna Watson of Waterford against the Connecticut Co.

The case was tried in New London recently before Judge Avery. The plaintiff sued the trolley company for $5,000 damages on the claim for personal injuries, which she alleged she had suffered while standing on Main street, New London, on August 9, 1922, when a trolley car hit a parked automobile and drove it into her knocking her down and injuring her. The trolley company appealed from the jury's verdict.

Grants Three Divorces

Judge Avery also handed down verdicts Wednesday in the following cases:

Granting divorce to Georgie Staples Treadway from Norris M. Treadway on ground of cruelty from Jan. 1, 1919. They were married July 5, 1906 and she testified that his abusive treatment compelled her to leave Him March 21, 1920.

Granting divorce without alimony to Mary S. James Perham, colored, from Cornelius E. Perham, both of New London, on ground of impotence. She is allowed to change her name to Mary S. James. They were married June 21, 1921.

In the suit of Carl Hopf of New London vs Flora Clark Hopf, divorce is granted on Mrs. Hopf's cross-complaint on the ground of cruelty. Mr. Hopf had alleged adultery in the suit he brought. Mrs. Hopf is allowed to change her name to Flora Clark but is denied alimony. The couple was married June 10, 1914.

Judge Avery also filed with the clerk, George E. Parsons of the superior court his finding of facts in the scire facias action of Albert L. Smith vs James Vellis and James D. Gardner of New London.

JACK RABBIT AUTHOR THRILLS NORWICH CHILDREN

Uncle David Cory, familiarly known to thousands of children all over the country as the Jack Rabbit Man, author of the Jack Rabbit stories running in the Bulletin every day, met hundreds of the children of Norwich personaly on Wednesday.

Uncle David visited many of the schools here on Wednesday and told the children some of his Jack Rabbit stories, fairly visualizing the characters of Uncle Lucky, Lady Love, the Wicked Wolf, Daddy Fox and Squirrel Nutcracker and the other little people who lived in the Shady Forest near the Little White Bungalow in the Old Bramble Patch.

It was a pleasure to behold the rapt expressions on the little faces of the kiddies when Uncle David took Little Jack Rabbit through some of his experiences. When Little Jack Rabbit was happy the little faces beamed out but when the Wicked Wolf started to pursue Little Jack Rabbit the little faces became tense until by skillfull manipulation Uncle David extricated his little bunny friend and then there was an audible sigh of relief from the little folks.

Uncle David was cordially received by the little people everywhere. In the morning he talked to the children at Elizabeth street school, High street, Broadway, Broad, street and Greeneville. In the afternoon he talked to the children at St. Mary's school and at St. Patrick's. Later in the afternoon he went to the Porteous and Mitchell Co., where he meet hundreds of his little friends, putting in a solid two hours telling them all about the funny antics of the bunny folk.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

What to Eat and Why

Making a Big Word an Easy Part of Your Diet

Car-bo-hy-drates make up about 60 per cent of the average diet. They produce heat and energy. They are largely secured from the grain and vegetable starches.

In the long, slow baking by which Grape-Nuts is produced from wheat and malted barley, the grain starches are partially predigested. They are changed to "dextrins" and "maltose"—forms of Carbohydrates so easy to digest that they form the basis of the most successful baby foods.

Many people have digestive trouble caused by the food-starch in its original form, but Grape-Nuts has been famous for a quarter-century for its exceptional ease of digestion, and assimilation, and its splendid, building nourishment. It is a food for strength and energy, delightfully crisp and appetizing, made today by the same formula which first brought this charm for taste and aid to health to the world's dining table. Grape-Nuts contains the iron, phosphorus and the essential vitamin, so often lacking in modern, "refined" foods.

Many servings of real food value in a package of this economical food. At your grocer's today—ready to serve with cream or milk. Grape-Nuts—the Body Builder. "There's a Reason." Made by Postum Cereal Co., Inc., Battle Creek, Mich.

ACTION BY GOVERNMENT TO STOP GAMBLING IN SUGAR

Subpoenas Issued for 23 Members of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange for a Hearing April 30 on Application of the Government for a Preliminary Injunction—Criminal Prosecutions May Follow the Injunction Suit—Counsel for Exchange Is to Prepare for Defense—President Babst of the American Sugar Refining Company Warns Housewives to Buy Sugar Only as They Need It.

New York, April 19.—United States Attorney William Hayward filed a civil suit for the government today to enjoin the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and its clearing association from further trading in sugar futures unless backed up by actual ownership or contract to the sugar dealt with.

Subpoenas were issued for 23 members and officers of the exchange and its clearing association for a hearing April 30 on the application of the government for a preliminary injunction against trading in sugar futures pending a final hearing.

U. S. Attorney Hayward in a statement announcing the action of the government said: "This is a united effort on the part of the United States officials, charged with the enforcement of the law and protection of the people of the country to make the gamblers in sugar remove their roulette wheel from the American breakfast table."

The raw sugar futures market which opened 7 to 10 points higher today than yesterday's close, broke badly when news of the government's injunction proceedings reached the floor. Quotations for September raw futures dropped perpendicularly 89 points from 6.75 to 5.90 within a few minutes after the news became known; May futures broke 50 points and July futures lost 76 points. There was a rally later and the market closed from 21 to 33 points lower than yesterday's quotations.

The spot market quotations for raw sugars were not affected by the news and one sale of 5,500 bags of Cuban raws was reported at 6 3-8 cents a pound, cost and freight, the highest price recorded since 1920.

Quotations for refined granulated sugar remained unchanged at 9.60 for all refiners while refined futures were nominal.

Stocks of sugar companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange were also hit by news of the injunction proceedings. Cuba cane sugar preferred dropped 2 3-4 points, Cuban-American and Manati 2 1-2 each, Punta Alegre 2 1-4, South Porto Rican 2, and American beet sugar one point. They rallied slightly in the late trading.

The cotton market also was unsettled by the government's action and there was a general decline in cotton futures with light offerings. July futures broke to 27.03 or $4.10 a bale lower than yesterday closing quotation. The market closed weak with net losses of 60 to 83 points.

The board of directors of the sugar exchange after the close of business today appointed a special committee of members to cooperate with the counsel of the exchange in preparation of the exchange's defense.

Earl O. Babst, president of the American Sugar Refining Company, in a statement today assured the housewives of the country that the sugar situation is largely in their hands to regulate.

"Don't scramble, don't hoard, don't boycott," he advised. "Buy your sugar as you need it."

CRIMINAL PROSECUTIONS MAY FOLLOW INJUNCTION

Washington, April 19. — Criminal prosecutions may follow an injunction suit filed in New York today by the federal government to protect the public against exorbitant sugar prices.

The first phase of the government's action against the alleged sugar conspiracy was completed with institution of the civil injunction proceedings to prevent speculative trading on the New York Sugar Exchange. The criminal phase was held in abeyance but Acting Attorney-General Seymour announced that it was under serious consideration.

Final decision regarding criminal action was said officially to be before Attorney General Daugherty who is now at Asheville, N. C.

Another development today in the sugar situation was a report to President Harding by the tariff commission which found that duties of the new Fordney-McCumber tariff act were not a factor in the recent increases in sugar prices. The commission declared the increase was due to other causes and that if the tariff was reduced or removed the tendency would be to decrease production of American beet sugar and increase imports of th foreign product.

The government's action is the New York injunction suit, designed to close the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and the New York Coffee and Sugar Clearing Association, Inc., to future or speculative trading in sugar, was unusually speedy and vigorous.

Two months of active investigation by government agents in this country and Cuba, preceded filing of the injunction suit. Although the department of justice plans were known to a considerable number of officials, the move made today was clothed in secrecy, no indication having been given that the government contemplated action so drastic.

"DRY" OFFICIALS VIEWED SIX RUM SHIPS 12 MILE OUT

New York, April 19.—(By the A. P.)—A government expedition set out from New York today to discover the isles of rum. It returned tonight successful, with six cases officially charted off the Jersey shore, 12 miles southeast of Ambrose channel.

When the Associated Press several months ago first reported extensive liquor smuggling off Highlands, federal prohibition officials were inclined to scoff at the presence of a sizeable liquor fleet. Today, however, Palmer Canfield, new federal prohibition director for New York, decided to get first hand information and took a band of newspapermen with him down the narbor on the coast guard cutter Manhattan. Although he didn't see a drop of liquor, he returned convinced there was plenty under the hatches of the foreign craft riding at anchor outside the three mile limit.

Mr. Canfield critically inspected the fleet, which had shrunk from seventeen vessels to six; declined an invitation to board the flagship Istar, was "sassed" by one of her officers, and on the way home frankly denounced the craft as ocean buzzards flocking at the heart of the nation. He held the fleet accountable for the smuggling ashore of 100,000 cases of liquor a year and declared that, to combat the smugglers, it was absolutely necessary to have an adequate water patrol supplemented by a sufficient land force.

"I expect to use the information obtained today," he said, "as a basis for formulating a practical plan of operation to eliminate liquor smuggling or reduce it to the same minimum as smuggling of Chinese or narcotics. I have an abiding faith that the present situation will be met ultimately in an aggressive and combative manner and that the real job of stopping smuggling will be delegated to some agency of the government, and that proper equipment for water operation supplemented with a land force will be provided.

"There is only one thing that will stop smuggling. That is a gun. There is only one thing that will stop it any quicker. That is two guns."

AMATEURS RADIO MESSAGE ACROSS THE CONTINENT

Hartford, Conn., April 19.—A radio message was relayed across the continent by Canadian amateurs on three consecutive nights of amateur tests just completed, according to a telegram received today at the headquarters of the American Rario Relay League.

The best record was the relaying of a message from the station operated by O. Ball, 704 Louis Veuillat, Montreal, to the station operated by W. F. Reeves, Duncan, Vancouver Island, and return in twenty minutes.

As Canadian stations are scattered thinly over a wide area, this feat compares favorably with the 1921 record of American amateurs who relayed a message across the continent in six and one-half minutes. Canada amateurs were unsuccessful in their first attempt March 24, 25 and 26 on account of atmospheric conditions.

BITTER CONTEST WAGED AT THE D. A. R. ELECTION

Washington, April 14.—With delegates worked up to a high pitch as a result of the bitter contest waged in connection with the selection of a new president-general, ballots were cast today in the Daughters of the American Revolution's triennial election of officers. Voting was still in progress tonight with some uncertainty as to when the result would be announced.

Three candidates originally were in the field to succeed Mrs. George Maynard Minor as president-general but the unexpected withdrawal from the race of Mrs. William Cummings Story of New York announced last night immediately after she had been nominated, narrowed the nominee to Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook of Pennsylvania and Mrs. G. Wallace Manger of Washington.

The action of Mrs. Story who declared she withdrew because of some of the campaign tactics resorted to in connection with the election, served to intensify feeling. Confusion became so great during the voting late today that police officers and firemen stationed at the hall took a hand in straightening out the lines and in preserving order. A number of the delegates were reported on the verge of hysteria, excitement in connection with the balloting proving too much for them.

The officers-elect will serve for three years.

The counting of ballots had not been concluded when the night session adjourned, and announcement was made that the result of the election would be made known tomorrow.

Solicitor-General Beck and Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York addressed the congress tonight.

YOUNG RYAN DENIES CONTRACT WITH MISS SHARP

Miss Sharp alleges Ryan broke a contract to pay her $500 a month indefinitely for the rental of an apartment in Manhattan, in which one room was to be reserved for his use. Ryan, in his affidavit today, denies the existence of any contract with Miss Sharp.

TEACHERS OF DANCING OPPOSED TO MARATHONS

New York, April 19—Members of the American society of Teachers of Dancing today were advised by vice-president Louis N. Chalif to do everything in their power to check the non-stop marathon dancing wave which is sweeping the country.

"Non-stop dancing contests are dangerous to health, useless as entertainment and a disgrace to the art and profession of dancing," said a bulletin sent out by Mr. Chalif.

The competition is open to the world and will take place in England next September. The Duke of Sutherland offers a second prize of 500 pounds; this is restricted to British competitors.

STEAMSHIP SEIZED WITH 1,400 BOTTLES OF LIQUOR

New York, April 19.—The Danish steamship Rolf was libelled by the government today after customs agents had seized 1,000 bottles of whiskey, rum, and beer on its arrival from Cuba. Captain Simon Larsen and ten members of the crew were held in bail by a United States commissioner in Brooklyn charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

Members of the crew appeared before the federal authorities and preferred charges against the captain, asserting that he had refused to supply the ship with food when it left Cuba, and that they were forced to drink warm water although there was ice on board. Erick Martens, seaman, charged that the captain knocked him down and kicked him when he asked for food.

It was explained to the complainants that as the vessel was under Danish registry, the United States attorney could not entertain the charge of cruelty. Captain Larsen, and the chief steward, Thorvald Kiammenson, however, were held in $5,000 bail each on the Volstead charge when arraigned before United States Commissoner Barmore. The other nine prisoners including Apul Evensson, chief engineer, were held for examination in $1,500 bail each. All pleaded not guilty.

WAS PAID $2,000 A TRIP TO THE RUM FLEET

New York, April 19.—Charges that a ring of New Jersey men, some of them public officials, paid him $2,000 a trip to the rum fleet off the Jersey coast, were made by Captain Jules Johnson, whose motorboat Molly was captured by customs officials today after a 30 mile chase. The boat had 120 cases of Scotch aboard, which Johnson declared he had purchased on orders of his principals.

The captain told customs officials that a week ago New Jersey officials had approached him with the offer and had furnished him with money with which to buy liquor on Rum Row.

The craft was sighted off Sandy Hook by the customs mosquito fleet and the cutter Lexington. A chase, in which a number of shots were fired, was ended when the Molly hove to and surrendered. Johnson and another man were held on charges of violating prohibition laws, while officials from th edepartment of justice began an investigation into his disclosures.

MOREHOUSE PARISH CITIZENS SURRENDER

Bastrop, La., April 19.—(By The A. P.)—All but six of the Morehouse Parish citizens named in bills of information filed here yesterday by District Attorney Garrett as a result of the operations of hooded bands in the parish last year surrendered to Sheriff Carpenter today and made bond in the nominal sums required.

Those who did not give themselves up were Dr. B. M. McKoin, now in Baltimore, Md.; Ed. Ivy, traveling out of Natchez, Miss., and Laurie Calhoun, who is near Brownsville, Texas. The other three are known to court officials only as Cox, Mcintosh and Eldridge, and as the clerk of the court is not certain which men are wanted, there being many of those names in the parish, he has not issued warrants for their arrest.

Court officials here said so far as they know, no plans for trial of the defendants had bee nmade but it was believed the cases would be called at the next term of district court in October.

STRONG SYMPTOMS OF GENERAL PROSPERITY

Washington, April 19.—The showing of principal lines of industry in the United States, March operations set a new record for the country's productivity and business activity, according to a statement issued today by the commerce department. At the same time, stability was said to be indicated by the fact that consumption demand "apparents digested the goods produced without an appreciable increase in stocks."

retail sales in mail-order houses and ten cent stores, exceeding previous peak points in sales volume, and issuance of life insurance policies, greater than in any one month previous, were cited as evidence of good position for the average consumer.

The movement of raw cotton into finished goods, and increasing output of pig iron, bituminous coal, and auytomobiles were among the symptoms of general prosperity listed.

Day of Activity in General Assembly

Senate Votes to Give Governor Authority to Veto Items in an Appropriation Bill.

Hartford, April 19—Both branches of the general assembly speeded through a large amount of routine work today with few controversial measures to arouse the intense interest that has characterised the May few sessions.

In the senate the constitutional amendment giving the governor authority to veto items in an appropriation bill instead of the bill as a whole was passed by a vote to 27 to 2, while a short time later the bill providing for old age pensions for persons over 70 was unfavorably reported and after short debate was rejected by a vote of 23 to 6.

The house adopted a resolution creating a commission to tsudy the operation of the ballot law in the state and also passed, in an amended form, the bill which would give the commissioner of domestic animals power to vaccinate dogs infected with rabies. This bill, as well as other vaccination bills this session, has been the center of frequent heated debate.

The expected nomination of Harry E. MacKenzie, federal prohibition director, to be commissioner of labor, and the re-nomination of Richard T. Higgins to be a member of the public utilities commission were not sent to the senate.

Governor Templeton is expected to sign the bill creating two new superior court judgeships before the week is out, thus clearing the way for the nomination of Speaker Leonard J. Nickerson and Senator Arthur Ellis for the posts, their selection having already been announced.

It is not known when House Leader Buckley will take from the table his motion for reconsideration of the bill legalizing Sunday baseball which the house rejected yesterday. He has said that he will give the house 24 hours notice of his plans.

Anarchist Larkin Taken to Ellis Island

Irish Agitator Has Made Himself an Undesirable—Is to be Deported.

New York, April 19—James Larkin, recently pardoned by Governor Smith and released from Sing Sing prison where he was serving a term for criminal anarchy, was arrested today and taken to Ellis Island on a warrant of deportation.

The warrant issued March 13, 1922, after a hearing at Ossining, N. Y., was signed by Secretary of Labor Davis. It characterised Larkin as an "alien anarchist" and ordered his deportation after his release from prison.

Larkin, taken to police headquarters and later to Ellis Island by Police Lieutenant Gegan, declared as he left the police officer.

"Goodbye Jim, I'll be glad to get back to Ireland. If you ever get over there, you'll find me at headquarters in Liberty Hall, Dublin."

Greeted by friends he had made during his last stay on Ellis Island, he said:

"Everything I have is on my back. I'm like the man in Whitman's poem —'Headed free and lightheated, I take the open road.'"

Larkin will be held on Ellis Island pending definite instructions from Washington.

He came to this country from Ireland in November 1914, after having been well known there as the organizer of dock and transport workers. In this country, he was active in labor circles until in November, 1919, he, and 13 others, were convicted of criminal anarchy. The charge has that he had helped write a manifesto issued by the left wing socialist party and already been annulled.

STRIKE AT THE CHENEY SILK MILLS SETTLED

Manchester, Conn., April 19.—The strike of the 8,000 employes of Cheney Brothers silk mills, of this place, came to an end tonight. A committee appointed by the strikers met representatives of the manufacturers this afternoon and after a conference of about three hours at which both sides conceded certain demands, an agreement was signed, whereby all those out of work will return Monday morning.

The strike which began on Monday in the silk weaving department was and spread to other departments was in protest against the "credit rating" system of the company.

The committee which met with the mill officials today consisted of two delegates from each of the four departments on strike and a general chairman. They requested abolition of the entire bonus system and asked for a 20 per cent. increase in wages. Concessions were reached on both sides as to the bonus proposition, and an agreement was reached as to the increase in wages which will vary from 10 to 40 per cent., which was far in excess of the expectations of the strikers.

Cheney Brothers had previous announced they were going to readjust wages on April 30.

The committee which met the mill officials today had power to bind all the men out of work to the agreement.

PLEA OF ILLNESS BY HARRY F. MORSE FAILS OF PURPOSE

Justice Stafford in the District of Columbia Supreme Court Decides That Morse, With His Two Brothers and His Father, Must Go on Trial Next Monday—Doctors Who Examined Harry F. Morse in New London Testified That They Had Failed to Find Any Organic Heart or Other Trouble.

Washington, April 19.—Despite his plea of illness, Harry F. Morse must go to trial next Monday with his two brothers, Ervin and Benjamin, his father, Charles W. Morse, and four others on indictments charging conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with war-time ship contracts.

This was the decision today of Justice Stafford in the District of Columbia supreme court after he had heard conflicting opinions of physicians as to whether young Morse had heart trouble. When the doctors were through the defendant was called to the stand to describe to the court symptoms of heart derangement which he claimed had been manifest since an attack of influenza last February.

In over-ruling the motion of Morse's counsel that their client be given a separate trial at the next session of the court, Justice Stafford said, it seemed to him, considering delays already encountered and the expenses involved in such trials, that young Morse never would be tried if he were not tried at this time.

After avoiding service of a bench warrant issued for him last Monday because of his continued failure to appear for trial, Harry Morse surrendered himself to the court at noon today and immediately was placed under arrest. His bond of $10,000 previously had been declared forfeited, but Justice Stafford said the penalty would not be enforced provided costs of issuing and endeavoring to serve the bench warrant were defrayed by the bondsman. Later the defendant was again admitted to bail in the same amount.

Morse told the court that after he was advised late last Monday that his presence in court had been ordered he consulted his physician, who informed him that he should not make the trip from his home in New London, Conn., to Washington if it possibly could be avoided. The defendant then sought to get in touch with counsel in Bridgeport, Conn., to determine what he should do and the next day he went to that city and conferred with the lawyer.

Told that he would have to obey the courts order, Morse left Bridgeport yesterday by rail, going to Baltimore, where he obtained an automobile for the last lap of his journey. He explained that he adopted this course to avoid arrest. Arriving here he went to the office of Dr. D. Percy Hickling for examination and later entered a hospital.

Dr. Hickling and Doctors Wilfred M. Barton and Thomas S. Lee testified that Morse had an infection of the heart muscle and that he should go to bed for a month. They asserted that if he should be subjected to the strain of trial at this time it might be one or two years before he could hope to recover.

Doctors George N. Acker, Jr., George M. Ruffin and Henry P. Parker who examined Morse at his home in New London last Saturday at the request of the court testified on the other hand, that they had been unable to find any organic heart or other trouble and that they did not believe it would be detrimental to Morse's health to go on with the trial.

While the case will not open until Monday Justice Stafford decided to begin the selection of a jury tomorrow. Counsel in the case estimated that the trial would require from one to two months.

Besides Morse and his three sons the defendants are N. H. Campbell, of New York, assistant treasurer of the United States Transport company, Inc., Rupert M. Mich, of Augusta, Me.; assistant treasurer of the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation; Philip Reinhardt, former auditor at Alexandria, Va.; for th e Emergency Fleet corporation, and Robert O. White, of New York, president of the Transport company and assistant treasurer of the Groton Iron Works, Groton, Conn.

Chairman Lasker, of the shipping board; Attorney General Daugherty; John Barton Payne, who was chairman of the shipping board at the time the Morse contracts were being considered; William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and Charles M. Schwab and Major General George W. Goethals, retired, former fleet corporation officers, are expected to be among those whose testimony will be sought by the defense.

Mr. McAdoo and Stewart Gibboney were mentioned in the indictments as having conveyed to shipping board officials, in their capacity as attorneys for the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation, statements purporting to show that the concern was in excellent financial condition. It was not charged, however, that they knew of the alleged falsity of any representations made to them by their clients.

EFFORTS TO RESCUE PARTY MAROONED ON FOX ISLAND

Northport, Mich., April 19.—(By The A. P.)—Efforts to rescue the nine men and one woman reported to be starving on South Fox Island, 18 miles off the mainland in Lake Michigan, were temporarily halted this afternoon when Lieutenant E. C. Whitehead's airplane from Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., crashed through the ice in Grand Traverse Bay in an attempt to make a landing.

Neither Lieutenant Whitehead nor a Detroit newspaper man who accompanied him was injured, although they were ducked in the water. The plane was not seriously damaged but it was so wedged in the breaking ice that a crew of men was unable to extricate it in time for a flight tonight to Fox Island.

The wings rested on the ice and so the plane did not sink. The ice began to break up this morning and the landing was not so solid as it was yesterday, when three men, after a desperate struggle with ice floes, made their way to the mainland from the island and told the story of the ten persons marooned there.

JEWISH TRIBUNE ATTACKS ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA

New York, April 19—The Jewish Tribune which last week published a charge that the Encyclopedia Britannica "helped falsify history and fanned the flames of racial animosity" by its treatment of the Jewish question in Poland, turned its attack today toward alleged "unfair discrimination" in its biographies of Jews.

The Tribune points out that the Encyclopedia mentions that Bela Kun, Hungarian communist leader, Leon Trotsky and Yourkovsky, chief jailor of the Tsar at Ekaterinburg, are Jews, but that there is no reference to the Jewish origin of Benjamin Altman, Leon Bakst, Albert Ballin, Bernard M. Baruch, David Belasco, Sarah Bernhardt, Sir Alfred Mond, Morris Jastrow, Luigi Luzzatti, Professor Albert A. Michelson, Paul M. Warburg and others.

LESS PAY FOR FARMERS THAN TRADE UNIONISTS?

New York, April 19.—"Farmers, because they feel it their patriotic duty to feed their fellow countrymen, get a small return for their labor than the trade unionists who grouse in the form of higher wages," declared Sherman J. Lowell of Fredonia, N. Y., national master of the grange, in an address at the convention of the National Metal Trades Association today.

Mr. Lowell who was discussing labor problems, particularly as they affected the farmers, said that while machinery was slowly solving the problems of the farmer the latter were still at a disadvantage because common labor is not available now for farms and the farmer could not afford to pay the high wage rate fixed by labor unions.

W. W. Coleman of Milwaukee was re-elected president of the association.

The decision is considered the more surprising inasmuch as Ireland has been invited by the economic commission of the league to participate in the forthcoming international customs conference.

JULIUS LAND, NEGRO, NOT GUILTY MURDER

Middletown, Conn., April 19.—Julius Land, negro, of Newfield, charged with murder in second degree for the killing of Walter H. Thorell and Arthur E. Swanson in Cromwell on the night of February 3 last, was found not guilty by a jury in the superior court here tonight.

The case was given to the jury by Judge C. L. Avery early this afternoon. The jury deliberated seven and one-half hours. Land received an ovation from the crowded courtroom when the verdict was rendered.

The shooting of Thorell and Swanson occurred near the Cromwell station as the result of an alleged altercation between Land and others on a trolley car. Land who took the witness stand yesterday testified that he was struck in the face twice, once by Swanson and the other by Daniel Dowling, who was at witness for the state. Land said the he did not shoot to kill, but that he fired the shots to scare the men. He said that he ran away to give himself up to the Middletown police when he was caught. He did not know that he had killed anyone.

Land was defended by Attorney D. J. Donahoe, of this city, and former United States District Attorney William H. Lewis, of Boston, who put in a plea of self-defense.

IRISH REPUBLICAN BAND FAILS TO WITHSTAND SIEGE

...London, April 19.—(By the A. P.)—The spectacular siege of the little band of Irish republicans which had been holding out against the Free State forces in a cave 100 feet from the top of Clashmeeloon cliff on the wild shore of the Shannon in County Kerry, has come to a sensational ending.

Two of the men who had been fighting under a continuous machine gun fire since Monday night fell from the cliff into the Shannon while trying to escape in the darkness of Wednesday night and were drowned; Commander Lyons of the hillside fortress dropped 100 feet to the beach while being haule up the cliff, but rose and was shot and killed while trying to escape, and the four others of the little party, including Walter Stevens, of London, were captured, according to a despatch to the Central News from Tralee.

The men in the cave, evidently believing their position insecure, were endeavoring to sally forth and reach the protection of an adjoining cave when the casualties occurred. The body of Commander Lyons was washed out to sea by the rising tide.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone, 1023

A new Chevrolet sedan in which James M. Dailey, aged 32, of Ellington avenue, Rockville and Lester P. Benton of No. 17 Grove street, Rockville, were riding was badly damaged about 5.30 o'clock Thursday morning when it collided with a telephone pole on West Main street. The glass on the right side of the machine was broken, and the framework demolished. The accident took place about half way between the trolley car barn and the Hayden Fitch estate. The occupants were severely shaken up but escaped injury. Officer Frank McLean of the local police department witnessed the affair while on his way home. The officer noticed that the machine was coming with much speed and after it had gone past him it continued to travel in a zig-zag fashion for about fifty yards when it collided with the pole.

Officer McLean ran to the car and picked up a piece of the body which had been ripped off. The men got out and looked the car over and were ready to start on their way when the officer stepped them and placed both under arrest.

The men had their drivers' licenses and Dailey said that he was driving. The machine was registered under the name of John W. Fahey, No. 17 Laurence street Rockville. The officer believed that the car had been stolen.

Mr. Fahey of Rockville was telephoned to and he denied having given anyone permission to use his car and expressed much surprise at finding that it was in Willimantic as he had left it in his garage at twelve o'clock Wednesday night.

Dailey and Benton were brought before the local police court Thursday morning and charged with taking an automobile without permission, with an additional charge of reckless driving preferred against Dailey. The latter claims that he had received permission to use the car and after some hesitation he pleaded guilty to the charge of reckless driving.

In order to allow time for Mr. Fahey to come to this city and testify against Dailey in regard to taking the car without permission, court was adjourned until 11 o'clock. Fahey did not wish to push the charge and Dailey was fined $25 and costs amounting to $32.15 on the charge of reckless driving. Mr. Fahey then displayed much kindness of heart and he paid Dailey's fine and costs. The charge against Benton was nolled.

A good sized attendance was present at the regular meeting of the Francis Long Woman's Relief corps held at G. A. R. hall. The officers and committee read their reports, which were accepted. It was announced that the rummage sale held on April 14th was a success. Ida Williams read a report of the members of the visiting on "Milk Day" at the Model School, which was most interesting. A Well-Prepared Seed Bed Produces Bigger Crops

When you can make a better seed bed simply by using a disc harrow that does better work, pulls lighter, and lasts longer, why not do it? We can show you just such an implement—one that can be adjusted instantly to penetrate and pulverize the soil thoroughly its entire width in dead furrows, hard and soft ground, and over ridges, as well as on level land.

JOHN DEERE
MODEL "B" DISC HARROW

Next Saturday, or the first time you are in town, drop in and look at the John Deere Model "B" Disc Harrow which we have set up. Get on the seat and operate the levers. Notice that there is a lever for angling each gang backward or forward so as to make the pull on the horses just right when part of the harrow is working in soft ground and part in hard ground.

And remember to ask us about the third lever. That is the feature you will appreciate because it enables you to give the required pressure to the inner ends of both gangs to make the harrow penetrate at the same depth its entire width in dead furrows or over ridges.

We want you to notice also the neat, substantial construction of this harrow. You will readily understand why it lasts longer.

What is good for a Champion wrestler like Zbyszko ought to be good enough for any athlete.

"Gentlemen:—I want you to know that Peterson's Ointment is being used regularly by Zbyszko while in training. I consider it one of the finest articles on the market for cuts and bruises which wrestlers get in practically every contest.

"Mr. Zbyszko joins me in recommending it to all athletes if they want something with merit back of it for training and after contests." Very truly yours, J. H. Hermann, Manager for Stanislaus Zbyszko, 6 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

"I have always claimed," says Peterson, "that the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment makes it the best in the world. Use it for old sores, piles, eczema, sore feet and all skin diseases. It stops chafing in two minutes, and is great for sunburn, cuts, burns, scales, and bruises. Every druggist in America knows its greatness and will praise it—35 cents.

THE MAN WORTH WHILE

It isn't the man with the merciless smile,
Nor the one with the copyright grin,
That is always the victor and always worth while
When the news of the game tumbles in;
But the hard-working, quiet, and pleasant young chap
Who cannot be shoved from his place on the map,
Who for smiles and cajolings does not give a rap,
But who sticks to the job and for nothing will shirk,
And who thinks of nought else, when there's work on, but work.

The man with the smile has his place in the world,
Though the smile be as false as himself,
And often in luxury you'll find him curled
With more than his share of the pelf.
But the chap who's the best of the finest and few,
Who's stanch and reliable, square and true blue,
Is the one with the slogan "Play the Game—You!"
Who sticks to the job and will quit not nor shirk,
And has thoughts of nought else, when there's work on, but work!

PITTSFIELD HILLIES ACQUIRE THREE NEW PLAYERS TO BOLSTER UP TEAM

Manager Art Wilson of the Pittsfield Hillies in training here for the 1923 season, returned late last night from a two days' trip to Boston and New York where he secured two pitchers from the Giants and an infielder from the Phillies.

The pitchers are Earl Webb and Haman, two recruits that have been with the Giants on the spring training trip. Webb is rated as one of the best pitchers obtained by the Giants from the minors in some time but lacks the experience. McGraw bought Webb from Memphis of the Southern Association for $8,500 and is releasing him to Wilson under option. McGraw paid Wilson a flattering compliment when he let Webb go to the Pittsfield club as other clubs in the Class AA and Class A circuits have been after Webb for a long time. McGraw let Webb go under one condition and that is that Wilson would keep the pitcher under his own personal supervision and work him hard. McGraw said that he believed Webb would win 75 per cent of the games he pitched and Hughie Jennings was even more emphatic regarding Webb's ability.

Hanaman released outright to the Pittsfield club and comes well recommended by McGraw and Jennings. On Thursday Manager Wilson was in conference with Manager Art Fletcher of the Phillies and secured a second baseman by the name of Anderson to bolster up the infield. Anderson will probably be used at second. The new recruit was selected from the elimination contests in the army camps last year as the best second sacker of the outfits. He was recommended to Fletcher by "Huck" Herzog and Fletcher says he is a fast boy who needs a little more experience before entering the big show.

Danny Silva has asked to be put on the reserve list of the Hillies as he has secured a business position in Boston. It is rumored that Danny will sign up a semi-pro contract under another manager in the near future. Congratulations, Danny. Danny will probably hook up with some team in the Boston Twilight league this summer.

Thursday's practice was light owing to the continued cold weather and another five-inning game featured the afternoon practice in which the Ponies shut out the Regulars 4 to 0. Van Alstyne pitched for the rookies and Johnny Tillman pitched for the regulars.

Joe Russell featured in the hitting, getting a pretty homer to left field. Art Sullivan and Colonel "Moose" Snover also contributed to the fireworks. Snover's hit was good for three bases, but the Colonel runs too long in one place and 3S had to be satisfied with a double. Snover also played first base for the rookies and cavorted around that initial sack with the abandon of a colt.

There will be only one practice today from 11.30 to 3 o'clock. Manager Wilson will give his boys a little skull practice this morning and start working the finer points of the game.

On Saturday they play at the State Hospital and on Sunday will play Bill O'Leary's Norwich club, Mickey Weyrick of Buffalo will pitch for the locals with Hendett as a relief man.

COMMISSION APPOINTED TO DIRECT WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

New York, April 19 (By the A. P.).—A commission of women college physical education directors which, as an integral part of the National Amateur Athletic Federation, purposes to control competitive athletics for women in the United States and to promote physical training for girls in every institution, has been appointed by Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Organization of the commission, completed yesterday at a conference attended by representatives of more than 50 of the leading educational institutions in the country for women, grew out of a mass field day in Washington two weeks ago to Mrs. Hoover at the suggestion of the N. A. A. F.

Miss Blanche Trilling, director of physical education for women at the University of Wisconsin, was named chairman of the commission. Other members are Dr. J. Anna Morris of the University of Minnesota; Miss Helen Frost, Teachers' college, Columbia university; Miss Agnes Wayman, Barnard college; Miss Helen McKinstry, Central Y. W. C. A., New York; Miss Ethel Perrin, assistant director of health education, city of Detroit; Miss Louise S. French, assistant state superintendent physical education of Massachusetts.

The commission will act in an advisory capacity with the executive committee of the N. A. A. F. until it is officially taken into the federation membership.

The women's commission, according to Elwood S. Brown, executive officer of the N. A. A. F., condemned the practice in various institutions of conducting physical training for the few and intends to build up an organization in the educational institutions of the country designed to assure recreation for all.

"Competitive athletics for women," Mrs. Hoover said, "should be conducted in such a manner that will prevent serious and permanent injury to competitors. The commission's desire is to promote athletics for women and girls in a rational way."

DODGERS FAIL TO HIT AT PROPER TIME

Brooklyn, April 19.—Philadelphia hit opportunely behind Ring today and defeated Brooklyn, 5 to 3. The Dodgers had a chance to repeat their thrilling ninth inning rally of Tuesday but failed, although they had the bases twice filled with one out.

Going into the final Ring held the locals 5 to 1. Then a hit, two errors by Sands and two passes, let in two runs and left the bases full with one out. Ring, steadying, fanned Schliebner and caused Barber to ground out. Sands who made three errors, redeemed himself when he tripled with the bases full in the third after Vance had passed Lee intentionally.

Vance was taken out for a pinch hitter in the seventh and Mamaux finished the game. Walker made four hits, two of them doubles, in as many trips to the bat. The score:

GIANTS TAKE TWO MORE FROM BRAVES

Boston, April 19. New York won morning and afternoon Patriots' day games from Boston today by the same score in each case, 4 to 3. The champions came from behind each time and won in the ninth. Singles by Earl Smith, Bancroft and Frisch helped score the tieing and winning runs in the last inning of the first game.

Cunningham's single, an infield out, McInnis' error, and Bancroft's short sacrifice fly to Southworth gave the visitors the winning run in the ninth off Marquard in the afternoon game. Meusel's triple off Benton in the morning game resulted in two runs and he hit a home run off Marquard in the afternoon with Frisch on base. Scores:

Cincinnati, O., April 19.—St. Louis made it two straight from Cincinnati today by winning a ragged and hard hitting game 11 to 9. DEMPSEY WILL FIGHT JULY 4; OPPONENT NOT NAMED

Chicago, April 19.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion pugilist, will positively defend his title on July 4, his manager, Jack Kearns, announced in a telegram received here today. The opponent remains to be decided, Kearns said.

Kearns, who is in Los Angeles, telegraphed he had not closed with Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul heavyweight, for Shelby, Mont., on July 4, but negotiations were pending and he planned to meet Mike Collins, representing the Montana promoters, here next week to consider the offer.

"I shall leave here Friday for Chicago and New York to negotiate with New York, New Jersey and Cleveland promoters, as well as Mike Collins in Chicago," Kearns said.

Tex McGinnity, a Cleveland promoter, is negotiating for a Dempsey-Gibbons match.

E MARS, VETERAN RUNNER, WINS BOSTON MARATHON SECOND TIME

Boston, April 19 (By the A. P.)—The legs, the head and the heart of Clarence H. De Mar of Melrose are still the best of those embodied in the country's long distance runners. The man of 35 years who, as a soldier back from the wars, surprised sports followers last year by winning the American marathon road race in record time 11 years after his first success in the event, won it again today. His time of 2 hours, 33 minutes, 47 3-5 seconds, set no new mark, but it was nearly two minutes faster than that of the runner-up, Frank Zuna of the Millrose A. A., New York, and his victory established him as the only man in the 27 years history of this race to win it three times.

Today's was a contest in which veterans triumphed. Five of the first eleven men were previous winners, and most of those well placed have been running for years. Zuna won in 1921; Carl W. A. Linder, Boston A. A., in 1918; William J. Kennedy, Port Chester, N. Y., in 1917; and Edouard Fabre, of Montreal, in 1915.

Wallie Carlson of Chicago, brother of Fritz, who won in 1913, was third, and Albert P. Michelson of Stamford, Conn., who contested the lead with others and then with De Mar for nearly half the 25 miles, was fourth. After Gunnar Nilson and Nestor Erickson of New York, teammates of the Finnish-American A. C., had finished fifth and sixth, there came plodding home Carl W. A. Linder of the Boston A. A., victor in 1919, and old Bill Kennedy of Port Chester, N. Y., who led the way in 1917.

De Mar's was a victory of stamina, speed and judgment in which he plodded along in fourth place for eight miles, then moved into second place, chasing Michelson, the pacemaker, until he overtook him at the half-way mark in Wellesley, but Michelson, always fast in the first stages of these races, overhauled him with a sprint shortly afterward and De Mar consted along in his dust for a few miles until they had passed the reservoir checking station in Newton. It was there he started his successful sprint last year, and if was there he sprinted to win again today. In a mile or two Michelson was left behind, and De Mar was alone in front, striding through streets lined by thousands.

Zuna, belated him, had run a race well within his powers but not so well judged. For half the race Zuna was content with sixth or seventh place. Then he decided to stretch his stride and went up to third seven miles from the finish, where he was about five minutes behind the leaders.

The winner ran the last five miles of his race on his left heel and right toes. As he reached the Lake street reservoir, an automobile crowded his accompanying bicycle in towards him and it caught his right heel, tearing it from his shoe. Then a blister developed on his left foot and when the veteran reached the finish his gait was rather odd, and he was apparently very tired.

The first 11 finishes:

Clarence H. De Mar, Melrose, 2:33:47 3-5.

Frank Zuna, Millrose A. A., New York, 2:35:32.

Wallie Carlson, Svithod A. A. Chicago, 2:37:10 4-5.

Albert P. Michelson, Cygnet A. C., Finnish-American A. C., New York 2:39:40.

Nestor Erickson, Finnish-American A. C., New York, 2:39:46 1-5.

Carl W. A. Linder, Boston A. A., 2:40:02.

William J. Kennedy, Cygnet A. C., Port Chester, N. Y., 2:23:47.

Joseph Conte, Pastime A. C., New York, 2:38:20.

Arthur L. Flanders, Boston, A. A., 2:40:41.

Edouard Fabre, National A. A. A., Montreal, 2:41:09.

The next 14 finished in order:

Speros N. Mirageac, New York; M. J. Lynch, Washington, D. C.; Peppino Partfolio, Cambridge; Henry Kanto, Claremont, N. H.; John Rost, Port Chester, N. Y., Eddie Lyons, Boston; Clovis Bourelais, Brockton; J. Foxcroft Carleton, East Sandwich; Anastas K. Sturgis, Boston; John McIver, Boston; James Cleary, Boston; Frank Martin, New York; Eugene H. Fitzpatrick, Natick; Horatio S. Stanton, Jr., Westerly, R. I.

M'KERVEY WINS CLOSE MATCH AT BALTIC

"Shakspere" McKelvey, the one-hand cue expert, was given a close run Thursday evening at the Baltic Social and Athletic club in Baltic by Leo Despathy, a clever cueist of the village. McKervey was playing with one hand while Despathy used two, McKervey to get 35 balls and Despathy 50. Despathy lacked one ball to win when McKervey ran out on him. "Shake" also gave an exhibition after the match.

Tonight McKervey will play at Dugas' Billiard Academy in Taftville under the same conditions as last night's match at Baltic. Fred Dugas will be his opponent.

NEW JERSEY NOT TO NOTE MASSACHUSETTS' ACTION

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 19.—The suspension by the Massachusetts boxing commission of Fred Fulton and Floyd Johnson, heavyweight pugilists, who are matched to box in Jersey City next Monday night, will not be recognized by the New Jersey boxing commission, it was announced today by Allan Trimble, secretary of the commission.

The Massachusetts commission, which suspended Johnson, Fulton and their managers, for failure to keep an alleged contract with the Arena A. C. of Boston, asked that its decision be also enforced in this state. On behalf of Commissioner Newton A. K. Bugbee, however, Mr. Trimble issued a statement declaring that he saw "no reason why the New Jersey commission should concur in this latest request, as they (the Massachusetts commission) took no part when we had this matter under discussion with the New York state athletic commission."

Formal reinstatement of the two boxers in New Jersey, the result of an agreement with the New York commission permitting Johnson to go through with his bout with Fulton, was announced today by Commissioner Bugbee.

FIGHTING SUGAR SPECULATORS

What will be regarded as timely action for the purpose of calling a halt on the high price of sugar is the move which has been made by the department of justice for an injunction against the trading in sugar futures.

This makes it evident that the government is convinced that the reason for the present high and unjustified price of sugar lies with the speculators. Always merciless, regardless what the commodity in which they are interested, they have acted in such a way as to steadily force up the price of sugar until it now is the highest in three years, and as the result of it the public is being steadily gouged.

It isn't a situation that results from a shortage of sugar. According to department of commerce figures the situation here and throughout the world in relation to the available supply of raw sugar has been more favorable than at any time within the past three years.

Proceedings which have been instituted thus far are solely for the checking of the artificial prices that have been created. But when it is established that the intention in bringing out has been for the purpose of interfering with trade and squeezing as unwarranted price out of the consumer of so important a commodity, there should be no delay in bringing criminal action and making those responsible pay the penalty.

This is not a matter that calls for leniency. It is well that there should be a stop to the facilities which aid the speculators who have caused the jump in the sugar prices, but for such a step on the part is not sufficient. It is time to let them and others know the government is not disposed to tolerate any such activity and the quicker it can be sent home to those directly concerned the better it will be for those at the mercy of such robbers.

The government is properly concerned in this matter and it should not cease until it has shown and made use of its teeth.

COMBATING DISEASE.

While experience has taught that too great hopes cannot be placed upon claims that are made in behalf of certain alleged cures there is no doubt that wonderful progress is being constantly made in the fighting of disease.

For some time now hopes have been greatly stimulated by the insulin treatment in cases of diabetes. There have been those who pointed out during the early days following the announcement concerning the discovery that false hopes should not be created. It was sound advice, because of the knowledge that fraudulent claims have been put forth in behalf of many "cures" which did not cure and could not cure because they did not contain curative properties. Legislation has been framed to protect the people against claims which could not be carried out in connection with certain medicines and treatments.

When, however, the insulin treatment is given the endorsement of Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the Rockefeller Institute, who says that "mankind will" never again be in the grip of this disease as it has been for so long," and that "the world is enormously richer today than it has ever been before as the result of Dr. Banting's discovery" he isn't endeavoring to build up false hopes. He knows what he is talking about and he talks as the result of his knowledge of tests.

There may be more information desired in regard to its use but when he declares that many patients, whose cases had been regarded as hopeless, had been cured with the treatment he speaks by the record of accomplishment and isn't basing his statements upon hopes.

It marks decided progress in the fight against disease, quite the same as does the new treatment which has been developed for the fighting of pneumonia. And these two treatments should mean the saving of a much larger number of lives than has hitherto been possible.

TALKING REPARATION.

Does the fact that Germany is mentioning reparation figures again mean that there is any prospects of an early discussion of such a matter between nations? Reparations have been talked before without success. France has done what it insisted it would because of the failure to agree, and now there is a somewhat changed situation with advantages in favor of France.

When Germany made the statement that it was willing to agree to pay reparations of 30,000,000,000 gold marks there was a demand from France to the effect that there be certain guarantees of such payments. That offer was made at a time when it was the hope of Germany that the seizure of the Ruhr would be prevented. The offer didn't change the French attitude.

France is now well settled in the Ruhr. It has possession of territory which it intends to hold until its claims are paid. It has intimated that it is ready for any negotiations when Germany is prepared to open them. Germany hasn't taken any step in that direction except for the statement which was made by the German foreign minister in referring to the offer made by Germany a few months ago. Possibly Germany is ready to renew such an offer, and if such were the case it can be seen where France could regard its occupation of the Ruhr as a guarantee for the payments.

Not until there is some direct move made can it be possible to correctly interpret the German attitude. When the foreign minister of that government, however, makes reference to such an offer it leads to the inference that it is inclined to repeat it. That doesn't necessarily mean that it would be accepted but with the developments it is not impossible that should there be another discussion concerning reparations an agreement might not be impossible if such deliberations should be guided by the facts. No doubt both would prefer an adjustment if it could be accomplished in a manner satisfactory to each.

THE PARTIAL VETO.

The senate having joined with the house in favoring the constitutional change that will make it possible for the governor to veto part of a legislative bill without vetoing it all it has been pushed on to a point where its submission to the people seems certain. And to the people it must go before it can become operative for it involves the changing of the present provision of the state constitution.

Occasionally there are instances where some or only one of the provisions of new legislation are believed to be objectionable and yet to bring about the elimination of such it becomes necessary for the governor to veto the whole bill. On the other hand instead of wrecking legislation which has occupied much time in the general assembly and which for the most part is desirable, there are frequently instances where features which ought not to pass are accepted rather than wreck the whole legislation by a veto.

The freedom which is permitted the governor under the approved change is deserved. It is no more than right that he should have the right to express his view upon what is proper in a bill and what is not. The removal of the handicap that now exists unties the hands of the chief executive, and should make possible the blocking of that practice of forcing matters which are not able to stand on their own feet through the legislature as part of measures that do not otherwise call for veto action and which for various reasons it would be unwise to veto. When the time comes for the people to act upon it there is little doubt but what they will take the same favorable view that both houses of the general assembly has.

DEPORTING LARKIN.

What must be regarded as highly desirable is the decision of the department of labor that James Larkin is an undesirable and must be deported. Larkin is an alien and has proceeded to abuse the privileges offered him in this country since being here. Part of the time he has spent behind bars because of his contempt for law.

It was an unwarranted move that was made by the governor of New York when he pardoned Larkin just after being elected. He set his own personal and probably political views up against those of the court where Larkin was convicted for violation of the law. What Larkin couldn't accomplish by sanction of the court was possible for him to do under the influence brought to bear upon the new governor. Less would have been thought of such a step had it been accompanied by the demand that Larkin leave the country and never return. That would have got rid of an undesirable but instead Governor Smith turned him loose upon the country to practice again what he had been previously convicted for doing.

Larkin is one of those radicals who has no respect for law and delights in making trouble. That this has been recognized by the government causes no surprise. It is the logical development as the result of his record and it cannot be regarded as other than a proper rebuke to the governor of New York for the encouragement which he gave to Larkin and others of his type.

When Larkin goes it will be another case of good riddance, though it will stimulate the wish that others might go with him.

CHIVALROUS TED

Dear Kate: No matter what you have heard about southern chivalry, it's true. It must be caused by something in the air, for Ted has it badly. he was always polite, but he was never so desperately, expansively polite as he's been since we creased the broad Ohio river.

Personally I wouldn't mind standing on a pedestal just for the length of this trip if I could have it to myself. But Ted's pedestal is like a trolley car —always room for one more. A dozen times a day he says, "Gad, these southern girls are beauties! Look there, Madge, quick!" And I twist my neck half off to see some ordinary little thing with the very pink cheeks and very white nose that are as popular here as on State street. Bless his south as a happy land enveloped in a perpetual haze of romance pretty girls, roses and sunshine.

There were no roses noticeable in Louisville when we arrived—or any sunshine. It was raining hard when we started to hunt for a boarding house and beginning to freeze when we finally saw a sign—"Rooms to Rent"—in the window of one of those old, red brick houses with tall white pillars in front, and a ducky little wrought-iron balcony. A darling house. As Ted said, "The kind of place you have always thought of with dark-eyed ladies in filmy white sitting on the porch doing fancy work, and gallant young Kentuckians in knee pants riding up on full-blooded horses and spending the afternoon gassing instead of doing an honest day's work." There isn't room on Ted's pedestal for the male of the species, by the way, though some are good looking enough to make your heart miss a beat.

Well, Ted went in to reconnoiter, and after a few minutes came out and said, "She has one room. You'd better come in and look at it. There's no heat except a gas grate and no bed except one of those folding things that turn into a couch in the daytime. I told her you'd decide." The minute I stood in that clammy, airless room and looked at the bed and at the gas grate busily absorbing what oxygen there was, I knew I'd rather roll up a blanket and sleep in a meadow, as we've often done before, than spend the night there.I knew Ted felt the same way about it, and I thought he ought to take the responsibility. "It is just as Mr. Davis says," I told the landlady—a thin, nervous, worried - looking woman "anything he likes is perfectly satisfactory to me."

What was my surprise and horror to hear him rent the room of her for an indefinite period then and there. I looked straight at him and said, "Perhaps we'd better drive around Louisville now, while it is light, and see a little more of the town and then come back here in the evening." But the landlady saw through my nefarious design.

"Say, listen!" she interposed, shrilly—if any one tells you they all have soft, low voices, don't you believe it—"You-all sure are coming back? You-all are going to pay me a deposit on this room? If I get it ready and make the bed and all—then you-all might go

Like somebody in a dream I saw my husband pay her a $10 deposit; then we got outdoors and into the machine. Before I could tell Ted Davis what I thought of him he turned on me.

"Look here, Madjorie," he had the unlimited nerve to say, "I thought I could rely on you to get me out of that fix. What sort of a pal are you, anyway? You couldn't expect me to turn the little girl down."

I was speechless for a minute. But after I got my breath I told him he'd better remember, in practicing this new chivalry of his, that his wife came first. "What more," I finished,"if you-'ll just drive back there like a man and tell her we don't want that room, and then we'll go to the hotel, where there's steam heat. I'm nearly frozen to death."

We went back. I heard the landlady's voice raised in high-pitched remonstrance, then a few lower words and Ted came back to the car.

"Did you get your $10?" I asked him.

"Well, no," said my chivalrous husband, "You see, she'd been to quite a little trouble making the bed and then there was the expense of the gas grate for warming up the room. She seemed so upset about our changing our minds that I told her she could keep it."

If Kentucky affects him like this what shall I do with him when we get to Virginia?

Love to all the Wednesday club.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Claude Champion de Crespigny, who today completes his seventy-fifth year, has had a career marked by many extraordinary adventures. He has climbed steeples, travelled in balloons, voyaged round the world, hunted big game, practiced all forms of strenuous sport, broken 14 bones, narrowly escaped death several times, assisted the official hangman at the execution of three men in London, challenged his cousin, Lord Kenyon to a duel, served in the army and navy, battled with sharks, and been seized by snakes. Today he is hale and hearty and at his home in rural England he still indulges in tree felling and in boxing, swimming and other athletic sports. Sir Claude holds the Royal Humane Society's medal for life saving. His adventurous spirit is clearly a case of heredity, for he comes from an old Norman stock who fought in the first Crusade and were "champions" to the Dukes of Normandy and Brittany.

Stories That Recall Others

An Eye to the Inside.

He was a little fellow, possibly three, and had gone with his father to the postoffice. He had to hold his head back, far back, in order to see the clerk inside the window. Taking a quiet survey of the situation he saw an impregnable partition with the only opening the small barred window behind which the stamp clerk stood. Tightly clutching his father's hand the child demanded:

"Where does he get in at?"

A Question of Antiquity.

As one of the tales of the great unwashed, coming forth at this important housecleaning season, it is told that on a certain grimy window is the following inscription:

"Sherman marched to the sea yesterday."

Inasmuch as the building was erected since the day after General Sherman ended his historic hike, it is believed that the inscription is the work of some wag and not that of a historian.

Wives of Famous Men

Lady Caroline Lamb, Wife of Lord Melbourne.

The marriage of William Lamb, afterward Lord Melbourne, and Lady Caroline, beautiful daughter of the Earl of Beosborough, according to many writers on the subject, neither was successful nor deserved to be. Lady Caroline was a beautiful woman, well aware of the fact, and although she claimed to adore her husband, was a notorious flirt.

One of her most talked about love affairs was the one with Lord Byron She became violently infatuated with him. Her attentions bored him, however, after a little while. One story says that, visiting his lodgings while he was out, she wrote under his name in a book on the table the words: "Remember me!" He added the following unflattering lines:

"Remember thee, remember thee!
Till Lethe quench life's burning stream,
Remorse and shame shall cling to thee,
And haunt thee like a feverish dream.
Remember thee, ay, doubt it not
Thy husband, too, shall think of thee;
By neither shalt thou be forgot,
Thou false to him, thou fiend to me."

These heartless lines apparently cured her of her infatuation, for some time later while at a dinner party she asked one of the guests whom she thought was the most distinguished man she ever knew "In mind and person, refinement, cultivation, sensibility and thought?"

"Lord Byron," answered the guest.

"You are wrong," countered Lady Caroline, "my own husband."

RETIRING TEACHERS WERE PAID $50,000 PENSIONS

Pensions totaling $43,911.86 were paid to retiring members of the Connecticut Teachers' Retirement association in 1922, according to the annual report of the board which was submitted to Governor Templeton this week. The number who retired from the teaching service during the year was twenty-four, eighteen of whom had over thirty-five years of service. The average service of these teachers was forty-three and one-half years. Two members were retired under the provisions of the disability clause.

The total amount of assessments received by the board during the year was $385,813.71, while five years ago the amount was $36,868.53 The amount paid by teachers into the fund since 1917 is $1,367,244.90. During the year, ninety teachers joined the association voluntarily, while 1172 compulsory memberships were received.

Membership in the association is compulsory for all teachers entering the public school service after September 1, 1917, an optional for those with service prior to this date. Members are subject to a five per cent deduction of their salaries, with a minimum of $100 a year.

A member may retire from the teaching service after thirty-five years of service, or upon attaining the age of sixty, with fifteen years' service in the state. A member whose service in the public schools of the state has covered a period of ten or more years and who before attaining the age of sixty, becomes permanently incapable of rendering satisfactory service as a teacher by reason of physical or mental disability, may be retired with the approval of the board.

The report shows that the total membership of the association at present is 6,309, compared with 2,468 when the retirement fund was established in 1917. Pension paid during 1917 amounted to $813. The amount has steadily increased for the last five years until the total for the entire period is $136,923.59.

BUDGET HEARING IS GIVEN IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 19—A hearing of the city's tentative budget of $1,202,000, which is $16,000 less than last year, was given tonight and suggestions made by citizens will be given consideration. Former Mayor E. Frank Morgan protested against the chlorinating of the city's water supply, to which City Manager Barlow replied by showing that this practice is general now with the principal cities.

A petition for the appointment of a policewoman was presented and objection was made to the salary of $1,500 for City Manager Barlow.

Given Birthday Luncheon.

A birthday luncheon was given Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Gallup of Stonington road in honor of Mrs. Frank E. French of Woburn, Mass., who has been passing the winter at the Gallup home. Miss Helen French, R. N., of Norwich, a daughter of the guest of honor, assisted Mrs. Gallup in serving a dainty repast consisting of veal loaf garnished with egg and parsley, hot rolls, fruit salad, tea, cake and ice cream. A delicious angel cake which adorned the table represented the birthday cake.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Gallup and Mrs. French and her daughter, others present were Mrs. J. L. Austin and daughter, Mrs. Carleton Bowers, and the latter's little son, Billie Bowers, Mrs. Charles Sweetser, Mrs. John Pslaum and little daughter, Martha Pslaum.

THE LIFE OF A HOME

A healthy, happy contented wife is the life and joy of the home and the greatest inspiration a man can have, yet how many homes in America are blighted by the ill-health and sufferings of the wife and mother. It may be backache, headaches, the tortures of a displacement or some other ailment peculiar to her sex, which makes her irritable, despondent, and her whole life a burden. Every woman in this condition should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, to restore her to health and happiness, for statistics prove that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

"For three years I was in a miserable state of health, with my appetite in a bad slump on account of indigestion, and my whole system simply all run-down. I couldn't enjoy eating because pains in my stomach afterwards caused me untold agony, and robbed me of many a good night's sleep.

"I am on my fifth bottle of Tanlac now, and I can say my old-time good health has been restored. I eat and enjoy anything I want, have recovered my full strength again, and sleep like a top. Tanlac is without an equal."

POLICE DISCOVER FIRE ON AMERICAN HOUSE ROOF

A small fire on the rear slope of the roof of the American house on Shetucket street was discovered about 9.40 o'clock Thursday night by Officer Henry Fenton and Watchman Franc L. Tuttle, who first saw the blaze from a place on Water street, where they could catch the glare of the flames. Following it up, they located the fire on the roof, and Officer Fenton at once rang in an alarm from Box 4 at the corner of Main and Shetucket street, while Watchman Tuttle remained in the street in front of the hotel and directed the fire apparatus into the yard at the rear. Ladders were run up and the use of axes and chemical on a section of the shingle roof soon had the fire out.

The fortunate discovery of the blaze by the police saved what might have been a bad fire at the hotel.

OBITUARY

Richard M. Coit

After an illness of only a few hours of plural pneumonia, Richard M. Coit died Wednesday at his home on Colorado avenue, Bridgeport.

Mr. Coit was born in Norwich, the son of Richard N. Coit and Caroline Mason Coit, and was a grandson of W. W. Coit, also of Norwich. For many years he remained in this city and was well known as a caterer and also as a painter. About 10 years ago he removed to Bridgeport where he continued in business until his recent illness.

He is survived by his wife, a native of Bridgeport, one nephew, Whitman W. Coit of North Attleboro, Mass., and one niece, Miss Mildred Spaulding of Bridgeport. There survive him also an aunt, Mrs. Henry Coit of this city and several cousins.

Mr. Coit was the last of his immediate family. He was well known in this city and the news of his sudden death came as a shock to his many friends here.

Mrs. William H. Fulton.

Mrs. Mary A. Fulton, widow of William H. Fulton, died suddenly Tuesday of cerebral hemorrhage at her home, 130 West Town street. She was 75 years old and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perkins K. Hyde.

Mrs. James Sullivan.

After a lingering illness, due to the infirmities of age, the death of Mrs. Margaret Curran Sullivan, widow of James Sullivan, occurred Thursday night at 9.15 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Timothy J. Driscoll, 38 1-2 North Cliff street. Her declining years were brightened by the loving care of her daughter and the tender ministrations of those who were near and dear to her brought peace and consolation in her last illness.

Mrs. Sullivan was born in Ireland, the daughter of John and Ellen Hurley Curran, and was married there 63 years ago to James Sullivan. She had lived in Norwich for about 46 years, her husband dying a number of years ago. She was a worthy example of an upright life to her children, whom she reared to follow the best ideals and to whom she gave the full measure of her affection.

She is survived by one son, Patrick, of this city, and two daughters, Mrs. C. H. Vaughan of Pawtucket, R. I., and Mrs. Driscoll. A daughter, Mrs. John McIntyre, died Jan. 25, 1921. She also leaves 14 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

ADVISES RIGID ECONOMY IN STATE'S FINANCES

The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, in a special report sent to the members of the general assembly this week, asks the legislators to practice the strictest economy in all expenditures and, in urging them to consider all possible means of reducing the cost of the state government, makes several important recommendations, the most important of which are that there is no propriety or need of the passage of any bonus bill; that the gasoline tax should not be disturbed; that the tax on towns should remain as it is, and that a single-headed highway commission is more advantageous.

The financial condition of the state, briefly, is this, the report says:

Estimated net receipts for the two years ending June 30, 1925, $27,977,100.

Total maintenance appropriation for the two years ending June 30, 1925, $27,879,638.

Total requests for 1923-1925 for appropriations for new construction, equipment and new projects as set forth by the state board of finance, $8,911,299.

These figures entirely disregard requests for appropriations for special or other purposes which are before the committees of the general assembly or which may be presented before the end of the session.

It will be seen that the amount necessary for the maintenance of the various departments and institutions of the state practically equals the estimated income of the state. The burden of taxation should not be increased and all possible means must be considered of reducing the cost of the state government.

Recommendations.

The report makes these recommendations:

1. The state, and every agency within its control, should practice the strictest economy in all expenditures, and every effort be made to have our state, as such, live within its income.

2. Every state commission, institution and board should keep strictly within the law creating them and limiting the scope of their activities. The determination of the scope of their work is, of course, one of state policy, and it is urged that this be one of contraction and strict adherence to the original purpose of their creation, rather than one of expansion.

3. All state organizations of whatever nature should keep strictly within the statute in expending appropriations granted them, and their disbursements should be limited only to those funds made available by the general assembly.

4. Instead of creating new boards and commissions to take care of new matters, no matter how essential, these added duties should be placed upon existing appropriate bodies.

Single Highway Head.

5. The matter of the advisability of creating a three-headed highway commission or of adhering to the existing practice of having a highway commissioner in charge of the highway department was referred to this committee for consideration. After a thorough discussion of the merits of these proposals it was the opinion of the committee that a single-headed commission is the more advantageous for the following reasons:

(a) The state of Connecticut is of such size that it has been proven that the territory and the work can be effectively covered by one man.

(b) A three-headed commission would invite pressure for the favoring of particular localities.

(c) It would inevitably facilitate and promote "log rolling" in the placing of contracts.

(d) It would tend to undermine the independence and efficiency of a high-grade engineer.

(e) It would divide responsibility.

6. In the matter of the increase and improvement of facilities for the care of the insane and feeble-minded, it was voted that this committee recommends that the state make such provision to meet its responsibility for the care of the insane and feeble-minded and inmates of humane institutions, and for the scientific study of their treatment as in its judgment an economical use of the state funds makes possible.

7. The bill providing a bonus of $10 a month to "residents of the state who served in the army, navy or marine corps of the United States during the war" was discussed, and it was voted that it is the sense of the committee that the present state fund for the relief of the veterans of the state of Connecticut in the late World war is a reasonable provision and there is no propriety in or need of the passage of any bonus bill.

8. In the opinion of the committee the commissioner does not require as now provided in the general statutes.

9. The same opinion was expressed in connection with the tax on gasoline.

10. It has been brought to our attention that there is a tendency toward the repeal or modification of the town tax. It is the opinion of the committee that this tax should remain as it is.

11. The committee further recommends that in view of the recurring discussions concerning state grants for educational purposes that a commission should be duly appointed by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce to study the subject of such state grants and report their findings at a later date.

The report also contains an analysis of the receipts and expenditures for fiscal years July 1, 1923, to June 30, 1925, and a summary of maintenance appropriations recommended by the state board of finance.

RESPONSES ON FOURTH DAY BRING Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN TO $9,000 MARK

JOHN M. SWAHN,
Captain of Team E.

The largest number thus far in the Y. M. C. A. campaign gathered for the report meeting Thursday evening at 6.15 o'clock. Several of the Academy members of the "Y" and the senior gymnasium class met with the team workers, and they expressed their desire to assist as they had opportunity. The supper, served by the women of Trinity Episcopal church, was a relish indeed, and the ladies were cheered, and Harold Burt was appointed to thank the ladies in charge and John Fellows thanked the waitresses. Secretary Bill was asked to offer prayer.

The general director of the campaign, Shepard B. Palmer, called on President J. G. Macpherson for brief remarks, and he expressed gratitude to the men for their faithful efforts thus far and urged all the workers to continue hustling until the goal was reached. Richard Holden of the Academy, being called on for remarks, told the men how much the boys of the Academy appreciated the association, especially the help they received in the gymnasium and in the Bible class.

At this point Mr. Palmer called for the team reports of the day, which were as follows:

Team. Captain.	Total.
A—Philip A. Johnson	$925.00
B—Herbert B. Cary	130.00
C—Charles L. Stewart	280.00
D—Harold S. Burt	189.00
E—John M. Swahn	110.50
Total	$1,634.50
Previously reported	7,400.00
Grand total	$9,034.50

After the reports were given General Palmer called on former Pres. James L. Case, who had arrived from Toronto a few hours previous to the meeting. Mr. Case, with his accustomed enthusiasm, first of all commended the men for the splendid results thus far, but stated that if the campaign was to be completely successful it must be by earnest prayer and the hardest kind of effort on the part of every team worker. We must believe we can do the impossible, said Mr. Case, and the thing that has seemed humanly impossible has ofttimes been accomplished. The Young Men's Christian association is a great institution; we are working for a great cause, and the people of the city have always stood by us, and they will do it still if we but put ourselves unreservedly into the effort. The men were urged to put forth a strenuous effort Friday and Saturday.

The ladies in charge of the supper were Mrs. Fred N. Clark, Mrs. James J. Moore, Mrs. William H. Fitch and Mrs. J. W. Curtis. The waitresses were Mary Rose and Faith Curtis.

Her good nature has won for her the friendship and good will of the legion in many of the larger c ties.

TEXTILE MILL ASSOCIATION CONDUCTS LADIES' NIGHT

The most successful and enjoyable time ever held by the Eastern Connecticut Mills association took place Thursday evening at the Wauregan hotel when over 200 members of the association with their wives and lady friends enjoyed a banquet, followed by a delightful entertainment and dancing.

The affair was planned and directed by Harry Richardson, superintendent of the Aldrich Brothers Co., Moosup, chairman, assisted by Charles F. Heap, superintendent of the Lawton Mills Corporation, of Plainfield, and Louis M. Carpenter, agent of the Ashland Cotton Co., Jewett City, and it was due to the splendid efforts of this committee that the affair was a success from start to finish.

The banquet was served at 8 o'clock after Louis M. Carpenter, president of the association had sounded the call for members to enter the spacious dining hall. The menu was as follows:

Papal Mousse
Celery Olives Radishes
Consomme Royal
Roast Milk-fed Chicken, Stuffed Giblet Gravy
Apple Sauce
Mashed Potatoes
Stewed Corn on Crustade
French Bread
Country Club Ice Cream
Petit Fours
Demi Tasse

During the banquet and between the dancing numbers six young women, artists every one, headlined as White's Revue, entertained with a group of vocal and instrumental selections and several dance numbers. Appearing in costumes in keeping with the numbers on the program they were repeatedly recalled for encores by their delighted audience. The White's Revue personnel comprised: Janet Hersey, "The Sunshine Girl"; Josephine Cowell, soprano; Rose Leverone, mezzo soprano; Helen Cowell, violinist; Retta Wilson, pianist.

The entertainment numbers rendered were as follows: Say It While Dancing, company; Gypsy Dance, Miss Helen Cowell; Nellie Kelly, company; paraphrase Kentucky Home, Miss Retta Wilson; monologues, Miss Janet Hersey; Oh, Dry Those Tears, Miss Rose Leverone; Fragonard Girl, and Dandana Days, company; Hejre Kati (violin), Miss Helen Cowell; group songs, Miss Josephine Cowell; You and I, the Misses Hersey and Cowell; medley songs, old and new, company; Good Bye, from Lady Billy, company.

Intermingled with the numbers by White's Revue and rendered in the usual pleasing and effective style of Herb Smith's orchestra was a fine musical program. The concert numbers were interpreted to perfection, the most difficult numbers being handled with grace and ease by the musicians. The concert program was as follows:

Opening March, Militaire, Shubert
Overture, William Tell, Rossini
Popular selection, Apple Sauce, McCabe
Operetta, Rose of Algeria, Herbert
Overture, Calif of Bagdad, Boieldieu
Popular selection, Bee's Knees, Lopez
Finale, Light Cavalry, Suppe
Encore, Poet and Peasant, Suppe

Following the banquet the dancing began, music also being furnished by Herb Smith's orchestra of eight pieces and the pleasures of the evening came to a close at midnight.

During the banquet President Carpenter welcomed the ladies to the first ladies' night held by the association and announced that the association would hold a joint meeting during the summer with the Blackstone Valley Mills association, the time to be announced later. It was also noted that regular meetings of the local association would be suspended until September.

Since the organization of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association at the Attawaugan hotel, Danielson, on November 15, 1922, the membership has steadily increased until today with a membership exceeding 300, the association stands as the largest of its kind in the textile business of America.

At present there are over 28 textile mills holding membership in the association, each mill being represented by its owners or agents, office managers, departmental superintendents, officials and overseers, and the growth has been remarkable in so short a space of time.

In these days when the movement of mill owners is toward southern locations this association plays a big part in the community life of all eastern Connecticut, embracing all mills from Norwich as far north as North Grosvenordale, and from Baltic on the west as far as Moosup on the east. The aims and objects of the association are to

DANIELSON

Commander Arthur Rainville of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, has issued an appeal to the public for contributions to a fund that is to be used for the decoration of graves of American soldiers who lie beneath the poppy fields of France, where they gave their lives for their country during the World war. Although thousands of the American service men who died abroad have since been removed to the United States there are 24,960 graves in France and it is the intention of the American legion to decorate these annually on Memorial day.

To that end American legion posts the country over are giving of their own funds and soliciting the public to contribute to a fund that will make possible the decoration of these graves each year. Connecticut's allotment of the fund is $1655.20.

Contributions may be forwarded to Commander Rainville or to Vice Commander Carl Anderson, checks made payable to Herbert Hopkins, adjutant of the post. Legion members believe there are members of patriotic people hereabouts who will be glad of an opportunity to contribute to this fund.

West Haven.—The shortage in the labor market is said to be the cause of the delay in the work on the permanent paving at the southerly end of Campbell avenue. On the other end of the avenue, near the Milford pike, some experiments are being made in connection with the failure of the top dressing to stand up the past winter.

PUTNAM

"I haven't heard a word about daylight saving this year and I believe nothing will be done about it in Putnam this season". This was the declaration of Mayor Victor Chapdelaine Thursday morning when asked whether any effort was being made from any source to have Putnam pass upon the matter. This, too, appears to be the general attitude throughout the city. If there is any demand for daylight saving, it is not manifest in any degree.

The mayor pointed out Thursday morning that such interest as Putnam may have in daylight saving is chiefly due to the fact that Massachusetts and Rhode Island, two states that follow new time, are so near at hand that their stand has a certain influence on communities that are neighboring to Putnam. Mayor Chapdelaine is appreciative of the fact that many of those who work all day enjoy the extra hour of daylight that the new time schedule affords them in the evening and he sees no objection to any individual or concern writing his or its own time ticket for the late spring and summer season. But from the official standpoint, there is no development to indicate that Putnam will change from standard time keeping this year nor did it last year.

Get ready for Clean up week. Health Officer Peter Gardner said Thursday morning that the week of April 30 will be the period during which a city-wide movement will be underway to clean up the city and free it insofar as may be possible from accumulations of rubbish, ashes and all sorts of debris accumulated during the fall and winter period.

In this movement for getting Putnam into spic and span condition the city supplies its official sanction and will also make available the services of the street department in carting away such debris as cannot be disposed of through the efforts of individuals.

In discussing the aid the city will give Mayor Chapdelaine said Thursday that there are many cases where a backyard needs raking over and cleaning up. Tenants or owners of such properties are in many cases without means of disposing of the refuse after it is collected. It is in such cases that the city will give aid.

The city is not entering upon any agreement to clear away ash heaps, but is willing to assist where assistance is really needed to make a clean-up campaign such a success as it is hoped it will be. It is hoped by the health officer and other officials that everyone will cooperate in the work, and if this is done Putnam will benefit greatly.

A motor car owned by Alfred Bonneville and at the time in charge of his son, Leo, started off on its own account about 11 o'clock Thursday forenoon from where it had been left parked on the easterly side of Main street on the down grade near the Congregational church and after making its way through such traffic as was moving crashed into a building occupied by Charles Bove as a place of business at Lee street. According to the police the damage to the building amounted to about $50, while the car was jammed to the extent of about $35. The car is understood to be insured against property damage. It is believed that passing truck or trolley cars jarred the car into starting, as it had been left parked with one forward wheel purposely cut in and resting against the curb to guard against the getting away, while the driver was absent from the machine for a time.

County Agent F. L. Davis has arranged a series of poultry club meetings, the first of which were held Thursday afternoon and other to follow today. Thursday's meetings were at Windham and at Hampton, both evening sesions. Brooder and Brooding troubles were the subjects of the talks given at these meetings by poultry experts from the Connecticut Agricultural college.

This (Friday) afternoon at 1.30 the Pomfret Poultry club is to meet in Grange hall at Abington and will be addressed by David Warner of Storrs. Another meeting scheduled this afternoon is for the Killingly Poultry club, which will meet at 1 o'clock at the farm of James Sayles in Elmville. This meeting will be addressed by Mr. Kirkpatrick of Storrs. This evening the Canterbury Poultry club will hold a meeting in Grange hall in Canterbury. Roy Jones of Storrs will address this meeting. Brooder and Brooding Troubles will be the subject at all of today's meetings.

Relatives and friends attended the funeral Thursday morning of Mrs. Ann Light, 85, held from her home and with services at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Mrs. Light, widow of Albert Light, was one of the old residents of the city, having made her home here for many years.

The following are the newly elected officers of the Drop-In class of the Congregational church: President, Mrs. C. S. Anden; vice-president, Mrs Genevieve Letters; secretary, Mrs. E. L. Kelley; treasurer, Mrs. George R. Harrington; finance committee, Mrs. Mary B. Bishop, Mrs. Phillips, Sr., Mrs. W. H. Mansfield; social, Miss Josephine Grosvenor; visiting, Mrs. F. E. Following an operation Miss Katherine DeMerritte, died at the Hahneman hospital in Chicago, in which city she was the head of the French department of the Latin High school At one time Miss De Merritte was a teacher in Putnam High school.

She was a graduate, class 1908 of New Hampshire State college, later studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and then took up teaching in this country. She had been a teacher in the Chicago Latin school since 1915.

Strand Theatre.

A new Agnes Ayres has come to the motion picture screen.

A tatalizing, vavacious girl with golden hair, a flashing smile, and sparkling eyes has taken the place of the serenely charming woman who starred in "The Daughter of Luxury" and "Borderland," the Paramount Pictures.

In "Racing Hearts," a Paramount Picture which opened at the Strand theatre last night in which Miss Ayres is starred, she steps into an entirely new character. As the peppy young daughter of an automobile manufacturer who is steadilly going into bankruptcy, she displays unusual enthusiasm.

"Racing Hearts" is unique for many reasons. First, because it serves to introduce this new Agnes Ayres to the screen. Second, because as the driver of a high-powered automobile in the thrilling race climax, she is the first woman of the screen to pilot a racing car in actual contest. In addition it again brings Miss Ayres and Theodore Roberts to the screen as daughter and father, the previous occasion having taken place three years ago during the production of "Too Much Speed," in which Wallace Reid starred for Paramount. Richard Dix, leading man, is excellent in his impersonation. The cast generally is high grade.

Round 3, of the Fighting Blood series was also shown. Lach Cross, the famous boxer, personally took part in this round, which continues to hold up with plenty of action and comedy.

A News completed the programme.

Beautiful Star of "Bella Donna" Knows How to Employ Pantomime.

"Say it with hands."

That is Pola Negri's own rule and one which the famous Polish star threatens to make the fashion in screen Pantomime. For Pola believes in expressing just as many emotions as possible with her hands. It is a heritage from her stage pantomime work and she uses it repeatedly in her first American-made Paramount picture, "Bella Donna," which will be the feature at the Strand theatre beginning Monday for a limited engagement.

Second only to the face—and sometimes not even second to that—are the hands for expressing emotions, according to Miss Negri. She asserts that one can say much with the hands alone in a language which everyone understands, for all have hands and all know how the hands react to emotions.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Frank J. Murphy Shows at the Battle Grounds Tonight.

Everything is ready for the opening of the Big Spring Carnival given by the Frank J. Murphy Shows of Norwich, the old time circus phase, "Bigger and Beter Than Ever" is the most appropriate explanation for Mr. Murphy's 1923 show, as the show is nearly double the size of last season and has many new attractions, including the Cycle Motor Drome, with its sensational trick riders, the Mechanical City, the Big Circus Side Shows, four new riding devices and many other novelties.

One of the features this season will be the illumination of the grounds. Mr. Murphy having secured from the U. S. government one of its large voltage electric plants, such as used "overseas" during the World war. Besides the thousands of small lights that are strung along the midway there will be extra illumination furnished by two large search lights, which will not only provide a flood of light over the midway and entrance, but will also light the walks leading to the grounds.

Every one is invited to attend the Big Spring Carnival, there will not be any admission charge to the grounds and a good time is assured everyone at the Battle Grounds for the next eight days and nights, starting tonight and closing Saturday night, April 28th.

Raisin Day in California.

A gigantic parade eight miles long will inaugurate the fifteenth annual Raisin Day Celebration at Fresno, April 26. Nearly every community, civic and military organization in the raisin district will be represented in the parade. The unusual floats being planned will cost over $60,000. Many handsome trophies are to be awarded for the best floats and marching delegations.

One division of this monstrous parade, is the 1923 raisin pageant—"From the Garden of Eden to the Garden of the Sun." It was said last year that not even the great parades of the New Orleans Mardi Gras, or the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, surpassed the grandeur of Raisin Day pageantry. The parade this year is destined to be even greater in size and beauty.

The pageant parade in the morning is only the beginning of the big day. In the afternoon the annual Raisin Day automobile race will thrill the crowds at Fresno speedway. This annual speedway classic brings to Fresno the world's most famous drivers. Approximately $20,000 is to obe given in prizes.

And in the evening there will be dancing in every hotel and dance hall in Fresno. The queen of Raisin Day will preside over a great ball, which will be honored by the presence of well known people.

The queen of Raisin Day this year is Miss Marie Girard, a California beauty from Delano, Kern county, a new raisin district.

Breed Theatre.

Those who have the privilege of seeing Charles Ray's film adaptation of the famous stage play "A Taylor Made Man," which under a United Artists release will be seen at the Breed theatre today and Saturday, will recognize the actor who so ably takes the part of Abraham Nathan, the financial giant with a streak of human quality and a giant of humor. He is a commanding Natran and gives the part the human interest it demands.

Stanton Heck was for seven consecutive years with Klaw and Erlanger, and played the Emperor in "The Chinese Honeymoon," the sheriff in "Robin Hood," Adiff Bey in "Katinka" and other well known parts. He was with Mary Mannering among other famous players. He has made an envious reputation on the screen also.

Mr. Heck is outspoken in his opinion of Charles Ray and says there is no actor on the screen who is easier to work with, and that one is certain, to act well in scenes in which Charles Ray appears.

Other pictures on the bill include Ruth Roland in "The Timber Queen," and the Pathe News.

Broadway Theatre.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville attractions seemed to please all of yesterday's large audiences. The acts made their appearance as follows:

Edwards offered a fine shadowgraph novelty which brought forth many laughs.

Somers and Steger are comedians who entertain with song and comedy patter.

James Eadie and Anna Ramsden offered a sketch called "Charlie's Visit." This had quite a bit of comedy and some good songs.

Helen Vincent was very entertaining.

Fink's Mules was easily the feature attraction. One mule especially stood out from the rest and the whole offering was a riot.

An entrancing story of the Hawaiian Islands is "The White Flower," a Paramount picture starring Betty Compson, which was given its premier showing at the Broadway theatre last night. Miss Compson plays the part of a young, half American, half Hawaiian, girl who is in love with a young American, the pineapple king of the island. Many are the plans which Miss Compson forms for winning this young fellow's love. In fact, she almost does away with his fiance by the aid of mysterious rites, so great is her love for him. She realizes, however, what she is about to do, and at the crucial moment her real womanhood asserts itself.

NEW LONDON SEALER CHECKING UP GASOLINE STATION PUMPS

(Special to The Bulletin

New London, April 19.—Sealer of Weights and Measures Benjamin R. Lincus is using his best efforts to compel the dispensers of gasoline to give proper measure and force the dealers to give their customers what they pay for. The inspector recently visited a gasoline station and an examination of the five gallon pump revealed that the consumer was getting but four and three-quarters gallons, although he was paying for five gallons.

The owner of the pump was compelled to have the pump put in proper condition before any further sales were made. This condition of the pump in dispensing a shortage had been going on a long time, it is believed, so that the dealer received a large margin of profit for his output.

Stephen Chop of Montville, an employe of the Robertson Paper mill at that place may lose his right foot as a result of an accident at the mill Tuesday. The victim is now under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, where it will be determined before the end of the week whether the amputation will be necessary. Chop sustained his injury when his foot became caught in a piece of machinery, the leg being broken and several arteries severed.

When Frederick W. Mercer purchased the Williams property at the head of State street the rumor spread that he had acquired it with a couple of real estate speculators and that they intended to dispose of the purchase to the government for a federal building that would house every department that represents the government in this city. Mr. Mercer today told The Bulletin that there was not a word of truth in the report but that he was the sole owner of the property and that he had received a bond for a deed until such time as a survey of the land could be made and the deed of transfer could be recorded. He admitted that he had been approached by two or more men who would like to associate with him in the development of the property, but Mr. Mercer said he alone would handle that.

He declares that he will build business structures on the land and that he expects that the result will be the lowering of rents by adding to the business section of State street and the erection of modern business places that will find ready tenants. He has abundant faith in what he can do and what he will accomplish. Rents are tremendously high on State street now and they will continue to be high while the mercantile district of that street is restricted. It was Mr. Mercer who had the erection of the Manwarring building in charge for the Manwarring Hospital association. That is one of the finest business structures in the city and there is not a foot of it to be rented now. It has had tenants since the day it was ready for occupancy and seems likely to always have them.

An automobile, owned and driven by Lieutenant Commander Maher of the submarine base and a machine, owned and operated by W. A. Anderson, were in collision this evening at the corner of Broad surt and Jefferson avenue. Both cars were damaged, but none of the occupants were injured.

The condition of Mrs. Frank Cowan, of No. 212 Montauk avenue, who with her husband, were found asphyxiated late last night from gas escaping from a heater, is critical tonight at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, to which institution both were removed immediately after they were found by George Rogers, an occupant of the building. Mrs. Cowan's recovery is doubtful, but her husband will survive. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cowan are 74 years of age.

The city has a ferry boat on its hands which is in the nature of a white elephant. To operate the boat cost the city a lot of money after the Thames river highway bridge was opened and to allow the boat to remain idle was not to the liking of the city for, as is generally known, to allow vessel property to remain out of commission is to let it deteriorate so rapidly that its value will soon disappear. When the city announced that it proposed to take the ferry boat off the Groton line because it was losing about $15,000 a year, Groton borough people conceived a plan by which the ferry might be continued in operation and they proceeded to negotiate for the franchise.

The city gave it to them at a rental of $5 a day and a nominal charge for the use of the ferry floats, waiting stations, etc. It is understood that the ferry has not earned money enough to pay its fixed charge since the Groton people took over the boat although the employes on the craft have voluntarily accepted a big reduction in wages, awaiting a time when they can get more money for their labors elsewhere. That time has not come for the employes and they stick to their work.

The ferry is understood to have been something in the nature of a mint before the bridge was put into use and before there were trolley cars running over the structure. These additions to the means of crossing the river have cut the earnings of the ferry until there is little if anything left after the expenses have been paid for operation.

At the meeting at which the budget of the city for the year was considered it was hinted that it would be a good thing to lay the boat up if the craft was insured so that the city would be protected against losses, but that suggestion ran up against the argument that New London received a considerable volume of trade from across the river and it was then declared that the city would be doing a wise thing if it continued to operate the boat even at a loss of a couple of thousand dollars a year. And that is what it is doing when it fails to receive any rental from the lessees of the boat as at present. It has been suggested that the lessees of the ferry boat might operate the craft between Ocean Beach and the city proper during the summer time, making a few trips to Groton during the day, but that suggestion is regarded as in the nature of chasing the rainbow by thoughtful people. The outlook is that the city will continue to lose a couple of thousand dollars a year by the operation of the boat until some customer comes along to buy the vessel. An accident to the engines or the machinery of the boat something that must come sooner or later would put an expense upon the city that would take the value all out of the boat.

Trout catches have been small and the fish smaller thus far since the first of April, when the law on catching these fish went off. No catches of consequence have been reported.

City Manager Barlow expressed the opinion last night that the present was not the time for the beginning of construction work or the purchase of material. He declared that the cost of wagons and material was near the peak reached in war times and frowned upon any suggestion that would place the city in the position of attempting constructive work. He could see no prospect of a reduced cost of either material or labor. The outlook for labor was encouraging from the point of vision of the manager, but it was not such as to encourage the belief that there would be any considerable activity in building during the coming summer. At the last council meeting there were but five applications for permission to build and one of these was for the privilege of erecting a henhouse. Ordinarily the applications for building permission reaches about a score.

Grass fires continue to keep the New London fire department busy and within the past 15 hours four fires of this nature were subdued. Early this morning the Niagara Engine company was called to Colman street to subdue the blaze, but when the company reached there no evidence of fire was discovered. Later the same company was called there and a small blaze extinguished. This afternoon the Niagara and Nameaug Engine companies and the Northwest Hose company were called to Bates' woods, off Jefferson avenue where a lively blaze had been started by boys. It required a large quantity of chemicals to subdue the fire. This afternoon the Niagara Engine company was summoned to Woodbridge fire and extinguished another blaze. In all instances no damage was occasioned.

The funeral of Miss Orleana E. Schwillie, trained nurse, whose death occurred yesterday following a lingering illness, occurred this evening at 7.30 o'clock at the church house of the Second Congregational church. Included among the mourners were a number of practicing nurses. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee. The body will be forwarded to Miss Schwillie's former home in Northampton, Mass., tomorrow morning, where the interment will take place.

The funeral of Henry C. Holmes occurred this afternoon at 4 o'clock at his former home, No. 83 Federal street and was attended by a large throng of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The bearers were Robert A. Bitgood, Stephen A. Prentis, Brainard Brown, Wilbur F. Kelley, Nathan Brown and Maurice E. Sherman. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth L. Geer, wife of William Geer, were held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at her late home, No. 27 Cole street, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth officiating. The bearers were Harry H. Darling, Elmer E. Kenerson, George Rich, Silas M. Marstera, William E. Patterson and George Packer. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of George H. Powers, veteran member of Niagara Engine company, of which organization he had been a member sixty-four years and its treasurer forty-seven years, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his former home, No. 75 Howard. The services were attended by a large concourse of mourners, among whom were a large delegation of members of the Niagara Engine company. Rev. A. J. Chandler officiated. The bearers were members of the engine company. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

William H. Daniels, engineer, and Mrs. Minnie H. Lewis were married yesterday afternoon, the nuptial ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth at the residence of the clergyman.

Isaac Bromley of the Hotel Mohican, Mrs. Joseph Vendetto of Grand street, Mrs. Earl Larson and baby of Gales Ferry and Mathias A. Smith of Waterford, were patients discharged at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital today.

Ella J. Young has sold a building lot on Blydenburg avenue to James E. and Mattie Connor.

The condition of Milton Card, the nineteen year old Groton young man, whose automobile ran down and killed Mrs. Leo Brogan of No. 8 Park avenue, Groton, on the Eastern Point road last Sunday night, has improved greatly the past twenty-four hours. The young man has practically regained consciousness and is able to partake of liquid nourishment. It will be some time, however, before he fully recovers from the nervous shock.

George Barclay, a tile layer, residing on Colver street, was arrested this morning by Patrolman Augustus Ray and David Nagle, charged with intoxication. He will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning. Barclay was taken into custody at the request of his wife, for the husband had destroyed several windows, damaged furniture and ripped a telephone from the wall of the Barclay home.

An automobile, operated by Thomas Kenure of No. 175 Montauk avenue, crashed through the fence surrounding the home of Councillor Malcolm M. Scott, corner of Braimard and Broad streets, this noon when the steering gear of the machine became disabled, rendering it unmanageable.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stockel today caused the operator's license of J. B. Getchell of No. 616 Williams street to be returned to the owner, it having been discovered that a mistake had been made in making the suspension. The suspension should have been made to J. B. Getchell of New York, whose automobile was in collision with another auto in New Haven recently.

Samuel Jaffre and Mrs. Jaffre are under treatment at a New York hospital, but Mrs. Jaffre is unaware of her husband being under the same roof with her. Recently Mrs. Jaffre was compelled to ostain hospital treatment and was admitted to the institution. Earlier in the week Mr. Jaffre went to the hospital to pay his wife a visit and after departing he stepped from a curb near the institution and was struck by an automobile, sustaining injuries that necessitated his being removed to the hospital. Advices received in New London by relatives of the coupre indicate that they are both doing well and will be discharged soon.

The movement to secure a police woman for this city was given another boost at the council meeting Wednesday evening when Mrs. Donald Mitchell, Mrs. Lawrence Y. Spears, Fred C. Edgarton and William H. Reeves advocated the appointment of such an official with power to do something that would improve the morals of the young girls and the older boys of the city. Stress was laid on the fact that the places in the city where dances are conducted are not all that they should be and it was urged that the parks might be patrolled with greater vigilance. Then to offset that argument it was shown that there was a special officer at Riverside park all last summer and that no police woman could have done better service than was rendered by the officer.

It was not disclosed what the especial benefit to be derived from a policewoman, nor what her especial duty was to be other wise than to watch over places where dances were held. There are very few instances in which the special services of a woman are needed in arrests. There are a few in which a woman could attend to a woman perhaps more satisfactorily than a man could attend to her, but in such cases it has been the practice of the police to turn the care of these women over to the Learned Mission matron or to the Associated Charities.

No woman prisoner that gets into the hands of the police could be treated with more consideration than is acorded to them by the police here. Never has there been a complaint in this direction made by a woman arrested.

Mr. Edgarton referred to young girls still in school and claimed they were of a character that contimanated other girls. They, manifestly, are not the sort that a "policewoman" should attend to. They are in need of restraining influences, but not of the "police" nature. Mr. Reeves held that the dance halls were "wide open" as he termed their influence. They are as open to the police as they are to a police woman. The city seems to have all the machinery that is needed to improve the morals of the young, but perhaps it can be made of greater use if the effort was made to so apply it.

THE NEW ENGLAND FARM AND YANKEE FARMERS

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

The farmers of New England are not, as a rule rolling in so much and so direct prosperity that they have to brush it off their clothes to keep neat.

But there are evidences of various sorts that they aren't, after all, suffering quite so much inconvenience from their surroundings as the farmers of what used to be called the big and bounding west.

The western farmer used to look down with a marked air of condescension on his eastern compeer. When one of the former came east to make a visit his hosts had to be mighty careful that they didn't tap the dam which held back his stream of brag. If they did, carelessly or by accident, the flood of boasting which was sure to follow was liable to overwhelm them and leave them gasping for breath.

Casually mention to your prairie farmer that you had a rather extra good corn crop on the old six-acre lot under the hill. When you stopped he yawned slightly, put on a bored expression, and remarked that he had six hundred acres in corn, last season, and fed 'steen hundred and seventy-three hogs, besides selling nineteen hundred and forty-seven bushels, two pecks and a quart for seed at three dollars and fourteen and two-thirds cents a bushel. When you had swallowed and started to digest this he would begin to add a few side remarks about his ten carloads of wheat, and the shipment of fat steers he sent to the Omaha market.

That is this is the sort of thing which would have happened a few years ago. It is the sort of talk on which our western fellow farmers fed us up. But, in the words of the popular song: "Them Days is Gone Forever."

That same western farmer when you meet him, now, is pulling at his own hair and tearing his own shirt in his anger over the way he is being robbed and impoverished by the marked profiteers and the railroad grabbers and the speculating commission men. Instead of bragging about his huge acreage and his profuse crops and his big receipts, he is even more loudly wailing over the losses he is incurring and the mortgages he is having to give.

As has been said, the eastern farmer isn't getting rich quick. He isn't finding his life a lane of roses. He isn't swelling his bank account to any noticeable extent. He isn't bragging, not one little bit. Yet he is apparently better off, on the whole, than the westerner who used to look down on his petty agricultural efforts with unconcealed contempt. He doesn't, any longer really need to regard himself as merely a piker.

Carefully detailed comparisons, recently made by the Massachusetts department of agriculture between that state and a certain western grain-growing state, in which farm cost, farm production and market prices are taken into consideration, shows that the general value of farm crops, per acre, was $69.10 in Massachusetts and only $19.20 in the western grain-growing state.

You see, the western farmer has hitherto been accustomed to rate the importance of a state, agriculturally, according to its output of grain, beef and pork. He farmed by the half-section, and talked in terms of carloads. The Massachusetts farmer, on the other hand—and his Connecticut neighbor is in pretty much the same sort of boat—produces more potatoes, onions, vegetables, fruit, berries. In that sort of production the New England states excel. And that sort of production, calling for intensive cultivation, brings crops of much bigger value, per acre, than the bulkier crops of the west, which are produced by hasty and superficial cultivation and have to be sold in wholesale lots at wholesale prices. After which they have to be hauled many hundreds if not thousands of miles at simply exorbitant freight charges. The New England farmer finds the same market which the westerner has to cross half a continent to reach usually within motor hauling distance from his farm lane.

It can be proved, says the Massachusetts department of agriculture, that the average Massachusetts farmer is more prosperous and gets more out of life than the average farmer in any of the western grain-growing states.

President Hetzel of the New Hampshire college of agriculture confirms this statement. He said in a recent address that the one-time trend to the west had ceased, and that western farmers were turning towards New England because they see a bright future for farm operations here, chiefly due to the nearness of markets.

Horace Greeley's famous adjuration, "Go west, young man, go west," is no longer timely or judicious. Instead, the very opposite advice is appropriate. "Come east, young man, come east," much more accurately expresses the policy of wisdom.

At the same time, it ought to be made clear to the complaining farmer of the west, who is beginning to turn his eyes towards the sunrise land, that farming in New England is no soft snap or get-rich-quick proposition. Every back bears its own burden. The man who assumes that his is the only load makes a sad mistake. The big, bulky bag of troubles on the westerner's shoulder may not, after all, be much heavier than the smaller but solider pack the easterner has to tote. Things are not always what they seem. Especially they are apt to be unlike what they seem to prejudiced and overtired eyes. Even when a man is in the frying-pan it is not advisable to jump before he assures himself that he won't land in a hotter spot.

If the west has its troubles in lack of labor and high cost of transportation, the east can report an equal difficulty in obtaining labor, and a pocket-emptying expense for fertilizer. Moreover, where the westerner expects to get a large harvest after merely scratching his land, the easterner has to dig after his results as vigorously as the man who was out of meat dug after the woodchuck.

Years ago, when it was quite the fad to boom the "back-to-the-land" movement, a popular novelist wrote a roseate account of one city family's return to farm-life and entitled it "Back to Eden." Now, any western farmer who is impressed by the higher acre production of New England and the larger gross prices obtained for the acre's products needs to have it made mighty clear to him that a return to New England farming isn't by any manner of means a coming "back to Eden." That earthly paradise, if it ever existed outside the imaginations of myth-makers, certainly has no present existence outside the covers of highly imaginative fiction. The western farmer knows this of his west; he will be wise if he takes our word for it of the east.

At the same time, and after making all allowances, one fact seems to stand out clearly. That fact is that eastern farmers need no longer envy their western competitors or meekly accept any relegation to a position of economic inferiority in comparison. The kettle may, indeed, be black. But it doesn't lie in the pot's province to mention the fact. They're both sooted with the same smudge. The western pot used to do a good deal of pointing with scorn at the eastern kettle's foulness. Now it seems the situation is reversed. This doesn't mean that the eastern kettle is spotless, by any means. But it may rightfully cheer us up a little to know that we aren't any blacker than our former critics. Perhaps, in strict accuracy, we are not quite so sooty as they.

Let it go at that.

In the natural tendency of the times towards pessimism, I was rather inclined to get hold of the facts and opinions I have referred to regarding the present slightly better condition of eastern agriculture, as compared with western. That's why I'm passing it on to you. We're all of us inclined to magnify our own troubles, and to think that we're having a somewhat harder time than our neighbors. This is human nature, whether east or west. When people who have looked us both over and made careful note of our loads and our roads agree in telling us that we're rather the luckier of the two, it may not actually decrease the weight of our burdens, but it surely ought to chirk us up somewhat, and make us step out a leetle livelier.

The fact is that life isn't a primrose path of dalliance for any of us, easterners or westerners, farmers or others. We aren't going to be carried to any skies on any flowery beds of ease. We are, most of us, going to have hard sledding and slow grubbing, practically all the time. We have got to earn what we get, or go without. And the earning never has been and never will be play, whether on the rocky hillsides of New England or the spreading prairies of the great west.

I had to snicker gently, the other day, when I read this terse comment by one of the newspaper "colyumists:"

"When it comes time to plow and plant the farmers plow and plant. They don't filibuster."

That is one marked difference between farm work and political activity, for one thing. It seems to be the regular custom, when a minority of cranks and bigots in congress can't bulldoze the majority into obeying them, for them to filibuster. That is to say, they sulk back in the truces, throw a few monkey-wrenches into the machinery, and stall the engine. If they can't steer the car or the caravan down their pet lane, they prevent it from moving at all on any other road. This is regarded by some self-styled "statesmen" as very practical politics.

Perhaps it may be.

But it wouldn't work in farming.

When Old Lady Nature gets the ground ready to plow and plant, Mr. Farmer plows and plants, right then and there, or goes without his rations the next winter. It doesn't make any difference whether he is farming east of the Appalachians or west of the Mississippi, he must farm and not filibuster.

If he doesn't he will have to live on short commons. If he does, in my humble opinion he will usually have something on his dinner-plate, even in the hardest season and in spite of bugs, blights, profiteers, gouging railroads or crack-brained congressmen.

He won't ever get all he wants, or be as happy as he'd wish to be. No one ever was or ever will be. Meanwhile there is no sense crying after the moon, or anything else which is manifestly out of reach.

If it be true, as asserted by these Massachusetts and New Hampshire authorities, that New England farming is, as a whole, on a better footing than western farming, then we herring-eaters can afford to stop grumbling and go to work with a grin. Out lot is the common lot of all tempered, it may be, the least little bit more pleasantly than some others. Let's take that morsel of comfort, enjoy it, and make it the food to renew our hopes and stimulate our energies.

If we're no worse off than our fellows, that's something. If we are, in some respects, a trifle better off, that's something more and better.

Three cheers for the New England farm! And three more for the Yankee farmer! And three times three for his wife! Go to it!

STAFFORDVILLE

The funeral of Mrs. Anna F. Ensminger, aged 79, was held at her late home last Wednesday. She was the widow of Philip Ensminger, who died Oct. 13, 1921. Rev. C. H. Puffer officiated. The burial was in the Stafford Springs cemetery.

Rev. J. M. Von Deck, who has been pastor of the united churches, both Methodist and Congregational, of this place for five years, has been appointed pastor of the church in Oneco, Conn., and Greene, R. I. Both Mr. and Mrs. Von Deck have made many friends who appreciate the good work they have done for both churches. Rev. Milton H. Babcock of Hartford supplied the pulpit of the Methodist church last Sunday.

George Moore, who has been with his grandson, Merl Hughes, and family in Springfield, Mass., for the winter months, returned to his home here last Sunday.

Mrs. L. Sartori, who was in the Johnson hospital since her operation five weeks ago, has returned to her home much improved in health.

Why we awake dull, sluggish, dispirited and weary

The reason why sleep is refreshing and strengthening

Sleep is nature's method of repairing the wear and tear that is constantly going on while we are awake. As soon as we fall asleep, all the organs of the body "slow down" in their work. It is for this reason that a sleeping person breathes more slowly and his pulse is much less rapid.

This "slowing down" of all the organs enables them to take in more energy from the blood than they expend in the performance of their different functions, and the result is that they accumulate a sufficient surplus of this vital power to meet the demands of the waking hours to follow. We feel vigorous, sprightly, strong and energetic when we awake from a night's sound sleep, because during all that time the organs have been receiving nutritive elements from the blood faster than they could use them.

But when the blood is deficient in nutritive elements—when it does not contain enough of them to supply an abundance to every organ during sleep—we awake dull, sluggish, dispirited and weary because the organs have not been able to accumulate a surplus of vital power. We often tire in the early hours of our morning's work because the organs have not been able to store up a reserve energy during the night before.

If your sleep is not sound and refreshing; if you roll and toss all through the night and wake up in the morning feeling gloomy, sullen, sluggish, "out of sorts" and weary, it is probably because your blood is not rich enough in nutritive elements to meet the demand of all the organs of your body. If the condition is neglected, the loss of vigor may soon be followed by nervous exhaustion or a seriously debilitated constitution. In order to prevent a serious break-down, you should begin taking a tonic and restorative preparation of the right sort.

Wincarnis
The Reconstructive Tonic

Wincarnis is a preparation of the elements that are necessary in the repair of wear and tear of the organs and nervous system. It contains these elements in a form in which they are rapidly absorbed into the blood and are carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital power. Wincarnis is a general tonic and restorative intended especially for those who suffer from wakefulness, sluggishness, loss of vigor, nervousness or a debilitated constitution. For almost half a century, physicians have prescribed this preparation for the weak, anemic, nervous and run-down. A single bottle is often sufficient to restore one's energy, strength and vital power.

It is thought that an assumed name was given when the check was cashed. Collector Dower says that the members of the department who work on the outside have no badges but have written commissions which they carry with them at all times. The commissions are issued to them by Frank A. Page, collector of Rhode Island district.

HOUSE PASSES BILL SETTING STANDARD WEIGHT FOR BUSHELS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 19.—Among bills taken from the calendar and passed in the house today was that relating to the weights of a bushel of various kinds of products.

This is a bill that must be studied by farmers and dealers in farm products as its provisions are much different from the existing statute. It contains many articles for which no standard bushel weight has heretofore been established. The bill in full as amended is here given:

Annexation Bill.

The matter of the annexation of a part of the town of Harwinton to the town of Torrington came up when Mr. Hall of Torrington, to meet the objections of Mr. Buckley, introduced an amendment providing that a referendum be held in both towns. This is a proposition that meets with no opposition in Harwinton and a small group in Torrington alone opposed it.

The matter was finally, on the motion of Mr. Buckley, recommitted to the committee on new towns and probate districts.

The senate joint resolution providing for a committee of one senator and two representatives to investigate the ballot law was taken from the table and in concurrence with the senate was passed. This in effect will only concern the towns where the Australian ballot is in use, and not where machines are used. It is intended to correct the many injustices that cause the elector to lose his vote through improper decisions of election officials.

Vaccination of Dogs.

The bill concerning the authority of the commissioner on domestic animals was taken from the table and as amended by Mr. Bell of Salsbury was passed.

The bill gives authority to order the control, killing or vaccination of dogs affected with rabies.

The house convened at 11.15 with Speaker Nickerson in the chair.

Bills received from the senate with favorable action were tabled for calendar and printing.

Shore Line Incorporation.

They included the incorporation of the New Haven and Shore Line railway company. Concerning the commission of minors to amusements, concerning the inspection and transportation of cattle, income from $10,000 to $15,000 for summer normal schools, concerning the employment of children, public parks in the city of Waterbury, providing $300,000 annually for maintenance of normal schools, prohibiting persons other than lawyers, soliciting or inducing persons to institute law suits.

Bills Rejected

Bills on unfavorable reports rejected were, restricting expenditures by board of schools visitors or boards of education, high school transportation, board in county homes, concerning practice of chiropractic, concerning use of non-inflammable films, and the showing of non-commercial films.

Matters taken from the calendar and passed were, H. B. 667, concerning corporations without capital stock; H. B. 66, concerning property exempt from taxation; an act incorporating the Title Guarantee and Abstract Co. and H. B. 854, concerning the expenses of construction and maintenance of trunk line highways having street railways thereon.

The house adjourned at 12.50 to 11.15 Tuesday next.

Senate

The senate concurred with the house in passing a resolution, on the favorable report of the committee on claims, to pay the claim of the Marlin-Rockwell Manufacturing company of New York, amounting to $11,849.52, for over payment of taxes.

Senator Platt explained the bill incorporating the Mt. Sinai Hospital association of Hartford, and moved its passage. The bill was passed unanimously.

The committee on military affairs reported unfavorably on the bill to compel sheriffs and constables to serve warrants, as provided in section 43 of the law concerning the militia, under a penalty of a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500 for noncompliance. Senator Rudd said the bill would be taken care of in the general bill relating to the military. The bill was rejected.

The committee on appropriations reported favorably on a substitute bill, making appropriations for Long Lane farm in Middletown as follows: for repairing the power house $8,000; laundry equipment $2,000; furniture, $2,000; repairs to barn and equipment $4,000; repairs to greenhouse $1,000; Calendar.

SUGAR FEATURED MARKET.

New York, April 19.—The rising tendency of prices was checked shortly after the opening of today's stock market by the announcement of governmental proceedings to prevent speculation in raw sugar. Sugar stocks, which had advanced 1 to 1 5-8 points during the first hour, dropped one to three points when the government's action became known but they rallied slightly before the close.

Prices in the general list yielded in sympathy and there was a marked reduction in the volume of trading. Prices pursued an uneven course during the rest of the session with bullish demonstrations in the coppers. American Can and California Petroleum counteracted by heavy offerings of some of the other oils. Investment rails and a few specialties.

Revival of speculative interest in the copper group was founded on reports of an increased foreign demand for the red metal, particularly from Germany, and the activity of the copper shares on the London stock exchange. Utah led the advance with a gain of 1 5-8 and American Smelting, Chino and Kennecott each closed about a point higher.

Stewart Warner Speedometer, which has been heavily bought lately on speculativre expectation of an increase in the dividend, broke nearly four points to 118 and then rallied to 119 1-2. Commercial solvents A broke 10 1-2 points on a small turnover.

Profit taking in some of the high grade railroad shares halted the advance in that group. Canadian Pacific dropped to 156 1-2 and then rallied to 157 1-4, where it was off two points on the day. Losses of one to two points also were recorded by Delaware & Hudson, "Katy" Preferred, Peoria & Eastern, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

Kresge jumped 15 1-2 points on a turnover of 200 shares. Transue & Williams Steel was active for the first time in several months on reports of large current earnings, closing five points higher at 39. Recent strength of corn products, which closed 1 1-4 higher at 129 1-4, was attributed in part to the higher sugar prices which are expected to lead to a large use of the sugar substitutes manufactured by this company.

Call money opened at 5 per cent but softened to 4 1-3 during the afternoon. The time money market was quiet with brokers bidding 5 1-4 and bankers holding out for 5 1-2 per cent. for all dates on both classes of collateral. A few short time loans were arranged at the lower figure.

Foreign exchanges held fairly steady around yesterday's closing prices. Demand sterling rose nearly a cent to $4.66 in the early trading but receded to $4.65 5-8 where it was up 1-4 of a cent on the day. French francs were quoted around 6.65 and German marks rallied slightly to .0035 1-2 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, April 19.—Bond prices continued firm with irregular advances in today's dealings on the New York stock exchange. Sugar company liens, influenced by the flurry in stocks as a result of the government's action in seeking to stop speculation in sugar, were mixed, Punta Alegre Sugar 7s closing 2 points off, while Cuba Cane 8s were up a point.

U. S. government bonds were steady in quiet trading. Foreign bonds were somewhat improved. French issues leading the moderate advances.

Railroad mortgages continued in fair demand but the price changes, for the most part, were small. Frisco income 6s advanced 1 3-8 and St. Louis Iron Mountain & Southern 4s, River and Gulf Division, were up 1. Copper company liens were active, Cerro De Pasco 8s, up 3 points, leading in this group. Armour & Company 4 1-2s were up 1.

Total sales (par value) were $10,441,000.

There were reports that there is soon to be a public offering of $15,000,000 Willys-Overland long term bonds to refund about $10,000,000 notes maturing December 1, 1923.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, April 19.—With estimates current that the domestic winter crop of wheat this year would be 46,000,000 bushels less than was harvested in 1922 and that Nebraska prospects were for only one-third to half a crop, the wheat market today developed fresh strength. Prices closed firm, 3-8 to 1 1-4 net higher with May 125 7-8 to 126 and July 124 1-4 to 124 3-8. Corn gained 1-2 @5-8 to 1c and oats 1-8@1-4 to 3-8. In provisions the outcome was 12 to 22c decline.

Highest prices of the day in the wheat market were attained after reports were out indicating that abandonment of winter wheat plantings this season would total 6,982,000 acres, and would be more than five per cent in excess of a ten-year average, including the heavy abandonment of 31 per cent in 1917. Besides word of high winds and dust storms were received from parts of Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. Predictions of reduced acreage of spring wheat, especially in South Dakota, attracted considerable notice too, although better weather northwest than has prevailed of late counted as something of an offset.

Active buying for eastern account was a feature in the wheat market as the day drew to an end. In this connection, it was noted that 700,000 bushels were announced as having been taken for shipment to Europe, and that the Liverpool market today had shown unexpected strength owing apparently to a forecast of decreased shipments from Argentina. On the other hand, primary receipts in the United States continued to surpass in volume the corresponding totals last week and a year ago.

Corn and oats rose with wheat. Furthermore, prospects were for continued scantiness of corn receipts here.

Provisions reflected a downturn in lard prices at Liverpool.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

THE NAUGHTY BLACKBIRD.

While pretty little Lady Love
Was hanging out the clothes,
A very naughty blackbird,
Flew down and pinched her nose.

But he didn't pinch it very hard for he was really a very nice sort of a bird. You see, he'd been reading the day before all about the "Four and Twenty Blackbirds" in "Mother Goose," and on seeing Little Lady Love out in her back yard, he thought he'd copy that naughty blackbird in "Mother Goose."

"Goodness, gracious meebus," exclaimed Uncle Lucky. "I'm going to telephone Mrs. Blackbird this very minute and tell her what her son has done, and hopping into the house, he picked up the telephone.

"Give me Forest, 1, 2, 3
Mr. Blackbird, Tall Pine Tree."

"Who is it?" asked a voice, all of a sudden, just like that.

"This is Mr. Lucky Lefthindfoot talking," answered the old gentleman rabbit solemnly, "Is this Mr. Blackbird?".

"Yes," answered the voice.

Then Uncle Lucky told him what his naughty crow boy had done.

"Bless my tail feathers!" exclaimed Mr. Black Bird, "where did he learn such tricks? I'll put him to bed on bread and water for a week," and he slammed the receiver down and hopped out on a branch to wait for young Blackie Crow's return, and, while he is waiting for him, I'll tell you what was going on at the Old Bramble Patch.

She hoffed into the Luckymobile.

"That's the first time a black bird ever pinched my nose," cried pretty Lady Love, sitting down in the rocking chair in her nice clean kitchen. "I declare my eyes are all watery."

Pretty soon she got up to make herself a cup of turnip tea.

By the time Little Jack Rabbit had finished polishing the front doorknob, he came in to feed the canary.

"Oh, thank you, little bunny boy,
You're very kind, I think.
You never have forgotten yet
To give me feed and drink," she sang.

"Let's take your mother down to the Three-in-One-Cent Store and buy her a new dress," said dear kind Uncle Lucky.

So, as soon as the dear lady rabbit had on her bonnet with the purple flower on it, she hopped into the Luckymobile and away they went to Rabbiville, U. S. A. And by and by, not so very far, they came to the Three-in-One-Cent Store.

"Here we are," exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit. "Now we'll get a velvet gown for the sweetest lady bunny in town!" which so pleased Lady Love that she blushed.

"Why, mother!" said Little Jack Rabbit, "your cheeks are just as lovely as those of that lovely actress who played little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" last winter.

And in the next story, you shall hear what happened after that.

U. S. FINISHING CO. HAD GOOD YEAR, OUTLOOK FOR 1923 IS FAVORABLE

The year for the United States Finishing Co. closed with more goods on order than the company has had since 1920, it was reported at the annual meeting of the stockholders which was held here at two o'clock Thursday afternoon in the board room at the Norwich Saving society. Treasurer Andrew C. Imbrie presided in the absence of President Henry B. Thompson, which is abroad at present.

Four regular quarterly dividends, totalling 7 per cent. have been paid on the preferred stock and a total of 7 1-2 per cent. on the common stock. A 32 1-2 per cent. stock dividend on the common stock was voted in December, 1922. The outlook for the year is favorable, according to the report made by Mr. Imbrie on behalf of the directors, covering the business of the company to Dec. 31, 1922.

Report on Business

The report by Mr. Imbrie was in parts as follows:

"We began our fiscal year, 1922, with a fair supply of orders at all plants, in marked contrast to the same periods of 1920 and 1921. The strike which began in January, 1922, did not affect our Sterling plant in any degree and but slightly affected the Norwich plant or the Queen Dyeing company. The effect upon Pawtucket and Silver Spring plants was to delay many of our orders which resulted in a restriction of business at those two plants for some months. I am glad to report that we have worked out of conditions incident to the strike and that the quality of our work—absolutely vital—is fully up to our best past standards. We closed our year with more goods on order than we have had since 1920, and the outlook for the coming year is favorable. Our printing business, which has on the whole has been subnormal for the past two years, indicates a revival, particularly in dress fabrics.

"As usual we have given close supervision to the physical condition of our plants, and that condition has been well maintained. Our additions to plants were in excess of past years, but were rendered necessary by the completion of the Norwich power plant, and by the addition of new machinery at the other plants required to take care of new types of finishing that were offered to us. During the coming year we have arranged to build certain tenements at our Sterling branch. This is unavoidable because of the demand for housing in that village. Furthermore, we hope soon to begin the improvements on the Norwich bleach-house. The first work to be done will be the building of the store-house, which will probably start early in the summer.

"Two years of organized effort to improve safety conditions have brought encouraging results despite the difficulties inseparable from the employment of new help following the strike. During the year the several plant safety committees made 1488 specific recommendations to reduce the accident hazard, of which 1117 were completed by December 31st. Our safety expenditures for the year 1922 at all branches, including Queen Dyeing company, were $10,489. The proportion of time lost through accidents has been substantially reduced.

"During the year we have established at Sterling a modern first aid station, with a trained nurse in charge, thus completing our program begun in 1920 of having at each of our five plants adequate means of dealing promptly with cases of illness or accident. Calls for treatment or medical advice aggregated about 13,000 during the year, as compared with about 8,000 in 1921.

"In December, 1922, policies were carried at the company's expense in the Equitable Life Assurance society on the lives of 1705 employes for the total sum of $1,344,100. This represents 60 per cent of the employes, the remainder not having served the necessary year's probation.

"In July, 1922, assistance was given to the establishment by the employes at Silver Spring of a Mutual Benefit Association, which it is hoped may serve as an example to be followed at our other plants. The chief objects of the association, as set forth in its by-laws are, (1), to encourage a spirit of comradeship among the members; and (2), to provide its members with a certain income when sick or disabled. In December, 1922, the association included in its membership 486 of the Silver Spring employees, or about two-thirds of the number employed at that plant.

"During the year 1922 four regular quarter dividends of 1 3-4 per cent. each on the preferred stock were declared; and two quarterly dividends of 1 3-4 per cent. and two of two per cent. on the common stock were declared. In addition, on December 1, 1922, the directors declared a stock dividend of 33 1-3 on the common stock as of December 30, 1922, conditional upon a proportionate increase in the common stock. This increase was voted by the stockholders at a special meeting held at Norwich, Conn., December 28, 1922."

Directors Elected

The following directors were elected to serve for the ensuing year:

James G. Clark, vice president the United States Finishing company, New York; Edward A. Greene, president Citizens' Title Insurance & Mortgage company, Passaic, N. J.; John P. GAVE FAREWELL TO BOZRAH BAPTIST PASTOR

A pleasant social event was that when several neighbors and friends gathered Wednesday evening at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton R. Rogers on Wauwecus Hill in honor of Rev. J. S. Collins the retiring pastor of the First Baptist church of Bozrah who with his family is soon to leave for another field. The evening was spent in music, instrumental and vocal with many selections on the phonograph. Little Dorothy Turnbull pleased with several numbers on the accordion, which were rendered with grace and ability. There were also recitations of a humorous nature by Rev. Mr. Collins, James Turnbull and Charles Rathbone. Vocal solos by James Turnbull in the scotch dialect and sacred solos by F. R. Rose were much enjoyed. During the evening cake and coffee were served by the hostess. Those present were Rev. P. S. Collins and Mrs. Collins, Mrs. H. L. Young and Miss Hannah Witter and Charles L. Rathbone of Leffingwell, Mr. and Mrs. James Turnbull and daughter Dorothy and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Rose.

M'COOK OFFERS LAND AT SEASIDE SANATORIUM

An offer to give to the state without cost a strip of land for the Seaside sanatorium at Crescent Beach, Niantic, has been transmitted to Governor Templeton by a letter from Anson T. McCook, executive secretary. The land is adjacent to the sanatorium property and is a piece, 60 by 200 feet, from the so-called McCook point. In making the offer, Captain McCook stipulates that its acceptance will be with the agreement on the part of the state to relieve the McCook family from any future threats of taking their property by condemnation proceedings for the benefit of the Seaside.

A copy of the letter has been sent to the humane institutions committee, which has before it a bill to condemn the entire McCook property for use of the sanatorium, to the appropriations committee and to the tuberculosis commission.

The proposition submitted by Captain McCook is not acceptable to the committee on humane institutions, it was stated by a member of the committee on humane institutions, side Sanatorium wanted the beach more than anything else, and this was not included in the McCook offer. He also declared that he would not be a party to any piece of legislation which would tie the hands of the state in the furture, as he believed this one proposed to do.

Dr. Stephen J. Maher of New Haven, chairman of the tuberculosis commission, said Wednesday night that the commission had not yet considered the proposition and no statement could be made at this time. He said that the commission had expected to secure some beach and said that the strip of land, fifty feet wide, which the commission had asked, it was expected, would extend from the beach inland. As he understood the proposal, the land offered to the commission did not come within several feet of the beach.

NORWICH MARKET GROWERS RECEIVE EXPERT ADVICE

There was a good number of local men present at the meeting of the Norwich Market Growers' association Wednesday night in the county farm bureau rooms. Mr. Wilkinson of Storrs gave an illustrated lecture on markets and marketing including grades and grading, packs, packing and packages.

Profitable marketing of green stuff is a greater problem than producing it and as competition from the south and west becomes keener, the necessity for establishing legal grades and standard packages is realized.

The fruit and vegetable men are determined this season to rid the market of speculators who bring in low grade produce to dispose of at any price.

May 9th growers will be told and shown how to recognize and combat the many insects and diseases of vegetables.

This is a very backward year, as in previous years early produce such as rhubarb, asparagus, dandelions, etc. have been brought into the market at this date in recent years but none of these are appearing so far this year.

THINKS CLAIRVOYANT COULD HELP FIND TIBBITTS

An earnest faced boy who said he lived at Thamesville appeared at police headquarters Thursday afternoon with a suggestion to help in locating the missing William Tibbitts, the Fitchville farmer.

He told Chief Linton that his mother knew of a clairvoyant in Waterford who was very "good at that," and she thought if the police would look up this person they would certainly find out something about Tibbitts. His mother, he said, had read of a case in Springfield where a boy had been killed by being hit with a beanpole, and nobody knew who had done it. The people there had tried a clairvoyant, who told them who hit the boy with the beanpole, he said, and he felt sure the Waterford clairvoyant would help in the Tibbitts case.

The Thamesville boy was thanked for the suggestion and he left headquarters with a pleased smile.

Signed Anti-Mosquito Bill.

Governor Templeton has signed the anti-mosquito bill which was introduced by Senator John Brooks of Torrington and which passed the senate and house unanimously. Supporters of the bill pointed out the acute mosquito situation in the state, the fact that work in draining the Connecticut affected land areas has been almost at a standstill for several years, and that the bill simply changes slightly existing laws, without in any sense affecting the general state policy in dealing with mosquitoes, but gives the state agricultural experiment station authority to act upon any situation which exists or may arise.

The appropriations committee of the general assembly has already recommended $12,000, the same amount that has been set aside by previous general assemblies for anti-mosquito work, and, as $5,000 remains available from last year's appropriation, about $17,000 is at hand for the 1923 work which will be started immediately, according to officials of the agricultural experiment station.

CITIZENS OF MUELHEIM TO REPEL UNEMPLOYED BANDS

Bands of the Unemployed Are Assembling on the Outskirts of the Town—Red Cross Representatives Report Nine or Ten Dead and 70 Wounded in Consequence of Three Days of Mob Rule—German Officials Assert That Most of Those Engaged in the Disorders Are Communists.

Muelheim, April 20 (By the A. P.)—The citizens of Muelheim and its vicinity tonight are organizing for self-protection against the unemployed bands which were dispersed this morning from the center of the town and now are assembling in the outskirts.

Armed with axehandles and other improvised weapons, the people of Muelheim are going about the streets ready to repel any further invasion of the town by the malcontents.

The Red Cross society's representatives say that nine or ten persons are dead and seventy wounded in consequence of the three days of mob rule; but this count is not an accurate one, inasmuch as those who had besieged the Rathaus and other parts of the town carried away some of their dead and injured. Most of those among the unemployed who were injured were beaten over the head with clubs. Ten of the defenders of the Rathaus received bullet wounds.

In the suburbs, where the bands driven out of the town are gathering, it is reported that they are holding up pedestrians and engaging in plundering. Some of the men entered a restaurant owned by a man named Rosenthal and ordered meals and drinks. When the bill was presented a fight was started and Rosenthal was killed and his son shot four times.

German officials assert that most of those engaged in the disorders are communists. About thirty of the leaders have been arrested, but some of them are still at large. The officials of both Muelheim and places in this vicinity assert that they intend to take measures tomorrow which will entirely end the communist movement.

RUHR DEBATED IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS

London, April 20 (By the A. P.)—The debate on the Ruhr in the house of lords tonight, with the secretary for foreign affairs as the principal speaker, proved that all the recent developments have produced no deviation from the lines of policy already repeatedly stated by Premier Bonar Law.

Confessing that the world seldom had been confronted with a more difficult problem, the foreign secretary, Marquis Curzon, maintained firmly that the Anglo-French entente was the only safeguard of European well being. He put aside the idea that the problem was one for the league of nations, insisting it was one for settlement between the two proud, powerful peoples now facing each other in anger—each equally convinced of the rectitude of its own cause.

Marquis Curzo appealed to Germany to take the first step, expressing the belief that France would be willing to respond with a sincere overture.

The foreign secretary declared his government was ready at all times to discuss any plans or proposals concerning reparations, which was a matter for international treatment—or security.

But any such plans could not be carried out at the cost of dismemberment of Germany or of opening a new running sore in the heart of Europe. Moreover, if guarantees were given, the government would prefer to see guarantees of a reciprocal government.

Incidentally, Lord Curzon showed a disposition to minimize the adverse effects of French action on British trade. No doubt, he said, there had been harrassing incumbrances, but he was surprised to learn from board of trade statistics that British trade with Germany, including the occupied regions, had been considerably greater than at the corresponding period last year.

Dwelling on the grave anxiety caused by the renewed slump in the mark, the foreign secretary was regretful that Germany had done nothing beyond echoing the suggestion of American Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, in his address at New Haven, for an international committee of experts.

He pointed out this suggestion had not been followed up by the United States and had been turned down by France. He thought, however, that Germany had shown wisdom in abandoning the impossible position that complete evacuation of German territory must precede negotiations.

JAMES LARKIN MAY BE DEPORTED TODAY

New York, April 28.—James Larkin, Irish leader, who was arrested yesterday on a deportation warrant, shortly after he had been released on pardon from Sing Sing prison, where he was serving a five-year term for criminal anarchy, probably will be deported on one of six steamers schedulied to sail tomorrow.

Immigration Commissioner Todd withheld the name of the ship that would take Larkin away in order to prevent a possible demonstration at the pier by Larkin's followers.

Jeremiah A. O'Leary, counsel for Larkin, in a telegram to Secretary of Labor Davis requested that Larkin be permitted to sail tomorrow on the steamer President Roosevelt of the United States line. Attorney O'Leary stated that he had been informed by Deputy Commissioner of Immigration Landis that Larkin would be deported on the steamer Celtic. He asked that the government allow Larkin to pay his own fare and expenses on the American steamer rather than be deported on a British steamer at the government's expense.

GOOD WILL DELEGATES HAVE SAILED FOR FRANCE

New York, April 20.—A series of demonstrations along the waterfront—tooting whistles, cheering crowds and breaking out of ship buntings—accompanied the steamer France down the bay today, as she sailed with 61 women members of the good will delegation which Miss Anne Morgan's committee for devastated France will conduct through the battle zones of the World war.

Today's group was the first of several, recruited in all parts of the United States, which will embark for France this summer. It included two gold star mothers: Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Chambers of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Buswell of Boston.

CLOTHING WORKERS TO RECEIVE PEAK WAGES

Rochester, N. Y., April 20.—Announcement was made today of wage increases restoring the peak wage scales to about 3,000 clothing workers in the shops of Michaels, Stern & Co. and the Keller-Heumann-Thompson company, Inc., the largest independent clothing manufacturers of the city. This increase will become effective May 3 and will have no effect on the Fall 1923 prices recently announced by the two firms.

By "peak wage scales" are meant wage scales that prevailed during war time and which were decreased about ten per cent. in the period of readjustment.

NEW HAVEN SHOEMAKER GETS 18 MONTHS FOR ARSON

New Haven, April 20.—Luigi Grasiano, proprietor of a shoe repairing shop here, was sentenced to from 18 months to three years in state's prison by Judge James H. Webb in the superior court today on a charge of arson. He was found guilty of attempting to set fire to his shop after soaking his stock with kerosene.

FLOODS IN CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN MANITOBA

Winnipeg, April 20.—The snow-laden waters of the Assiniboine and Red rivers and their tributaries today spread over Central and Southern Manitobe, driving hundreds of families from their homes, marooning others in isolated towns and villages, and inundatin gvast areas of [illegible] land in low-lying districts.

MRS. ANTHONY WAYNE COOK PRESIDENT-GENERAL D. A. R.

Washington, April 20.—Election of Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook of Cooksburg, Pa., as president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution was announced at today's session of the society's annual congress. Tabulation of the ballots cast yesterday by delegates showed she had received 940 votes to 779 recorded for Mrs. G. Wallace W. Hanger of Washington, her only opponent.

Announcement of the result, which will place Mrs. Cook at the head of the organization for the next three years, as a successor to Mrs. George Maynard Minor of Connecticut, swept away the bitterness that marked the biennial election campaign. Mrs. Hanger received an ovation when she thanked her supporters and urged them to support the new administration. Mrs. Cook, a moment later, was accorded a similar ovation when she expressed her gratitude for the election. She and other executive officers, whose election also was announced, will be inaugurated at the concluding session of the congress tomorrow.

A number of resolutions embodying principles of policy for the new administration were adopted today. The delegates spent the afternoon on a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon, and at tonight's session were addressed by General Pershing and Baron De Cartier, the Belgian ambassador.

RAILROAD EMPLOYES TO ASK WARTIME WAGES

Chicago, April 2.0—Negotiations on all roads for an increase in wages to the level in force prior to July 1, 1921, will be opened by general chairmen of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers and Station Employes, it was decided at a meeting here today of representative general chairmen who left after a two-day conference to open negotiations with their respective road officials.

The conference here was the last of four held in various sections of the country. General chairmen from eastern roads met in Buffalo on April 10 and voted for higher wages and the same action was taken at a meeting of expressmen in Cincinnati on April 14 and at a meeting of southern general chairmen in Atlanta, April 15.

The increase which the clerks now want, if granted by the roads, will wipe out a cut by the United States railroad labor board on July 1, 1921.

WOMAN RESEMBES ESCAPED MURDERESS

Sacramento, Calif., April 20.—A woman closely resembling Mrs. Clara Phillips, convicted hammer murderess, who escaped from the Los Angeles county jail, is a guest at the Tegucigalpa hotel, Honduras, according to a telegram received here today by Governor Fred Richardson from the state department at Washington.

The telegram was as follows:

"American legation, Tegucigalpa, Honduras, telegraphs Clara Phillips reported to be at Hotel Tegucigalpa under name of Mrs. Robert Young, accompanied by couple registered as Mr. and Mrs. Carson.

"If you desire this department to request fugitive's provisional arrest and detention with view to extradition, please so state and add that she had been convicted of murder in California."

The governor's office immediately notified the Los Angeles county sheriff of the receipt of the telegram and asked that the governor be formally notified of Mrs. Phillips' conviction if the detention of the suspect in Honduras was desired.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Beaten Explaining Living Church.

London, April 20.—When the Archimandrite Sergius of Poltava, Russia, attempted to explain the so-called "living church" to his congregation, it nearly beat him to death and then tried to lynch him, the militia saving him, says a despatch to The Times from Riga, quoting as its authority the Moscow Pravda.

Communist Congress in Moscow.

Moscow, April 20 By the A. P.)—In the course of the debate in the communist congress prior to the adoption of the resolution upholding the dictatorship and other demands of the central committee, Leonid Krassin, commissar of foreign trade and commerce, endeavored to convince the congress of the necessity for better efforts on the part of Russia to secure a reapproachment with and de jure recognition by countries abroad. He also advised less interference by the communist party in economic affairs.

Gov. Templeton Says Proposal Was Distorted

Hartford, Conn., April 20.—Governor Templeton tonight asked "The Courant" to deny a published report that he had attacked the legislature in a speech before the Civilian club this noon. He declared that statements which he made in support of his plan for a reorganization of the state highway department and his proposal for the establishments of a state purchasing department were distorted.

"I did not say that 'members of the legislature would sacrifice anything else to get half a mile of roadway installed,' as represented in the "Hartford Times," " declared the governor. "To illustrate what the highway commissioner is up against under the present system, I merely stated what every one knows that a great many of the members come into Hartford with pet highway projects which to them are paramount in importance to almost anything else. It is up to the commissioner, under the present system, to turn down most of these pet projects.

"Commissioner Bennett became unpopular with the legislature because he had to refuse so many of the representatives with the result that, when he wanted his salary increased, there wasn't much chance of getting it through. If the commissioner had a board of directors behind him to make the decisions on all requests for highway construction, the commissioner would be spared this embarrassment and be free to follow his technical work unmolested. That's substantially what I said. I can't understand how it could have been so twisted in the newspaper reports."

With regard to a statement in the newspaper report representing the executive as having said that "legislators did not have the courage of their convictions, but were like so many ants at the capitol, following where they were led," the governor said:

"Nothing was said about following where they were led. I was appealing to the club members, as representatives of the people, to take an interest in state affairs and help their representatives at the capitol to keep in touch with public opinion. 'Come to the capitol even when you have not a particular mission,' I urged, adding that it was a relief to a governor to have a visitor who didn't start out by saying, 'I don't want a thing,' only to ask for some kind of an appointment or favor before leaving. I told them that, with citizens generally out of touch with public affairs as they are today, we at the capitol are like so many ants running around trying to find out what the people really want. The people should be interested enough to come forward and give advice freely and not have to be solicited for it by the representatives."

The governor said he had asked a prominent man who was present at the club luncheon to restate in brief what he (the governor) had said in his speech, and that this man's version checked with his own recollection. He said that no reporters were present, to his knowledge.

The executive called attention to the following statement in the newspaper report:

He declared with considerable emotion that never again would he accept political office, not even for the 'whole city of Washington,' and revealed the pressure brought to bear on him was tremendous, greater perhaps than is realized.

"That is an absolutely misleading statement," he declared. "All that I said in this connection was to point out that it was not because of any scheme of mine to build up a political organization for myself that I was so strong for the change in the highway department and the appointment of a purchasing agent, as I did not intend to run again. There is nothing new about that. I announced several times during the campaign that I would not seek a second term as governor. There is nothing else in the political line that I want. I let that be known before I took office. Any attempt to make it appear that my decision is due to dissatisfaction with my experience in the governor's office is false.

"I have no quarrel with the legislature. The only members of it that I criticise are those who go out and vote one way and then come in and tell me that they would like to have voted the other way, but couldn't do it."

He said he told the club that if interested people had taken the trouble to impress on the appropriations committee the absolute need for a gymnasium for the Holcomb street building of the Connecticut Institute for the Blind, the request for a $50,000 appropriation for the purpose would not have been rejected by the committee."

SCREEN ACTRESS FILES PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY

New York, April 20.—The predicaton of Juanita Hansen, screen actress, when she was arrested last January on a charge of possessing narcotics that her "career would be ruined by this frame-up," has come true. She filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today listing liabilities of $11,057 and saying she had no assets.

Miss Hansen asserted at the time of her arrest that she had been cured of the drug habit, which she contracted at Hollywood, California. A magistrate dismissed the charge of possessing narcotics, holding there was no evidence to support it.

The New York Central railroad handled the greatest traffic in its history in March and during the first quarter of the year, President Smith announced.

Young Morse Claims Judge is Biased

Meanwhile a Jury is Being Selected—200 Witnesses Are to be Summoned for Next Week.

Washington, April 20.—Selection of a jury for the trial of Charles W. Morse, his three sons and four others on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government on wartime ship contracts was incomplete at the adjournment late today of the District of Columbia supreme court. Twelve men were in the box, but the government had exercised only two and the defense only one on their respective ten challenges. Another effort to complete the jury will be made tomorrow but it seems likely that the twelve men who are to try the case would not be chosen before Monday or Tuesday.

At the outset today, counsel for Harry F. Morse filed an adavit of prejudice against Justice Stafford and asked that another justice be assigned to the case. Justice Stafford overruled the motion and directed that the proceedings go forward.

Counsel for the government announced the names of 200 witnesses who are to be summoned for next week. The list includes Guy D. Goff, former assistant attorney general; Edward N. Hurley of Chicago and John Barton Payne of Washington, both former chairmen of the shipping board; Charles M. Schwab, one time general manager of the Emergency Fleet corporation, and Rear Admirals W. L. Catts and H. H. Russell.

Harry F. Morse in his adavit alleged that Justice Stafford had a personal bias and prejudice against him in favor of the government. The refusal of the request of young Morse for a separate trial because of illness, the manner in which the justice cross-examined him yesterday while he was testifying as to his illness, and the refusal of the court to permit George W. Ray to serve as bondsman for Morse were set forth as some of the reasons why some other justice should hear the case.

PRESIDENT HARDING TO EXPLAIN WORLD COURT

Washington, April 20.—Convinced that lack of information is responsible for much of the opposition to the administration plan for American membership in the permanent court of international justice, President Harding is understood to have decided to explain the proposal carefully and in detail at the first favorable opportunity.

The explanation contemplated by the chief executive is expected to take the form of a letter or an address, more probably the latter. In any event it is considered unlikely that the presidential pronouncement will be delayed until the proposed yestern speaking trip to start the middle of June.

Some of the president's advisers are of the opinion that it should be made in the near future, and this opinion became more decided after Representative Will R. Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the republican congressional committee, during a call at the White House today asserted that the world court proposition had aroused more opposition among republicans in the middlewest than the league of nations.

Washington, April 20.—Secretary Weeks has tendered his resignation as a member of the republican national committee from Massachusetts.

In his letter of resignation, addressed to Frank H. Foss, chairman of the republican state committee, in Boston, Mr. Weeks said it was impossible for him to devote the time and attention to the work which its importance demanded. The letter follows:

CAUSES GIVEN FOR THE CUBAN SUGAR SHORTAGE

New York, April 20.—The Cuban sugar shortage is due to a dry spell in the West Indies and to a demunition in the acreage of cane, Col. Sosthenes Behn, plantation owner and president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation, said today as he sailed for Europe on the France.

"There is a real shortage of sugar, both in Porto Rico and Cuba," he said. "That is at the bottom of the present high prices." He declined to discuss the question of gambling raised in the government's suit to suspend fictitious trading on exchanges.

Colonel Behn is head of the Havana Telephone company.

Bluefield, W. Va., April 20.—More than a thousand persons were made homeless and property valued at a million dollars destroyed late today by a fire which completely wiped out the town of Burke, McDowell county, 25 miles west of Bluefield.

The fire was checked after it had spread to the adjoining village of Keystone and had destroyed three buildings there. More than 100 buildings in Burke were burned, including 25 cottages belonging to the Houston Coal and Coke Company. Two small structures in the entire village alone escaped damage.

The town was without fire protection and most of the buildings were of wooden construction. The fire, starting in a double frame dwelling, spread rapidly from house to house. The tracks of the Norfolk and Western railroad divide the two mining towns.

FEDERAL ACTION AGAINST THE RUM FLEET PROMISED

Fleet Operating Off New York-New Jersey Coast the Main Topic of Discussion at Cabinet Meeting—Confidence Was Expressed That Some Method of Dealing With the Situation Could be Found.

Washington, April 20.—Federal action against the rum running fleet operating off the New York-New Jersey coast was promised today at the White House, where it was stated that this question was the main topic at today's cabinet meeting.

Details of the government's plans were withheld to avoid, officials said, a premature announcement. It was stated on high authority, however, that the government did not intend to remain inactive against the liquor smuggling fleet if there were any means to prevent it. Confidence was expressed that some method of effectively dealing with the situation could be found.

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes has advocated the use of light naval vessels against the rum runners, but this plan so far has met with opposition from Secretary Denby of the navy department on the ground that prevention of liquor smuggling was not a proper naval duty.

FATE OF MAROONED PARTY IS UNKNOWN

Northport, Mich., April 20.—(By The A. P.)—The fate of the woman and nine men marooned on South Fox island, 18 miles off shore in Lake Michigan from Northport, was still unknown here tonight.

Of the five airplanes which speeded to the rescue of the Wood cutters, two were permanently disabled and the other apparently lost.

At 9 p. m. no word had been received from three planes from Chicago which set out for the island earlier in the day. Fear was expressed that they had been disabled in landing on the island, or that they may have dropped into the lake. It was pointed out, however, that they might have started back to Chicago by some other route than Northport.

Wilson and Company, Chicago packers, which stocked with provisions the plane piloted by John Miller, at 8.30 o'clock tonight telephoned newspapermen here that no word had been received at Chicago fromthe flier.

Miller's plane, carrying another pilot, a newspaper man and a photographer, landed here at 10 a. m. and set out for the island soon afterwards.

At 4 p. m. two more planes from Chicago, flying together passed over Northport without stopping, headed for the island.

One government mail plane was piloted by E. Hamilton Lee, who was accompanied by a newspaper man and the other by Lieutenant H. E. Woodbridge of the army, who also carried a newspaper representative.

Lieutenant Russell Meredith of Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, Mich., whose plane came to grief here this morning in an attempt to land for supplies, announced tonight that he would ask his commanding officer to send another plane to hunt for the missing airmen.

Lieutenant Meredith was the second army flier from Selfridge Feld to attempt the rescue. His De Haviland bomber was stripped of its propeller and landing gear as it landed on the shore here at 11 a. m. The pilot and a Detroit newspaperman who accompanied him were unhurt.

Lieut. E. C. Whitehead's Jenny army airplane from Selfridge Field, which crashed through the ice in Traverse Bay yesterday was sinking deeper into the water tonight. A crew of men spent the afternoon chopping the ice in an effort to extricate the plane, but were halted by darkness.

Northport, a quite little village ordinarily, was seething with excitement today. School children refused to attend their classes and the teachers were forced to close the schools, while the business of the town was virtually at a standstill.

BAG CONTAINED LIBERTY BONDS WORTH $100,000

New York, April 20.—The discovery of an old leather bag containing $100,000 worth of Liberty bonds landed George F. Mahnken in Tombs prison today.

Mahnken was a clerk at the Irving National bank. One day last October, according to his alleged confession, he wrapped a bundle of Liberty bonds in an old newspaper, tucked them under his arm, and left the bank.

The next morning he was at his usual place at the bond counter, and every morning until today, when he was arrested.

There were a few things he wanted, police said Mahnken told them. He subtracted from the bundle enough bonds to buy a radio outfit, and to lend his friends a few dollars. The rest, according to the alleged confession, he packed in the old bag, and deposited with a relative.

Detectives found the bag and the bonds, almost intact, at the home of the relative, who said he hadn't known what the bag contained. It had been "knocked around the place for months."

Bridgetown, N. MEN LISTED AS DEAD ARE REPORTED ALIVE

New York, April 20.—One or two members of the crew of the booting schooner John Dwight, which sank off Vineyard Haven, Mass., recently who listed as dead, were reported in Newport, R. I., to be alive and able to tell the true story of the vessel's end, according to the New York World.

A Newport mariner, a close friend of Captain Malcolm J. Carmichael of Jersey City, told a correspondent of the World he had heard Captain Carmichael was safe in Havana. Carmichael was reported a part owner of the rum ship. His body was accounted for and his wife and children believed him dead.

Newport mariners, the newspaper says, discredit the theory of violence, though they admit the John Dwight carried a large sum of money from that port.

The Massachusetts police were said to be seeking to support their theory that the cutter which capsized on her maiden voyage as a carrier of Canadian ale, was attacked by pirates who killed the crew and scuttled her.

Another of the eight bodies recovered was buried here, it was learned. Mrs. James P. Nelson, of Brooklyn, saw her husband's body before it was buried in Brooklyn Monday. She said it bore none of the marks of mutilations that were found on the body of James A. Craven of Lyndhurst, N. J., said by the World to be a brother of Thomas J. Craven of New York who is held in $21,000 bail on charges of offering alcohol for sale.

MURPHY UNMOVED WHILE LISTENING TO ACCUSER

New York, April 20.—Charles F. Murphy, tacitarn leader of Tammany, and Arthur J. Baldwin, his personal attorney, sat unmoved in supreme court for four hours today while Max Steuer berated them, calling them respectively "political czar" and "Max Friday," in his closing testimony for the defense in Mr. Murphy's suit to recover $175,000 invested in Louis N. Hartog's wartime Dextro-Maltine business.

Mr. Steuer openly accused Baldwin of committing perjury during his testimony for Mr. Murphy, believed he was armed with an immunity that cannot be broken down."

Ridiculing Murphy's contention that he had withdrawn from Hartog's business in 1918 because he found Hartog was "profiteering in food," he charged Murphy with using his political power to ruin Hartog. The latter, he declared, had been unable to obtain a pound of glucose, the raw material used in the manufacture of his product, since Murphy quit the combination.

"They haven't any influence," he said, referring to Murphy's testimony that he was unable to exercise political pressure in a busines way, "but the glucose stopped coming."

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF BISHOP TUTTLE

St. Louis, April 20.—Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle of the Episcopal church was buried tonight in Belle Fontaine cemetery, beside the graves of Mrs. Tuttle, a son, and a grandson. Before the burial thousands of persons streamed past his bier as has body lay in state in Christ church cathedral, the seat of his activity for the last 35 of the 56 years of his Episcopacy. Since 1903 he had been presiding bishop of the church in the United States.

There was no eulogy, and the simple funeral office or the church was adhered to strictly in compliance with the aged churchman's wishes.

Men and women representing all conditions and creeds, filed past his bier, in a great demonstration of affection and reverence. Floral offerings came from various parts of the country.

The funeral service was impressive because of its simplicity. The Right Rev. Body Vincent of southern Ohio read the solemn message of the resurrection and the life, and at the cemetery Bishop Frederick Foote Johnson, successor to Bishop Tuttle as head of the Missouri diocese, read the committal service.

Picks and shovels will be the instruments used by the Men's club of the South Coventry Methodist church, in the near future in repairing the stretch of road in the town of Mansfield between Perkins' corners and the two bridges over the Central Vermont railroad tracks and the Willimantic river. This action was voted upon at a meeting of the club at the home of the president, Ernest H. Woodward. For many years the piece of road in question has been a sandy pit deeply rutted and almost impossible to travel over. Some six years ago the state highway department gave a promise to macadamize the stretch and since that time it has forgotten its promise or else it is likely to as the work has not yet been started. The club members have received permission to do the work and on Saturday afternoon they will turn out with their tools and teams. They will have the assistance of all those interested. The club has also voted to remember another community Christmas basket this year and the arrangements will be made later.

Councilman Thomas H. Morrison and Charles H. Ledward who were appointed a committee to investigate the garbage situation in Westerly are wondering whether there will be enough people interested in the matter of taking away the garbage from their house to pay a small amount for such work each week. If they receive enough replies to warrant going ahead with the project a licensed garbage collector will be instituted and have permission from the town council to collect garbage in the town twice each week. PITTSFIELD PLAYS RIVERVIEW TODAY AND NORWICH TEAM SUNDAY

With the exception of the game today with the Norwich State Hospital at the hospital diamond and the game Sunday at the Fairgrounds with Bill O'Leary's Norwich Baseball club, the spring practice of the Pittsfield Hillies ended yesterday. Manager Wilson put his boys through a short infield and hitting practice yesterday and started a game between the regulars and the ponies but the game was called in the early part owing to a wind storm that blew the sand about so that play was impossible.

The Hillies look like a very formidable team and under an old baseball genius like Art Wilson should make a fine showing in the Eastern circuit this season. Wilson's pitching staff, reinforced by the two hurlers secured from the Giants, Earl Webb and Haman, is as strong as any on the circuit. The infield with Anderson at second and Hal Leathers at short, Gus Gardella at third and Frankie Stapleton guarding the door to the infield, is one that will rank with the best. The outfield is strong with "Hank" Bosse in left, Joe Leary in center and Howie Baker in right. This is a hard-hitting combination that will hit close to the .300 mark. The catching staff with Harvey Russell, veteran leaguer, doing the brunt of the work during the early part of the season, Walt Campbell and Manager Wilson later in the season, the Hillies will have a good brainy department.

Manager Wilson will use his regular lineup in both today's game and the game Sunday. He has not yet picked the pitchers who will work in either game. The State Hospital has a good team this year and expects to maintain a first class ball club during the season. A new grandstand and bleachers are to be built this year and work has already started.

For Sunday's game Manager O'Leary will use the same team that was to have played here a week ago. Mickey Werre of the Buffalo team will do the pitching and Bill Bergen will do the backstop work.

This game will be the first game of the season for the local team and will open what is expected to be a good baseball season in Norwich.

LANDIS ADVOCATES BASEBALL DIAMONDS FO RTHE YOUNGSTE

Cleveland, Ohio, April 20—Organized baseball must be supplemented with plenty of diamonds where all boys can play the game, Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis declared here today in an address at a dinner given in his honor by the "Stick to the Finish Club" an organization pledge dto support the Cleveland Indians.

The high spot in the club's program was an affecting love scene between the high commissioner of baseball and Mme. Irene Pavloska, of the Chicago Opera company.

"Now if you fellows do what you say you are going to do—stick by the Cleveland Indians until the finish regardless of what happens—I will come back here and tender you a congratulatory dinner myself" Judge Landis said. He applauded the motives of the organization, and turning to Tris Speaker, manager and E. S. Barnard, president of the Indians, added:

"But what I want to be sure of is that there fellows will still be sticking by you on October 7"

Mme. Pavloska pleaded for just as much support for American opera and musical artists as is shown to American ball players. When she finished, Judge Landis put his arms around her, but was frustrated by the singer's hands when he attempted to implant a kiss.

When Judge Landis finished speaking, however, Mme. Pavloska met him half the distance of the speaker's table and after one long drawn out kiss, they stood for several minutes with their arms around each other in earnest conversation while the crowd cheered.

"A year from today I'm coming back her eand I want all of you and the darling madame over there to take lunch with me," the commissioner said.

He left for Chicago tonight.

INDIANS WIN THIRD GAME FROM WHITE SOX

Cleveland, April 20. — Cleveland made it three straight from Chicago today by a seventh inning rally of five runs, winning 8 to 5. Each team used four pitchers. Boone was credited with his second victory of the year, although only pitching two innings. Commissioner Landis was a guest of Mrs. James Dunn, owner, and President Barnard of the Indians. EASTERN CONN. LEAGUE IS CREATING INTEREST

When the moguls of the Eastern Conn. league get together next Tuesday night at the Ashland club in Jewett City, there will no doubt be a few new faces present, as several inquiries regarding the league have been received by the secretary, Hal Chase

If there are any more teams in this section who wish to send representatives to this meeting they should communicate with the secretary in order that a fair idea of the necessary arrangements for the meeting can be had.

The best information that can be given out at this time is that there will be an opening for two clubs. One application from a very desirable club for a league of this kind has already been received, but the meeting will decide who shall make up the circuit.

NINTH INNING RALLY TURNS TRICK ON RED SOX

New York, April 20.—A stirring ninth inning rally in which Ruth again took the hero's roll today, enabled the Yankees to make it three straight from Boston by a score of 4 to 3. Ruth came up in the 9th with the bases full, one out and New York needing one run for a tie.

Piercy pitched three straight balls and followed with two called strikes. Ruth then hit far over Center Fielder Collins' head, scoring Haines and Witt.

Ruth's hitting featured the game, as he hit a triple, a double and a single, scoring two of New York's runs and knocked in the other two.

Boston got off to a three-run lead, when Reichle, a recruit outfielder, hit a home run in his first time at bat with Burns on base.

PHILLIES WIN RAGGED GAME FROM DODGERS

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 20.—The Phillies won another hectic game from Brooklyn today, this time 8 to 7. The Dodgers used four pitchers and the visitors two, all six receiving ragged support.

Brooklyn overcame a three run lead by bunching a triple, a double and two singles off Weinert in the fifth, driving him out of the box. The Phillies got a two-run lead in the sixth, but the Dodgers tied the score again in the eighth. Walker scored the winning run in the ninth on his double, a scratch hit by Lee and Hungling's wild throw.

Cy Williams got a homer, a triple and two singles in five times at bat. Two Brooklyn pinch hitters delivered base hits.

Willard Confident

Chicago, April 20—Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight champion, who is matched to box Floyd Johnson 15 rounds in New York on May 12, passed through Chicago today on his way east to complete his training.

Willard expressed confidence that he could stop Johnson in short order and obtain a return match with Jack Dempsey in an attempt to regain his lost crown.

EIGHT HOME RUNS FEATURE GAME BETWEEN CHICAGO AND PIRATES

Chicago, April 20.—Eight home runs, one less than the world record of 29 years ago, were made in the final game between Chicago and Pittsburgh today, Chicago winning, 12 to 11, when George Hartnett, recruit catcher, slammed out his second homer and crossed the plate with the winning run in the ninth.

The Cubs made six of the homers, while the Pirates gathered two. The record for home runs by two clubs in a game was made by Cincinnati and Boston in 1894, when the Braves made five and the Reds four.

The Pirates used a trio of pitchers in an effort to stop the bombardment. Glazner, who started the game, was nicked for four homers, while Hamilton who gave way to Adams after Hartnett had cracked out his first homer, was touched for one. The veteran Babe Adams came in for his share of the bombardment in the ninth, Hartnett bagging the homer which gave the Cubs their third straight game.

In addition to Hartnett's brace of homers, Friberg poled two while Statz and Heathcote got one apiece. Grimm and Traynor were the home run hitters for the Pirates. In the ninth inning with the score tied, Kelleher lined to Russell and Hartnett followed with the final smash, driving the ball over the right field wall, one of the longest hits ever made in the Cubs' park. QUILL AND TANNER FIGHT FAST DRAW AT NEW LONDON

New London, April 20—Frankie Quill of Brockton, Mass., and Izzy Tanner of St. Paul fought a fast 12 round draw here tonight at the show staged by the New London Elks for the benefit of the Boy Scouts. Tracey Furgason of Wallingford won a technical knockout over Sailor Johnny Latzo of Bridgeport when the latter was unable to answer the bell for the ninth session of their scheduled 10-round go. In the preliminaries Steve Smith of Bridgeport won the decision over Willie Angelo of Stamford and Nick Petite of Bridgeport cut up Young Downey of Stamford so much that Referee Jack McAuliffe stopped the bout in the fourth round.

In the main go Frankie Quill with a stinging straight left jab that he kept in Tanner's face during the greater part of the fight earned him honors that made up for the hard punching of the St. Paul boy. Quill showed himself to be a very clever boxer but had due respect for Tanner's punching ability and was satisfied to drive in a few stiff rights to build up his score. The rounds were practically even throughout, Tanner missing several hard rights to the jaw.

Tracey Ferguson proved himself superior to Johnny Latzo in their eight rounds of milling, Fergason finally dropping Latzo in the eighth a few seconds before the bell. Latzo was unable to continue when the gong summoned him for the ninth frame.

In the second preliminary Steve Smith, although knocked down for the count of four in the third round, clearly outpointed Willie Angelo earning a well deserved decision. Smith proved to be a good boy both on the defensive and carrying the battle to Angelo and looks like a comer in his class.

In the first bout Nick Petite proved too fast for Young Downey, whose wild swings failed to land. Though game, Downey was completely outclassed.

NORWICH A. A. NOT TO WORK OUT AT MOHEGAN PARK

Owing to the bad condition and lack of space the Norwich A. A. baseball team will not do their practicing at the Mohegan Park grounds Sunday afternoon, but will go to Yantic where a much more suitable place is provided. The Yantic grounds are being put into shape for Sunday so the boys may have a fair chance to show what they can do. Some of the best ball players throughout the city and vicinity will be present such as Babe Hamell, Simpson, Falvey, Mull and others. All men who wish a tryout are requested to report at the Yantic grounds Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. when the best men will be picked out to represent one of Norwich's fastest semi-pro teams. Bailey, who pitched last year for the American Woolen company, at Pascoag, R. I., will not appear until the following Sunday. Bailey is the boy that won the championship for his team last year that composed of the best semi-pro team throughout Pascoag and also Providence. He comes very well recommended as a hard hitter as well as being a hard pitcher, and taking all in all is a hard worker. Bailey is anxious to show the Norwich fans what he can do and he sure will have the chance in the near future.

DARCY GETS DECISION OVER PETE AUGUST

Waterbury, April 20—Johnny Darcy, of New York won the decision over Pete August, state lightweight champion, in a 12-round bout here tonight. Darcy floored August for the count of nine in the seventh round and a few seconds later dropped him again for a short count. Ed Keeley of Bridgeport kayoed Pat McNaney, of New York in the second round of their scheduled 12-round bout. McNaney went down in the first round and took eight twice in the second before the referee stopped it. In the opener of ten rounds Sammy Lawson of Thomaston stopped Marty Miller, of this city in the third round after dropping him twice for nine counts.

"SHAKESPERE" M'KELVEY WILL PLAY AT ELKS' CLUB TONIGHT

"Shakespere" McKelvey in an exhibition game with Fred Dugas at Dugas' Billiard Academy Friday night lost his match 29 to 50. "Shake" played with one hand without resting his cue on the rail. He also gave a very clever exhibition of shots and ball throwing.

Tonight "Shake" will demonstrate his ability at the Elks club meeting one of the local experts in the handicap match, playing with one hand while his opponent will use both hands.

NEW AVIATION RECORDS.

If at first you don't succeed, try try again is always an excellent policy. That may not be the guiding motto of the air service but it is apparent that through the pursuit of it highly gratifying results are being obtained by the government aviators.

From the days when it was being demonstrated that a heavier than air machine could be maintained and propelled in the air, to the present time, there has been steady progress in aviation and new records are steadily being established. It is useless to expect that new speed or altitude records will remain such for a very long period. How vulnerable they are has been convincingly demonstrated this week by the American aviators who have not only succeeded in establishing new records for speed, duration without stop, maximum altitude and nonstop cross-country distance but of obtaining for this country the distinction of being the first to hold all four for a period of about 15 years.

Consideration must be given to the fact in this connection that the United States has not devoted as large sums as other countries to the development of its air service. It recognizes its importance but it has not yielded to all the demands for funds that have been made. But aside from the record breaking accomplishments that are disclosed sight must not be lost of the fact that they were obtained in machines that were driven by American engines.

It is thus not solely a case of American aviators demonstrating superior ability, but it is a demonstration of both American skill in construction as well as American skill in operation.

Whatever handicaps the aviation service may be working under, it has been clearly established that American development in aviation is positive and that in the struggle for new records that the American aviators and American machines can be expected to play a conspicuous part.

BUYING SUGAR.

"Don't scramble, don't hoard, don't boycott. Buy your sugar as you need it. Our advices show that the available supply of refined sugar in the United States is ample."

That is the advice of the president of a sugar refining company, but there is nevertheless golden advice contained therein. Those who can be encouraged to buy large quantities of sugar at the prevailing price and those who can be frightened into hoarding the sweet stuff are only playing into the hands of those who are reaping the benefit of the high prices. Normal purchases might not serve to call off the speculators but it would do much to reduce the feverish attitude of the consumers who are much disturbed and who through their efforts are doing more to create a false market than they are providing protection for themselves and others.

When the refinery president declares that the available supply of refined sugar is ample he only emphasizes what has been maintained from the beginning of the boost in sugar prices. He has confined his statement to refined sugar but the government reports show the same thing about the raw sugar. With more sugar produced than the world consumption the past year amounted to there is no justifiable ground for the driving of sugar prices skyhigh.

If the consumers are desirous of helping the speculator and putting a figure on sugar they have the opportunity to do so. There is no doubt but they can get the price up where it was a few years ago if they really want it there. That isn't the desire of the consumer, however; it is in fact quite the opposite, and it is time to lend whatever cooperation is possible to preventing any such result.

The housewives who buy their sugar in small quantities as they need it are refraining from that hysteria which plays directly into the hands of those who are deliberately planning to get their money.

NEW ORLEANS' CANAL.

The port of New Orleans has been undergoing some important developments. It has just completed what it terms its inner harbor navigation canal which cost the state of Louisiana the sum of $20,000,000.

It is a large sum for the improvement of water transportation facilities, but the state and port have faced it with confidence and planned for a development of transportation based upon this outlay and the advantages it brings that will manifest itself conspicuously in the future of that city.

The canal has been constructed with the view to making New Orleans the most economical and efficient port in the world. That is something which many another can regard with envy, and in view of the fact that the new construction is such that the possibilities of large industrial development along the route doesn't appear to be misplaced. [illegible] one of the principal [illegible] limitations at that port that involved much expense but which gives ground for the belief that the elimination of handicaps is bound to react to the permanent and substantial growth of the large shipping center.

New Orleans is endeavoring to get the benefit of increased water transportation through overcoming obstacles that remained for it to remove. It has not permitted the cost to stand in the way of its solution of the problem.

Certainly where there is nothing ventured there is nothing gained. New Orleans has acted in accord with its best judgment and it is certain to have the satisfaction of finding out whether industrial growth will follow the provision of needed facilities. Certainly New Orleans has reason for its elation at the completion of its project and it is well advised in inviting representatives of commercial organizations to the opening.

WORKING WAY THROUGH COLLEGE.

According to the report of the self help bureau at Yale it is shown that the students at that institution who have taken advantage of its opportunities for employment in aiding them to work their way through college have earned $12,000 more this year than they did last. It is not disclosed whether this was through higher wages paid, more hours worked or a greater number of such student workers but it does indicate that the idea has got a firmer hold and is growing stronger from year to year.

The bureau is able to offer opportunities for work in various directions. For those who do certain things for their board it is figured on a basis of nine dollars a week, while a considerable number are utilized for various duties connected with the athletic events.

Working their way through college means a struggle for an education but it indicates what value those students place upon the opportunities which such an institution affords for those seeking to better themselves educationally. That they are disposed to place a higher value upon them than do those whose college education costs them nothing can be readily believed. They are more likely to make the most of what they are struggling for and will be no more disposed to waste the benefits in the future than they are to waste their time and efforts while in college.

The bureau of self help renders an important service for those of small means but a rugged determination.

HIDDEN COAL.

Just how seriously the coal mines of Alaska will cut down the business of those coal fields that have been supplying the western states will depend upon the price at which it can be delivered and the facilities for getting it to market.

It is no secret that Alaska has much coal. It is a treasurehouse of many important commodities, a reserve supply to which attention will be more and more turned as supplies decrease and unfavorable conditions develop elsewhere.

Coal is to be had at its most favorable point in a field ten miles square in Alaska, so that it is not unreasonable for the northwestern states at least to look to it for a supply instead of depending upon coal brought from a longer distance, and especially when it is said to be of the highest quality.

What is being claimed for the Alaskan coal is no more than is being urged in behalf of Canadian coal fields in Alberta, where efforts are being made to have production developed to the point where greater dependence will be placed upon home supplies than upon the product that now comes from this country.

Canada was well taken care of during the past winter by this country. That it admits, but it has been impressed with the wisdom of being less dependent upon another country. It might experience more difficulty in getting a distribution of Alberta coal than it would in maintaining its dependence upon this country, but there is nothing like the demonstration of the possibility of overcoming dependence for the bringing out of the little known resources.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One of the important questions of the late afternoon is, What's the score?

Try as they will the endurance dancers stand no chance of outdoing winter.

Once it is pried loose there ought to be no such thing as a comeback for winter.

The man on the corner says: The chorus has already started on "Hot enough for you?"

Those dancing experts who claim the endurance dances are being faked the sentiments of many readers.

With ex-President Wilson opposed to the Harding plan concerning the world court, does that insure its success?

Whatever is done to the sugar speculators they must know that there's no one to blame except themselves.

When the straw hat association says a man needs three a year it figures that he will at least lose two by betting.

With one endurance dancer losing ten pounds that form of exercise may have a stronger appeal to some than at first expected.

New York is reported to have 1600 places selling liquor. If they don't get better service than that some people may stop drinking.

From the reception given to the Ford candidacy in Idaho and Nebraska it seems to be suffering from much more than a flat tire.

Pointing out that he has a cash balance of $200,000,000 Henry Ford says he will not borrow. After that revelation he ought to be good for a touch.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Is history repeating itself in the migration of rural populations into our cities and larger towns? The beginning of the national life of all people has been in the country, for the logical reason that it takes time for cities to grow. It may be that the spirit of many people at the beginning of national life is not rural but urban, and if conditions favored they would launch out into city life full-fledged. But as cities grow up through the natural processes of expanding rural life, there must be long and hard preparatory work on the farm. But if nature makes this preparatory work exacting she pays very liberal wages, not, to be sure, in colossal fortunes, but in hardy constitutions, and in sturdy mental and moral powers. When such human energies are thrown into city activities the country suffers a visible loss of power. This is a fact that is plainly written all over the face of our country life today.

We are more or less startled in these days with lawlessness that seems to be rampant in all parts of the country. In proportion to the size of our country it may not be correspondingly greater than it was when our population was only one-half its present size. However this may be, there is altogether too much disregard for law, because as civilization increases lawlessness ought to decrease. Lawlessness is more in keeping with the natural conditions of new countries, before law and order have had a chance to function, than in older national life where laws processes have become mature. At any rate we ought to seek a cause for the present condition of things. One thing that tends to lawlessness is the enactment of fool laws. The anti-daylight saving bill (which fortunately did not become a law) is one of them. According to this bill anyone displaying a time piece, five minutes fast or five minutes slow according to eastern standard time would have exposed himself to a fine of $100, and imprisonment. For pure assininity can beat that?

The scientist who denies the Fatherhood of God has some problem on his hands in dealing with the paternity of the fern. Until he can give a rational explanation of that little mystery, modesty would suggest silence in regard to the bigger mystery. One very interesting form of life, during the winter months, is a species of fern that keeps green during one of our long, orthodox New England winters. But why is it that this hardy little plant never blossoms? And stranger still, what is its origin? About all we know is this. In its mature state, on the under side of its fronds, small, brown spots appear. These spots are made up of very small grains that may be seeds. As they are not true seeds we call them spores, because they do not produce a plant having the characteristics of either parents. What is formed is a heart-shaped shield, and by crossing two of them something is produced resembling fern flowers. Let Mr. Omniscient Scientist, who denies the Fatherhood of God, explain this little mystery.

It is not difficult to understand the exact status of the present social order? Along certain lines we can see a vast improvement over former conditions. As far as the workingman is concerned as to hours of labor, better housing facilities, larger wages, and opportunities for recreation and amusement, we are certainly living in a new world. In the line of reading matter such as the daily newspaper, books, magazines, periodicals and reading rooms no day was ever like our own. As for the possibilities of education for all earnest students, we have all that could be desired. And still something is wrong with the present social order. With all the increased advantages for making life more desirable than it was even a half century ago there has not been a corresponding increase in human happiness. Does not all this go to show that abiding happiness is not to be found in material things?

It is a long time since April 15, 1865. A great deal of history has been made since then. Nations have come into existence and nations have gone. Individuals, some of whom have been very big, have had their fling at life, and have passed on where, perhaps, they are having a bigger fling than they had here. This at least is reasonable if, when here, they did some fairly good flinging. "To him that hath shall be given," that is, those who use their faculties in functioning, shall have the bigger chance hereafter. If there is reason and revelation back of this statement then the big man who died fifty-eight years ago last Sunday as the result of the cowardly assassin's bullet is living and working in some larger presidential capacity than here, if there is anything at all in the doctrine of immortality it must be a condition of conscious activity.

Why do we have so many commissions to probe into this, that and the other organizations? Millions of dollars are spent every year in committees for the purpose of finding out whether these organizations have been doing business in a legal way. In most of these cases is the suspicion that they are crooked justified? Or is it the conniving work of propagandists gotten up for selfish purposes? If there is a just reason for the existence of all these probing committees then our public life is rotten to the core. This we are not quite ready to believe. On the other hand, is it not barely possible that some of these commissions, at least, are formed for the purpose of creating lucrative positions for those out of jobs who have been useful to the politicians? It is very easy for politicians way up in the game to give a black eye to their enemies by having commissions appointed to inquire into their business methods. It is hard to find out how far they are just.

Any man or woman who lives alone in these days runs a great danger, especially if they reside in the outlying districts. Of course, it ought not to be so in this boasted land of intelligent democracy. Those brutal murders for a paltry bit of gold and silver, or the bank notes of the United States treasury lowers our national life down to the level of Sicily, Macedonia and the oriental countries generally where constituted authority is unable to cope with brigandage. It tends to restore the conditions of "ye olden times" when the yeomanry of England and Scotland had to put themselves into the exacting hands of powerful barons for the protection of life and property. This was feudalism, when the people all lived in walled towns, and went out to till the land. A careful study ought to be made of all these criminals so as to learn if it is a racial question.

Josh Billings once said that "a hornet in good working order could break up a camp meeting." Whether this is an exaggeration generally allowed to humorous sayings or not may be hard to tell. There is little doubt, however, as to the havoc that a lively, healthy hornet would make at a G. A. R. picnic, or at the annual meeting of the Woman's Relief corps. It is also true that one untidy family can spoil the appearance of an entire street. There are some unsightly things that cannot be easily removed, but the most unsightly things of all can be, such as loose papers, rotting leaves, dead sticks, and the big bones that the bulldog was not able to crush and swallow. Remove everything that is likely to blow onto your neighbor's premises and injure his reputation for religion.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

THE CHRISTIAN'S HERITAGE.

The lines have fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage—Psalm 16:6. We have no doubt that the form of David's language came from the way the land was divided by "lot" and measured off by ropes and "lines", but what David was thinking of so thankfully was God's great goodness to him. David believed in an overruling Providence. He believed that God had fixed the bounds of his abode and his possessions. More than that, he was [illegible] at many of us are not satisfied with all the divine appointments. He reviewed God's dealings with him with the highest sense of thankfulness. God had promoted him from a sheep fold to a palace, from being a shepherd to being a king. But cannot every Christian claim as much? God has rescued us from the kingdom of darkness, from the thraldom of slavery to sin, and has translated us into the kingdom of His dear Son. He has adopted us into His own family, and given us the right to an everlasting inheritance in the land and to life immortal.

Think of the Christian's goodly heritage in temporal blessings. "Godliness is profitable." It blesses us now. It has promise of "the life that now is," as well as of "that which is to come." As a rule, Christian people are prosperous. Godliness blesses men in every state of life. It exalts the humble. It prospers the toiler. It helps up those born to adversity.

If we will look upon the things we have rather than upon the things we have not, no one of us can fail to find much that calls for gratitude. We have a goodly heritage in health, friends, in the fact of living in a Christian community. This expression of the Psalmist is often used by the patriot in speaking of his country. We have a goodly heritage in a country where liberty abounds, and yet where anarchy is restrained; where men are equal, and yet where each can press forward to the highest attainments and positions.

The Christian has a goodly heritage in spiritual blessings. What a heritage we have in God's word. How the Psalmist exulted in the possession of God's Word, and how he delighted himself in its pages. Then, too, he has a goodly heritage in the services of God's house. Here he receives spiritual nourishment and sustenance for his soul. Here he receives new courage to continue the battle against sin, he enjoys fellowship with saints who cherish a-like precious faith with them, around them, within them. They have joy and hope. They have pardon, peace and power—"forgiving mercies, adopting love, sanctifying grace."

Think, too, of the Christian's goodly heritage of prospective glory. Some one has well expressed the Christian's good estate. "He has grace in possession and glory in reserve." The Christian is a sojourner. He is a traveler. He is enjoying the scenes of a foreign clime. But his richest possessions are at home. His real investments are in his native land. The Christian is looking toward and for heaven. He is hoping, expecting; yea, seeing its glories dimly outlined and foreshadowed.

"There is a land mine eye hath seen,
In visions of enraptured thought,
So bright, that all which spreads between
Is with its radiant glory fraught;

I love to think of the heavenly land,
That promised land so fair;
O, how my raptured spirit longs
To be forever there!"

SWITZERLAND ELECTRIFIES ITS RAILWAYS.

Electrification has become a vital question almost all over the world, but while the majority of countries are still "discussing" the matter, Switzerland has been "acting", with the gratifying result that the Lucerne-Chiasso section of the world-famous St. Gothard line, a distance of 137 1-2 miles, has been in electric operation for the last few months.

Two huge power stations, one at Amsteg, near the northern entrance to the St. Gothard tunnel, and the other at Piotta, about five miles beyond the southern entrance, supply the necessary energy. While Amsteg is used during the summer months, when the Reuss supplies the water, Piotta, is available in winter. This latter plant utilises the accumulated water of Lake Ritom, which is situated 6000 feet—— and about 2350 feet above Piotta. The natural depth of the lake has been increased by a 33 ft. dam and the conduit draws off the water 100 ft. below the dam crest. The available storage capacity is estimated at about 900,000,000 cu. ft.

Railroads were introduced in Switzerland in 1844 with the construction of the Basel-St. Ludwig line, connecting with the Alsace. By 1860 there were already 631 miles of normal guage lines in use and in 1869 the Federal authorities decided on a project for a railway through the St. Gothard, which involved the boring of what was then the longest tunnel in the world, slightly more than 9 1-4 miles.

Work on this gigantic undertaking, which cost $33,800,000, was begun in 1872 and 10 years later the line was formally inaugurated. In view of the magnitude of the scheme and the tremendous obstacles which had to be overcome, the line, when completed, was generally recognized as an epoch-making achievement and it took immediately its place as one of the great arteries of European traffic.

The railway, was, of course, run by steam, but with the passing of years and the ever-increasing demands made upon it, the necessity was realized of transforming it to electric traction. Other lines in Switzerland were being built and run by electricity, and the Swiss federal railroads decided not to lag behind in this era of progress, although the adaption would involve immense expenditures.

Final plans for the electrification were passed in August, 1913, a year before the outbreak of the great war, which calamity made Switzerland realize her dependence upon the neighboring countries for coal. Calculations showed that the little Alpine Republic can dispose over some 3,000,000 h. p. of water power and records also indicated that about 600,000 tons of coal are required per annum by the railways. It was therefore evident that this vast outlay for fuel, as well as the inconvenience and uncertainty of procuring the same, could be entirely eliminated by the development of but a fraction of the natural hydraulic resources.

In spite of the war the Swiss resolved to carry out the now more than ever expensive electrification scheme. As the Swiss franc maintained during all these years of fluctuating money markets the same high level, just like the American dollar, Switzerland decided to approach the bankers in her powerful and richly blessed sister republic for a loan to make the electrification of the St Gothard line possible. In view of Switzerland's sound financial standing America lent a most willing ear to the proposition and a loan of $25,000,000 was thus floated.

By making this loan Americans incidentally have taken an all-important part in this huge undertaking.

In the autumn of 1920 the main section of the line, between Erstfeld and Bellizona, which includes the great tunnel, began to run by electricity; the entire line between Lucerne and Chiasso on the Swiss-Italian frontier is open now and the complete electrification of the Lucerne-Zug-Zurich line is expected shortly.

However, the Swiss federal railways did not confine their electrification activity to the St. Gothard road only. The internationally known Simplon route, which was opened in 1906 and which like the St. Gothard line facilitates communication between Great Britain, Northern France and Italy and particularly also the Swiss Italian lake district is already electrified between Iselle, the Swiss-Italian frontier, and Sion, a town in the Valais. The section Sion-Lausanne is expected to be completed within a year.

In the same period the Swiss government railways also finished construction of the second gallery of the Simplon tunnel, the longest tunnel in the world, measuring 12 miles 537 yards. Traffic through the tunnel is consequently no longer limited to one track and express trains in both directions have vastly improved in their schedules.

The next item on the electrification program is the line between Basle and Lucerne, upon completion of which it will be possible to cross Switzerland from the extreme north, to the southern frontier by electric railway. In addition the sections between Zurich and Berne also between Lausanne and Vallorbe, on the Swiss-French frontier, are due for electric traction in the near future; in fact, it is hoped that the entire Swiss railway system will be electrified within 30 years.

And what are the real advantages of electrification? As before indicated, it renders the country independent from her neighbors as far as the supplying of coal is concerned. Then there is a considerable gain in time, whereby the capacity of a line is increased The electric passenger locomotives of the St. Gothard railway each weighing 108 tons, can haul trains 425 tons in weight three times over the 137 1-2 miles between Lucerne and Chiasso in 24 hours, allowing a stop of 15 minutes at the terminals. Freight train locomotives each weighing 128 tons, can haul loads of 850 tons between Arth-Goldau and Chiasso, 112 1-2 miles, twice in 28 hours.

Furthermore, and this is a feature over which every passenger rejoices, the smoke nuisance is done away with and the task of maintaining and repairing the line in the tunnels has also been lightened for the workmen. As soon as electrification of that section was completed, the 9 1-4 miles long St. Gothard tunnel underwent a thorough cleaning and scraping; its former black coat of soot is thus no more and travel through this tunnel and the numerous smaller tunnels along this line where windows had formerly to be hermetically closed, has merely become a diversion.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Playground and Recreation association of America, under whose auspices the country is to observe the week beginning today as "Play Week," has as its president Joseph Lee, to whom President Harding has written a letter heartily indorsing the project. A native and long time resident of Boston, Mr. Lee has for years been conspicuous as a social worker who, to ample pecuniary resources and high social standing, added an intense interest in the welfare of mankind. A Harvard graduate, and a lawyer by profession, he has devoted most of his time, of late years, to the organization and maintenance of the Massachusetts Civic League and the Playground and Recreation Association of America. As a member of the Boston school committee for many years he aided in greatly improving educational policies and methods in that city.

Wives of Famous Men

Jenny Jerome, Wife of Lord Randolph Churchill.

One of the numerous alliances of American beauty with English title was the marriage of Jenny Jerome, beautiful and charming daughter of an American millionaire, and Lord Randolph Churchill, famous British statesman. Unlike a great many such alliances, this one proved exceedingly happy and successful.

Lord Randolph, at just about the time he was beginning to look upon himself as a confirmed bachelor, attended a small dinner party in Paris, and was seated near the beautiful and brilliant Miss Jerome. Jenny was the eldest of three girls, all famous for their pulchritude, as well as for their father's fortune.

Although the young statesman was little addicted to the society of women, his attention was attracted to the lovely, vivacious American through the fluency and brilliant wit by which she carried on the conversation in French. He listened, entranced by her cleverness, and enchanted by her rare beauty. She was of the Creole type of beauty and was known to her intimates as "the dusky one."

At the end of the evening Lord Randolph expressed a desire to meet the young lady again.

"That," he said to a friend, "is the brightest girl I have ever met." It was not long before he was paying ardent court to her, and shortly thereafter they were married. His first opinion of her brightness was corroborated by her aid to him in his political career. In his opinion Lady Randolph was a perfect electioneering agent, and once when he was away just as his seat in parliament fell vacant, she proved the truth of his words by personally canvassing every elector in the district and assuring his re-election.

Stories That Recall Others

Office Hours

Someone asked Bill the other day if he had office hours. This was because he is not as active as he used to be and devotes his efforts now to about whatever fancy dictates.

"No, I guess you wouldn't call them office hours," he said. "Of course I still have a haunt in the—building, but I guess I'm something like the old lawyer."

"Did he have office hours?"

"They say he did. He showed up at his office about once in three weeks. He went up stairs, raised a window, looked out on the public square to see if any one was looking for him, put the window down and went away again."

Cluck! Cluck!

Her father is a doctor with a large following. Little Miss Three-Year-Old was being entertained by her nurse the other afternoon, and the youthful miss decided that she wished to be amused with imitations. The nurse had run through her full list of mimicry when the command came to imitate a chicken.

"Make a noise like a chicken," the order came.

"Oh, I can't imitate a chicken," the nurse protested.

"Well, if you can't I'll ask dady—he can. He treats 'em!"

A Little Talk on Thrift

The Level of Thrift.

The writer recently spent several weeks in Turkey, Egypt and some of the countries of southern Europe. One cannot make even the most superficial visit to these far-away lands and not be impressed first of all by the lack of progress as compared with American standards. Also one need look no further than these regions for the most graphic illustration of the fact that there can be no national progress excepting where there is a background of individual thrift, education and ambition.

One views in all of these countries the landmarks of ancient glory—temples and palaces of great beauty; numerous works of art reminiscent of the golden age of the painter and the sculptor; foundations and ruins of monumental structures where oratory and the drama were born and where the philosophies of the ages first were uttered.

It is most incongruous to note the poverty, squalor and illiteracy that exists among many of those who live today amid the ruins of those ancient splendors.

In witnessing these spectacles one is most forcibly impressed with the fact that no matter how powerful a nation may be, how exalted its civilization or how splendid its accomplishments in the arts and sciences, there can be no permanency and progress unless the personal lives and habits of the people are sound.

Civilization, after all, is just a matter of what we as individuals do day by day.

Had the people of Egypt, for example, practiced individual thrift, as millions of Americans know it today, through the many centuries that have elapsed since the days of their ancient wealth and power, what a tremendous force in human progress they would be today!

No nation can rise higher than the level of individual thrift and education among its people; nor will any nation ever sink lower than that same level.—The American Society for Thrift.

POETRY

THE OLD HOME TOWN.

You kin talk of Gay Paree
Of Monte Carlo by the sea,
Or chant your hymns of praise for old Madrid,
Would you know my humble choice,
The burg that makes my heart rejoice?
It's the Old Home Town.

There's Venice with its blue canals,
And Cairo with its dark-eyed gals,
Havana, where they ain't put on the lid;
But I would pass the whole world by
For just a day before I die,
In the Old Home Town.

It doesn't boast no noted men,
It goes to bed by half-past ten,
And yet to me there ain't no fairer name.
You wonder whence such reverence welks?
I'll tell you, friend—my mother dwells
In the Old Home Town.

The kings of Egypt built 'em tombs
Should long resist old Chronos' doooms;
They're welcome to their hollow-mocking fame.
When death comes stalking after me,
There's just one place I'd planted be—
That's the Old Home Town.
—Chicago Tribune.

AMOR IN EXCELSIS.

The dream-dust sifting from your mind
I sweep with golden brooms away,
Into a mound of glittering joy,
On which to build my day.

The laughter dripping from your eyes
I catch with silver pitchers three;
And morning, noon and night I drink
Faith, hope and charity.

I fold the kindness of your hands,
With unpremeditated art,
To fasten, as a bandage-cloth,
Around my heart.

And when my days are foundering wrecks
Of ruth and wrack and wrong,
As a ship that waits at the outer bar
For the bell-buoy's signal-gong.

Through creeping veils of sorrow-haze
Your words come floating far,
Like little, whirling winds of Spring,
Where violets are.

DE VALERA'S TRIBUTE TO LAURENCE GINNELL

New York, April 20.—Delegations representing the Friends of the Irish Republic in many states attended the funeral today of Laurence Ginnell, Irish republic envoy to the United States, who died suddenly last Tuesday at Washington.

Services were held in the Carmelite church, the Very Rev. Dennis O'Connor, head of the Carmelite order in the United States, delivering the eulogy. Many messages of sympathy were received by Mrs. Ginnell, among them one from Eamona De Valera, dated Dublin, Ireland.

"With deepest sorrow we have heard of your noble husband's death," De Valera's message said. "He died in harness as became one of the most indefatigable workers for Ireland."

OPENING OF ST. MARY'S MEMORIAL HALL FOR PARISH RECREATION EVENTS

Over 300 members of St. Mary's parish with their friends enjoyed an evening of pleasure Friday at St. Mary's Memorial hall on the evening when this spacious hall was dedicated by Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's church, for the enjoyment and social functions of the parish.

During the evening in celebration of the official opening of the hall for recreational purposes, a delightful entertainment program was provided by young women of the church directed by Henry J. La Fontaine, by Spellman's orchestra, which rendered a delightful concert during the evening, and by the playing of whist, bridge and forty-five.

The entertainment of the evening opened with selections by the Ladies of Columbus orchestra who played in their usual delightful manner. A feature on the program was Does She Come from the East?, sung by Henry J. La Fontaine, assisted by Miss Mary Brennan as the Girl from the East, Miss Agnes Bresnahan as the Girl from the North, Miss Dora Peloquin as the Girl from the West, and Miss Margaret Coughlin as the Girl from the South. The young ladies were gowned in appropriate costumes, embodying the spirit of the climes, which they represented. An especially fine number was the violin duet, "O Sole Mio," by the Misses Irene Wholey and Agnes Bresnahan, Miss Mary Bresnahan, accompanist. Following the entertainment and while whist was being enjoyed there was a splendid concert by Spellman's orchestra.

Following the opening numbers, Rev. William A. Keefe announced the rules of play for the evening and welcomed the audience to the opening of the new St. Mary's Memorial hall. In arranging the hall, said Rev. Father Keefe, St. Mary's Memorial hall had been set aside for just such times as these and in the future all parish functions and entertainments would be in the hall, set aside for recreational purposes.

The play of the evening began at 9 o'clock and continued until 10.15 when a social hour was enjoyed. In all there were 60 tables of whist played, four tables of forty-five and five tables of bridge. The play was progressive and the scorers kept the records. The gaiety of the affair was added to greatly by the charming costumes worn by the sixteen scorers who were prettily dressed in white middies and dark skirts, each wearing a hat of red white and blue with sashes to correspond. Those serving as scorers were the Misses Loretta Gadle, Eileen Fox, Alice Fox, Margaret Delaney, Helen O'Rourke, Phyllis Rozycki, Stella Rozycki, Madeline Sullivan, Agnes Dennis, Gertrude Fontaine, Mary Keenan, Mae Mitchell, Julia Gallagher, Caroline Kane, Anna Carroll, Anna Brennan and Elizabeth Sullivan.

In honor of the occasion several priests from out of town attended the function which was arranged for by committees from the Ladies Charitable society and Young Ladies Sodality, among these visitors being Rev. William H. Kennedy of South Coventry, Rev. Charles F. Kelley of Willimantic and Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian, curate of the parish.

At the close of the play the whist winners were announced as follows: Ladies' first, Helen Heffernan, a cut glass dish; second ladies', Mrs. George Swanton, linen handkerchiefs; gentlemen's, first, John Donohue, silk socks; second gentlemen's; Edward Sullivan, silk socks.

In preparation for the entertainment and whist considerable furniture was loaned by Rev. M. H. May, pastor of St. Patrick's church, White Cross council, No. 13, K. of C., Mercier council, Ladies of Columbus, Court City of Norwich, Foresters of America, Shea & Burke and Cummings and Ring, all of which was appreciated by the committee in charge.

The preparations for the opening entertainment at the hall were by a committee comprising John T. Sullivan, Patrick J. Sullivan, William B. Shea, James D. Mullen, Dona Siminneau, Cornelius J. Downes, Henry J. La Fontaine and Joseph A. Donnelly.

STATE COMMANDER KELLY VISITS LEGION POST HERE

State Commander Edward L. Kelly of Colchester paid an official visit to Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, Friday evening, and spoke at length on matters of interest to the legion. Commander Kelly explained the action of the legislature concerning the action on the bonus bill, and stated that the fight would be kept up. In his talk he dealt in detail with the many programs now being followed out by the legion throughout the country. Explaining the different ways in which the legion had worked with the government in the fight against Bolshevism, and added a fervent plea for stamping much of the propaganda of detrimental nature that has been flooding the country since the war.

He also stated that the American Legion was destined to be the leading ex-service men's organization, as it was the only veterans' organization recognized by congress, and had received its charter from congress.

After explaining what the legion had done in rehabilitation work he dwelt at length on the duties of every American Legion man in civic affairs, and urged the local legion to get back of every civic movement of merit and see it through for the good of the community.

Previous to the address by State Commander Kelly there was a short business session in charge of Post Commander John A. Cunningham which considerable routine business was transacted. The post made plans to hold several joint meetings with the Woman's Auxiliary in the future to work out plans of action for the betterment of both organizations. Plans were also talked over concerning the proposed state dinner to be held during the summer when all posts of the state will send representatives. The post also discussed the possibility of installing a radio set in the rooms and the matter was left open for future action.

Members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the post were present as the guests of the legion and to hear State Commander Kelly, and showed much interest in what he had to explain and the plans he announced for future action.

At the close of the session a social time was enjoyed and refreshments of sandwiches, cake, coffee and ice cream were served by the refreshments committee in charge of William A. Anderson, past commander. The refreshments were donated by the members of the legion auxiliary, and by members of the post.

BENNETT IS THROUGH WITH HIGHWAY DEPT.

"I am all through with the state highway department of Connecticut, whether it goes on under a three-headed commission or under a single-headed commission, and anybody who thinks I am not is only kidding himself." Thus did Highway Commissioner Charles J. Bennett on Friday dispose of the frequently repeated rumors that he was to be a member of the governor's proposed highway commission of three members if such a commission is authorized by the general assembly, or that he might be induced to remain as commissioner at a higher salary.

Each day there seems less likelihood of the bill for a three-headed commission becoming law, in spite of the governor's insistence on the desirability of his plan. With Commissioner Bennett now eliminating himself from the situation completely, the question arises as to whether Governor Templeton will appoint former Commissioner James H. McDonald, now a state senator from New Haven.

Ex-Commissioner MacDonald is known to be the choice of the republican organization for this position but unless the machine is able to bring unusual pressure to bear on the governor he will not name the senator. The governor is in favor of a younger man for the position and he regards Senator MacDonald's candidacy for the job as too much of a political one for such an important post.

With Commissioner Bennett and Superintendent of Repairs W. Leroy Ulrich both leaving soon, whoever heads the department upon appointment by the governor will find himself confronted with one of the largest administrative tasks in the state organization.

EARN MONEY FOR PIANO BY SILK-SOCK SOCIAL

The sum of $125 for a new piano for the beginners' department at the Central Baptist school was realized by an entertainment given Friday evening at the church by the Gleaners' class of which C. Edward Smith is teacher.

Invitations to the entertainment, which was called a silk-sock social, were sent with a little sock and a clever verse by Mrs. William Spencer and the admission was a penny for each year of age, bringing in $90. The other receipts of the evening were by the sale of homemade candy.

Selections by Swahn's orchestra opened the programme and were followed by a clever drill by twelve girls under the direction of Mrs. Harold S. Burt with Viola Hill at the piano. Those in the drill were Ruth Ballou, Elaine Wilson, Elizabeth Noyes, Viola Vars, Catherine Adams, Dorothy Spencer, Phyllis Ballou, Ruth Brown, June Woods and Doris Racine with Winifred Ballou and Doris Brown as the sunbeam fairies.

After a solo by Mrs. Henry Richardson, a farce, The Packing of the Missionary Barrel, that kept the audience in roars of laughter, was given by Mrs. Henry Geer, Mrs. Clarence Sholes, Mrs. Anna Woods, Mrs. R. P. Potter, Mrs. Carl N. Geib, Mrs. William Cousins, Mrs. Henry Richardson, Mrs. Luther D. Packer, Mrs. W. F. Bailey and Mrs. John O. Peckham.

The closing number was a series of clever surprise stunts by girls of the Sunday school, under the leadership of Miss Marion Royce. The programme was successfully arranged and carried out under the direction of Mrs. E. A. Wigley, chairman of the entertainment committee of the class. H. G. Aurelio assisted as stage manager and the stage settings were loaned by the Plant-Cadden company.

WHEELER'S BAND APPEARS IN FINE ENTERTAINMENT

At Mt. Calvary Baptist church a delightful concert was rendered by Wheeler's band, a new organization of colored men in this city. Selections by the band interspersed with readings, solos, quartet singing and duets were enthusiastically applauded by the large audience.

Miss Lusylvia Brown read the address of welcome in a clear and distinct voice. Prof. William E. Geary sang two bass solos in his usual finished manner. Mrs. A. Drury and Miss Ida Scott were heard in a fine duet. Charles Lewis played extremely well a saxophone solo. Miss Nannecite Carrington gave a humorous reading which caused many ripples of laughter. Al Perrin and his quartet sang several selections in fine form. The band played well for the short time they have been together and in the future they will be a credit and an honor to the colored race and to the citizens of this city. H. E. Wheeler is the director and leader. Ice cream and cake were served after the entertainment.

Members of the band are Alonzo Geer, John Randall, Worth Howard, cornets; Fred Randall, Beenjamin F. Dale, R. L. Banks, clarinets; Charles J. THREE AUTOMOBILES IN CHESTNUT ST. MIX-UP

An automobile of which the registration number was reported to be 97-779 struck two other cars in Chestnut street Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock, damaging mudguards on both of them. One of the cars hit was that of Dr. I. J. Manwaring, which was parked along the curb at the rear of the United Congregational church, and the other was a light delivery truck that was backing out of the alleyway on the opposite side of the street.

The other machine was coming down Chestnut street as fast speed, it was reported, and in trying to avoid hitting the truck swung over and struck the doctor's car and also hit the truck. Both Dr. Manwaring and the truck driver reported the accident at police headquarters.

According to the motor vehicle department, the machine No. 97-779 is registered in the name of Kleanch Sillon, 79 School street, this city.

GOVERNOR'S WORDS RECALL WHAT HE SAID HERE

Governor Templeton's vigorous denunciation Friday of members of the state legislature who talked to him one way but voted another had a familiar sound to members of the City Bible Class for Men who had heard the governor speak in this city last Sunday before the class at the Central Baptist church.

Both before this class and at the Young Men's Christian Association meeting in the evening, the governor delivered much the same sentiments as he did in Hartford at a club luncheon Friday, expressing his disgust at finding that the way the senators and representatives cast their ballots in the general assembly was often widely at variance with what he had expected from his conversations with them.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The caterpillar redeemed himself with a vengeance Friday. He may have slipped upon a prediction last January, when his forecast was for a mild late winter period, but that may be excused on the ground that he isn't a winter weather prophet; but when it comes to spring weather the fuzzy little fellow is 100 per cent. accurate.

He appeared Thursday, when it was as raw and cold as early March, and The Bulletin chronicled the fact, pointing out that warmer weather was to be expected. There was no disappointment this time. The warm wave hit Danielson with a bang Friday and humanity began to think of putting away fur coats and overshoes and other aids to comfort in cold weather for X. Y. Z.'s and other vapory kinds of underwear that are in vogue when nature smiles. Some caterpillar! He made converts by the score Friday and now has the backing of all the real weather sharps.

Friday evening's fourth annual concert and ball of Rose of Lima council, No. 52, K. of C., the most important social event since the Lenten season, attracted a large number to the state armory Friday evening for an delightful a period of dancing and social intercourse as has been experienced here for many weeks. The attendance was large and representative of all the territory hereabouts. Decorations of the big drill shed were particularly attractive and novel and the music by Tinker's orchestra of Worcester glamourous enough to make even the ennuied dance with pleasure. The grand march was followed by an order of dances that kept all interested until 1 o'clock this morning. The affair was not only a social, but also a financial success.

In the town of Killingly and immediate vicinity the circulation of The Bulletin is well in excess of 1,200 copies, in addition to circulation in Plainfield, Putnam, Woodstock, Thompson and other nearby towns. The Bulletin invites the attention of advertisers of every class to its service and will furnish detailed, sworn statements of its circulation in this territory on request. There need be no question in the advertiser's mind. The circulation figures are available for all.—adv.

News has been received by Brooklyn friends of the death at La Jolla, Cal., a few days since of Mrs. Louis K. Kimball, who before her marriage was Miss Nellie Chaffee, of Norwich, her father for many years having been a conductor in the passenger service on the Norwich and Worcester branch of the New Haven road. Mrs. Kimball is survived by her husband and one sister.

Joseph Perento, 55, died Thursday evening about 10 o'clock at his home in Plainfield, where he had been a mill employe. Mr. Perento is survived by his wife and one son. The family came to Plainfield from Arctic, R. I., where Mr. Perento lived for a number of years.

Killingly is in a position to congratulate itself this spring. Not one case originating in this town is on the criminal list due to receive attention when the May term of court opens in Willimantic on the first Tuesday in May. Killingly does not assume a more holy than thou attitude on this account. It simply is delighted to think that its inhabitants have so deported themselves, admitting that some of them have not been caught, as to keep their names out of the court calendar of criminal business for May — and that's something. Incidentally, the criminal list for the spring term is commendably shorter than the list that awaited attention last fall. Truly, it was a hard winter.

E. H. Keach has received his commission as postmaster in Danielson and will take over the office May 1, succeeding Raymond Allen, the present incumbent. Mr. Keach will retire from active management of the hardware business and the heating and plumbing lines in which he has been engaged for so many years upon his entrance to the postmastership. Since his confirmation as postmaster became assured Mr. Keach has made the necessary arrangements to incorporate his business and associate therein fellow workers who have been in his employ for a long period of years. They will conduct the business, being fully familiar with it in all its details, while Mr. Keach gives his entire time to the postal service.

Raymond Allen, retiring postmaster, has as yet made no statement as to his future plans. He has offers of a wide choice of positions. In retiring from the postal service he leaves behind a record of the highest efficiency, to which comment may be added that he has been courteous as well as efficient and on innumerable occasions has extended himself far beyond the requirements of the postal requirements to give service to the people of Danielson and vicinity. In going out of office he will take with him the best wishes of his fellow citizens for every success in life, whatever field he elects to enter. He has set a high standard of service and the fact is not unappreciated, though all his friends may not feel at liberty to say as much to him about his work in a government department.

While the recent annual borough meeting took no action on the proposal of Chief Engineer A. P. Woodward of the fire department that an auxiliary signal be installed on the fire alarm telegraph system, as a precaution against one failing, the matter is one of pressing importance to the borough and is likely to receive attention later.

Patsy Perrelli, recently released from state prison at Wethersfield after serving a sentence for having feloniously assaulted John Murray of the railroad police and former captain of the Putnam police, has started action for a divorce from Mrs. Perrelli, basing his suit on information he alleges to have gained since his release from prison. The Perellis have several children.

Formal exercises will mark the close of the evening school sessions on Monday evening, April 30. Principal L. F. Battey said Friday that Robert C. Deming, state director of Americanization work, will be in attendance and will deliver the principal address of the evening. The program planned is to be carried out in the assembly hall of the high school. An orchestra will play and while the affair cannot be regarded in the light of a graduation the students will be presented with certificates setting forth their achievements in study and attendance during the 5 nights the evening school has been in session.

Of special interest will be the dozen members of the Americanization class that Principal Battey has been instructing. These aspirants for citizenship have been zealous in their studies and attentive to instruction and a representative of the state board of education recently in attendance upon an evening school session here declared the class to be as promising as any seen in a tour of the Americanization centers of the state. Principal Batter is pardonably proud of what he has been able to do in preparing this class for admission to citizenship. The class has read and studied the declaration of independence and the federal constitution and has given attention to forms and procedure in state and county and town government. The members are practically assured with the knowelge they now possess of admission as citizens when they are examined as to their qualifications for that distinction.

The play, A Dangerous Experiment, was successfully presented Friday evening by the sophomore class of Putnam High school and the large number in attendance found much to praise in the manner of presentation and the excellence of the cast, coached by Miss Wright of the faculty. Following the play there was dancing.

John E. Brown of the Sawyer district of this town flashes into the limelight this week and as the man who dug potatoes on April 17—Tuesday of this week. Mr. Brown was engaged in plowing when he turned up about a peck of tubers, in as excellent condition as would have been the case had they been taken out early last fall. All were sound and firm. The bringing to light of these potatoes is another proof that frost did not go deeply into the ground during the winter, although the period was exceedingly severe. The potatoes showed no trace of having been frozen. This is regarded as due to the fact that there was a heavy blanket of snow and ice over the ground during practically all of the severe part of the winter.

Louis Law has been named as superintendent of the H. K. H. silk company's plants in this city. COLUMBIA

Rev. T. Newton Owen preached Sunday morning on St. John 14:9. He that hath seen me hath seen the Father. He said this is a world that develops character when God does not intervene, and people are disappointed when He does not intervene in their behalf; but why does God leave us alone, as it makes it difficult to hold our faith? Silence on God's part is a strange thing, as it may mean the highest bliss or the direst calamity. We must search the bible and take the teachings of Christ only. We appeal to the Fatherhood of God and believe in His humanity.

Mrs. Clayton E. Hunt has gone to Providence where she will remain a few days with her mother, Mrs. Simon Goff. Her duties as organist were assumed on Sunday morning by Mrs. William P. Johnson, a former organist for many years.

THE FRANKLIN CAR

is particularly well suited for fast driving; it is capable of the higher speeds, but equally important; it is comfortable, safe and quiet at those speeds. A pace that one would hesitate to set with other cars can be maintained all day long. Safety is evident on the curves and in turning out for traffic. Perfect comfort is apparent on bad roads. The car takes rough stretches at speeds that might seem spectacular, yet passengers are free from discomfort or nervous tension—quite unaware, in fact, that an unusually bad place is being negotiated.

This perfect behavior, coupled with a smooth quiet motor, makes 40 miles an hour seem like 20. Hours of Franklin travel do not leave the passengers restless and fatigued; at the end of the trip one steps from the car quite refreshed and surprised at the distance traversed. Thus, the ability of the Franklin to travel more miles in a day than any other car, is made possible by no one automobile quality, but rather by the combination of many.

Previous Franklin models possess these qualities, but in the present series they are accentuated. Series 10 is faster on the straightaways, more powerful on the hills, more responsive in the getaway, and more comfortable. Particular attention was given by the designers to obtaining quiet, snappy operation. Among the factors contributing to smoothness are the use of Duralumin for connecting rods, silent running generator chain, double fly wheel, shorter crank shaft of greater diameter, complete muffling of exhaust gases, and the perfect, permanent alignment of two vital units—the engine and transmission—through the unit power plant construction with three point suspension.

Rodolph Valentino at Broadway Sunday Night.

Real Spanish fighting bulls were transported from Spain to Hollywood via Mexico for the sensational bullring scenes of "Blood and Sand," Rodolph Valentino's first Paramount star picture which will be shown at the Broadway theatre Sunday in a return engagement. They are said to have differed from the domestic variety as "Man-o'-War" differs from the humble truck horse. Running wild from birth on lonely ranches, shipped in black boxes to continue their isolation from mankind, they entered the area with only the elemental instincts of wild animals, to kill and destroy any one daring enough to face them.

And Mr. Valentino had to get out in front of these interesting creatures?

Sensational to the limit in this great Ibanez story of the life and loves of a young bull-fighter, are those scenes in which Mr. Valentino picked animals of Senor Miura, the does sword and cape play before Duke of Veragua and the Marquise of Saltillo, the three leading bull-breeders in Spain. He was trained for the dangerous business by Rafael Palomar, famous Spanish matador, and was well-versed in the graceful art.

"Blood and Sand," a Fred Niblo production, is a story of a bull-fighter. It abounds in those colorful elements every American admires. It was adapted by June Mathis while Alvin Wyckoff presided at the camera. Lila Lee and Nita Naldi have the principal feminine roles while others in the cast include Walter Long, Leo White, Rose Rosanova, Marie Marstini, George Periolat, Jack Winn, Harry Lamont, Fred Becker, Charles Belcher and Gilbert Clayton.

A Hallroom Boys comedy, "Full o' Pep," concludes the bill.

WILL GIVE INSTRUCTION IN INTERIOR DECORATING

Whether in cottage or in mansion, interior decorators strive for three things in decorating a house, cheerfulness, restfulness and cleanliness. With these [illegible] they go to work to make the home the best place on earth. [illegible] possible for the housewife to do this without calling in the services of an interior decorator provided she gives the matter thoughtful consideration.

To teach the housewife the value of keeping her home cheerful, restful and clean the Devoe and Raynolds Co., Inc., of New York is putting on an educational campaign throughout the country. This company is sending a staff of interior decorators around to the various stores in the country to instruct the housewives on redecorating their homes. Miss Florence E. Cunningham comes to Norwich and will be located at the Preston Bros. store on Main street to help the local women with their problems of redecorating their homes this spring. Miss Cunningham has been engaged in interior decorating for a number of years and is well qualified to discuss the home problems with the local women. She has lectured before women's clubs throughout the country and her suggestions will be very helpful to women who are considering redecorating their homes this spring.

All the women of Norwich are cordially invited to meet Miss Cunningham during her stay in Norwich.

Frank J. Murphy Shows Opened Last Evening.

Amid a blaze of light, enlivened with music, gay colors and a merry crowd the Big Spring Carnival of the Frank J. Murphy Shows opened the season of 1928 last evening at the Battle Grounds.

Just before the opening of the Midway Mr. and Mrs. Murphy were presented with a floral horseshoe, a token of good wishes for their coming season, from their many friends in Norwich.

The carnival spirit prevaled throughout the evening, everyone enjoying a pleasant time. This season with the many new features that have been added to the shows there is something of interest to everyone, both young and old, besides the four new riding devices, there is the Motor Drome, with its reckless riders, the Mechanical City with 52 working figures, the Circus Side Show, with its congress of freaks and wonders from all parts of the world, everything in the Midway verified the truth of the three principles upon which Mr. Murphy conducts his shows, namely class, merit and cleanliness.

The Frank J. Murphy Shows will be at the Battle Grounds today and tonight and all next week, closing their engagement in Norwich, Saturday night, April 28th, when they will open their road season, playing the principal cities of New England and eastern Canada. Breed Theatre.

Willard Mack's play, "Your Friend and Mine," in which the celebrated actor-author has been seen in many theatres throughout the country, has been done as a motion picture by S-L (Sawyer-Lubin) Pictures, released by Metro. The photoplay is scheduled for presentation here at the Breed theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Advance reports concerning it are extremely fine, especial emphasis being placed on the elaborateness with which the picture has been produced.

"Your Friend and Mine" tells of a neglected wife, her husband too busy with his business interests; a bogus artist, in love with the wife, sharing the husband's utmost confidence; a playwright, sensing danger, contrives to bring about a situation which will reveal the artist's real intentions, and draw the mask from the husband's eyes. The conflict of these personalities brings about action that is at all times brisk and dramatic.

A sterling cast has been assembled to enact the vigorous roles. Mr. Mack is seen as the playwright, whose acuteness enables him to arrange for the artist's downfall; Enid Bennett is the wife; finding sympathy in the artist who she thinks is her friend; Huntly Gordon is her husband, intent on his business concerns; J. Herbert Frank is the unscrupulous artist; and Otto Lederer, Rosemary Theby and Aileen Ray, round out the fine cast.

Clarence G. Badger has very skillfully taken advantage of the melodramatic appeal of the photoplay in his splendid direction. He has extracted a great deal of excitement from the emotional scenes, and has staged the pretentious features of the photoplay with excellent taste.

Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Today's bill consists of Charles Ray in "A Tailor Made Man." Ruth Roland in "The Timber Queen" and the Pathe News. Continuous show today from 1.30 to 10.15.

Pola Negri Determined to Please Public in Picture, "Bella Donna," at the Strand.

Pola Negri played every scene of "Bella Donna" before a mirror in the privacy of her own apartment!

Following her arrival in America the famous Polish star enjoyed a ten-day vacation before starting on her first picture. Both Conway Tearle and Conrad Nagle, who play the leading masculine roles in this Paramount picture, which will be shown at the Strand theatre starting Monday were still engaged in other productions.

Miss Negri utilized this time to stage a dress rehearsal of the entire story before her own mirror.

Working from a copy of the scenario which she obtained from Ouida Bergere, scenarist of this George Fitzmaurice production, the star played each scene for an audience of one—herself. She studied her own expressions, the mood and tempo of the scenes and what she calls the "dramatic key" of each sequence of scenes.

As a result of this study and rehearsal, Miss Negri stepped on the set each day fully prepared to go through the day's work with the minimum amount of rehearsing. Such rehearsals as George Fitzmaurice deemed necessary were largely for the purpose of determining camera lines and lighting.

"I always like to rehearse my big scenes before a mirror," Miss Negri said in explaining her motives for this work. "But I rehearsed the entire picture in this case because I want so much to please America with my first picture. My friends here have never seen me as a woman of today. Always in the past I have been of another historical period or racial division—as 'Du Barry' and 'Carmen,' for instance.

"In 'Bella Donna' I play a woman of the twentieth century, wearing for the first time on the American screen smart gowns and frocks of the latest mode. These clothes must be right, and I must be right. That is why I played some of the scenes adozen times—before my own mirror."

"Bella Donna" is the first of a series of Paramount pictures in which the famous Polish star will appear.

In addition to this super-feature the management has arranged a Buster Keaton comedy, "The Electric Horse," and a News weekly.

Slater Hall Musical Course.

Mario Chamlee, the famous young American tenor from the Metropolitan Opera company will appear in Slater hall, Friday evening, May 11th. This will be the closing concert of the Slater Hall Musical course.

The interest in this concert is very great. Patrons are urged to send in their ticket orders immediately and secure seats.

It is not only possible, but probable, if the best critics and judges of New York are to be believed that America is to supply the successor of the great Caruso. This artist is Mario Chamlee and last season he was the most admired tenors of the Metropolitan and was a man invaluable to Gatti Casazza during Caruso's illness.

Now that the great Italian is no more, Chalmee's importance is even more significant, as his success has been brilliant in the wide range of the principal roles in the Metropolitan Opera Co.

Tickets $2.50. Tickets are on sale at the Crandon Co., Broadway.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

New York, April 20—Heavy liquidation of speculative holdings caused a sharp reaction in today's stock market losses of one to two and one half points being sustained by recent industrial and railroad favorites.

Several factors contributed to the reactionary trend. These included reductions in the prices of gasoline kerosene and lead, a break of 100 points in cotton prices, speculative fear over the outcome of the government's action to prevent speculation in raw sugar, circulation of a bearish statement by a prominent stock market operator and the department of commerce's warning against over expansion in business.

Industrials were the hardest hit, such popular issues as U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Baldwin, Studebaker, American Can, American Smelting, Anaconda and Cuba cane sugar preferred showing material losses on the day. Rails offered better resistance and the losses in that group were generally limited to fractions, but a few issues, notably Baltimore & Ohio Union Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern preferred and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico registered recessions of one to 2 1-2 points.

While the cut in gasoline prices was regarded as a natural result of the over-production of California crude oil, it brought a large volume of selling orders into oil shares, Houston breaking three points, California petroleum, 2 7-8, General asphalt 2 1-2 and most of the others a point or more. Standard oils of California and New Jersey each dropped to new low records for the year.

Some sharp fluctuations also took place in a number of the specialties, losses of 2 1-2 to four points being recorded by Stewart Warner, Stromberg carburetor, Reynolds spring, Bosch magneto, Mack truck and Dupont powder. Selling of Stewart Warner was in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors to declare a stock dividend.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent. and eased off successively to 4 1-2 4 1-4 and 4, where it closed. The time money market was somewhat easier with more money available at 5 1-4 per cent. for the shorter maturities. Longer term loans were made in limited volume at 5 1-2 per cent. The commercial paper market was fairly active with the bulk of the prime names moving at 5 1-4 per cent. and some exceptional paper commanding 5 per cent.

Trading in foreign exchange was quiet with no important changes in rates. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.65 1-2 and French francs at 6.65 cents. A moderate rally in German marks sent the demand rate to .0038 3-8 cents as against the recent low of .0033 cents and the previous "pegged" price of .0043 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, April 20—Bond prices remained fairly firm in today's dealings despite the general tendency downward in the stock market. Sugar company liens dropped from large fractions to two points and Cerro de Pasco 8s were off 2 1-2 points. Other price changes in the industrial group were unimportant.

Railroad mortgages moved within narrow limits, a loss of 1 1-4 points by Norfolk & Western convertible 6s being the only outstanding change.

There was some activity among the foreign group. French bonds were stronger, the French 8s touching par and the 7 1-2s closing 1-2 a point higher. Zurich 8s gained a point. The Mexican issues were in supply but the losses were small.

U. S. government bonds moved within narrow limits, the fluctuations being confined to 2-32 of a point.

Total sales (par value) were $10,234,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, April 20—Rains which afforded some relief to dry sections of the winter crop territory had a bearish effect on the wheat market today. Prices closed heavy, 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 net lower with May 1.24 1-4 to 1.24 3-8 and July 1.22 1-8 to 1.22 1-4. Corn lost 7-8 to 1 3-8 and oats 1-2 to 5-8c. In provisions the outcome varied from unchanged figures to 5c down.

Western as well as southwestern parts of the winter wheat belt received more or less moisture, and the wheat bears put particular stress on reports that in the chief producing sections of Nebraska the rain amounted in places to fully an inch. Weakness in the market was afterward temporarily offset by a government report suggesting a probable decrease of 5.5 per cent. in spring wheat acreage this year. This report was in turn more than counterbalanced by a bearish view of the Kansas state report implying that the condition of the Kansas crop is more favorable than federal figures would indicate.

Selling led by eastern houses found the wheat market without much support in the last part of the day. Some of this selling appeared to be based on estimates of a crop of 425,000,000 bushels for India as compared with 363,000,000 bushels last year, an estimate which in some quarters was expected to be followed by a downturn in prices at Liverpool tomorrow, whereas the Liverpool market today closed at a material advance.

Government figures pointing to increased planting of corn and oats this season tended to weaken prices for feed cereals.

Despite an advance in hog values, provisions were easy, with grain.

The Tonic To Take In The Spring

Many so-called tonics are merely stimulants. They fail to reach or remedy the real cause which makes you run down or out of sorts.

The safe tonic is a food medicine and the greatest body builder is Father John's Medicine whose pure food elements are easily taken up by a weakened and run-down system. This old prescription contains the greatest of food medicines which doctors have prescribed for years for their patients. It is guaranteed free from drugs, alcohol or any other kind of stimulants. It builds up the body, enriches the blood. It is a builder and not a bracer.

94-100 MAIN STREET NORWICH, CONN.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Local happenings attracted the attention of people of Norwich in 1873. People were watching the progress made in the building of the Catholic church at Baltic and ground was being broken for the Catholic church on Broadway. Happenings of the week as recorded in the Bulletin were in part as follows.

Monday, April 14, 1873—The placing of the soldiers' monument on the west end of the park has been finished and men from Batterson, Canfield & Co., who have been busy on the job of placing the heavy stones in the proper locations have completed the greater part of their work. Had it not been for the heavy rain of Saturday the soldier resting on his musket, which is to crown the monument, would be in place today.

An extraordinary case of hypertrophy of the heart has been reported by a local physician. It was found that the heart of a gentleman who died recently weighed 29 1-2 ounces; the ordinary weight of the male human heart being 10 to 12 ounces. The case is one of pure hypertrophy as there was no fat about the abnormally large organ.

Wind, rain, snow and hail featured the church services on Easter Sunday. Although this city suffered somewhat from the effects of the storm at this late day, it was reported that damage here was not as severe as in towns further north. Church services were well attended despite the storm.

The featured game between the Atlantics and the Turners came off Saturday and the Turners won by a score of 20 to 18. The game was finely played throughout.

Local trotting enthusiasts learned with pleasure that Willimantic is soon to have a trotting park.

Tuesday, April 15, 1873—For some time past in Norwich there had been considerable discussion on among medical men as to certain practitioners in and near Norwich who are not graduates from any medical school. In summing up the work the New London county members of the State Medical association have caused to be printed a list of all graduates from medical colleges. It was found that six men in Norwich are practicing medicine, one in Jewett City and one in New London, without having attended and graduated from any medical school.

The Norwich Silver Guards gave the first post-lenten dance of the season, last night at Franklin hall. The affair was one of the most enjoyable of the year.

Men interested in forming chess clubs met last night at the Wauregan Hotel and elected officers. Rooms are to be secured and the games started in grand style.

The Dime Savings bank has declared a dividend of seven per cent payable after May 15th.

Ground was broken for the new Roman Catholic church at Baltic on Saturday, last.

Wednesday, April 16, 1873—John Murray always popular in this city was met by a select audience at Breed hall last evening when he appeared in "The Man Without a Country". Mr. Murray with others in the case carried the audience with them throughout the presentation of the play.

Work has commenced on the new Catholic church on Broadway and daily there are hundreds who go there to watch the men at work. When completed the church will be one of the handsomest structures in the city.

Four cars filled with emigrants passed through this city last evening on the steamboat train.

A deckhand on the steamer City of Norwich was severely injured yesterday when struck by a truck carelessly swung upon him by a fellow worker. He was insensible for some time but it is believed he will be able to work again within a few weeks.

Thursday, April 17, 1873—Local Catholics are awaiting with interest every item of news that comes from Rome informing them of the condition of Pope Pius the Ninth, the 257th pope who has presided over the Roman-Catholic church. The pope who is very ill is nearly 81 years of age and has occupied the papal chair for 27 years. Every hope is expressed for his recovery.

The story is told of a man living near Norwich who did not know his wife had a maiden aunt. One day this man came home badly afflicted with Cochituate favored with gin, and not knowing that the maiden aunt was reposing in his chamber and his wife was upstairs, rushed into the bedroom and seeing a tumbler of water on the table, in which a lower set of masticators were taking their nightly bath, he grabbed up the glass and threw the contents down his parched throat. Within a minute he was heard shouting: "Mary, Mary, I'm coming apart, my teeth and jawbone are all afloat". What happened we do not know but it is said that the tender aunt of 47 summers and as many winters fixed him right and if he stays away from home long enough his hair will grow back and poultices will take down the swelling beneath his eyes.

Oranges are selling at twenty cents per dozen, as the suffering public on Union street corner had occasion to know yesterday.

Friday, April 18, 1873—The railroad bridge just this side of Mohegan caught fire yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock and was not noticed in time to stop the down passenger train. The engineer saw the fire on the bridge but could not stop in time so sent his train across and then stopped and with aid went back and subdued the flames which had gained good headway. The under timbers were greatly weakened and another five minutes would have resulted in death and injury for the passengers on the train.

Employes of the Thames rolling mill cured a man yesterday who wanted to commit suicide by drowning. Securing a rope and some bricks they tied the man and threw him into the river. He no sooner struck the water than he set up a howl for help. After a good soaking with many a scare they sent him home a sadder and wiser man, who had resolved never again to try and commit suicide by drowning.

John F. Slater of this city has been elected a director of the newly organized Boston, Hartford & Erie Railroad company.

Saturday, April 19, 1873—A casual visitor to the beautiful locality of Hardscrabble or Hardig names unclassic—cannot fail to notice the great improvement which it is undergoing. The rough avenue which leads through is being cut down and graded and under its more appropriate name Mt. Pleasant bids fair to be one of the sandsomest in the city. The delapidated structures that have haunted the soil for the past fifty years, housing the vilest classes of the city, have been torn down and new cottages are rapidly being constructed. Hardscrabble with all its traditions is being crowded out and is passing away. The noted characters that once lived in the hovels that are fast disappearing have all passed away and even though they should come back to life they would hardly recognize their old haunts. The section of the city where all fights originated, and night revels were common occurrances is a thing of the past. The new growth shows that the city is creeping out slowly but surely and is spreading into good dimensions.

Work is to be commenced Monday on the new building of the Norwich Fourshose company.

A catch of thirty five speckled beauties by a Montville fisherman has caused all local anglers to head in that direction to do their fishing.

Only a mile or two remains unfinished on the Air Line and people who have long waited for this road hope to be able to travel over it within a few months.

HOW COOKING WAS DISCOVERED

AN OLD CHINESE LEGEND

Bo-bo, son of the swineherder Ho-ti, discovered the secret of roasting a pig.

Charles Lamb tells the story with the utmost gravity and the world is content to believe.

It was in an obscure Chinese village, centuries ago. Bo-bo was left in charge of the cottage of Ho-ti. Bo-bo was fond of playing with fire and let some sparks escape into a bundle of straw which, kindling quickly, spread the conflagration over every part of the house until it was reduced to ashes. With the house perished nine young pigs.

While Bo-bo was regarding the ruins, a tantalizing odor assailed his nostrils. Lamb says, "A premonitary moistening at the same time overflowed his nether lip." Bo-bo bent down to one of the pigs to see if there was any life left in it. In poking at it some of the hot juices burnt his finger and he straightaway put it in his mouth to relieve the pain. In this fashion he discovered that so far as eating is concerned, roasted pig is preferable to raw pig—a thing his ancestors had never discovered.

It was not long before the news spread, and the legend goes that soon fires broke out in every corner of the Chinese Empire. Fuel and pigs grew enormously dear, and the custom of firing houses continued until a sage arose who made a discovery that the flesh of swine, or any other animal might be cooked without the necessity of consuming a whole house.

It is a ludicrous and pathetic legend. Think of a primitive people, firing their homes in order that they might enjoy that roast pork which our modern range turns out, browned to just the right degree.

The modern mind laughs at the story of Bo-bo and his discovery, and the modern epicure would turn away from a roast that was accomplished amidst the debris of a dwelling, its straw, rafters and furnishings.

Thus has the world progressed. From Bo-bo and his bonfire to the twentieth century housewife and her Sterling Range.

Think of the ease with which she roasts her meats nowadays. With an efficient Sterling Range, cooking becomes a delight. Think of the economy! Whether she burns coal or gas in the Scientific Sterling, every bit of fuel is converted into heat. How different from the poor makeshift of Bo-bo, who had to destroy his entire dwelling, and then there was no assurance that the pig would be roasted to a turn.

With the Sterling Range, the cook takes no chances. It has been scientifically built by men and women who know, and this insures accurate cooking results at a minimum cost.

The Sterling, whether baking a barrel of flour with a single hod of coal, or roasting the holiday dinner, is the ideal range of today.

If you have an old range in your kitchen you, like Bo-bo, burn up a lot of unnecessary fuel to accomplish results. Fuel costs real money nowadays—money it will pay you to save. Call on your Sterling Dealer today. Choose just the model that suits you best and then ask him about the convenient budget plan of payment which enables the range through the savings it effects to earn a big share of its purchase price.

CANTERBURY GREEN

On Thursday evening the church on the Green was well filled with the school children of the town and their parents and friends for the school speaking and spelling contest. The program and other arrangements had been carefully made by Mrs. Lovell of the Green school and Miss Dawley of Frost, co-operating with Miss Palmer. The platform and piano were decorated with potted plants for the occasion. The following program was carried out: March, Old Glory; Flag Salute; prelude, Mr. and Miss Hawes; invocation, Rev. Robert C. Humphrey; chorus, Come Thou Almighty King, schools; recitation, Old Glory, Anna Hagopian; recitation, The Lost Leaf, Frank Stahnke; recitation, The Battle of Bunker Hill, Earl Carpenter; recitation, Molly Pitcher, Lydia Eastlund; chorus, Flag of the Free, schools; recitation, World Safe for Democracy, Charles Moffitt; recitation, One Hoss Shay, Viola Bennett, representing Westminster; recitation, Algonquin Legend, Arthur Jones, Gayhead; chorus, Old Glory, Frost school; recitation, Corn Song, Raye Blaine, Raymond; recitation, The Inch Cape Rock, Katie Kuchy, North Society; recitation, The Bugle Song, Georgeanna Simpson, Packerville; chorus, How Betsey Made the Flag, Green school; recitation, The One Hoss Shay, Eve Thetreault, Peck; recitation, Baldwin; recitation, The Inch Cape Rock, Anna Hansen, Frost; recitation, The National Flag, Nelson Carpenter, Green; spelling contest, schools; address, Public Library, Leon C. Staples.

The last eight speakers were the contestants.

The judges, who were Leon C. Staples, supervisor of Ellington schools, Mr. Hill of Packerville and Mrs. Ralph Brown of Black Hill school, decided that Anna Hansen should receive first mention; Nelson Carpenter second and Georgeanna Simpson third.

A spelling contest with representatives from each school was conducted by James Lathrop. Gladys Davis of the Green and Gertrude Hansen of Frost outspelled the class, both finally failing on the same word.

All schools of the town were represented in the contests but the Baldwin.

The teachers present besides those mentioned previously were Miss Kimball of Peck school, Miss Connelly of Gaybead, Miss Lester of Westminster, Mrs. Kent of Raymond, Mr. Barrett of North Society and Miss McGovern of Packerville.

The large attendance was most gratifying to those in charge and shows the interest of Canterbury citizens in the schools and young people.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

"HELLO."

When you meet a man in woe,
Walk straight up and say "Hello!"
Say "Hello" and "How d'eydo?
How's the world moon using you?"
Slap the fellow on his back,
Bring your hand down with a whack,
Walk straight up and don't go slow,
Shake his hand and say "Hello."

Is he clothed in rags? Oh, no;
Walk straight up and say "Hello!"
Rags are but a cotton roll
Just for wrapping up a soul,
And a soul is worth a true
Hale and hearty "How d'ye do?"
Don't wait for the crowd to go,
Walk straight up and say "Hello!"

When big vessels meet, they say,
They salute and sail away.
Just the same as you and me,
Lonely ships upon life's sea,
Each one sailing his own jog,
For a port beyond the fog.
Let your speaking trumpet blow,
Lift your horn and cry "Hello!"

Say "Hello!" and "How d'ye do?"
Others are as good as you.
When you leave your home of clay,
Wandering in the far-away,
When you travel through the strange
Country far beyond the range;
Then the souls you've cheered will know
Who you are, and say "Hello!".

A SONG OF NEW ENGLAND.

Land of laughing, singing brooks,
Land of cosy inglenooks,
Of immortal lover told in books,
Fair New England.

Verdant fields with flowers bedight;
Purple hills in sunset light;
Goodly ever to the sight,
Is New England.

Rivers rushing to the sea;
Sparkling dew upon the lea
Beckoning every scrub and tree;
Ah, that's New England.

Silver lakes that gleam and flash
Where the fishes swim and splash;
Waterfalls that foam and dash
In cool New England.

Home of stern integrity,
Home of truth and honesty,
Home of wise frugality,
Puritan New England.

Busy wheels on every stream,
Weaving fabrics like a dream;
Making paper, ream on ream,
Tireless New England.

Hands that never idle lie;
Feet that never walk, but fly
Hearts to ever "do or die,
Brave New England.

Where the heart is ever young,
Where the good old songs are sung,
Where you hear the Yankee tongue,
That's New England.

They don't claim that they are "it"—
That no other crewd is "fit"—
But cheer whoever "makes a hit"
In square New England.

Land of rugged, rocky coast—
Land that never learned to boast—
I raise my cup and drink a toast
To fair New England.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

JENNIE: Paper forwarded as requested

BLOOD PURIFIER AND SPRING TONIC

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Just a letter to let you know that I am still among the living, and will say that I am mighty glad that spring has come at last. I heard some one say, "Yes, we know spring is here, and I think we need a blood purifier and a tonic."

Do you know that your system is going through a change demanded by the season? That is why we feel tired and run down with lack of ambition. A great many of us are shut in most of the winter and owing to the high cost of fuel many have been compelled to shut out the fresh air, more than we wish. How can one get rid of that tired restless feeling? We will have to change our mode of living. Open up all windows and doors just a short while and get rid of that stale air of winter. No matter how much we have tried it has never been accomplished quite enough during the winter months. The remedy was never invented you do not need a long bottle of mixture, no pint or quart of some disagreeable mixture to take one month. Go out into the sunshine and take a deep sunshine is good for your skin. You will soon say that you feel better. And when you feel better you will be happier. "Oh, you can say, I can't go out for I have work to do. But let the work go for a day or so. But you will say, I can't spare the time." Just the change that of it you will feel that a month where before you hated to have it.

By all means take a tonic and use a blood purifier if you need it; we all do. Let us breathe in deep long breaths of fresh air, let us absorb it in the spring and summer sunshine. But don't put too much faith in patent medicines of the powder and pills. The right kind that will nourish nerves are crying out for it will not come to us that way. So now let us try to improve our health and spirits.

I am sending a recipe for butter creams:

Butter Creams: The yolks of 4 eggs well beaten, 4 tablespoons of sugar, 4 tablespoons of sweet cream, 4 tablespoons of melted butter, a good big pinch of salt, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, 3 tablespoons of cocoanut. Add flour until quite stiff and roll out thin, cut in a diamond shape piece with a silver knife make a slit in the center, and put one corner through drop them in hot lard and fry to a delicate brown. When done put them in a paper bag with powdered sugar and shake well to give them a good coating.

THINKS MORE MEMBERS SHOULD WRITE.

Dear Sisters of the Corner: When I saw the Corner page Saturday I felt just like sitting right down and writing. I like to see the page full and overflowing. I think we all should write quite often, if only a little. It all helps to fill the page, so let us all try to do our bit. The weather doesn't seem to warm up much, so I haven't begun housecleaning yet. I think the most of us try to do too much in a day. If we would only take one room at at time and not get the whole house stirred up we would get along better. I am sure one room is enought to do in one day with all the other household duties. When I used to have fourteen in the family I could not get any time to clean until in the afternoon so had to make much of that. It seems like a dream now to look back to those days. I just attended my mother's birthday celebration the 15th. Who of the sisters can say they have a mother 94 years young? I don't think there are many.

I want to thank Anastasia also Historian for the pretty birthday cards they sent. I don't know who they are but hope to meet them at some of the meetings this summer. Let use all try to brighten the Corner.

Yours for good luck.

COOKING AND SERVING POTATOES.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner. We are never too old to learn something, however simple it may appear. Now in special reference to household helps, there is always some new idea that is worthy of our attention, and there is need for us to take notice. It is not that the older housekeepers can always teach the younger ones, for frequently the plan works the other way.

Now for a few suggestions regarding cooking and serving potatoes. At this time of year the old potatoes are more or less soft or spongy. I find it improves their condition, to let them soak in cold water for at least an hour, or more, before I pare them and put in boiling, salted hot water. It will make the potatoes fine and fresh looking, on the same principle as reviving a wilted flower or plant by putting it into fresh cold water. The potatoes will taste much better if treated this way.

As to various ways of serving potatoes, it is advisable to make frequent changes. One of the best ways, I find, that suits most tastes, and at the same time harmonizes with all kinds of meats, either hot or cold, is a good dish of escalloped potatoes. Recently I learned, by experiment, a quicker way to cook them, than I had always done before. I heated the milk quite hot before I added it to the sliced potatoes, in the dish, in which they started at once, otherwise it took so much longer for the milk to heat up in the oven. Plenty of butter peppers and salt mixed in among the sliced potatoes gives a good seasoning. I prefer cracker crumbs, instead of dried crumbs for the top covering. I moisten the cracker crumbs in a separate dish before I add them to the potatoes.

Fried raw potatoes are very good for a change. I first cut up thin strips of fat, salt pork, try it out in the frying pan, add onion cut fine, then put in thin sliced potatoes and let them cook, turning often, and keep the cover on the pan, for the steam helps to cook.

In the most common way of boiling potatoes, I always use the water in which they are cooked for the gravy which ever way it is applied, either thickening it and adding a little milk or by pouring it into the frying pay, which has just served for steak, or ham, etc.

A potato soup is a very good dish, also. Boil a few potatoes till boiled soft and dissolved, add a good generous lump of butter and a little celery salt improves the flavor, milk is necessary to thin it like a gruel, and small bits of cracker crumbs may or may not be added as one prefers. Hope these few touches may help some one, as they have helped me.

With best interests for the Corner.

ANY OLD TIME SUITS

Dear Corner: I met one of you a few days ago and she hailed me like this: "How do you do, Miss Spice? Say, what do you think of this daylight saving time, do tell us how it strikes you?" I replied that as yet it has not struck me hard enough to leave a marve that my present business in life was doing nothing and I can work at it 24 hours a day, which of course is too long to work at any kind of a job, even doing nothing, and I get very tired of it and often feel like striking for less hours and an increase of wages, as is so fashionable in these days. But as fear as light goes it makes no difference with my business whether it's daylight, moonlight, starlight, sunlight or no light at all. Everything moves right along just the same. Now and then when I get tired I take a little vacation and make a few holders or crochet something to give me a little rest. At one time I did get a little "shook up" over the time.

I planned to go to Willimantic Camp Ground to spend the day and attend the meeting and got up early so to get there and hear all I could and I set my watch by our time here at home and when I reached Franklin square I looked around to see what time it was there and the city hall had one time and the Selias Spa had the other and as my watch was not built for best one time at a time, I set it again by trolley time, as you know when one is in Rome one must do as the Romans do and if traveling by trolley must go on trolley time. And when I reached camp I found the meetings were scheduled for standard time and not wishing to be too early or too late I set my watch again and joined in with the crowd and that got me through the day all right. But I had to get home on trolley time and when time to go I set my watch again and set out and by that time I began to get a little dippy in my head, but thought that when I got my transfer the worst would be over and I would fetch around home either on one time or the other. Just then a friend across the aisle asked me if I could give her the correct time and I just passed over the watch and informed her that it had been set four times since I got up that morning and if she could figure out from it the correct time she was welcome to the experiment. However I reached home after awhile rather tired and glad to settle down to my regular job which was quite independent of any old time and generally speaking I will say that the time matters little to me if the weather bureau needs my advice I would suggest that it give us either one or the other as mixed time seems to me like some other mixed things I have heard of is bad for the head.

MUCH DESIRED RECIPES.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have not written for a long time but hope my name has not been dropped from the list of members.

To Tafta, I wish to say, "thank you" for a nice chocolate pie recipe. It tasted just as I wanted it to, but was never able to get just that taste before. I use a chocolate cake recipe that you sent in, too, and find it hard to make enough to satisfy J. A.

Aunt Sarah: I am right here under the hill and if the dahlia bulbs have lived through this cold winter will send you some when it's time to plant them.

I agree with Calla Lily that if the sisters do not like what we write they need not read it. I know I stay at home a great deal and have not much of interest to write about, but I enjoy the meetings when I am able to attend.

My geraniums are covered with buds and blossoms and have been a great joy to me this winter.

I send my sympathy to all who have lost dear ones and hope the sick will soon be better.

Best wishes to all.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS ABOUT PLANTING FLOWERS.

Dear Editor and Social Folk: Here I am again to talk flowers to you. Is there anything more beautiful in this world of ours than flowers? I wish everyone loved them as much as I do; I would also wish them to have the strength and facilities for caring for them. The spring is late and cold and for that reason I have not as yet planted any seed. But it is time now if we have any rbloomsl later on. Will add a few suggestions which may rbe helpful to someone who is planning to have a flower garden that will keep them supplied with blooms. Any good garden soil will usually produce a fine array of flowers if spaded to the prop k depth. Heavy and moist soils can be made lighter by adding a good maount of sand. If this is not obtainable finely sifted coal ashes will do. Of course a good amount of (well rotted) stable manure will be found beneficial if spaded to a depth of about six inches avoiding bringing the sub-soil near the surface as plants will not thrive in it.

We have all seen beautiful displays of annual flowers in parks and wondered, some of us, how these results were attained. The secret lies in the proper preparation of the soil. To get this display, a compost soil, is used. And this is easily prepared. Start either in spring or fall to gather clumps of sod and place in layers four to six inches thick, alternating with manure spread two inches thick. The compost heap should not be over three feet high and placed in an out of the way corner, exposed to the storms to rot. Six months after starting it should be turned over with the spade, mixing thoroughly. If heavy and sticky sand may be added, if slops from the house are thrown on daily they will assist the rotting and also add to the fertility. To cover this heap from view plant nasturtiums, morning glories and moon vines, also petunias at the base and on top and they will soon hide it completely. A year after starting the heap the compost is ready for use on bed or in pots. It should be sieved and raked into the surface soil. The fine, light, black soil found in some parts of the woods is desirable and may be used in place of rthe compost or with it, if it is obtainable.

If you have an even temperature in the house, not too warm, you can easily start seed of ageratum, abutilon, asters, antirrhinum, balsam, cannas, dahlias, celosia, verbenas, etc., in April. You may also plant these and others out in the open when the trees are starting out in leaf. Will give special directions for the different varieties if anyone desires.

To grow pansies, start seed indoors in late January, for spring planting and blooming, and sow again in late April or early May for summer blooming. Pansy seed germinates and plants grow freely in the cool days of spring and fall. A soil containing leaf mould well enriched with old and well rotted manure and made fine adding a little fine sand for the outdoor bed will produce fine plants. Seed germinates in from eight to twelve days. If started indoors they must be kept cool, from fifty to sixty-five degrees. It is a mistake to plant them in the shade of a tree or building. An open exposure is best, thus avoiding the long struggling branches which produce fewer and inferior flowers. Water the bed thoroughly and daily in dry weather.

So you see, sisters, you have plenty of time to start seed for blooming plants by the last of June and they will give an abundance of flowers the remainder of the season. According to the season, usually the middle of August is the time to start pansy and other hardy seed for the next season. The pansy and several others require slight protection.

Here are a few time saving suggestions I want to add as it is housecleaning time as well as gardening time.

To clean windows get two pieces of chamois skin; use one for washing the sash and glass and the other for rinsing and wiping the glass. There is no lint and it saves much time rubbing. Once tried you will never use a cloth again.

A cheap putty knife is a handy thing for scrapping kettles and pans. Also a cheap shaving brush for greasing pans and brushing milk or butter over pastry.

There is a bare floor treatment I would like to add but I will wait till next time. Wishing you good luck.

PLEASED WITH EASTER GREETINGS.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: First I wish to thank those who sent me cards for Easter greetings: My Little Irish Rose, Maple Leaf, Mary M., Mary G., Dottie, Rosie Posie, Calla Lily, Savilla, Paula, Interested Reader, Student, Dorothea, Susie and June Bug. It is nice to be remembered by so many.

Savilla: I did want to meet you on April 4th, but circumstances would not permit. Hope to be with you on May 2d, if nothing happens to prevent.

Necia: Was glad to see you that day if only for just a minute. Your window looks great.

Calla Lily: Sent you a letter answering questions.

Joan: Your letter received. How I did laugh over your first cousin. Can you spin a yarn equal to that? Also the story of the wharf rat: that rat did quick work. What kind of a trap did they use?

Balsam Fir: Mrs. R.'s home was nearly burned to the ground last Saturday in North Vassalboro. She said they had a fierce fire to fight as the wind was blowing srcely. It does seem as though there have been many fires of late.

Pocahontas: I have known you for a long, long time. I thought you moved away out of town. I very often see your daughter on the street. I am going to speak to you next time I see you.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

WRESTLING WITH AN ABSCESS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I wish to thank you all for the sunshine box I received the 4th. It was a surprise I assure you.

I thought I would sure be able able to go to the meeting, but oh, wasn't I sick!

Was all ready to go to the anniversary meeting but such a day. Annette and I were ready when it started to snow and of course no one could expect her hubby to take his car out just to take us down, and as it was so far from the electric cars we decided to stay at home.

Well that started my troubles, it seems, as from that until now we have had sickness in the house continually, and I myself have been sick about all the time, and to finish it I had to have an abscess in my ear. I'll tell the world I had a wonderful time, as it was a very bad one and the doctor was afraid of a mastoid, but thank the Lord I was spared that.

If any of the sisters have had an abscess in the ear you know the torture I went through, as it filled up and had to be lanced again just a week after the first time it was lanced. I hope all those that have not had one never will.

This is really the first week I have been out much. But I'm in hopes now that we will have pleasant weather and we will all be better.

Will have to start housecleaning now and I think that's another thoru in the desh. I suppose most of the sisters are through cleaning by this time.

My, there were some nice recipes in last Saturday's Corner. I think Kitty Lou's were very timely, as when you are housecleaning you don't feel like fussing with meals, and Ma of Greene Gables, ginger puffs I will surely test soon.

I hope to be able to go to the May meeting and will try also to go to Willimantic the 9th.

Agatha: Do you think you will be at the meeting in Franklin hall the 9th with that wonderful crochet book? If you do will try to find you. Let me know next Saturday so I won't feel disappointed if you are not there. I do hope it will be pleasant for both meetings as we have had so much stormy weather. Was pleased Agatha to see you received a yellow slip for that porch work table. Am going to try to have one this summer.

Well, I think I can hear the editor say, "Here, here, you, it's time to quit," so with best wishes to all this beautiful morning, will close.

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

OUGHT TO KEEP PAGE BRIMFUL

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is very evident by last Saturday's page that the sisters are very busy to let so much other matter find a place on our page. With a thousand contributors it seems we ought to keep the page brimful of helpful suggestions or items of interest. I was amused at Ma of Green Gables' letter when she said it "took the men folks most of the time" to look after 400 chickens and 170 eggs hatching. It seems there is more than one man on the job. Hope you don't have to pay the fancy wages they demand those days, but you are lucky to find an extra man to assist you. Bless your heart, Ma of Greene Gables, for years I have taken care of from 500 to 1200 chickens alone, and I do not let it take about all my time either, as there was washing and ironing and gardening to do and a few other things—too numerous to mention. I had 160 hills of dahlias which I cared for alone last season, besides a garden of other flowers, also the chickens, so you will excuse my mirth, I am sure. But I am with you on the pantry cleaning subject. I do that way and it saves a lot of time and unnecessary work.

The letters from Iola and C. E. S stir up visions of dried herbs hanging from the rafters in a far-distant attic, the pungent and not unpleasant odors still linger in my memory and the decoctions made from some of those simple (?) remedies can never be forgotten. Thoroughwort tea seemed to be a favorite decoction as a spring tonic and appetizer and I doubt if there was anything more effective. Then the ancient remedy for sore throat was a red pepper tea gargle and red pepper sprinqled over cold, raw salt port and bound on the throat.

So I dont look back with any degree of gratitude for some of the remedies that were handed down to my early recollections.

Canterbury Bell: Did you get the package? You were very lucky to get the article again.

Aunt Alicia: Congratulations for the splendid time we had Wednesday, the 11th. You and your assistants looked so nice in your white gowns and pretty yellow head dress and the tables with the yellow decorations and flowers helped to add to the delicious dinner you served.

Enid: I hope to read other letters from your pen along that same line. It was full of interest.

Will the person that left a silver knife and fork at the hall the 14th of March let me know so it can be returned? Also, who lost a veil, (black with blue dots) April 11?

Our sister, Whoa January, is quite ill at her home and I am sure she would appreciate a shower of cards.

THEODA, (July 4)

ORIGINAL HELPS.

Dear Sisters of The Corner: One of the sisters of the Social Corner wished to know what we did with our pieces of soap. I take a small low can and perforate the bottom with holes, using a small nail and hammer for that purpose. About 1-4 inch from top edge of the can make one hole and directly opposite make another.

Take a piece of wire (picture wire will do), insert one end through one of the holes at the top of the can and twist the end about the wire proper. Fasten the other end in a similar manner through the opposite hole, so the loop or handle will be four to eight inches in length.

Place your small pieces of soap in this can and hang this contrivance over your hot water faucet in the kitchen sink or laundry. Now when you want hot suds for dishes or clothes, simply turn on the water in the ordinary way and the result will be foaming suds.

When not in use it can be taken off, but I find the best way to slip the wire off towards the back of the faucet and let it hang from the pipe itself. The length of the loop, the size of the can and the manner of hanging from the faucet will depend upon the depth of the sink and height of the faucet, but with a little thought it can be made to suit your particular requirements.

I use a can that hand soap comes in, as this is the proper size for my sink and it has a smooth edge, whereas if a can is used that has to be opened with a can opener the danger of a jagged edge is at once apparent.

Spry Bird: I am glad if you received any benefit from my letter. As I did not hear from you again, I thought you fully understood it.

A sister asked about pansy seed. I sowed mine in the fall and sowed them quite deep, covering them with leaves, and over the leaves I placed a board. Keeping them in the ground all winter, they have a good substantial root. I would plant them so when they come up it would be in a shady place.

To produce and make a geranium branch out and blossom, place a common pin directly in center of the main stalk.

KITTY LOU.

PLEASED WITH BOX AND KINDNESSES.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I think it high time I should write and thank the ladies of the Social Corner for their kindness during my sickness.

First, I would like to thank the ladies for the sunshine box. It was a surprise to me. I was in bed, fast asleep, when it was brought and to awake and find such a nice box of goodies—also money—I can't tell you what a surprise it was. I kept the money until this week when I went to Norwich and bought a fern. I shall call this my Social Corner fern. I also want to thank the ladies for remembering me with letters and cards and also those who made little chatty calls over the 'phone. When one is sick it is so nice to be remembered.

Red Rose: I was thinking of you last night. I had chicken for supper.

Ma of Greene Gables: I tried your ginger puffs. They were fine.

Pocahontas: Received your letter and the quilt pattern. Thank you.

Red Clover: I am glad you have a 'phone. It is good to hear your voice once in a while.

With best wishes to all the Corner sisters, I remain, as ever,

STUDENT.

MAKING A SOFA PILLOW TOP OF SILK PIECES.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I thought I would get busy when I saw the letters getting short of filling the page. We are having a very cold spring with snow going slowly. No frost in the ground in one thing in our favor and something to be thankful for. Between Freeport and Yarmouth the road is being plowed out. The drifts were so deep tractors and a large crew of men have hard work, but it will be something they will remember I guess all right.

I have enjoyed reading all the nice letters as long as the Social Corner page was full, but when I see there were only a few, I thought I would get busy. Then I was not ill with 40-hour flu the past winter I, too, was making rugs and piecing out sides. Have pieced three with the letter H in each block for birthday presents and then a foot quilt of small half squares set together crazy work style.

Have crocheted a rug, hooked two on sugar bags, braided one, knitted a sofa pillow top of silk pieces, and if you never tried it, I will tell you how I did it.

I cast on enough stitches to make the width one-half yard wide. Then I knitted it as long (say one yard) as I thought would cover my pillow. Had pillow made of excelsior like any pillow, then laid on the top, folded the rest over it and caught it together on the three sides with some bright colored twine. It is quite an ornament to the couch as it is odd. It can be knitted on sweater needles. I used them for my woolen needles were too coarse.

Calla Lily: I trust you will get your book. I know how to sympathize with you for I have met with such accidents many times. So you enjoyed the story of the snows did you?

Nemo: Yes, I have such a picture as you speak of.

Crimson Rambler: I will never forget our good time.

Enid: Letter received. Pleased to hear from you and trust you will regain your good health when settled weather comes.

The sick ones have my sympathy and I trust they may all recover now the snow is gone. It is only 30 this morning. It snowed quite hard the 11th. The lake is ice-bound yet. I will be glad when I can get my boat in. Then my fishing rod and I will forget work.

So you liked my picture, did you, North Dakota? It was a nice view of our landing. I got my last sleigh ride Sunday evening. Saturday morning I called upon a neighbor for it was 60 in the shade. I thought I could come home cross lots, but just as I was about to step into the road I went in both feet in such a way I could not get out, for the snow was very deep. Well, I saw a team coming, so I called to the driver to pull me out. The men folks at the house heard me and wondered what had happened. So when the man stepped on the snow he, too, went in, but with his help I got out and into the sleigh and rode home. Now my folks laugh at me, said I did it on purpose to get someone to assist me out and get a chance to ride home. They can think as they have a mind to, the experience was anything but pleasant, believe me.

Dom Pedro: Haven't seen your story yet. What a sad thing the electrocution of Sergt. John H. Kane and the Spears boy was? Their relatives have my heartfelt sympathy in their deep sorrow.

I can hear the editor say most time you stopped, so I will close for now with best wishes to the Corner family.

Sincerely,

BALSAM FIR.

PANSIES AND ASTERS.

Dear Social Corner Members: I did not intend to write so soon again but I have got so much help from the various letters I feel if we can answer any questions we should do so.

Spry Bird asks about growing pansies. I used to have very good success with them by planting them around small trees like pear trees. They require some shade and the blossoms must be kept picked off if you want continual blooms as with sweet peas. Late in the fall cover them with leaves and in the spring uncover them and your bed will again give you some good blooms. Plant seed again in the spring to give you good blossoms in the fall and another bed to carry over. For the last few years I have not been situated so I could raise them but this spring am going to try them again.

About asters, I always have good success raising them. I always buy plants and also plant seed. From the plants I get earlier blooms. My trouble is that I will many times have a fine lot of blooms and in a day long black bugs have ruined them. Has anyone this experience? If so, what do you do? I have used sprays but with no success. My sweet peas always go in the vegetable garden and they are taken care of with the rest of the garden and I just have loads of blooms. Do try a few zinnias; they are so colorful and lasting. Of course it depends on the season as to time of planting. Last year I planted aster seed May 8, but can't say when I will this year. I am very fond of flowers, but have not time to raise as many as I wish I could.

TOO MANY DO NOT USE SPACE WE SHOULD

Dear Corner Sisters: Well some of you will say, does Calla Lily own a space in the Corner? Why does she come so often? I'll answer myself. We are all entitled to a space but don't use it by the looks of the P & M. ad and Woodstock Dairy advs and eight suburban towns in our Social Corner space. So do as I do when I read a Social Corner letter I would like to answer I stop everything and go forth and find my pen and then get busy.

Ma of Green Gables: I like to see people get out of the 1800 rut of doing things and if the old lady 100 years old had a gas range, electric flat and electric sweeper, they, too, would have some work different. I believe as you do about the cleaning. Don't kill yourself, do it in a easy way and save your strength an dtemper. It's a hard job I have three halls, eight rooms, besides bath and closets and stairs. It sure is a heart aching job to tackle alone, but like swimming after the first dive all goes right along.

Amelia, Amy and Peggy Anne: I was pleased to see Pythian Sisters mentioned. There are quite a few Pythian Sisters in Club No. 2. Mandy and I are charter members of Clover Temple, 25 years old in September. Make yourself known when we meet. Your name is my pet name. Joan's father used to call me Peggy Ann always.

Prairie Chicken: I know your mother and sister. Kinder looks as if she was edging towards my husband's people, as nephew and she were at the theatre Friday evenin. How about it E. W.? You see little birds fly about.

Red Clover: You and I write as we talk, don't we? When is Mid Clover?

Pen: Has your ink dried up?

Lonesome Pine: Sorry to know you have more trouble to worry over. Hope hubby comes out better than you think in use of hand.

Great Grandma: I do surely enjoy your letter so much. You are surely a smart young lady for 82. May 16. I hope the Corner will shower you with post cards then at 10 Mountain avenue Norwich. Try it, girls, she loves the Corner.

L. T. H. and Violet: I'm glad you saw my message. You surely have had years of sadness Let us hope that with the spring flowers your life will start anew with them and continue so. Try and make the Corner meeting a visit this summer. It will do you lots of good.

Enid: Thanks for the card with the flower of my name. It was very pretty.

Mayfair: You were very welcome to the plant sent you at hospital as an old members of Club No. 2. The members send them to cheer the shut-ins. Glad you are home and improving.

Aunt No. 1, Hope you got the badges by mail O. K. next day. Ran out of ribbon and if I can match it will bring the rest for Club No. 3 at next meeting.

Best wishes to all,

CALLA LILY.

BAD SIGNS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I wonder how many of you were brought up to believe in signs. I suppose I might as well say "bad signs" as there doesn't seem to be many good ones. How many times I've heard my mother or sister say, "Oh, don't do that, it's a bad sign," 'til it seems that I wandered around in a maze of bad signs. Believe me I shall never weigh my child down with a lot of foolish superstition. It take a long time to outgrow such practices. It took me until long after I was married, but now I can truthfully say that I haven't one blessed pet sign.

You remember the sign about seeing the moon over the left or right shoulder? Over the left, or maybe 'twas the rigiht, it was a bad sign. The 18th amendment has made it a little better though. Imagine a fellow's chagrin when he saw two moons, and over the wrong shoulder. Whew! it must have been a bad sign that prohibition would be a good thing for him.

Then the signs concerning itching palms, nose and eyes. Singing before breakfast was a sure sign that the singer would cry before supper. This sign bothered me a good deal as I was especially tuneful before all meals. I should dislike to be compelled to enumerate all the signs I heart about. They're too 'many for me. The signs about wearing one's shoes out in different spots was, I think, the limit. If you wore than out on the toe, you'd spend as you go. Wear them out on the heel, spend a good deal. I didn't see how this could apply to me as I scarcely ever had more than a quarter yet I wore 'em out on the heel, toe, uppers, sides, buttons, etc. In fact I wore 'em all out. I you wore them at the side you would be a gentleman's bride. The sides were the places that lasted the longest with me and it troubled me greatly to think that I stood such a poor chance of being a gentleman's bride. Like "Barkis" I was willing. 'Twas worth working for, so I walked all one forenoon on the sides of my shoes. My mother noticed after a while and told me to "walk as you ought to for pity's sake. That sign doesn't amount to anything." It was quite a long time ago but Hot Air came along eventually and I'll say he's a gentleman and a scholar; outside of that he's what he is and that's that.

Anastasia: Fresh Air is very well thank you. He's learning to whistle now. It sounds like the wind sighing through the pines. When he does manage to make a sound it surprises him so that he forgets how he had his mouth fixed when he did it and has to go back to the pine-sighing stage again.

Elizabeth: How did you make out?

Silent Partner: Glad you liked my letter. Were you blue when you started to read it? I wish I had nothing to do but make people laugh.

E. L. M.: So you think I am a jolly body. Well, maybe that is what ails me. I've been feeling funny for a long time now but you can't blame me as I've had the grippe twice this winter and that's enough to make anybody anything. I've taken so many tablets that now when I see a white button laying around I absent mindedly reach for a glass of water.

Best wishes to all, yours for FREE AIR.

PUTTING IN A PATCH.

Dear Social Corner: I have though for weeks that I would write, but was prevented every time. I have enjoyed the letters every week very much. When I was mending one day I wondered how many others put in a patch as I do. Cut out all around the hole and then using that piece for a pattern cut out the new patch just the same, shape only a large seam larger. If it is a square patch, snip each corner of the hole in the garment, so that it will be smooth when it is finished. Take up your seam from the corner the size of the snip, and when it is finished you can hardly find the place if the seams are pressed good. You can put in any shape patch, only I don't snip any but square ones. You don't have to cut your patch a large seam larger than the old worn piece because you take a seam out of it sewing it in. I hope you will be able to do it from these directions. I find it is easier to do it than explain it.

One day when I was making them a friend told me what she thought was a new help. That was to turn a wide hem on each end of the sheet, then the wear would not all come on the wide hem and. That would be an idea, but my mother had always made both hems the same width, and I had given it no thought. I suppose we each have ways of working that might help others if we only realized, and passed them on.

Can someone tell me how to keep brown sugar soft? I usually buy several pounds at a time, and have had much trouble this winter by having it so hard it is almost impossible to chush it.

ROBERTA. (March 15.)

PLEASED WITH CARDS AND GIFT

Dear Sisters of the Corner: A few lines to thank all the Social Corner sister that remembered me with cards on April 14th. They were very nice as the sentiment was very appropriate.

I thank also the kind friend that sent the flowers, a lovely bunch of carnations, which was appreciated very much.

Hope Mary France is full recovered from her illness; also hope all other sister that have been ill are improved.

With best wishes to all from

ANNA MELL.

BLEACHING THE FACE, NECK AND ARMS.

Dear Cornerites: Muddy and yellow skins are almost always due to an inactive liver, and must be reached and remedied through it; but brown skins, skins whose white nave lost their peachness, yet which are healthy, as the brightness and clearness of the eyes indicate, may often be restored to normal by the use of a simple bleach.

What most bleaches do is to remove the outer layer of skin and expose a new surface, and strong bleaches should be avoided because of the drastic manner in which they perform their mission, leaving the face tender, sometimes red, easily freckled, tanned or cracked by wind or sun. Be very careful, therefore, in choosing a method to whiten your face.

A very simple bleach is made from one-half lemon juice and the other half glycerine which has been slightly diluted with water. I have treated those who had very sensitive skin, one-third lemon juice, one-third water and one-third glycerine, with wonderful results.

Try a spot on the arm or leg to test the strength of the solution, using first the full strength of lemon juice and glycerine. Then if it irritates the skin, dilute until it is of the right strength to apply to the face.

This is not only a good bleach to whiten the face but it is an excellent freckle remover when it is used in its full strength.

When the face has been bleached every other day in this manner for several times, discontinue the bleach and keep a lemon on your dressing table. After washing the face in the morning, rub the freshly cut surface of the lemon over the skin, letting the juice dry on while you finish dressing. Then wash off with tepid water to wcich you have added tincture of benzoin—ten drops to a quart of water.

There is a neck bleach with six drops of almond oil to an ounce of strained honey, and the unbeaten whites of two eggs, and into this stir with a silver fork enough very fine oatmeal to make a spreadable paste. Spread thickly on a piece of cloth, three inches wide and long enough to go about the neck, and fasten with strips of adhesive tape; keep on over night and in the morning wash off with tepid water and benzoin as directed for the lemon bleach.

Do not use this bleach on the face, but only on the neck, and remember the oil of bitter almond is a poison and must not be swallowed or left in the reach of children. Keep this neck bleaching up for three weeks—three times a week, unless the skin whitens out sooner, in which case discontinue it.

Do not forget that the skin must be immaculately clean before applying bleach.

A simple bleach for the arms is made by beating the yolk of an egg very light, then adding a teaspoon of olive oil, 2 drops of tincture of benzoin and half an ounce each of glycerine and rosewater. Into this stir fine oatmeal or almond meal to make a medium paste.

Coat your arm thoroughly. Have ready a roll of two-inch surgical gauze, wind the gauze around and around from wrist to elbow or shoulder, and fasten firmly with adhesive tape, some encircling arm, some extending lengthwise. Let remain over night.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in more than a thousand posts throughout the United States, Philippines, Hawaii, Canal Zone and France will sell poppies on Memorial day to serve a twofold purpose; a visible sign of homage to our service dead and a means of financially assisting disabled former service men. Last year much worthy relief work was done with the money received from the sale of the scarlet flowers.

DROP CRIMINAL ASSAULT CHARGE AGAINST NEW LONDON MAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, April 20—Florence Wilder, eight years of age, must have told her mother a fairy tale when she recited a story of an attack upon her by Fernandino Di Benedetto, a knife grinder with a place of business at Colt and Bliuman streets. Thea girl took skates to the grinder to be put in order and when she went away she recited a tale to her mother that Di Benedetto had coaxed her into a back room and there had treated her to wine and then endeavored to assault her. The case got into the police court and then was given over to Probation Officer Mansfield for investigation. The latter learned that there was nothing to the case and it was dismissed from court this morning.

William Rhodes, a painter at Hartford, came to New London yesterday and here fell in with bibulous acquaintances with the result that he was found last night in the railroad yard in a helpless condition. He was taken from harm's way when he was locked up for arraignment in the police court this forenoon. There he said he was not drunk, by pleading not guilty. On the witness stand however he said he came here just for pleasure as he had no particular work to perform and he wanted a ride here in the buses that operate between the two cities. Judge Prince allowed him to go back the same way he came and advised him that it was not necessary for him to drink any on the way to Hartford.

Rhodes confided to a policeman after the session of court that he had $200 when he left the state capital for New London, but he didn't have but $5 when he was presented in court. He could not remember that he had spent the money so he may have been relieved of it by the companions he fell in with.

Florence Brennan of Groton, an employe on a tool train on the New Haven railroad that runs between New London and Providence, obtained a load of booze yesterday that only a train could carry. Brennan has been charged with the same offense before so he was fined $5.

There is no change today in the condition of Mrs. Frank Cowan, age 74 years, who with her husband, were found unconscious Wednesday night at their home, No. 212 Montauk avenue, at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital. Mrs. Cowan is not expected to recover, but her husband will probably survive.

An automobile, owned by Iman Elonsky of Bank street was damaged this afternoon, when it was struck by a Marsh-Imperite car and while the former automobile was motionless alongside the curb on Bank street.

Mrs. Amanda McGee of No. 115 Main street sought the aid of the police at 3:15 o'clock this morning, when John Parker visited her home and attacked her and her son. When the police arrived at the house Parker had made his escape and a search failed to locate the man.

Charles Ulaum, aged 27 years, a fisherman residing at No. 15 Smith street, evidently tired of life, attempted to end his existence this forenoon, for he was found at his home in an unconscious condition from inhalation of gas. He is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital, where his condition is reported as being favorable.

Ulaum procured a piece of rubber tubing and placing one end of it on the side of a jet, to a gas heater, he opened the other end in his mouth and retired on the floor and then turning on the gas, set so that the gas would pass through the tube and permit him to inhale it. The poison soon caused Ulaum to lapse into unconsciousness, but before the victim had accomplished his self destruction, the fumes were detected by other members of the tenement and an investigation by them resulted in Ulaum being discovered. He was given medical attention and then transferred to the hospital.

Harry Eleed has sold to Emilio and Carmelo Rocine a house and lot on Richards street.

Orazio Perrone has transferred his interest in the brick business structure at the northwest corner of Division and Bank streets to Frank Scialabba.

Master Harry Shalett of Blydenburg avenue and Miss Leonore Gagnon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gagnon of Ocean avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital, were able to return to their homes today.

Miss Ella Kenyon, a former resident of New London and at one time employed by the Hotel Mohican as bookkeeper, died in Boston this morning of tumor on the brain. The body of Miss Kenyon will be brought to New London, where the interment will take place.

Miss Kenyon was held in high regard at her former place of employment and during her affliction she has received substantial gifts from the employes of the local hotel.

Mrs. Mary Daniels, wife of William Daniels of No. 10 Chappell street, died at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital late last night of a brain hemorrhage. She suffered late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Daniels was 60 years of age.

Mrs. Daniels was on her way to her home when she was stricken. While on Broad street, near Cottage she suffered the stroke and fell unconscious to the sidewalk. Pedestrians went to her assistance and as it was apparent that the woman was in a grave condition, a physician was summoned, who gave emergency treatment and then caused her to be removed to the hospital. Mrs. Daniels failed to respond to treatment and expired at 11:15 o'clock.

An automobile, owned and operated by Albert C. Saunders, Jr., of East Lyme and a commercial truck, owned by Bartolucci Brothers and operated by Frank Bartolucci, were in collision early this morning on Crystal avenue. Both machines were extensively damaged, but none of the occupants were hurt.

Saunders was operating his auto in a southerly direction and at a curve in the avenue, between Tenth and Winthrop streets, the auto of Bartolucci, approaching from the opposite direction was encountered. Saunders endeavored to avoid a crash by guiding his machine to the right hand side of the highway, but was not successful for the two cars came together with a crash. Saunders' machine was forced against the curbing, causing two rear wheels and a front wheel to be wrenched from the axle and the commercial car sustained damage to the estimated amount of $100.

Fish were never more plentiful in New London than they have been the past few days. Block Island vessels arrived here with large catches and sold them at the public pier at 8 cents a pound against a ruling price of 20 cents.

Charles Noyes, the Old Lyme real estate dealer, who was arrested here a week ago, charged with being a drug addict and who is now a prisoner at the New London county jail awaiting trial, will be arraigned in the United States District court at New Haven next Monday. Sergeant Frank Howard, who took Noyes into custody and Frederick Beebe, who received the prescription which Noyes tendered on a fraudulent prescription for laudanum, have been summoned as witnesses.

Henry H. Smith of Pleasure Beach and C. L. Dimock of No. 47 Squire street are to cause to be erected on Gardner avenue, a thoroughfare that is rapidly becoming a residential centre, two residences for their own occupancy. Both houses will be of frame construction and will cost $10,000.

Osmand L., Jr., the ten months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Osman L. Smith of No. 82 Tenth street, died at Home Memorial hospital this morning. The child had been ill but a few days.

An automobile, operated by Mrs. Emma Lincoln of No. 22 Crystal avenue was in collision with an unidentified machine on Bank street, at the corner of Pearl street, late this afternoon. The automobile was damaged.

Morris Agen, operator of a public service automobile, complained to the police this afternoon of the practice of boys at the station and of a nature that Agen and other public service car operators take objection. According to Agen the boys after school hours and Saturday, loiter at the station and solicit from passengers from trains the privilege of carrying luggage. When the boys learn that the passenger desires to hire a public service car the boys will carry the luggage to whatever operator they are friendly with and the latter pays the hire and the practice prevents the other operators having an equal opportunity of soliciting the fare.

It is probable that at the next meeting of the city council that an effort will be made to cause City Manager Barlow to cause the number of supernumary policemen provided by charter to be appointed. An ordinance already exists calling for twelve supernumary officers and not a single supernumary policeman is on the roster at the present time.

New London lodge of Elks staged a boxing show in the Lyceum theatre this evening, the proceeds of which will go towards providing a camp for the New London Boy Scouts this summer. The bouts were not witnessed by as large a throng of followers as was expected, although all of the contestants possessed reputations that should have brought forth a capacity house.

The Shennecossett Golf club, where the select towers of New London hold forth, was formally opened at the spacious club house at Eastern Point tonight when a dance was held. The affair was attended by a large representation of members and their friends. The club now has a large membership and one of the best seasons in the history of the club is anticipated.

MACHINE HURLS NEW LONDON MAN TO PAVEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 20.—Thomas Foley, aged 27 years, residing at No. 138 Winthrop street, and employed in the freight service of the New York New Haven & Hartford railroad, was struck and perhaps internally injured by an automobile, owned and operated by Charles Bennett of No. 32 Abbott street, Dorchester, Mass. Foley is now a patient at the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, suffering from abdominal injuries, which, in a day or two may reveal that the victim has been internally hurt. Bennett was operating his car along the highway at the approach of the Thames river bridge and when between Harrison and Winthrop streets, Foley, who was walking alongside the highway, is alleged by Bennett to have walked directly in the path of the machine. Foley was struck with considerable force, being hurled to the pavement. He was attended by a physician, after which he was removed to the hospital.

According to Bennett Foley was intoxicated.

Foley was injured last January when he was caught between two freight cars in the depot yard here and sustained injuries which, confined him to the hospital until Feb. 17th.

UNIONS WILL DEMAND ONE DOLLAR AN HOUR

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 20.—Two union bodies, the journeyman plumbers and carpenters, are to make a demand upon their bosses for an increase in wages. The plumbers will make their demand within a few days and will seek more compensation beginning May 1st. The carpenters will defer making their demand until the latter part of next month and will seek the granting of their demand to date from June 1st.

Both the plumbers and carpenters are now receiving a minimum wage of 80 cents per hour and both will make their demand for a minimum pay of $1 per hour. In some instances at present the more competent of the plumbers and carpenters are receiving a wage of 90 cents per hour, but the demand will call for a flat wage of $1 an hour. If the demands are granted, it will mean that some of the journeymen of both unions will undoubtedly receive more than that wage for it has always been customary for the bosses to pay the better grade of employes the highest wage and it will be natural for those employes to expect it in the future as they have in the past.

WELL KNOWN NEW LONDON MAN DEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 20.—Frank S. Gardner of Ocean avenue died in New York this afternoon. He has been in impaired health several years, three years or more, and made a great fight against what has proved to be insurmountable odds. In his prime he was a fine specimen of manhood, being heavier than 200 pounds with no superfluous flesh. He has been in New York for treatment and there has had a dozen or more transfusions of blood in an effort to cure himself.

Mr. Gardner was the son of the late Stephen Gardner and he inherited the family homestead on Ocean avenue, which was a farm of specious acres. His parents died some years ago.

He married Letitia Maxson, who was a milliner in this city before her marriage. She and one daughter survive, the latter being a mere child. Mr. Gardner was a great fancier of horses and before his illness had the best that could be procured. He had a host of acquaintances and they will sincerely refret his death.

Hartford.—Despite a recent allowance of $3,000 for clerk service and $1,541 for carrier service made to the Hartford postoffice, the postal work in this city must continue to be curtailed for a short time, Postmaster David A. Wilson announced.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Calling on Little Miss Mouse.

"If you insist on wearing
The very latest style,
You'll have to give up walking
And just sit still and smile."

said the saleslady, a pretty white leghorn hen, to little Lady Love, as she looked over the spring gowns in the Three-In-One-Cent Store.

"Don't you care," said Uncle Lucky, who you remember in the last story had promised to buy Little Jack Rabbit's pretty mother a lovely new gown, "You get the kind you want and if the skirt is so tight you can't hop, I'll take you in the Luckymobile wherever you want to go."

Who can it be?" whispered Miss Mousie.

"Goodness me! Uncle Lucky," answered Lady Love. "I'll not bob my hair till I'm twenty-three and I don't like my skirt to bind at the knee."

"Phew!" said the old gentleman rabbit; "be a heroine and be in style."

So, dear little Lady Love took a new spring gown and when it was wrapped up they all got into the Luckymoile and started off.

"Now, as long as you're out, you might as well make a day of it," said Uncle Lucky. "We'll make a call on Little Miss Mouse who lives all alone in a pretty green house," and away they went as fast as before and maybe faster, and by and by, after a while and maybe a mile and many a smile, they came to Miss Mourie's house.

"Rat-a-tat, tat," went Uncle Lucky with his big seal ring on the front door. Pretty soon it opened and Miss Mouse said:

"Oh, I'm so glad to see you three,
Come in and have a cup of tea.
I've just made cake with frosting white,
And you may have a little mite."

Now little Miss Mouse was a spinster lady but she knew how to prepare wonderful dishes, and her little house was as neat as a pin and you couldn't have found a speck of dust under the divan even if you looked with an electric push button lamp and a magnifying lamp. Oh my, but she was neat.

Well, just as they were having a lovely time, there came a tremendous knocking at the front door, then a terrific pounding on the back door. And, goodness me! Miss Mouse turned as pale as a ghost and the three little bunnies wiggled their three little noses a million times a minute.

"Who can it be?" whispered Miss Mousie.

"Oh dear, oh dear!" sobbed Lady Love. "I wish I'd stayed at home in the Old Brumble Patch."

"Cheer up," said Uncle Lucky, "it may be the mayman with a bill." But the knocking came again only louder than before, and if it doesn't stop before tomorrow night, I'll tell you in the next story who was outside the door.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

WHAT ARE GOOD "SEED" POTATOES?

The use of home grown seed was abandoned years ago by our best growers. Just why potatoes degenerate in this climate we are not yet sure but the fact has been clearly proven. The best practice has been to buy new seed from the north each year.

However, a new difficulty has arisen, namely, the appearance in the northern districts of the so-called "degeneracy" diseases; mosaic leaf roll and others similar in effect. These diseases are chiefly spread by sucking insects which carry the infected plant juices, from one plant to another. The tubers do not show the disease, except in extreme cases, when they tend to run long. Spraying and seed treatment are not controls, for the disease is within the tuber and plant. The Connecticut grower who plants diseased seed—which may look sound and healthy—will be rewarded by an irregular stand, many weak plants and a very poor yield.

Can good seed be grown? A few northern growers, on isolated farms, do not as yet have these diseases to any extent. Their stock should be good. In other regions, the trouble is widespread. These growers are being advised to secure new, disease-free stock and keep it isolated from other fields—a condition not always easy to provide. In some cases, this is being successfully accomplished.

The important point for Connecticut growers is this—all northern grown stock is not good seed, even though it looks good in the bag or car.

Inspection and certification. In all of the seed growing states, there is some kind of inspection and certification. As yet this is far from perfect, but the average of many trials shows better results with the certified seed.

At present, in addition to certification, it is best to have a knowledge of the grower and his crop. Most of our county agents have visited the seed growing states and better still, they understand the problem. Before buying seed, get in touch with your county agent.—W. L. Slate, Jr., Vice Director, Agricultural Experiment Station.

THE EARLY TURNIP

Early turnips and green peas, maturing at the same time, provide material for an attractive dish. Boil the turnips whole until tender. Scoop out the center and fill with green peas, cutting the bottom of the turnip square so it will stand upright. Fill the hollow with green peas, placing a few peas about the turnip in the dish. Pour hot cream and butter over the combination.

Turnip for a crop to mature with the peas should be sown as soon as the ground can be worked. They should be thinned early to 6 inches apart to secure fast growth. Sow the seed thinly and half an inch deep, and give them at least 15 inches apart in the rows. Tomato plants may be set at three foot intervals between the rows to take the place of the turnips when they are harvested and allowed to grow along without interference with the turnips. Cultivate frequently.

These early season white turnips grown rapidly are usually of finer quality, milder in flavor and tenderer of flesh than the late maturing crop for winter use. The turnip is not grown as frequently for an early crop as it deserves, usually being planted in July and broadcasted then. The old broadcasting method is a waste of seed and ground space for a very considerable portion of the seed thus sown will not produce plants with roots worth pulling as they will not have room to develop.

The turnip likes rich, well worked soil with commercial fertilizer applied from time to time sparingly if the soil has not been previously well manured. The tops of early turnips make excellent greens having much the same flavor as mustard. The thinning of turnips is perhaps more important than that of other root crops as the plants will soon be a disappointment if left crowded and will not do themselves justice when given space later. They should be thinned as soon as they are up far enough to develop their second leaves, taking out the weaker appearing seedlings. Too late thinning is one of the causes of strong, woody roots in the matured vegetable. It must have fast unchecked growth to be mild and tender.

TIME TO PUT DOWN EGGS IN WATERGLASS IS HERE

An old-time economy which has proved satisfactory through many years of trial is that of preserving eggs in waterglass. As March and April are the months of lowest prices for eggs, now is the time to "put down" the surplus which is to be carried over to the season of scarcity.

To prepare the eggs in waterglass, use one part of waterglass to nine parts of water which has been boiled and cooled. Do not wash the eggs. Choose only clean, fresh eggs without a trace of a crack. A cracked egg will, of course, spoil, and may contaminate the others. The preservative should be placed in a large earthenware crock. The eggs should not be dropped as they are placed in the liquid. A coat two inches of the liquid should cover the top layer of eggs. The crock may be covered by the waterglass mixture itself, or by a piece of cheesecloth, or other satisfactory cloth. As you put down the eggs, note the date. Under no circumstances, however, does this have a reference to eggs to be warranted fresh.

SOIL CONDITIONS FOR THE VEGETABLES

Although nature may furnish a harvest when tended the crudest of ways, she would be a poor farmer if she did not do better and get a better harvest.

Perhaps no class of plants is more exact in regard to soil conditions than vegetables. This does not mean that vegetables will not succeed in a great variety of backyards and other back gardens, but it does mean the requirements of the crops must be met in some way or other.

The soil for vegetables must be friable so that it may be easily worked. It should not be too light, or contain too much clay. It may contain a certain amount of humus or organic matter, and the land must be well drained so that the water will not stand on it in puddles or near enough the surface underneath the plants to give them "wet feet."

Vegetables of good quality may be grown on ash piles. In fact, better results can be had on ash piles than on heavy clay soil. In order to make the ash pile bloom, organic matter must be worked into it, preferably in the form of humus. The drainage is good, but if the ashes are not supplied with organic matter they will become too dry in the hot weather.

Ashes are mentioned because many people think such a foundation is hopeless.

If you happen to have only an accumulation of ashes as a start for a garden, the first step would be to hoe two or three inches of soil onto the ashes after first smoothing them over. Then a good per cent. of manure should be applied at the rate of one pound to about two square feet.

If, on the other hand, the garden soil is too heavy; that is, if it contains a considerable amount of clay, it must have humus or organic matter supplied in liberal quantities. Sometimes the application of a couple of inches of ashes or sand to the manure before the application of the organic matter is advisable.

To test the condition of a clay soil, take up a ball in the hands and squeeze it. If it forms into a ball when the hand is opened, the soil is generally too heavy for good results.

LEGAL NOTICE

DISTRICT OF COLCHESTER, ss. Probate Court, April 19th, 1923.

Estate of Charles H. Dawley, late of Colchester, in said District, deceased.

Upon the application of Lucy A. Dawley, praying that administration with the will annexed de bonis non on said estate be granted, as per application on file more fully appears, it is Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the Probate Office in Colchester, in said District, on the 26th day of April, A. D. 1923, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and that public notice be given of the pendency of said application, and the time and place of hearing thereon, by publishing a copy of this order in some newspaper having a circulation in said District, at least three days before said day of hearing.

JOHN CONDREN
apr21d Judge.

Occasionally a mixture of light sandy soil will be found, especially in the coastal regions. On such a soil an application of a few loads of a heavier soil will prove beneficial. Humus or organic matter will also bring such soil into workable condition and enable it to hold moisture, without becoming too wet.

The "humus" that we hear so much about, is merely decayed organic matter, either in the form of manure or decomposed vegetable matter, such as leaves, roots, etc. For the home gardener, the most convenient form is good stable manure. Some gardeners plant a crop in the fall that will carry over the winter and give them organic matter in the spring. This is advisable where suitable manure is not available. There are a number of such crops. Rye is commonly used. A better combination is rye and vetch, the same Town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having the circulation in said District, and make return to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest:
HELEN M. DRESCHER,
Clerk.

NOTICE.—All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at R. F. D. No. 1, Box 58, Norwich, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.
